The amendment was defeated on a vote of 44 to 35, a government majority of nine. When the vote on the main motion was taken the division stood 54 to 25, a government majority of 29.

RAILWAY MEN GO OUT ON STRIKE

LABOR TROUBLES ADD TO GRAVITY OF SITUATION IN RUSSIA.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 4.—A despatch to the Times from the Russian southwestern headquarters, dated Tuesday, says the improvement in morale is not substantial. The authority of officers is still unrecognized. While the so called revolutionary armies have opened a front for enemy to enter, railway men have struck at a critical moment when everything depends upon the prompt removal of property.

WOMEN OPPOSED TO AN ELECTION

ENDORSE ACTION TAKEN AT RECENT WIN-THE-WAR CONVENTION.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—The women who were delegates to the Win the-War Convention in Toronto held a meeting last night. The ground floor of the auditorium was filled with women, some of whom had come over four hundred miles to give the sign manual to the deep rededication of their souls to the carrying on of the war by the Dominion of Canada with undiminished vigor. Resolutions passed were in the main endorsations of those passed by the men at the great Win-the-War Convention earlier in the day. In this sense the women made the Province-wide significance of the decision more profound. After last evening's events thousands of homes in Ontario will feel again the full flush of enthusiasm which three years of war may have somewhat obscured.

Resolutions Adopted.

After addresses were made by Mrs. A. M. Huester and Mrs. L. A. Hamilton, the latter submitted the following resolution which was carried unanimously:

The Win-the-war Convention strongly protests against a general election at this time and calls upon those in authority at Ottawa to make one more supreme effort to form a coalition Government to enforce conscription at once and to proceed with all the resources the country possesses to carry on the war, and to remain true to our dead heroes and those at present fighting for us."

NO THOUGHT OF PEACE UNTIL HUNS MAKE RESTITUTION

Premier Appeals for United Effort

Ottawa, August 4. — The Prime Minister has given out the following message to the people of Canada, calling for renewed consecration for national war effort on the occasion of entering the fourth year of the war:—

"Once more we reach the anniversary of that fateful day three years ago, when Germany challenged the future of democracy and the freedom of the world. The resolve of the nations of the British Commonwealth is now once more renewed. Today they again affirm an invincible determination to sustain the ideals of liberty and justice to a victorious issue.

"The anniversary brings to us proud but solemn memories. With an intense realization of all the sacrifice and sorrow entailed on our people, we are conscious that Canada has vindicated her place among the world's greatest and truest democracies. Assuredly her sons have not suffered and died in vain if liberty and justice are to have any meaning in the future of humanity.

"The forces of militarist aristocracy are still strong and unyielding. The issue of the struggle still hangs in the balance. In Europe the long-repressed democracy of Russia has not yet girded on its full strength; on this continent the mighty Republic to the south is still occupied in that necessary preparation without which no peace-loving people can throw their full force into an armed conflict. Not yet have the allied nations succeeded in throwing their united strength into the supreme effort. That will come, but meantime, with the highly-organized and desperate forces that are arrayed against us, it might be fatal if any nation should relax its endeavor, whether from loss of heart or in reliance upon the strength of others. The mightiest effort of each is needed to assure the triumph, without which all that is dear to us is lost, and the world's future shrouded in darkness and despair. Let us today in Canada close our ranks, nerve ourselves for another year of struggle, and, with undaunted hearts, consecrate our fullest powers to the cause for which already our best and bravest have striven and suffered and fallen."

Reformers Make Trouble in Russia

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pacific Port, August 4. — The returning American mission to Russia landed last last night. Elihu Root, head of the mission, refused to make any statement, but James Duncan, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, said the establishment of a stable government, which would ultimately be achieved, was being retarded by so-called radical reformers who have returned to Russia from America.

THE WEATHER

Germany no Match for British Fleet

All They Can Hope for Is To Hold Off the Enemy's Naval Force.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, August 4.—Captain Persius, writing in the Berlin Tageblatt urging unrestricted submarine warfare, says the German high seas fleet, supported by the coast defence guns, submarines, mines, etc., can beat off naval attacks and keep the enemy from the coast, but an offensive by the German fleet is out of the question.

The British fleet controls the seas and the German fleet is unequal to meeting it.

A HERO'S REWARD.

Military Medal Won by Pte. H. C. Giroux on Battle Front.

The Military Medal, which was won by Pte. H. C. Giroux, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Giroux, will be shown next week in the window of Mr. A. Gibson, the George street jeweller. Private Giroux has never yet seen the prize as he was decorated with the ribbon on the field and the medal was sent to his mother.

The medal is inscribed with the words "For bravery on the field." On the reverse side is a portrait of King George with his official title, and around the edge is the following: "412116, Pte. H. C. Giroux, Borden M. M. G. Battery, Canadian M. G. S."

JUDGMENT WAS RESERVED IN AN ASSAULT CHARGE

At the police court this morning Mrs. Watson, who lives on Chambers Street, was charged with assaulting Walter Hargreaves. The evidence showed that the defendant beat the boy, and Dr. Harvey stated that he was of the opinion that a small blood vessel had been broken during the struggle.

The Magistrate reserved judgment until Wednesday morning.

Lloyd George Addresses Meeting in London—Such Conflicts as the Present Must be Eliminated From Tragedies of Human Life.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 4.—A distinguished gathering attended a meeting this afternoon at Queen's Hall held under the auspices of the National War Aims committee and addressed by Prime Minister who reiterated the aims for which the Entente Allies are fighting and indicated only the conditions under which they would consent to suspension hostilities.

In course of his speech today Prime Minister said. "Victory must be so complete that our national liberty never again shall be challenged. Russia learned that an army without discipline was a rabble. There are some here who want to see committees for the British army and to direct the conduct of the war. We cannot allow sectional organization to direct the war or to dictate terms of peace. The nation as a whole must make peace."

The Prime Minister's appearance was the signal for a remarkable manifestation of popular fervor.

The Premier said he did not trust the German peace talk. Neither the Kaiser nor the Chancellor has yet said he would be satisfied with German soil.

Must Be No More War.

"They talk glibly," he said "about peace but stammer over the word restoration. Before we have a peace conference they must learn to use the word restoration. So far they have not learned even the first letter of the alphabet. War is a ghastly business but it is not so bad as the peace the enemy propose. While they know their plot has miscarried this time, the Prussian war lords have determined to succeed next time. There must be no next time. This generation must eliminate war from the tragedies of human life.

FRENCH TROOPS REPORT GAINS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 4.—In Belgium, in spite of continued bad weather, our troops advanced beyond the cabaret of Kortekeer. French reconnoitering parties explored the farms beyond the front which were reached by pushing back the enemy's patrols. The night passed quietly on the front north of the River Aisne.

On both banks of the Meuse, the artillery of each side was active. Two attempts made by German infantry to occupy our trenches in region of Avoncourt Wood resulted in failure. In the course of a German surprise attack in Argonne we took some prisoners including one officer. There was nothing to report on the rest of the front.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY, AUG. 4, 1917

HIS TITANIC TASK.

"I SHOULD BE afraid to take any step which would lead me to fear that the thirty thousand Canadian corpses in France and Belgium might possibly rise out of their graves in the shape of ghosts and point their gaunt fingers at me as having at the end of the third year of the war given up the great task, or tried to persuade Canada to give up the great task of being a united country and doing her full share for victory, peace, freedom, justice and humanity."—Sir Robert Borden.

THREE YEARS OF WAR.

IF THERE EVER existed any doubt as to which of the European powers is responsible for the war that has been raging since that memorable date three years ago today, then on this anniversary the case is clear. Every day new evidence is coming to light that the Germans sought the conflict and that Austria's famous ultimatum to Serbia was inspired by the militarists at Berlin, intent on an excuse for beginning the plans of conquest that had been so carefully prepared for over forty years.

Germany's hope for a war centred in the friction between Austria and Serbia. The wonder is that the present struggle did not begin a year before it did, for the nations were on the verge of strife at that time. Following the last Balkan War, Austria and Serbia were at odds when the latter came to settle on peace terms with Turkey. Von Jagow, at that time Germany's foreign minister, early in 1913 made his famous address in the Reichstag, in which he threw down the gauntlet to the Entente Powers. If Russia, he said, interfered in the Austro-Serbian dispute, Germany would be forced, under the terms of the Triple Alliance, to go to the rescue of her ally, and this would mean war with not only Serbia and Russia, but with France and England. The German Empire, he said, was ready to accept the issue and abide by the result. The trouble at that time did not come to a focus, but it was simply staved off for a year.

While Von Jagow was delivering his famous world-defying speech in the Reichstag, Canadians in Parliament were making light of the so-called German menace and resorting to every known trick to block this country's efforts to render naval aid to England, aid that would be so welcome and effective in the present crisis. The first roar of a German naval gun woke a section at least of the Canadian people from their slumber in the paradise of those who suspect no evil.

There have been treaties broken since this war began. Some with, others without, justification. Italy, a member of the Triple Alliance, re[illegible] its agreement on the ground that it called for defensive action only and not for a war of conquest. That country is now at war with one of the very nations to which she was pledged to render assistance, but history will justify Italy in its course.

Germany invaded Belgium, a neutral state, to reach France, and the world was shocked at this gross abrogation of a solemn international obligation. If the Entente Powers sent armies into neutral Greece, it was only for the purpose of aiding an ally of the latter. The two cases are by no means parallel.

The third anniversary of the war finds the situation more tense than ever. The Allies are making the supreme effort of the conflict. Their last resources, their maximum forces, are used against the foe. There can be no doubt as to the final result, although it is yet impossible to estimate the cost or the hour of the final victory.

Leave Russia out of the reckoning, and the Allies are more set in their purpose than ever. In no part of the British Empire is there a sign of weakening. There may be factional strife in Canada, but the main purpose of the majority of the people is to win the war. Manhood and wealth are alike to be devoted to the Empire's call. Six thousand of Ontario's best citizens assembled in Toronto the other day recognised the great duty of the hour and unanimously declared that the nation's one mission now is to win the war at any and all costs.

Victory must be final and complete. Not only are the nations hopeful of success, but, better still, they understand that this is impossible of achievement without further devotion to duty and to new sacrifices. Germany is opposed by the civilized powers of the earth, and civilization and righteousness have always emerged triumphant from every combat ever staged.

THE CONVENTION.

WHO IS THERE in Canada, no matter what his political affiliations may have been in the past, who can object to anything either suggested or agreed upon by the delegates to the Win-the-War Convention held in Toronto? What thin-skinned politician can suspect mischief or a plot to overthrow his own party? It was a gathering of disinterested patriots, if ever there was such an assemblage held on earth.

The delegates to the convention were unanimous on all the main issues. They agreed that the soldiers, officers and privates, are entitled to a more generous scale of compensation for their services, to keep pace with the increased cost of living, no matter whether this additional allowance takes the form of a new rate of wages or grants to the dependents of the soldiers at home.

The delegates would avoid an election. They suggest that the vacancies now existing in Parliament be filled by the holding of bye-elections, and that Parliament, with its forces thus augmented, take another vote on the extension of term proposed by Premier Borden and voted down.

There is no probability that this will ever be done. Even if the present vacancies were filled by acclamation, candidates pledged to that course being returned, the number would not be sufficient to overcome the present hostile majority, and without unanimous consent there can be no extension.

One significant address at the convention was that made by Mr. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., who stated that there is only one leader of the Canadian people at this time and that is the man who has guided the ship of state ever since the war started and who understands the nation's needs and responsibilities as no other Canadian does.

In the coming election there are likely to be a number of win-the-war candidates returned by acclamation, at least in Ontario. Their politics will not be considered. Their devotion to the Empire's necessities is all that will count, and the chances are that out of such a collection of members of the House a national government can be formed, such as the delegates to the Toronto convention recommended.

FREE ADVERTISING.

PERHAPS EVE never hungered for the apple, the eating of which "brought death into the world and all our woe," until the fruit was placed under the ban. It is the prohibited dainties for which the small boy craves. There is something in human nature which engenders a longing for anything that is branded as suspicious. Curiosity is easily aroused in the mortal mind.

"The Fiddlers," the little book which has been before the public prominently of late as an interdicted work, may or may not be a libel on the Canadian troops in Europe, although we are inclined to the conclusion, as those in a position to speak with authority have declared, that it is.

But that is not the point. In the making of boks these days, as in the age of Solomon, there is no end. Some survive, while others ingloriously perish without attracting even passing notice. If "The Fiddlers" had been left to fate, few people in Canada would ever have heard of it, and fewer still would have read it. Probably it is written to the tune of hyperbole so popular with those whose object is the working of a reform. Its influence on the public mind would very likely have been limited.

But the book has been advertised, without cost to its publishers, from end to end of the Dominion. Public curiosity has been aroused. If the treatise is really objectionable, it is unfortunate that the Government dignified it by their disapprobation. Left to itself, "The Fiddlers" would have died a natural death, such as is reserved for works of the kind, and before this would have been buried in the graveyard of literary failures.

A SURPRISE FROM THE SENATE.

THE SENATE has passed the Conscription Bill by a vote of 54 to 25, a clear majority of 29, or almost three times as large as that given the measure in the House, when the number of members voting is considered. This means that the bill now lacks only the signature of the Governor-General to become the law of the land, and, as has been officially intimated, the ink will not be dry before conscription is put into effect. The men in the trenches will get the reinforcements for which they have been calling.

The terms of the new law are now before the people, as the bill has been published in detail. Every man of military age in the Dominion knows to what class he belongs, and in what order that class is to be called. There is yet a chance to enlist before the draft and to get into the service as a volunteer and so avoid any odium that may be popularly attached to the man who did not do his duty until compelled to do so.

The man who pays his taxes or discharges any financial obligation on his own account is not in the same class as the man who performs such duties only under the threat of the bailiff.

MR. WEARING'S PROTEST.

IN A LETTER in our local contemporary last night, Mr. Joseph Wearing refers to a statement concerning himself, recently made in The Review, and in which he was quoted as saying that, while he was a Liberal, he would support Premier Borden, if it was necessary to do so in order to win the war. Mr. Wearing says that this was an "absolutely unauthorised statement, for which I accept no responsibility whatever."

We are pleased to note that Mr. Wearing does not go so far as to say that he never said anything of the kind. This would involve The Review in the slight trouble of establishing the fact that he said exactly what we reported him as saying. So far as authority and responsibility are concerned, we do not lack the one and are quite ready to assume the other.

We cannot see that any injustice has been done Mr. Wearing. His quoted statement is in keeping with his determination to win the war at any cost. It may be hard for him to rend himself from his party, but it is probably more heartbreaking for a mother to part from the boy who, in the uniform of his King, starts for the battle front. This is a time when family relations are broken up. Then let no man talk of sacrifice when he cuts the bonds that bind him to a political party.

When Mr. Wearing renders any public service, as he so frequently does, The Review is always pleased to record the fact without direct authority from him. He is not responsible for such chronicles, except, perhaps, in a technical sense. Just now we are unable to conceive of a higher service he could possibly render his country than the one indicated in the published statement for which he now disclaims responsibility.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

CANADA has no more use for a glutton than for a war profiteer.

• • •

A LEADER trained to his duties is worth half a dozen in the woods.

• • •

FOR WHAT we are about to receive let us be truly thankful to Mr. Hanna.

• • •

UNITED, the Conscriptionists score; divided, Quebec wins and the Empire loses.

• • •

EVEN THE SENATORS, so faithful in the past, have gone back on the old chieftain.

• • •

IF THERE ARE any more patriots ready to renounce party, now is the accepted time.

• • •

WHEN THE DRAFT goes into effect, war poets need look for neither exemption nor mercy.

• • •

LIKE Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Ontario is in the war to the end, but actively rather than passively.

• • •

CANADA cannot have both conscription and Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Canada wants conscription.

• • •

THE RAILWAYS were not the only white elephants in the menagerie inherited by Sir Robert.

• • •

BUT FOR LIBERAL blundering, the country would not now be forced to take over a business that does not pay.

• • •

WHAT MATTER IT if an occasional good party man be lost in the shuffle? Better men have died in the trenches.

• • •

IT CANNOT BE the war that makes some men skeptical of the Win-the-War Convention. Then it must be the heat.

• • •

THE MAN who suspects the motives of the win-the-war patriot will dismally wonder these mornings if there was frost during the night.

• • •

IF HE READS the reports of the Toronto convention, Sir Wilfrid Laurier will probably realise that his star has set in eclipse in Ontario.

ONTARIO'S CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of weekly crop reports made by District Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:—

Some fields of winter wheat and rye have been cut, and are yielding well. Spring wheat is also promising a good yield, and like all the spring grains will have plenty of straw. The midge has been doing injury to the growing wheat in a few of the counties in the western half of the province, more especially in Welland and Haldimand, the damage to the crop ranging from 5 to 25 per cent. In some fields although not averaging more than 5 per cent. in any one district, barley is ripening rapidly, and will give a high yield. Oats are also doing well. Peas at present are looking better than for years, but the hot, dry weather will be their testing time. In the heavy bean raising county of Kent, the crop is likely to turn out well.

The week of clear sunshine has been ideal for haying. Both clover and timothy have been got in under ideal conditions, and will be of much better quality than last year's cut. Prospects for clover seed are said to be promising.

Roots, where properly cultivated, are looking fine, and all classes give promise of at least an average yield. Early potatoes are doing well, but blight is threatening some of the later varieties.

Sour cherries have yielded well, raspberries are plentiful.

Early field tomatoes are now on the market. The plants have made vigorous growth.

Live Stock

Live stock, especially young animals, are reported to be in excellent condition. There has been a decline in values, running about 75c per cwt., in the case of market cattle. The week of intense heat has told upon pastures, and the flow of milk has slowed up, although it is now better than the average for the time of year. The fly is becoming very tormenting to cattle.

Hogs have slightly decreased in price; marketing is about as usual.

Farm Labor

The frequent rains of the latter part of spring and early summer, which delayed the planting of corn, roots, and other late field crops, and prevented hay cutting at the normal period, have been followed by a week or more of torrid weather which is fast hastening the ripening of grain, and is causing the overlapping of the haying and harvesting seasons to such an extent that farmers are almost in despair of securing adequate help to get in the crops at the right time and in the best condition. Much disappointment is being expressed at the slow response so far of men from the towns and cities to give the help that was expected on the farm during vacation. In Halton women are working in the fields driving horses on rakes and mowers, and also on corn cultivators.

Three years ago Germany declared war on Russia, and coincidently the French Cabinet ordered a general mobilization. Thus was set in motion the grim machinery of warfare that has grown in momentum and power ever since. Nation after nation has become involved the world over and it is impossible to foretell when the carnage and demolition will cease.

Nearly three years ago, Lord Kitchener, in turning to Great Britain for the first of her volunteers, declared in his positive and unemotion fashion that the empire was face to face with a titanic struggle that would probably endure for three years. The British people, firm in their belief that this was merely a fiction to stimulate recruiting, scoffed at that well considered pronouncement and denounced their leading war lord as a mutual agitator.

But Great Britain was not alone guilty of this feeling of national self-sufficiency, and the price that has been exacted since is perhaps the logical toll of smug complacency. With past wars as an index it was generally believed that the struggle could not endure for more than a year at the most. It was the common opinion among Germany's enemies that their battle fronts would hold, that existing defences would prove impregnable, remembering how strong they were compared with kindred fortifications of forty-odd years before. But the foes of the Central Powers failed to reckon with the mechanics of modern warfare as developed by the Teuton Allies, especially Germany.

With unprecedented rapidity the German mobilization was effected, and with astonishing precision a great German force was in motion within a few hours after the declaration of war, pressing westward toward France. On the 2nd of August these armies entered Luxemburg and then demanded a free passage through Belgium in order to strike the French where least prepared. All of us know what happened thereafter.

Belgium's defence of her honor and her stubborn resistance upset the Teuton calculations. Her momentary stand—for it can scarcely be called more—served to give unready France the vitally necessary time in which to take desperate steps to protect her soil. It was more than three days after the Kaiser's troops were in action before the French could mobilize a small army on the Franco-Belgian frontier. This in itself was the best evidence of how little France expected Germany to strike at her along that part of her eastern border.

German Plans Checked.

Nothwithstanding the valiant help of the Belgians, the Germans moved on relentlessly, smashing into wreckage monster forts up to then deemed immune to gunfire, while the Kaiser's field gray divisions pushed on like an overflowing sea, meeting with an ineffective resistance. Within twenty-nine days from her declaration of war Germany had her siege guns within bombarding reach of Paris, and five of her well equipped armies were waiting impatiently for the order to sweep down upon the French capital.

But there still remained an unconquered Belgium upon the German flank, and the Teutons could not afford to neglect this fact, realizing as they did that it would certainly menace their lines of communication seriously should British troops land in Belgium. Before moving onward, then, it was necessary for the Kaiser's armies to effect the substantial subjugation of Belgium.

The time taken to do this was made the most of by both the French and the British. With their line of communications fully protected at last, the right wing under Gen. von Kluck was afforded the opportunity to continue its sweeping advance over northeastern France, and to this movement the French and the British could offer but scattered opposition.

Over a country that was open and gently undulating, with expansive fields but seldom fenced, fine roads running at straight lines for miles upon miles, the terrain afforded a splendid theatre for the speedy progress of large armies. No wonder, then, that the German onrush was so swift that a French offensive could not gather headway until the twenty-fifth of August, nearly half a month after the Teutons had first menaced the northeastern part of France. What followed has been entertainingly and lucidly explained by Surgeon A. M. Fauntleroy of the United States navy, who was sent abroad to make a medical survey. Let us quote:

"On August 25 Gen. Joffre issued an order of the day explaining that as it had been impossible to carry out the projected French offensive a regrouping of forces would be necessary in order that, by the junction of the Fourth and Fifth French armies and the British army, and of forces drawn from the east, a mass of troops might be assembled in the region of Amiens which would be able to assume the offensive in a general direction toward Saint-Pol-Arras or Arras-Bethune. The same order arranged that this extensive movement of troops should be covered by rear guards whose mission it was to utilize every advantage of ground to stop, or at least to retard, by means of short and violent attacks (principally with artillery) the march of the enemy.

"From August 25 to September 4 this great movement was carried out, but the rapidity of the advance of the German right wing, coupled with transport and other difficulties and the congestion of the railways, caused by the evacuation of Paris, compelled the troops assembling from the east to take positions more to the south than had been originally intended, and the French offensive was consequently delayed.

Battle of the Marne.

"On September 4, reconnoissances by the Allied cavalry and aviators discovered that the German right had deflected its march on Paris toward Maux and Coulommiers. By this time, however, what had been formerly the French left (Fifth Army) was ready to attack the front of the enemy's columns, and it was supported toward the northwest by the British army and by the army sent out from Paris in taxi-cabs under Gen. Maunoury, both lying northeast from Paris.

"Thus the massing of the forces ordered by Gen. Joffre on August 25 was accomplished. Instead of being enveloped, the French armies were now in a developing position and the two wings being in contact with the fortified points of Paris and Verdun, the manoeuvring of the whole body was greatly facilitated.

"It was at this time that Gen. Joffre decided to pass to the attack, and on the evening of September 4 he issued another order of the day, as follows: 'It is advisable to take advantage of the hazardous situation of the First German Army in order to concentrate upon it the efforts of the allied armies of the extreme left. All arrangements will therefore be taken on the 5th, in view of an attack on the 6th.'

"The British army, established on the Coulommiers front, was to attack in a general direction toward Montmirail, while the Fifth Army, drawing slightly to the left, was to attack from the Esterney-Sezanne front in a general direction from south to north. The Second Cavalry Corps was to insure communication between these two armies.

"The Ninth Army was to cover the right wing of the Fifth Army by holding the exits from the Saint Gond marsh and by bringing part of its forces to bear on the plateau north of Sezanne. All of these different armies were to assume the offensive with the dawn on September 6.

"Finally, on the morning of September 6, Gen. Joffre issued a proclamation, which was not a tactical order but rather an appeal to the devotion of the troops, as follows: 'At the moment when a battle upon which depends the salvation of the country is about to begin, it is right to remind everybody that now is no longer the time to look back. Every effort must be employed to attack and to drive back the enemy. Troops which can no longer advance must, cost what it may, hold the conquered ground and die where they stand rather than retreat. In the present circumstances no faltering can be tolerated.'

"This was the beginning of the battle of the Marne, the outcome of which has passed into history as the undoubted salvation of France and has acclaimed Gen. Joffre a master in the art of war who was equal at the supreme moment to the gigantic task imposed upon him by his country.

"The Germans lost heavily in their rapid retreat both in personnel and material, and finally fell back to strongly fortified positions. The character of the fighting again changed when the Germans fell back on their entrenchments. Trench warfare is, with minor differences, practically a siege warfare."

How fiercely, stubbornly and resourcefully this order of conflict developed alone explains the length to which the war has since been drawn out.

In the months and years that have followed the Battle of the Marne and the gradual withdrawal of German troops from French soil French and British artillery experts have perfected their ordnance and made it possible by a veritable system of long range blasting to blow the enemy out of his field fortifications and to give the attacking infantry an opportunity to sweep forward and into the trenches of their foes. To do this appaling work the resources of the Entente Allies have been strained to the utmost.

Great factories, giant industries, and millions of men and women workers have been recruited to deal with manifold requirements of this order of strife. The manufacturing capacities of Germany's enemies have been increased to an enormous extent, and all that the waging of war might be carried on upon a scale hitherto unimagined by professional military men. Not only that, but the activities of the United States and Canada have been called into service and hundreds upon hundreds of factories enlarged or created anew in order to furnish a part of the insatiable requirements of this awful struggle.

Russia has played a vital part in the long drawn contest, and has served effectually to hold the attention of vast numbers of German and Austrian troops while Italy has likewise distracted the Austro-Hungarian forces; but, bitterly as the struggle has waged upon the eastern front from time to time, the crucial or pivotal aspect of the war has always centred upon the western front.

There every foot of ground gained by the Entente Allies has cost tremendously in material and money, and not infrequently in life and blood of the valiant men engaged. The climax of battling cunning has been reached in this theatre of the war, and with nothing more than a superficial knowledge of the many instruments employed one need not wonder at the grewsome toll enacted.

Millions Sacrificed

Despite the desperateness with which the civ'l war was fought from 1861 to 1865, still the total casualties did not number during the entire period more than 570,000 killed and wounded or the victims of disease. Indeed scourges of one sort or another reaped a heavier harvest than bullets or bayonets, and it has been authoritively stated that while the ratio on both sides during that war was two deaths from disease to one by bullets.

From July, 1916, to the end of January of the present year the Somme offensive has cost the British alone a total of 552,571 casualties! It is no wonder then that the total of killed, wounded and missing among all the belligerents is estimated at quite 18,000,000.

Happily, modern medical science has achieved wonders in the way of dealing with injuries and speeding recovery. In the earlier part of the war French statistics recorded that the medical department near the close of 1914 had dealt with substantially 500,000 wounded. Of this number actually treated in French hospitals 54.5 per cent. were given furloughs during convalescence and subsequently returned to duty; 17 per cent. remained for a considerable period in hospitals, but with every prospects of complete recovery; only 1.48 per cent. were actually unfit for further service, and out of the half million wounded treated but 2.48 per cent. died.

Among the British injured 90 per cent. were able to return to duty. America has reason to be proud of this showing because native medical genius has blazed the way for wonders in surgery and therapeutics, while an American chemist evolved a sterilizing fluid that has saved thousands of limbs and innumerable lives.

The Germans have been able, according to their published figures, to cure and to return fit for service 89.5 per cent. of their wounded; 8.7 per cent. have been disabled, and 1.7 per cent. of their treated wounded have died. These data must be taken into account when the total casualties are considered, and they help to rob the grim results of battle of a large measure of their former terrors.

Enemy Territory Held

Months ago Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, then still in office, confidently proclaimed that the map would show a victorious Germany, meaning by that that the area of enemy territory held by the Central Powers and their allies was far greater than similar aggressions achieved by the Entente Allies. He proudly pointed to the 173,950 square miles in the grip of the Central Powers in Russia, Serbia, Belgium, Albania, France, Montenegro and Rumania.

In answer to this the Entente Allies call attention to the 1,200,910 square miles which they dominate in Africa, Alsace, Asia, etc. This equivalent area spread over Europe would cover all of Portugal, Spain, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Montenegro, Albania, and nearly half of Greece.

Of course the bulk of these regions are not today equal in value to the rich territory actually held by the Teutons in Europe, lands that have been made a source of wealth by generations of thriving peoples and humming industries. But the loss of her colonies would impose incalculable sacrifice upon Germany were they denied her upon a return of peace.

Probably no phase of the war has been more startling in its revelations than the activities of the Teuton U-boats. At the beginning of the conflict Germany was able to boast of only a few scores of these craft, but their well-trained crews and determined commanders speedily brought them into play and scored heavily with them. The Kaiser's naval strategists were not slow in realising the potentialities of this type of torpedo vessel and with characteristic thoroughness set about standardising their manufacture and turning them out quickly and in large numbers.

To-day according to reliable estimates, Germany and Austria have at their comand something like 400 submarines of various sizes, the latest and largest being of a very superior order. It is safely inside of the fact to assume that the Central Powers have had in service since the war began a total of 150,000 tons of underwater craft, and with this relatively moderate array they have been able to send to the bottom more than 4,000,000 tons of merchant shipping.

Probably nothing has been more disappointing to the Germans than the work of their Zeppelins, which they confidently prophesied would destroy London and set aflame military depots all over the British Isles.

Up to date aerial attacks on England have netted probably not more than 500 kiled and a total of 1,000 injured. Most of the casualties have been among civilians, and the heaviest single toll has been enacted by bombing aeroplanes and not Zeppelins.

The dirigibles have become relatively ineffective, thanks to defending flying machines and anti-aircraft batteries, but the development of the bombing aeroplane has blazed the way for far more serious raids, because these aircraft can do their work in the day time and make more certain of their marks, while standing a better chance of avoiding retaliatory attack. Zeppelins, on the other hand, afford large targets when flying low enough to see their targets, and for their own security are generally obliged to operate after nightfall.

During the first year of the war twenty-three of these dirigibles were lost to Germany; the second year

WOULD INCREASE PAY OF OFFICERS AND PRIVATES

Win-The-War Convention Would Also Give Franchise to Fighting Men of Any Age---Labor's Attitude in the War.

There was no business session of the win the-war convention yesterday afternoon. Before the session concluded at one o'clock the convention dealt with the resolution proposing an increase of pay for officers and men in the overseas forces, as moved by Mayor W. B. Burgoyne, of St. Catharines, seconded by Capt. Innis. The resolution urged that recognizing the extent to which the cost of living has been increased since the beginning of war, and the extent to which the wages of all workingmen at home have also been increased, while the pay of officers and men of all ranks in the overseas forces have remained stationary, as well as all allowances from the Patriotic Fund, the Government of Canada would be justified in increasing their pay, the mare so because the men canot make these claims for themselves and their dependents.

The reading of the resolution was heartily applauded and after an interpretation had been given by the mover and seconder, was passed without a dissenting voice.

Both Mayor Burgoyne and Mr. Treshan pointed out that many of the soldier boys overseas had been constantly fighting with very little rest since the beginning of hostilities in 1914. The whole convention listened intently for the plea on behalf of the soldiers and when a resolution was put to the gathering favoring a furlough for the first contingent men as soon as new reinforcements were available, it was passed unanimously.

Give Soldiers the Vote

Mr. J. M. Godfrey then moved, seconded by Mr. B. A. Gould, that all soldiers be given the vote no matter whether of age limit or where he might be located.

Some applause greeted this motion, and after it had been carried a strong committee was named to go to Ottawa to interview the Premier and report what had been accomplished during the sessions of the conventions.

Labor Party's Position

Mr. John Vick, vice-president of the Greater Toronto Labor Party, forwarded to Secretary Woods of the Win-the-War Convention the following resolution expressing the attitude of the party towards the objects of the convention and setting forth the necessary measures to bring to a successful close the war now going on in Europe:

(1) That the Government of Canada do take all adequate means to bring the war to a successful conclusion; that the production of munitions be placed in control of a commission responsible to the Canadian Government only, and that representatives of labor be appointed to the said commission.

(2) That all concerns producing or storing food products be placed under Government control.

(3) That measures be enacted providing adequate support for the members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and also their dependents.

(4) That a legal rate of interest be established for the continued period of the war, dated from the final passing of the conscription bill, said rate to be ten per cent. per annum net profit on invested capital of $10,000 and upwards.

In addition and on the basis of making taxation more equitable, an income tax be enforced graded from a minimum of $1,500 for single men, and $2,000 for married men, to a maximum of $100,000, and all incomes over the maximum be appropriated by the State for war purposes.

(5) That all transportation, and communication facilities be placed under Government control during the period of the war.

The resolution was referred to the resolutions committee.

In view of the fact that there was some feeling expressed that speakers from the G.W.V. were curtailed as to time Mr. Frank Wise, honorary secretary, makes the following official statement: "The first part of the program for the mass meeting on Thursday night was in the hands solely of the G.W.V. Their officers gave us no particulars as to what time was to be alloted to the different speakers. The names were givjn us, that was all.

It was clearly understood by the two associations that the advertised timetable be rigidly adhered to. The agreement was that the Veterans should close their program at 8.50, and the program was followed in persuance of this arrangement. Mr. Godfrey simply notified the last speaker, Sergt. Knight, privately that his time was nearly up. "The Veterans were allowed the full time under the arrangement made between two committes."

For Pledged Candidate

Consideration was given to the draft resolution of Mr. Arthur Hawkes, seconded by Mr. E. G. Henderson, of Windsor. The motion read as follows:

"Whereas, this convention holds it of prime importance that any election during the war be purified from the poison of partizan strife, and made a demonstration of the courage and determination of our people to cast aside lesser things and unite for the performance of our national duties."

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought The Joy Of Health After Two Years' Suffering

MADAM LAPLANTE

85 St. Rose St., Montreal. April 4th.

"For over two years I was sick and miserable. I suffered from constant Headaches, and had Palpitation of the Heart so badly that I feared I would die. There seemed to be a lump in my stomach and the Constipation was dreadful. I suffered from Pain in the Back and Kidney Disease.

I was treated by a physician for a year and a half and he did me no good at all. I tried "Fruit-a-tives" as a last resort. After using three boxes, I was greatly improved and twelve boxes made me well. Now I can work all day and there are no Headaches, no Palpitation, no Heart Trouble, no Constipation, no Pain or Kidney Trouble and I feel like a new being—and it was "Fruit-a-tives" that gave me back my health".

The buggy is rubber tired, green running gear and black body.

SAYS THAT LITTLE'S LYNCHING WAS INSPIRED BY MINE OWNERS

Leader of I W.W., William D. Haywood Claims Dead Man Was Victim of Interests.

Butte, Mon., Aug. 4.—Authorities are making every effort to apprehend the masked vigilantes who were responsible for the lynching of Frank Little, an Industrial Worker of the World leader.

The police, the Sheriff and his deputies and the County Attorney all say they have no clue to the identity of the men.

The owner of the rooming house from which Little was taken was so frightened, she says, that she could not recognize any of the men if she were to meet them again.

Members of the Metal Mine Workers Union, in whose labor agitation Little had taken an active part since his arrival in this city three weeks ago, met to discuss the situation. Although some of the more radical members advised immediate drastic action conservation prevailed and the leaders advised the men to "keep their mouths shut."

An intensely bitter feeling is prevalent among the miners and threats of retaliation are frequently heard.

The chief of police has ordered his men to make every effort to apprehend the vigilants, in compliance with Mayor W. H. Maloney's request.

Three hundred members of the National Guard stationed here are ready for any possible emergency.

Although the authorities state they have not a clue leading to the identity of the members of the lynching party members of the Metal Mine Workers declare that they know five of the men and are on the trail of the sixth and seventh.

What Haywood Says.

"Frank Little didn't die at the hands of vigilantes or other citizens. He was killed by a band of cutthroats of the worst sort. I can't conceive that it was anything but the mining interests of Montana that got him."

That was the statement of William D. Haywood, secretary and treasurer of the I. W. W., when interviewed at the headquarters of the organization in Chicago.

"News of Little's death was a crushing blow to me," he said. "I loved him like a brother.

"Frank was in Chicago only three weeks ago, attending a meeting of the executive board. He was all crippled up from an automobile accident in Arizona, and in addition had a bad rupture. I advised him to stay here and go to a hospital, but he felt the urgent need of answering a call from the striking miners of Butte and went there.

"I don't believe that he made the statements attributed to him, concerning American soldiers. He wasn't killed for that, but because he was a strong figure in the strike and was giving the strikers the best that was in him in the way of aid and counsel.

"The courts of this country are not backward in dealing with persons who make treasonable statements. It is reasonable to believe that if he had said anything treasonable the courts would have handled his case speedily. And do you suppose that any body of citizens, calling themselves 'vigilantes' or anything else, would have taken a cripple out and hanged him?

"Well it is in the blood of such men as Little that the success of the I. W. W. is writen."

Mr. Haywood declared he had received numerous telegrams from Butte during th day accusing "a band of gunmen" of having murdered Little.

"What is responsible for the general movement against the I. W. W. throughout the country?" he was asked.

"There is no question that it is a part of a well thought out, well laid plan against the organization," he replied. "The Governors of eight different States have got together and decided that the I. W. W. is a 'menace.' Can one of these Governors point to a single act of violence committed by the I. W. W. even during the height of the deportations from Bisbee and other places?"

The mines of Butte, Haywood stated, are controlled by the Rockefeller interests. He has wired Little's sister, Miss Emma Little of Fresno, Cal., for instructions concerning the body.

Feels Better Now Than in 28 Years

"My Friends Congratulate Me on My Improvement on Tanlac," Says Hooper.

I have had a long, hard struggle with ill health but by the help of Tanlac I have overcome all my troubles and although I'm now fifty-six I am actually feeling better than I have since I was twenty-five years old." This interesting and remarkable statement was made by Sam Hooper, owner and operator of a blacksmith shop at 9 Brock avenue, Toronto, a few days ago. Mr. Hooper has been blacksmithing in Toronto for many years, is a member of both the Ancient and Independent Orders of Foresters, also of the Oddfellows, and is a man of wide acquaintanc and many staunch friends.

"For the past four years now," he continued, "I have suffered from nervousness and a general run-down condition, and although I tried numbers of different medicines I kept getting worse all the time. During the past year I fell off from one hundred and ninety-eight pounds to one hundred and sixty-six, and my friends were always commenting on how bad I looked. During the week just before I started on Tanlac I lost five pounds in weight, I was going down so fast I became alarmed about my condition. I just seemed to have a general break-down and wasn't worth a cent so far as doing my work was concerned. I would eat fairly hearty but somehow my food didn't agree with me and gave me no strength or nourishment. The gas formed by my sour, undigested food would bloat me up and cause terrible pains all through my sides and stomach. It hurt so bad one time I thought sure I had appendicitis and got so uneasy that I went and had an examination before I could be satisfied about it. I couldn't sleep and dreaded for night to come because I knew I would just law awake in my nervousness and misery and get up in the morning feeling worse than ever. I was so weak and worn-out I couldn't do a thing but lay around, just had to give up all active work and hire all my shop work done. Nobody will ever know how I suffered, because I can't describe it. I couldn't find out what was wrong with me and couldn't get anything to do me any good.

"My friend, Harvey Hamilton, told me how Tanlac had helped him and advised me to try it. Well, he couldn't have done me a greater kindness, for it has made me over again, almost. I began feeling better before I had finished half of my first bottle and I have just been mending right along ever since. I can hardly tell I ever had stomach trouble now and am relieved of the gas and indigestion almost entirely. My nerves are stronger and more steady. I sleep good and my friends instead of talking about how bad I look are congratulating me on my wonderful improvement. It has helped me wonderfully already, is still helping me, and I'm glad to tell about it.

WOODMEN TOO ON BIG DRIVE

PLEASANT OUTING HELD AT CHEMONG THURSDAY EVENING.

Those who took in the drive on Thursday evening to Chemong with the Woodmen of the World certainly enjoyed themselves. The weather was ideal and this put the crowd in good humor on the way out. On reaching the pavillion Tucker's Orchestra was playing a few lively strains and soon started off with their dance program. Dancing was indulged in until after midnight when Dan Sullivan served a supper for the party and he is some caterer. He knows how to warm people up, in fact some of the party were kept good and hot all the way home with a little too much mustard on the sandwiches. Everyone enjoyed the supper and thanked Mr. Sullivan for his courtesy and the obliging manner in which he handled the crowd.

On the way home many an auto was passed in difficulties as a punishment for trying to break the speed records.

Studebaker
Established 1852

Cars for Canadian Service

The careful, keen, shrewd buyers in the great Middle Western Provinces use Studebaker cars because they have found that Studebakers give consistent service on the rough country roads and gumbo trails, day in and day out, at the least possible maintenance and repair expense.

In the metropolitan cities of the east where style is a factor, there are thousands of Studebakers in daily use.

In ratio to power, Studebaker cars are most economical in gasoline consumption.

In ratio to carrying capacity, their light weight and perfect balance make them most economical in tires—Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

Studebaker cars are Made-in-Canada, at Walkerville, Ontario, by one of the largest manufacturers of automobiles in the world. They are the best work of a great and long-established organization.

Come in and let us show you, point by point, the quality features that make Studebaker one of the best automobile "buys" in the world.

SEVERAL CHANGES MADE IN GOVERNMENT'S INCOME TAX BILL

Chief Points in Measure as Brought Out by Discussion in Parliament.

Ottawa, August 4.—Here are some of the points of Canada's new income tax, as brought out during the discussion on Thursday:

Man and wife are each subject to taxation on their separate incomes. Each is exempt up to $3000, but the Minister will consider making this a joint exemption.

In case of a marriage settlement made by a husband, his income will not be taxed for the amount thus disposed of, but the wife's income will be taxed for what she receives.

In case of a widow's insurance or property acquired under a will, there will be no tax upon the principal sum the year it is received. But as soon as it is invested and affords income, that income will be taxed.

Minors will be subject to income tax.

Shareholders in a company will not necessarily be taxed on their proportion of undistributed profits, but the Minister has the right to do this in cases where there is an attempt on the company's part to evade taxation by piling up reserves.

Patriotic and Red Cross givings, whether voluntary or in the form of taxes, will be an exemption to the amount of taxable income. That is, if a man gives $100, he will not be taxed the usual 4 per cent. on that amount; in other words, he escapes four dollars lighter in his income tax. The Minister promised to consider a proposition to deduct the whole amount of any 1917 contribution to these funds from the income tax.

A man who has unproductive real estate will not be allowed to deduct [illegible] from his income. In the case of productive real estate, however, he will be allowed to deduct taxes and repairs, so that the net receipts from it will be considered as income.

Corporations will be liable only to the normal business tax of 4 per cent., and shareholders will, when they make returns, be permitted to make a deduction from the normal tax in respect of dividends derived from companies subject to this taxation. As to that portion of their income subject to super-tax (over $6,000), they will pay on such dividends.

CITY'S FINANCIAL AFFAIRS

The city Finance Committee met yesterday afternoon and passed a great many accounts as well as transacting the usual routine business. The accounts of indigent patients in the city hospitals were reviewed and all were approved except that of one man, who will be made to pay his bill as soon as he is able to get work. This patient has a reputation for not wanting to pay anything that he can get out of.

Touch Kingston.

Some weeks ago Police Magistrate Dumble sent Blanche Deline to the Mercer Reformatory on the charge of being the inmate of a disorderly house. A few days ago she was taken sick and was sent to the Toronto General Hospital. The hospital authorities notified the city that pay would be expected from Peterborough for whatever time she was confined there.

The local ministers of finance would not stand for anything like that, and referred the authorities to Kingston, where the woman in question came from. Peterborough was only a resting place and the local police did not let her rest long. At any rate the patient has money coming to her from the assigned pay of her husband.

Want a Better Job.

The letter of The British Whig of Kingston asking that they be allowed to print the voters' list and other city work was received. Peterborough city has a reputation for getting good work at home and not from cheap John joints.

Got a Rebate.

Geo. W. Powell quit the butcher business to become agent of the Children's Aid Society and had used only three months of his city license. His request for a rebate was granted and the city treasurer will give him $7.50, if Council approves.

Advertising Debentures.

A communication was received from The Monetary Times asking that the city advertise the debentures of the municipality in that paper.

When the Mayor Returns.

When Mayor Duffus returns from Barriefield he and Alderman Stratton will interview the City Trust Commissioners regarding some debenture balances.

Coal Yard Fees.

City Solicitor Gordon paid fees to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board in connection with the city's application for permission to operate a municipal coal yard. They amounted to $15, and the committee recommended the payment.

The bylaw has been approved by the government and only awaits the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor.

40,000 STARVED TO DEATH

Greek Victims in Eastern Macedonia Reach That Number

Paris, Aug. 4.—Forty thousand Greeks have been starved to death in Eastern Macedonia since the Bulgarian occupation began, according to authentic reports received by the Greek Government, says a Havas despatch from Athens under Tuesday's date.

"The Bulgarians," adds the correspondent, "have carried on systematic persecution of the Greek element in the population looking to its extermination. They have inflicted all sorts of privations upon the Greeks, burdening them with military work and deporting them to Bulgarian localities."

LARGE COLONY OF BEES SWARMED ON COW'S HEAD

An unusual occurrence took place on the farm of Mr. George Cornelll, near Omemee, on Thursday afternoon, when a swarm of bees flying across the farm alighted on a cow's head. Mr. Cornell is a bee fancier and has a large number of hives, but this is the first time that the honeymakers ever pestered a cow. Flying blindly about in a drove, they flew up against the unfortunate cow, which was tied to a fence, and in a twinkling the animal's head was covered. It is stated that the cow bellowed in pain and could be heard a considerable distance away.

BREWERY BROKE THE LAW.

Fined $500 for Supplying Product Direct to Customer

Hamilton, Aug. 3.—The Hamilton Brewery Co. was fined $500 in the Police Court for having sold beer to William Parkin. Parkin went to the Canadian Express Co. and secured from them a money order payable to a Montreal liquor house for two dozen bottles of beer. Parkin proceeded direct to the Hamilton Brewery Co., presented the money order, and was given the beer. The brewery people gave as their defence a written instruction from the Montreal liquor dealer to the effect that they were to supply all persons who presented orders on them similar to the one Parkin presented. Parkin, who was fined $200 at first, was later relieved of paying this sum. David Sweet, proprietor of the New American Hotel, was also fined $500 for selling liquor. He fainted in court before the fine was imposed.

Baby's Great Danger During Hot Weather

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera infantum, and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in homes where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

Mistakes Eliminated

Mistakes form the canker which ruins many businesses.

In a store mistakes are made easily and are seldom noticed at the time. Mistakes in giving customers their change. Forgetting to charge for goods on account. And in a dozen other different ways. Even if only five cents a day were lost and it is often much more — the merchant would lose over fifteen dollars a year.

But these mistakes can be eliminated. The National Cash Register System will safeguard the merchant. The National Cash Register will make a complete record of every sale whether cash, charge or C.O.D. When money is paid out or change is given a record is made.

The machine cannot make mistakes. The record it gives is infallible. It will save you money. You need one in your store. Write us to-day for literature.

MARKET PRICES

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

The market this morning was fairly well attended but their was an unusual demand for everything and prices were a little higher.

Eggs were up 2 cents and most of the farmer ladies had the same story that the hens had stopped laying.

Butter was firmer and most of the good butter makers had tales to tell of the difficulty of getting the butter good and firm during the hot weather. Some of them stated that it was worth 50 cents a lb. to make it.

There were some good spring chickens and ducks offered. The former selling at $1.20 to $1.50 per pair. The ducks sold at 75 cents each and in a few instances 85 cents was asked for some very choice ones.

Wild raspberries were plentiful and sold at 18 to 20c per quart. The garden berries sold at 15 cents per box.

New potatoes did not drop in price as was expected and 60 cents per peck was the rule.

The Peterborough Cheese Board will meet next Wednesday morning.

THREE YEARS WITH WORLD AT WAR

eleven were destroyed, and during the third year of hostilities sixteen of them were sacrificed.

Aircraft Work Revolution

Apropos of aircraft, the flying machine has undoubtedly done more than any other agency to revolutionize the methods of warfare, and, in part, to compel the entrenching of the contending armies and to force upon them a tedious and exhausting contest largely robbed of any elements of surprise. The airplane has made it posible for sectional arrays of 500 and 800 guns to be brought to bear upon short fronts and positions invisible to the battery commanders. And yet these rifles are trained with such precision, thanks to the scouting aircraft, that a perfect storm of shells can be rained upon the unseen foe.

Not only that, but these field pieces of various calibre can maintain an unbroken flood of projectiles and form a screen that moves forward so precisely that the advancing infantry beneath and behind it can follow along only a few yards to the rear. This barrage, or a kindred one, can be dropped behind the enemy's position to be attacked, thus effectually holding reinforcements at bay. No wonder that belching blast furnaces, thousands of machine shops, and hundreds of powder factories work night and day to supply the substance for these tempests.

And now for the matter of costs. At the close of the civil war we were spending $4,000,000 a day to maintain that struggle, and during the entire period from 1861 to 1865 the total outlay was fully $8,000,000,000.

The Franco-Prussian War from 1870 to 1871 entailed a financial burden of more than $3,000,000,000. The Boer War, between 1899 and 1902, involved an outlay of probably $1,300,000,000, and the Russo-Japanese conflict during 1904-1905, called for a disbursement of quite $2,500,000,000.

In round figures these four struggles represented a money waste of substantially $15,000,000,000. Up to date, the world war has cost the belligerents $84,963,205,000 for the waging of that strife.

According to the latest figures, the average daily outlay for the entire three years years is something over $80,000,000, while the current outlay per diem expense is certainly not less than $100,000,000.

We can probably bring these amazing figures home to us in an understandable fashion if we bear in mind that the total value of all assessed taxable property in the City of New York does not exceed $8,500,000,0000. That is to say the belligerents have already spent ten times the equivalent of the wealth of the metropolis.

Again, if this money could be diverted to constructive tasks it would provide funds enough every week for the building of two Panama Canals. But this financial wastage does not cover at all the demolition of cities and the destruction of other property. These civic losses mount into untold millions which must be made good before the ravages of this conflict are wiped away.

America's Share

And now the Americans have joined the issue with the Entente Allies and have pledged men, money and industries to the cause of democracy. As the figures stand they alone will subscribe in the first year of participation something like $17,000,000,000—a round $2,000,000,000 more than all of the belligerents contributed during the first year of the struggle.

In a measure a goodly share of this is the price that the Americans are paying for unpreparedness; but be this as it may, such is the tax levied upon them, and there are those that estimate that heir daily outlay before the coming of peace will be substantially $25,000,000!

BETTER THAN A WRIST WATCH

New York Hotel Clock Has New Plan For Keeping Cool

New York, Aug. 4.—Patrons of the McAlpin Hotel did not get any warm handclasp from G. Clifford Newell, who presides over the destinies of the mail desk, when they came around yesterday to see how many bills the first of the month had brought.

Newall was the coolest man in the house. When his fellow clerks, who had more warmth than is usual, even with a Greeter, organised an inquest to find out how the mail clerk managed to circumvent the weather factory they saw him slyly adjust a couple of small rubber bags about his wrists.

The bags contained about enough ice for a mint julep, and Newell was carrying around his own private cold storage plant.

"If you keep your wrists warm in winter," he said "it will keep your body warm. By reversing the process, I am keeping my body cool. Last night I tried the ice water faucet, and then invented the ice bags.

"I won't prosecute any of you fellows for infringing the patent. Try it, even if you have to displace your wrist watches."

There was a big shake-up at the semi-annual elections of the Mutual Welfare League at Sing Sing jail, Ex-Warden Thos. M. Osborne's retainers winning ascendancy.

Briscoe The Car with the Half Million Dollar Motor

MADE IN CANADA

Why It Has Taken Canada by Storm $935

No illustration could do justice to the beauty of this car. Its pleasing body lines are the last word in artistic design. And this is but the outward expression of the perfection of those vital unseen parts which mean so much to the motorist. The BRISCOE policy has always been to make the automobile value of a dollar greater under the Briscoe name than anywhere else in the industry to build cars so good, and so popularly priced, that the verdict of users will be our best asset for future sales.

That, in a nutshell, is why the BRISCOE has taken Canada by storm. From its wide, luxurious seats to its Artillery Wheels—from its famous "Half Million Dollar Motor" to its full elliptic springs and floating rear axle, the BRISCOE is a real car in every sense of the term.

The wonderful "Half Million Dollar Motor" cuts down the cost of gasoline and makes possible from 30 to 35 miles to the gallon. The price includes everything, no "extras" to [illegible]. Among the notable features of the BRISCOE, B "4-24" [illegible] inch Wheel Base; Floating Type Rear Axle; Full Elliptic Springs, front and rear; Electric Lighting and Starting System; Tilted Eye Saver Windshield; Demountable Rims. The Regular Equipment includes Speedometer, Gasoline Gauge, Ammeter, Trouble Light Socket, Automatic Switch with Key Lock, Tools and Repair Kit.

Price—BRISCOE, B "4-24" Touring Car or Four-Passenger Roadster, $935 f.o.b. Brockville, Ont.

WRITE for Benjamin Briscoe's own story of the "Half Million Dollar Motor," or call at your local BRISCOE Garage and let the car "show" you.

A Song of the Speculator.
(With apologies to Robert Service.)
It isn't to serve that we seek,
It isn't the glory of war
(Though a smile does distort our cheek
When prices continue to soar);
It isn't the country's renown
That we work for in fighting the foe—
While those in the strife
Are giving their life,
We want dough.
dough.
dough!

Now that the Northwestern League has followed several others in blowing up, and about one hundred additional players are out of a job, will somebody please pass around the hat and start a fund to establish a home for unemployed diamond artists.

Gee! but the Robins are hustling. Don't you see the dust fly as they work? Well, there's a reason. There have been rumors of a shake-up, and nobody wants to lose his job. Colonel Ebbets is getting somewhat peeved; you can't blame him for wanting to see results when he pays out $90,000 in salaries.

Among those who have been dead for quite some time, and who have suddenly come to life is Frank Baker. His work with the willow at present recalls the good old days when he starred with the Athletics.

Soft lights and slow music, please. Don't you see that funeral procession coming along? The mourners are the fans, and the objetc of their sorrow is Jake Daubert, of the Robins. Jake was a good old skate, but his major league days are evidently over.

Grouchy Gus Says:

"Life won't be the same to many of the ball players who are drafted into the army. They'll find the trenches one place where they can't argue with the umpire."

Johnny Dundee is taking a well-earned vacation and preparing himself for the next man on the list. Joe Welling is taking a vacation, too, and he needs it, after the drubbing he received from Dundee recently. New York fight fans certainly got their money's worth in the stirring ten rounds these two boxers fought and the crowd was on its feet almost as much as the fighters.

The resumption of college athletics has received a decided boost through the action of the committee of student affairs at Cornell university, which is making a determined effort to restore intercollegiate competition in sports, despite the war, which has taken many a crack from the ranks of Cornell athletes. It has long been contended that no good purpose can be served by curtailing college athletics. The young men are serious-minded enough to know that the war is a very serious thing and the fact that they indulge in sports will not affect their patriotism any more than if hey had decided to continue eating apple pie. On the contrary, healthy exercise will fit them better for fighting when their time comes.

August 2 was the anniversary of two of the greatest trotting performances in the annals of harness racing. It was on this day in 1884 that the great Maud S. trotted a mile in 2.09 3-4. Wild acclaim greeted this feat of the wonderful mare, and the suffragets were in high glee, for only the day before Jay Eye See had ungallantly taken Maud's laurels away from her by trotting a mile in 2.10 flat. In the following year Maud S lowered her own record to 2.08 3-4, and this stood as the world's best until Sunol lowered it half a second on the Stockton, Cal., track, in 1891. Nancy Hanks recovered the title for her sex by doing 2.04 the following year, and Alix and The Abbot were the next trotting champions.

Croesceus, the great son of Robert McGregor, established a new trotting record of 2.02¼ at Columbus, Ohio, sixteen years ago today, August 2, 1901. He held the record two years, when along came Lou Dillon, one of the greatest mares that ever lived, and attained the long-sought ambition of harness-race enthusiasts by doing the mile under the two-minute mark. Lou Dillon's time was 1.58½. This record has since been lowered. It is a curious fact that when Maud S did the mile in 2.10 this was considered a most remarkable feat. So it was; but thirty years later the number of 2.10 trotters runs into the hundreds. A century ago the goal of trotting horse breeders was the three-minute mark, and it was first accomplished by Boston Blue in 1818. The 2.30 mark was lowered in 1839 by Dutchman, who had started out in life as a common cart-horse. And here is some food for thought. Taken all in all, the female of the equine species has been swifter than the male on the trotting turf.

Today in Pugilistic Annals.

1791. — Daniel Mendoza defeated Squire Fitzgerald in Dublin. Fitzgerald was an Irish gentleman who was very proud of his prowess as a fighter, and he expressed the opinion that he could whip the Jewish pugilist who was then running a boxing school in the Irish city. Immediately things began to happen, and in a short time the battered Irishman called "Enough!" The squire shook Mendoza warmly by the hand, saying, "You licked me fairly, and you are the only man who ever did so. If in the heat of battle I used insulting language, I apologize. I'm proud to shake the hand of the bravest and most skilful fighter I've ever seen." Fitzgerald was much heavier and four inches taller than Mendoza, but this advantage was more than offset by the latter's science. Mendoza was without a scratch when the bout was over.

112 DEATHS FROM HEAT

All Records Of The Hot Weather Fatalities Broken in New York

New York, Aug. 4.—The story of an unprecedentedly sweltering day was not told in thermometrical records, most of which were smashed, but in the longest list of dead and prostrated ever tabulated in national and local torrid weather history. In the metropolitan district alone 12 died, and there were sent to hospitals scores who cannot recover. From the mortality returns of the five boroughs of the city available at 12 o'clock last night forty-seven persons met with death in Manhattan, forty-five in Brooklyn and the rest succombed in the districts of Queens, Richmond, and The Bronx and adjacent regions.

The number of prostrations exceeded 400, more than 200 of which were in Manhattan and 125 in Brooklyn. Washington estimated that more than 300 persons had lost their lives and more than 800 had been prostrated in the territory covered by the unparalleled visitation.

The mercury got up to 98 at 2.30 p.m. duplicating the record of the day before and while on its way to this maximum it created records for morning hours unexcelled in the history of the Weather Bureau here, reaching 89 at eight o'clock. Its aspirations were checked by two thunderstorms that spilled little rain in Manhattan and Brooklin but that cooled the air considerably and sent the temperature down in a few hours to the 84 mark. A light easterly breeze helped to refresh the city.

HAY PITCHING RECORD GOES TO WEST OPS.

A hay-pitching record that is hard to beat was established this week on the farm of Mr. John Curtin, Ops, when J. O'Loughlin, of West Ops, aged 17 years, pitched 28 loads of timothy in 11 hours. Two teams were drawing and the youngster remained on the job to the close, notwithstanding the fact that the temperature was at 96 degrees.

CANADIANS ARE CLOSER TO LENS

PREMIER KERENSKY HAS SELECTED HIS CABINET

Something Like Harmony Has Been Reached in Russian Government--General to be Shot for Failure to Punish Traitors--Spirit of Troops Improves.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Petrograd, August 6.—Kerensky's cabinet is practically complete. The Constitutional Democrats have agreed to participate, and a list of members who will form the new ministry has been agreed upon.

General To Be Shot.

General Masovisky, commanding the Guards Corps which headed the Russian retreat on the southwestern front, has been ordered shot after a court-martial ordered by General Korniloff, for non-compliance with his order to shoot deserters.

Panic Dies Down.

The assistant commissary of the southwestern front reports a marked change of feeling among the troops. The panic has died down, and the divisions that were in full retreat are stubbornly defending their positions. This welcome change in the attitude of the southern armies is due to two reasons. The causes are—first, severe disciplinary measures which have eliminated the element of wild panic and disorder. In addition to punitive measures, General Korniloff has issued a strong army order forbidding all meetings and discussions in the area of military operations; secondly, a large proportion of the troops who stopped fighting did not do so mainly through cowardice or weariness, but because they had been deluded into believing that the Germans would make peace if they were not attacked. The actions of the Germans themselves convinced them of their bitter error, and now these same troops, braced up by real discipline, once more are behaving as Russian soldiers should behave.

The appointment of Gen. Korniloff as commander-in-chief gives general satisfaction. Throughout the crisis he has displayed all the qualities of courage and independence that are eminently necessary at such a time. Brussiloff as commander-in-chief displayed little initiative and made no real effort to check the disintegration of his army. His guiding principle seems to have been to avoid friction with the various army committees and councils.

GERMANY IS NEARING LIMIT IN RESOURCES OF MANHOOD

Officers Taken Prisoners Admit That Last Class, That of 1919, is Being Called Out--Enemy Meets With Appalling Losses.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 6.—Early last night the enemy attacked in the neighborhood of Hollebeke. He was driven off before reaching our lines. An attack under cover of heavy barrage against our positions at Westhoek was equally unsuccessful. A German raiding party was repulsed during night east of Epehy.

Nearing the End.

Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters on the Western front, telegraphing on Sunday, says:

The weather is improving. There has been much fighting and intense artillery activity throughout the night. The enemy counter-attacked with great weight in the neighborhood of Hollebeke. At dawn heavy fighting was reported, but the position is obscure.

"The Canadians, farther south, advanced their posts in the direction of Cite de Moulin, with great success, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, as a result of which our line has been advanced to a depth of 200 yards towards Lens on a front of 1,000 yards. Enemy attacks against this new front all failed, apparently with appalling German casualties.

"We know that they even sustained heavy casualties from the German bombardment, which inflicted a degree of loss on their own infantry.

"Proofs are available that the number of guns we captured represented only a minimum of what the enemy really lost. Officer prisoners admit that the 1918 class is regularly embodied and that many of the 1919 class are in the field, which indicates that the limit of Germany's manhood is rapidly approaching."

BRITISH GUNS PREPARED WAY

FOOD AND WATER PREVENTED FROM REACHING GERMAN LINES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

British Headquarters in France, Aug. 6. — German prisoners captured in the St. Julien sector testify to the effectiveness of the British preliminary bombardment at the beginning of the battle of Flanders. The fire of the British big guns, they say, prevented food or water reaching the German lines for three days. German ammunition piles had been removed to the rear and ammunition was brought up piecemeal.

ITALIAN TROOPS PUSH FORWARD THEIR LINES.

Rome, Aug. 6. — Italian troops extended their lines yesterday southeast of Boscomalo in attacks on the Julien front. The Austrians were repulsed in attacks on Mount Bomboa.

THOUSANDS GATHER IN PARK AND SUPPORT RESOLUTIONS CALLING FOR NEW EFFORT

Patriotic Addresses Made by Bishop O'Brien, Judge Huycke, Capt. Burnham and G. A. Gillespie M.L.A.—Sentiment of Speakers and Audience Unanimous for Carrying on the War With Redoubled Vigor Until Victory is Achieved.

Moved by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, seconded by Judge Huycke.

That we, the citizens of Peterborough assembled at this great anniversary meeting, at the beginning of the fourth year of the greatest and cruelest war the world has ever known, desire to affirm and reaffirm our belief in the righteousness of the cause for which we are fighting, the cause of peace and goodwill, of law and liberty, of democracy and good faith, among the nations.

We are proud that our Motherland entered into the struggle, not for conquest or power, but as the protector of the weak and oppressed, and are still more proud that our own dear Canada with her sister dominions over the seas answered the call and rallied to the unfurling of the flag. The spirit and achievements of our young Canadians are immortal and can never be effaced from the page of history; they reflect greatest glory on our young country, now just half a century old. We must see to it that our dear boys have not suffered, fought and died in vain, and we, one and all, hereby express our inflexible and unalterable determination to continue the stupendous struggle until victory has been achieved.

We pledge our every effort, both collective and individual, to assist, support, comfort and reinforce our splendid soldiers at the front, who fight for us, and look to us not to fail them in their hour of extremity.

With the united efforts of the Allies, the champions of honor, civilization and Christianity—strengthened and sustained, as we believe, by the help and blessing of Almighty God—we hope and pray that this fourth year may be the last year, and that it may bring to a victorious issue the struggle for the maintenance and ideals of liberty and justice which are the common and sacred cause of our allies and ourselves in this most holy war

The above resolution, moved by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien and seconded by Judge Huycke, was unanimously endorsed at the mass meeting of citizens held in Victoria Park last night to mark the third anniversary of the declaration of war. Thousands gathered round the band stand, and mothers holding children in their arms bravely stood until the last speaker was finished and the band had played "God Save the King." The sentiment of the vast audience was unanimous. Like every man who spoke, they were for the carrying on of the war at all costs until complete victory is achieved.

The opening speech was made by Acting-Mayor Duncan, who presided. He spoke as follows:

Why Canada Went to War.

Acting Mayor G. H. Duncan, who presided, in his opening remarks said:

"It is three years since the British Empire, seeing the Germans making a most unwarranted invasion of the small Belgian nation, intervened to protect the people of that nation, and to join in turning back the hordes who had been sent against Belgium and France. England had, with other nations, guaranteed Belgium against attack, and that of itself, without any other reason, was a sufficient call upon her honor to cause her to come to the rescue. At the same time we know that the rulers of Germany had decided upon a war of conquest and that their determination was to dominate the world. While other nations had been peacefully carrying on their business, and their people and Governments had no thought of making war, Germany had been preparing for half a century to wage war on her peaceful neighbors and to thus become the master of the world. Canada had as deep an interest in checking Germany as had England in any other part of the British Empire, because we felt the ruthlessness of the German attack on the other nations, because our Empire must stand together or fall together, and because if the Empire fell our independence and our liberties would be lost.

Veterans Present.

We all know, said the speaker, and the world knows, and none better than the Germans, the part that Canada has taken in this war. We are glad to have here tonight a number of the brave men who voluntarily joined the Canadian forces and did their part in France and Flanders, and we will never forget what they have done or what the gallant Canadian soldiers are now doing and suffering for the independence of Canada and the liberty of the people of the world. Some will never come back, but they and their deeds will not be forgotten. The war has gone on for three years and Germany has been checked on land, where she expected to win so easily, and her savagery by sea will not bring her success. We have met here tonight to observe the third anniversary of the declarationn of war, and we are all as determined now as we were three years ago, that the Germans shall not win, and that, with God's help, the cause of the people shall triumph. We will wish to give united expression to that determination, and I will ask His Lordship Bishop O'Brien to address you and to place before you a resolution that will, I feel certain, express the sentiments of all.

THE BISHOP'S ADDRESS.

Acting-Mayor Duncan then introduced Bishop O'Brien, who, with his usual force and earnestness, spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

We are one of many assemblies gathered this evening throughout the length and breadth of the land to commemorate the third anniversary of Britain's entry into the great war, the third anniversary of the day on which she made the momentous decision that she would not stand idly by and see Belgium destroyed, France overrun and civilization threatened. It was a supremely solemn day, and the decision reached was one of the most important a government of Great Britain ever made. That decision had been almost without precedent, for it bound the vast empire to a war in which the desire of conquest and territorial gain was entirely absent. England placed herself on record as prepared to fight for an ideal, and that ideal has bestirred the world. A free nation undertook to fight that others might enjoy the same liberty and freedom that she herself enjoyed, and that the world might forever rid itself of that barbarous military spirit which was dragging down all Europe to financial, economic, social and moral ruin.

Today is also the third anniversary of the day when the red blood in thousands of Canada's sons began to boil, and they resolved that if the Mother Country became involved, as dutiful sons they would arise and share their mother's burden. They did arise—420,000 strong—and they have accepted unflinchingly the obli-

Confidence Firm: Power Complete

British Headquarters in France and Belgium, Aug. 6.—(Associated Press.) — On the third anniversary of Great Britain's entry into the world conflict, Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, commander of the British armies on the Western front, issued a special order of the day, filled with the spirit of confidence in ultimate victory and complete faith in the people of the Empire in its forces, which only this week, in the battle of Flanders, added another link to their steadily growing chain of successes over the Germans. The order follows:

"We are at the beginning of the fourth year of the war. Twelve months ago the power of the British Empire to undertake an operation on a scale and carry it through to success was simply an experiment.

"This power stands fully proved today — to the armies themselves, to the enemy and to the world.

"We enter the fourth year of the war with a steady confidence, based securely on all that has already been achieved by ourselves and our gallant allies. The record of the past three years leaves no room for doubt that the British armies in France and the workers at home, on whom they depend, have both the power and the will to complete the task they have undertaken, and will press on until their labor is crowned with ultimate and certain victory."

HUNS DECIDE TO RETAKE LOST LINE AT ANY COST

Loss of Lives Around Ypres Not Exceeded by Useless Sacrifices Made by Crown Prince at Verdun---No Change in the Belgian Situation.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, August 6.—The correspondent of The Matin at he front says the Germans have made up their minds to take their lost second line at al costs. Even the Crown Prince could not throw away more men than are now being sacrificed around Ypres.

NO CHANGE IN BELGIUM.

Paris, August 6.—Sunday night's official report says there has been no infantry action in Belgium. French patrols were active. On the remainder of the front artillery action was intermittent, and quite violent toward La Royere Farm and in the sector of Craonne and Champagne.

In Belgium there was no change in the situation. Attacks made by the enemy in the region south of Boville in Avocourt wood and in Alsace were repulsed. In these sectors artillery fire was at times spirited. All was quiet on the rest of the front.

GERMAN MINISTER RESIGNS.

Berlin, August 6.—It is officially announced that Foreign Secretary Zimmerman has resigned and Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann, German ambassador to Turkey, succeeds him. Finance Minister Lentze, Minister of the Interior von Loebell, and two other secretaries of state have also resigned.

A war office statement says strong British attacks yesterday between the River Lys and the Ypres-Menin road were repulsed.

CHARLES E. COLEMAN IS BACK AFTER ONE YEAR IN ENGLAND

Was Employsd in Royal Gun Factory at Woolwich---Gives Interesting Account of Experiences and People He Met.

Mr. Charles E. Coleman arrived home from England yesterday morning after spending over a year there at the Royal Gun factory at Woolwich. He was chiefly enagged in the manufacture of the breaches for the guns for the merchant ships. His many friends were glad to welcome him back home.

Mr. Coleman passed through some very stirring experiences while abroad and incidentally met some very interesting people. what he saw and did is of exceptional interest to the citizens when it is known that his chief object in going to the Motherland was to study the social and labor questions as well as to encourage the unity of the Empire and more particularly to do his bit by making necessary war material.

It was last year in June that Mr. Coleman left Peterborough and met on the journey Lieut. Garnet H. Hughes of Picton, who belongs to the Royal Flying Corps. In the month of August last year he saw his first Zeppelin raid, it having passed over the Arsenal. On Sept. 2 he saw an air fight in which one machine caught fire and another was brought down. On this occasion the lights in the Arsenal were out and the shock and nervousness caused by the raid necessitated the use of strong tonics by many of the workers.

Mr. Coleman attended the concert given by the Canadian massed bands at Albert Hall and incidentally met George Allan that day.

For Imperial Federation.

As stated before Mr. Coleman is a great believer in Imperial Federation and in this regard he wrote letters to and received replies from G. N. Barrons of the present War Committee, John Hodge, director of Labor. Walter Long, Colonial Secretary. Sir Robt. Borden, Sir Joseph Flavelle, Sir George Perley and the Minister of Agriculture. In some of these letters suggestions made by Mr. Coleman were adopted by the Government.

Heard Famous Preacher.

During Mr. Coleman's visits here and there he heard the Rev. Mr. Campbell speak on two occasions on one of which over 5000 people were turned away. This eminent Divine advocates the unity of Christendom, not Protestantism alone.

Met Peterborough People.

In addition to meeting many of the Peterborough boys he on one occasion met Capt. Burnham at the Canadian Office. He also visited Shorncliffe, Bramshott, as well as Brooks Hospi-

CANADIANS ARE CLOSER TO LENS

RECENT ADVANCE BRINGS THEM TO 1,000 YARDS OF CENTRE OF CITY.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, Aug. 6.— Another forward movement to the southwest of Lens has been made, with a minimum of loss. For the best part of two weeks in the Cite du Moulin our patrols and those of the enemy have been living an uneasy life almost side by side, with only a few tumble-down walls between them.

Saturday afternoon small attacking parties set out from that part of the Cite du Moulin already in our hands and drove in the enemy's patrols along a front of over a thousand yards. The Germans for the most part scuttled back towards Lens but a number was caught under our fire and killed. A new outpost line was established and prepared for a counter-attack. No counter-attack had been made up to the time of filing this despatch.

This advance carries the Canadians well within a thousand yards of the centre of Lens, on the western front of the city. At Avion and Leauvette, on the south front, our outposts are now about a mile from the centre, and in the northwest sector, opposite St. Laurent, our line is a scant fifteen hundred yards from the heart of Lens. The net is fast closing.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH MONDAY, AUG. 6, 1917

WHAT THE SOLDIERS THINK.

I know hon. gentlemen will remember—and I am absolutely Confident of the fact as I state it—that political questions and party differences have absolutely no place in the minds or hearts of those who are holding Canada's line beyond the Vimy Ridge in France, and who are slowly pressing back the invaders until they shall no longer desecrate the soil and decimate the population of France and Belgium with their horrible and barbarous methods of warefare. Among those brave Canadians there is but one great over-mastering purpose — the winning of the war for liberty, civilization and humanity. That common purpose animated this Parliament in August, 1914, and in February, 1916. If it stil inspires us, then I hope the appeal (for an extension of Parliament) which I am now making to this House will not be in vain.—Sir Robert Borden.

THE WAR MUST BE WON.

WHATEVER differences of opinion may prevail in other parts of the Dominion with regard to the prosecution of the war to a successful finish, last night's mass meeting in Victoria Park proved to a demonstration that the people of Peterborough are a unit on that question. There are no factional or other disturbing elements at work here. The speakers, unanimous as they were, were not more so than the vast audience who so heartily applauded their remarks and supported the patriotic resolution that was moved by Bishop O'Brien and seconded by Judge Huycke. There was nothing said or done last night to indicate that there is any dispute as to the methods to be employed to accomplish the task in hand. Men and money will be needed for the purpose, and both will be forthcoming. To the will of the majority those in the minority will bow and accept the inevitable without a murmur.

It is an easy matter to see mistakes once they have been committed and stand in a gruesome array behind us. Recent events in the United States have demonstrated that the country that goes to war acts the part of wisdom when it puts the selective draft into force from the start. Had this course been adopted in Canada at the outset, all the present national contentions would have been avoided.

But it is never too late to mend. Better to acknowledge errors and to amend the public policies than to persevere in a blunder and eventually fail.

INCONSISTENT AS EVER.

THE SAME PAPER that in its editorial department deplores the tendency to drag politics into every issue that is raised by the public these days, inconsistently follows up its article with the cheapest play at poltics of all by attempting to arouse the sentiments of the temperance workers of the Dominion, and especially in Ontario, against the Borden Government. It says that it is due to the laxity or indifference of the powers at Ottawa that liqnor is still imported into this province. Setting up its own legal opinion against that of the Minister of Justice and other eminent jurists, it asserts that Ontario has no constitutional right to prohibit the importation of liquor.

Why not be fair in this matter, one that so closely concerns the interests of the people and in which provincial rights are involved? Ontario can easily stop the importations of liquor by declaring the private use of liquor illegal. Then, and not till then, can the Federal authority be exercised to prohibit the importation. If the party which the paper in question assumes to represent were sincere in the temperance issue, if it dealt with prohibition with any other than political aims, it would not hesitate to recommend such a course.

Has the province no constitutional right to make liquor contraband for all other than medicinal purposes? It prohibits the keeping of intoxicating drink in other than a private residence. The distinction between the latter a nd a woodshed, for example is certainly fine. It fines a man $200 for carrying a sealed bottle in his pocket from the express office to his residence, and imposes the same fine on any man who takes a drink anywhere than under his own roof tree or that of a friend. It makes a distinction—another fine one—between a rooming house and a private residence. The man who, in order to add to his income, takes in more than three baarders, loses all the privileges enjoyed by the man who has none but his own family domiciled with him. Let the boarding bouse keeper limit the number of his guests to less than thre and he can stock up his cellar with wet goods and the law will not molest him.

The Legislature that has a right to draw such slim lines of demarcation between what is right and what is wrong can go a step further and prohibit the use of liquor anywhere.

The paper in question says that the United States has been three months in the war, yet it has already virtually enacted legislation which makes prohibition absolute in every state that has adopted it—that stops the leakage of strong drink from the outside.

The United States has done nothing of the kind except in the case of states that have prohibited the use of liquor in any form, just as Ontario has been urged to do by sincere temperance advocates and authorized to do both by the constiution and by special Federal enactment. Liquor is certainly an outlawed commodity in the various states into which importation is proscribed.

To blame Sir Robert Borden for any drunkenness that may yet prevail in this city is but another example of the cheap heroics that have done so much in the past to bring the pleadings of temperance orators and writers into disrepute for their lack of logic and for their exaggerated pretensions.

ONE BATHING BEACH.

THE CITY COUNCIL could not see its way clear to devote $2000 to the building of two bathing beaches in this city. The citizens are still required to take their chances when they go into the river. Over in Chicago they seem to have aldermen of a more generous turn of mind. There the city council has just set aside $450,000 for bathing beaches. Property extending alongt he river for four blocks will be purchased and one of the largest bathing beaches in America will be established.

Chicago is, of course, a great deal bigger and wealthier than Peterborough, but not in anything like the proportion in which $450,000 exceeds $2000, if anyone with a turn for mathematics cares to figure it out.

THE BIBLE CHOSEN.

IT IS A NEW and interesting tribute to the Bible that the literary tests for immigrants entering the United States are now made from passages chosen from it. That is not because of the reverence that Christians feel for it, and Jews for some parts of it, but because it is the only book that has been translated into almost every known tongue. The Department of Labor has prepared passages in more than a hundred languages and dialects.

In some of the states of the American Union, where literary accomplishments are made a condition of the franchise, the document held second in American reverence — the Constitution — is used in the test of qualifications. The colored man, especially, is required to demonstrate his ability not only to read but to expound certain clauses selected at random by the examining board.

Who can wonder if many a would-be voter fails in such an ordeal, being unable to explain, even if he is able to read, the passages placed before him? The United States maintains a Supreme Court comprising nine highly paid juries who are often nonplussed and seldom able to agree unanimously on the very task which the unfortunate aspirant for the franchise is asked to dispose of on the spur of the moment.

His Limitations.

Useless.

"This seems to be a very dangerous precipice," remarked the tourist. "I wonder that they have not put up a warning-board!"

"Yes," answered the guide, "it is dangerous. They kept a warning-board up for two years, but no one fell over, so it was taken down."

"No; they're living on me."

Experience.

"No, sir," was the reply, "but I think I can do it."

"Suppose," said the dealer, "you accidentally broke a very valuable porcelain vase, what would you do?"

"I should put it carefully together," replied the man, "and set it where a wealthy customer would be sure to knock it over again."

"Consider yourself engaged," said the dealer. "Now, tell me where you learned that trick of the trade."

She dispatched the following telegram to five of her husband's best friends in the city: 'Jack hasn't come home. Am worried. Is he spending the night with you?'

"Soon after this her husband arrived home and explained the same cause of his delay. While he was talking a boy brought in five answers to her telegrams, all worded practically as folows: 'Yes, Jack is spending the night with me.'"

What Germany Has Won and Lost

Three years ago the two emperors of Central Europe had just embarked on the incendiary adventure which set the whole world in flames. What has it profited them or the people over whom they ruled?

The Berlin Tageblatt, in its review of the three years says that the Teutonic allies have captured and now hold about 548,737 square kilometres or rather more than 330,000 square miles of Entente territory. Aside from this it offers no evidence of profit from the torrent of war which Germany loosed upon the world.

Is Germany more respected than before that fateful day when the scrap of paper was torn up and the great guns opened upon Liege? Are Germans better beloved, or more eagerly sought as citizens by other nations? Are German erudition, scholarship and invention more highly esteemed? Is German trade thriving and rapidly extending in all parts of the world—or likely to in the next quarter century?

That 330,000 square miles of her neighbors' territory — every acre of which she will have to surrender—represents today the German gain from three years of war of unexampled savagery. What is the price she has paid?

The price in money spent, in lives sacrificed, in men crippled for life and made charges upon their communities, colossal as it is, by no means measures to Germany and the Germans the real cost of their emperor's criminal ambitions. In these respects the other nations of the world have shared with the aggressor the burden of a bankruptcy expenditure. But Germany will for years have to pay and pay again in costly isolation.

The price she has paid at home for militarism is heavy. The burden of bankruptcy, of starvation, of sorrow and sacrifice grows daily heavier and still the war lords proclaim that Germany is victorious.

The shadow of defeat broods over the land, but not for years to come will Germany understand how costly that defeat has been and how criminal was the lust for conquest which imposed on the world the red madness of the three years just ended.

A Temperance Orator's Centenary

This month is celebrated the centenary of the birth of one who, according to his own story, was one of the wickedest youths of New York's earliest period of unregeneracy. John B. Gough, who was born in Sandgate, Kent, England, on August 22, 1817, came to America when he was 12 years old, and after tyo years on a farm in Oneida county he went to work as an apprentice bookbinder in the Methodist Book Concern. His widowed mother soon died. The depression of 1833, which caused Benjamin H. Day, a printer only seven years older than the Gough boy, to start the New York Sun as an adjunct to his job business, sent Gough to drink, to the sodden pleasures of that day when men consumed brandy by the bottle and when old New Yofk was not as idyllic in some quarters as its admirers could wish. With a good voice and some powers of comic imitation he earned his liquid bread in the low resorts of the Five Points. Perhaps Barney Williams, then a newsboy who studied the cheap actor and the good, watched the wretched Gough, who had ambitions for the heights which Barney gained but no legs to reach them.

Boy and man, he stayed a drunkard for years, and even when he worked at his trade the iron bar he used would turn into a hissing serpent. It was in Worcester, Mass., in 1842, that a Quaker, Joel Stratton, first turned him to steady habits, yet his walk from that time was not without a fall. Bu he set out to do in New England what Father Mathew was at that very time doing for Ireland. In this the histrionic powers that he had once traded for liquor in the barrel houses was of help to him. Gough was not only an orator but a magnetic actor. He had the fervor of Theobald Mathew and the appreciation of the sensational side that has helped Billy Sunday so much. He charged against drunkenness for forty years, five of them spent in England, where he talked down the hisses of the Oxonians. Like Father Mathew and Sunday, Gough received great contributions, and like the priest, he gave with an open hand.

John Gough has been dead more than thirty years. His last words, uttered as he was stricken in a pulpit at Frankford, Pa., might well be written on city walls today:

"Young man, make your record clear!"

GASOLINE IS SCARCE.

Automobile Owners Find It Difficult To Get a Supply.

The scarcity of gasoline was felt in the city yesterday when many of the auto owners had to forego a delightful trip on a delightful day owing to the garages being without supplies of gas.

This is a condition that is existing all over the country. In some of the smaller places it has been impossible to secure gas for several days. The large quantities that are being used for war purposes both here and in the United States is the cause of the shortage. It is likely that the fuel controller will issue a conserving order shortly.

This was clearly indicated in as tatement made public by Provost Marshal General Crowder in regard to the draft disorders in Oklahoma, Georgia and North Carolina. Such resistance will be construed as desertion in time of war.

"Certainly."

LANGUAGES OF THE WORLD

Over Four Thousand Spoken Throughout the World

How many men, if asked how many languages there were in the world, could give anything like an accurate answer? The average man's knowledge or ability to speak languages rarely exceeds two besides his native tongue. The late Emperor Francis Joseph, when visiting a Red Cross hospital, spoke with the patients in their own languages, which showed the aged Emperor to be master of six.

It may appear strange, but it is nevertheless true, that there are over 4,000 languages spoken by mankind, while the number of dialects exceeds this. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil, and in Mexico the Nahua is broken up into some 700 dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo, while in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. Let us assume that fifty dialects, on an average, belong to each language, and we have the colossal total of a quarter of a million linguistic abilities.

A century hence the probability is that there will be only four languages of importance in the world. Central Europe may produce a newer and more straightforward German language, imperial English may reign alone over the North American Continent, and a more businesslike Spanish will be used in South American States, while Russia may take on some more rich Slavonic dialect, which will blend the races of Eastern Europe and Central Asia into a harmonious federation.

FOREIGN CUSTOMS IN FOREIGN ARMIES

Weird Burial Rites as They Are Practised in Mohammedan Countries

The recent ghastly disclosures regarding the German disposal of dead bodies recall the weird burial rites practised in foreign countries.

When the famous Li Hung Chang was buried all his umbrellas, vestments, scrolls of titles, etc., accompanied him to the grave, and prominent among these was a white cock in a cage, which was to lead the departed statesman's spirit to the heavenly destination.

The graves in Ashanti have always at their head a bowl of bread and a chatti of water, and Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood once remarked to a Fanti chief, "Do you, an intelligent man, really believe that your dead eat the bread and drink the water?" The man smiled. "Of course not," he replied. "The birds eat the one and the sun dries up the other. But the spirit of the dead eats the spirit of the bread and drinks the spirit of the water."

The Siberian Yakuts and the Canadian Siccanees both observe the curious custom of placing their dead in a covered coffin, which is then hung up between two trees.

The strangeness of the Mohammedan burial rites was brought home to us during the King's Coronation, when a member of the Cyprus Military Police who was representing his regiment at the festivities suddenly died. The funeral cortige passed through the crowded streets of London to Waterloo Station with the Imam marching in front, reciting prayers, and not deigning to notice the surging traffic. The grave was fixed by map and compass, so that the body faced both the East and the Kebla, or Holy Temple, at Mecca. When the body was placed in position the Imam lustily shouted instructions to the deceased as to how he was to comport himself at the gates of Paradise, and a soldier then made a small "fez" formation on the top of the grave, which was filled with water to make a "crust" against the wind.

At funerals of the military nobility in Siam gaiety instead of sorrow reigns supreme. The funeral pyre is lighted by the king himself, and this is followed by sports and the lotus dance.

PRODUCTION OF PLATINUN

Small Deposits in Various Parts of British Columbia

The greater part of the world's supply of platinum has been derived from the Ural Mountains in Russia, although it is found in small amounts in Columbia, Brazil, San Domingo, Borneo, California, Oregon and British Columbia. It occurs only in the native state, usually occurring in small glistening granules of the familiar grey color, which contain copper and iron and varying proportions of the other metals of its group. The second largest producer in the world is Columbia in South America, where the principal deposits are found in the reconcentrated stream placers at the headquarters of the San Juan River, which flows into the Pacific Ocean north of Buena Ventura. The production in the States is limited to California, where the metal has been found in streams in the serpentine areas in the central part of the state and southern Oregon in Curry, Josephine counties where similar deposits also exist. Traces have also been noticed in the Blue mountains of eastern Oregon and in the Cascade mountains of central Washington. In British Columbia the principal source is in the placer gravels of the Similkameen districts, where 23 ounces were reported to have been recovered in 1915. Other smaller deposits have been located in the Quesnel district and also in the Cariboo district where some activity has been reported from time to time. The nickel ores found near Sudbury have yielded a considerable supply, 2,366 ounces of platinum and 4,216 ounces of palladium being recovered at the refinery of the International Nickel Company in the six years ending in 1912, although the company reports that there had been no recovery from Canadian ores since.

35,000,000 Documents

One of the most marvellous organizations in the world is found in the new buildings at Kew, London, of the Claims and Record Department of the Ministry of Labor. Here the whole work of unemployment insurance, formerly administered from various towns throughout the United Kingdom, is directed. In one room alone 35,000,000 documents relating to workmen's insurance are housed, and even in this labyrinth it is possible to trace the name and full particulars of any claim in two or three minutes. The efficient working of on intricate and and complicated system is carried out almost entirely by a staff of women numbering over 600. The buildings occupy seven and a half acres of ground, two and a half acres being used by the employes as allotments.

How They Won Success

A Mr. Fowler wrote to 298 men who had made a great success in life, to ask this question: "To what one thing, or to what two or three things, do you attribute your success?" And he tabulated the answers he received thus: Persistency, stick-to-it-iveness, and constancy, sixty-six; application, fifty-nine; hard work, fifty-four; industry, twenty-eight; faithfulness, twenty-two; concentration, twenty; earnest desire to succeed, nineteen; diligence, fourteen; determination, eight; and energy, eight.

Gigantic "Tramway" System

The tramways of London would stretch in a straight line from Charing Cross to Liverpool. There are, roughly, eleven miles north of the Thames to every seven miles south of the river; and the passengers conveyed over them every year are nearly nine times as many as the entire population of the United Kingdom.

BLACK, MIXED OR GREEN

IN A THUNDERSTORM

If you are out of doors in a very severe electrical storm, the Electrical Experimenter offers the following rules for your protection:

1. Keep away from wire fences. They may carry a dangerous electrical charge long distances. Cattle in pastures are frequently killed from the neglect of farmers to ground the wire of the fence.

2. Keep away from hedges, ponds, and streams.

3. Keep away from isolated trees. Oak trees are frequently struck; beech are seldom struck. It is safe in a dense forest.

4. Keep away from herds of cattle and crowds of people.

5. Do not hold an umbrella over you.

6. It is safer to sit or lie down in an open field than to stand.

7. Drivers should dismount and not stay close to their horses.

8. Do not work with any large metal tool or implement.

WILLS OF JEALOUS HUSBANDS

Strange Stipulations which Sometimes Appear in Wills

A kind but terribly jealous husband left his wife his whole fortune, but stipulated in his will that she should forfeit $1,000 every time she appeared in public unveiled, $1,000 every time she smiled at a man, and $5,000 if she permitted a man to use any endearing expression or to kiss her. Certainly kisses at $5,000 a time are pretty steep, but there are some who kiss and never tell. Besides, there are veils which are supposed to improve feminine charms. Jealousy is generally short-sighted.

One would think that excess of devotion, of a rather selfish order, was always at the root of such wills as these, but, on the contrary, philanthropic sentiments towards the "other fellow" have been known to be the root cause.

For instance, one disillusioned testator wrote in his will, "During my married life I have always declared that my wife was the dearest woman in the world, and I am convinced that if any other man should be rash enough to marry her he will find her so. To deter, as far as possible, anyone making such a ruinous experiment, I leave her—nothing."

Another husband left his wife $75,000, to be increased to $150,000 provided she wore a widow's cap after his death. She accepted the larger amount, wore the cap for six months, and then put it off.

The husband's relatives sued her for breaking the conditions, and a lawsuit followed. The judge gave the widow the judgment, stating that the word "always" should have been inserted. Shortly after the deliverance of this judgment the [illegible] widow put off her widowhood as well as her cap—but kept the thirty thousand.

BABY'S SLEEP AND REST

The baby should sleep alone in its own crib, protected from flies.

Remove all clothing at bedtime and replace by clean, comfortable night clothes.

If the baby cries when it should be asleep, it is either sick, overfed, hungry or uncomfortable.

Constant jumping or jarring of the baby is likely to hurt its nerves and upset its digestion.

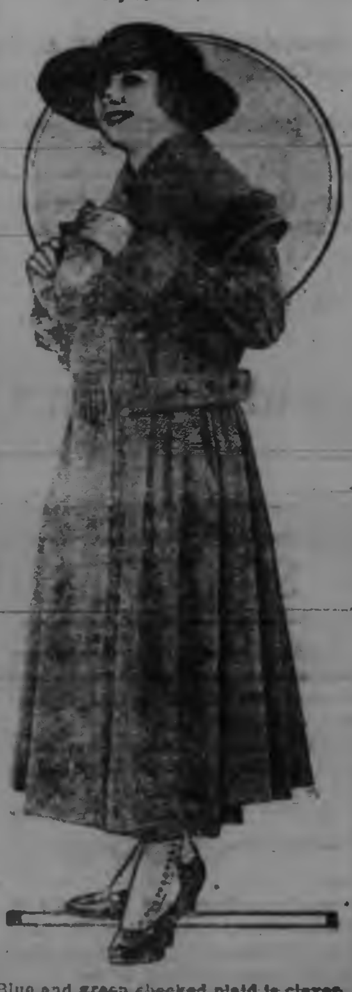
A very young baby during the first three months of its life must have from 16 to 20 hours' sleep out of the twenty-four.

Never rock the baby, use pacifiers or comforters to put the baby to sleep. Never let a baby suck a nipple unless he is getting food through it at the proper feeding time.

Never give a baby or children food purchased from pushcarts, hokey-pokey, ice cream wagons, etc. Give only the simplest prescribed foods.

See that the bedding, diaper and clothing are clean, smooth and unwrinkled; the room should be darkened while the baby sleeps, kept quiet and well ventilated. The windows should always be opened at the top at least six inches; in summer time wide open.

Stylish Top Coat



Blue and green checked plaid is cleverly manipulated in this smart top coat. The fullness is attractively confined by the narrow belt with its cartridge trimming. Moleskin fur is introduced as trimming, thus lending a rich finishing touch.

KEEPING YOUR FEET WELL

Cruelty to Oneself Inexcusable—Worse Than Footbinding

Few tyrannical slave owners ever treated their minions worse than most people treat their feet, the willing servants who carry them everywhere, run all their errands and bear the entire burden of their avoirdupois. Just consider for a moment the ill-treatment meted out to the unfortunate toes. Once the straight pretty pink toes of the baby, they are crushed by the drawing vanity of sweet sixteen in high-heeled shoes with pointed toes that push the big toe inward and produce the permanent disfigurement, an enlarged joint, which periodically inflames and sometimes develops into an unsightly bunion.

As time goes on the toes are compressed into distortions by the insane practise of squeezing a No. 5 foot into a No. 4 shoe, a No. 6 into a No. 5, until the foot becomes, instead of a thing of beauty, positively repulsive to behold uncovered, with twisted overlapping toes, malformed nails, knob-like joints, a plethora of corns, and callouses.

Yet we exclaim in horror at the deformed feet of the Chinese woman of rank. One can imagine the Eastern lady being equally horrified at the feet of some American women were they exposed to her gaze. What hours of misery are represented by these maltreated extremities! Pain in the feet is aggravated by the weight of the body and by the pressure of the unyielding footwear upon the inflamed surface, and this kind of pain has the effect of causing the most intense feeling of fatigue and depression of spirits.

BEST AGE TO MARRY

Adaptability Makes Almost Any Age Quite Suitable

Elizabeth M. Dorrell writes: Some persons seem to be able to work themselves into quite a healthful glow over the suggestion that one of our candidates for a certain high office not long ago proposed to marry at the ripe age of eighty or thereabouts. And still others border on hysteria because a sprightly young woman of seventy-eight is about to become a blushing bride for the sixth time.

"Why so hot, my little sir?" What difference does age make if two people, who are at least old enough to know their own minds, propose to clasp hands and slide down the remainder of life's hill together? Personally, it gives me joy to know, that even extreme old age has its compensations.

Who was it said, "Marry early. And if opportunity permit, often?" Age cannot wither the hope of marriage in some gentle hearts, nor custom stale its infinite variety. With the lady in question, marriage has evidently become a habit, like having cold Sunday night suppers, or boiled dinners Monday or any other little household rut. And by so doing, by this little custom of taking a fresh husband every time one dropped and died, she has held her mind in a marriageable and plastic state.

There lies the crux of the whole matter. You are neither too old nor too young to marry if your mind is in that adaptable phase which will enable you to glide gently around your partner's sharp corners without dislocating his lifelong habit of wanting a large cup of coffee with his dinner, while you prefer to sip a demi-tasse after the dessert, or if he will defer to your preference for your own brand of religion instead of adapting that of your in-laws!

VALUE OF PROMPTNESS

All Can Be Punctual—Successful Must Be

Landon Carter writes: There are few characteristics more worthy of cultivation than promptness, for in every sphere and condition of life does it inspire confidence. It is the chief motive power of all systems, without which no enterprise can be satisfactorily transacted, and the success of individuals as well as of corporations is primarily based upon punctuality, which involves both honor and conscience.

To be negligent of obligations and engagements, either socially or from a business standpoint, is doubly culpable, in so much as in doing so we take advantage of the trust placed in us and also waste the time of others, the value of which we have no means of estimating or right to judge. Only a few instances of carelessness are necessary to materially injure one's standing, and, although no particular misfortune may result, still there is no surer way of undermining faith and trust, without which no one can hold a responsible position.

To a limited few, punctuality is a matter of temperament, but the majority of people are not naturally thus conscientious; however, it may be acquired by all, and is well worth consideration, for it not only makes life better worth living, but from every practical point of view, is a fine asset for all. The prompt man will always prove his own best advertisement; he will be welcome in all circles; will receive more courteous favors and general respect; will have more real friends and will invariably do more business and receive more patronage from the public than his more conspicuously wealthy but negligent brother who over-estimates his influence and ability.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

EASILY MADE CROQUETTES

One of the greatest aids to dainty little made dishes is the food grinder or chopper. When cold meat had to be chopped with a single-bladed knife in a wooden bowl most of the cook's enthusiasm was pounded out of her before the meat was fine enough to use. But when it takes only two minutes to mince enough material for 10 croquettes it is really a pleasure to make them.

A croquette mixture to which you may add two cups of cold minced veal, chicken, beef, oysters or fish is this: One pint of milk scalded and thickened with one tablespoon of flour blended with one tablespoon of butter and one tablespoon of cornstarch moistened with cold water. Stir this until it has cooked to a smooth paste thick enough to hold firmly to the spoon. Add the beaten yolk of one egg, one teaspoon of salt and pepper to season. You may use onion salt in the seasoning, if you like it. Stir in the finely minced fowl, fish or meat. Pour this upon a platter and set it away for two hours or until stiff. The softer this mixture can be molded, the more creamery your croquettes will be.

One tablespoon of croquette mixture makes a nice sized cone that will not crack open in frying. Roll the croquette in bread crumbs, dip in egg and roll again. Set them aside for ten minutes and repeat this, so every part will be covered with the coating.

Fish croquettes are usually cut or stamped out in a half-heart shape and the white of the egg, instead of the yolk, is used for breading them, but this is to keep them a light color and is just a matter of personal opinion. Only four croquettes should be fried at a time, as more reduces the temperature of the hot fat too much.

10,000 MEN NEEDED NOW

Ontario's Crop Must Be Harvested

Three months ago, in order to avert Famine and World Hunger, the farmers of Ontario were urged to seed every possible acre.

To-day, thanks to their response, and favorable weather conditions, we have the result in a record crop of foodstuffs.

As we appealed to the farmers during April and May to plant, so now do we appeal to the employers of labor and their employees for help to harvest this crop.

We have applications on hand for over two thousand men, and thousands more are needed if the harvest is to be fully saved.

It would be nothing short of a crime were one pound of food to be lost for want of men to gather it.

Loyalty to the men we have sent overseas, to our fellow-citizens in the Homeland, and to our Allies demands immediate and effective action.

The actual need for men exists to-day, and will continue to exist until the last sheaf of wheat and barley and oats is under cover.

The late season has brought haying, the hoeing of our root crops, and the harvesting of our grains crowding together.

Every man who can be released from his present occupation for the next month is needed.

Those who came from the farms can naturally render the greatest service, but able-bodied men willing to work should not hold back for lack of experience.

In the present emergency, all can serve.

In comparison with the sacrifices being made by our men in the trenches, the most that any man is called upon to sacrifice in helping with the harvest must be insignificant.

Those who cannot serve in the first line of defence can serve in what Lloyd George has so well called "The Second Line of Defence."

The Honorable W. J. Hanna, Food Controller for Canada, has laid upon us men of Ontario the duty of harvesting the record crop with which, under the kind hand of Providence, the Province has been blessed.

He calls upon us for the sake of the Empire (and he knows the real need) to see to it that the harvest is not lost, and, having been gathered, that none of it shall be wasted.

As Prime Minister of Ontario, I call upon Employers to make it easy for their Employees to assist, and upon Employees to face the obligation of the hour in a Spirit of Service and Loyalty.

Our Manufacturers, our Government Departments, our Municipalities, the Members of our Wholesale and Retail Trades, our Financial Institutions, in short, every employer of labor need release but a very small percentage of the men employed to place the required help at the disposal of the farmers.

If the men who have come from the farms in recent years, and the members of organized labor bodies, with those able-bodied men in every walk of life, display the Spirit of Patriotism which is in them, the harvest will be reaped.

I confidently call upon every Industrial Centre of Ontario to organize at once to secure the ten thousand men who are needed.

W. H. HEARST,
Prime Minister of Ontario

The Mayor of every city and town in Ontario is being informed where men should register

WAR TAX ON BIG BUSSINESS WILL NOT BE LESSENED

Sir Thomas White Says Abnormal Profits Will Call for Abnormal Tax---Exemption for Single Men Reduced to $1500.

Ottawa, August 6.—The income tax bill is reported from committee with its principle unimpaired and its framework but slightly changed. The only alterations of importance are that the exemption of single persons is cut from $2000 to $1500 and the exemption of married persons with six or more children increased from $3000 to $4000.

No Cut in War Tax.

"This Government," declared Finance Minister White, with emphasis, stands for the principle that if abnormal profits due to the war are made by business, there must be abnormal taxation in order that the Government may take a substantial share of these profits. I want to emphasize that the situation is severely held until the end of 1918. In 1918 we will know absolutely what the profits of concerns are in this country, and what the outlook is, both from the point of the war and from the standpoint of business. In the light of these conditions, we can take such action as may be necessary, having regard to the public interest and our supreme duty to carry on the war."

Replying to members who suggested consideration in the case of large families, Sir Thomas White said that if a distinction was made between those with dependents and those without, it would be found that when the return was made, 99 per cent. of the people of Canada would have dependents. The expense of working out the Act would then be, he feared, tremendously increased. Ninety per cent. of the people of Canada were not in receipt of incomes of $3000, so there was little need to worry as to the hardships of the impost.

Treat as Joint Income.

Despite a good deal of criticism Sir Thomas White refused to treat the separate incomes of husband and wife as a joint income for taxation purposes. Each will be entitled to an exemption up to $3000, but a new clause was added that will make it impossible for either husband or wife to transfer income in order to evade the tax.

The most important announcement of the day came from the Minister of Finance, who, replying to a severe indictment of his taxation policies by W. F. Nickle (Con.) of Kingston, assured the House that the Government had not, as was being supposed in certain sections of the press, any inclination or intention to drop the excess war profits tax on business and substitute for it the income tax.

Kyte, of Richmond, argued that the bill would not meet the expectations of the people in making wealth bear its share of the obligations of the war, and F. F. Pardee made a strong plea for an increase in the income tax, arguing for an equalization of taxation.

"I do not say we may not have to increase it," said Sir Thomas, "but I do say it is a fair measure in its graduate scale."

SUNDAY STORY OF WAR

Sunday's official statement says the weather continues wet and stormy. We gained ground north-west of St. Julien.

The official statement from Paris says artillery fighting in Belgium was violent during the day. On the road from Steenstraete to Woumen we occupied two farms in front of our lines. The weather was very bad.

News from Petrograd says: Knodrintzy, a town about thirteen miles west of Kamenets has been occupied by the Austro-German forces.

A political conference at the Winter Palace ended at six o'clock Sunday morning, when each of five parties represented passed a resolution declaring confidence in Premier Kerensky and inviting him to form his Cabinet. Kerensky's decision has not yet been received.

Foreign Minister Terestchenko at a political conference last night asserted: "Russia must prepare to fight throughout winter. Peace for Russia is inconceivable.

A despatch from New York says that wireless service has been discontinued between United Stats, Canada, and Great Britain in conformity with instructions from the British Government.

Sunday's British statement says that the French made further progress north-west of Bixschoote on the Flanders battle front. Germans worked up heavy bombardments on the Entente lines, but all were still intact. Our troops carried out a successful raid east of Vermelles.

A despatch from Paris says that early Sunday the Germans made a heavy attack south of Juvincourt, north west of Rheims and several other points, but all attacks were repulsed.

Premier Kerensky has returned to Petrograd.

Numerous aircraft activities today during one of which enemy seaplane was brought down by Italian guns.

Rusian troops operating east of Bukowina attacked Austro-German forces and captured more than 500 prisoners.

tal and there saw Sergt. Cookman, a former member of the local police force, who was suffering from shell shock.

Mr. Coleman on several occasions sang at Red Cross concerts, one of which was in Wiltshire where he was visiting his mother. He also sang at the Library of Woolwich. He was elected Steward of the Engineers and was on the recent strike committee. Mr. Colman disbelieves in strikes as a rule but on this occasion, the Engineers had a good case and with a little tact the strike could have been averted. Several Masonic installations were also taken in, at one of which he met Mr. George Howarth of the Grand Opera House orchestra.

Saw Great Raid.

The great air raid over London on June 13th last was very impressive according to Mr. Colemnn. He says that on this occasion he was sure that he beat the record for a 1000 yards run when the warning was given.

Just a few weeks ago Mr. Coleman attended a meeting which was presided over by Sir William Robertson and addressed by Dr. Addison and others. This meeting was the worst ever and was suppressed by the censor for some time. Dominion Day the King inspected the Canadian Guard at Westminster and Mr. Coleman was one of the fortunate ones who witnessed this event.

He left Liverpool on the 20th of July and in the voyage sailed about 200 miles out of the steamer's regular course. He was a week on board before the shores of Ireland were lost sight of. A marine band on the way to a Pacific port was on board and assisted at several concerts at which Mr. Coleman also sang. One of the passengers was Mr. H. A. Fricker, who succeeds Dr. Voght as leader of the Mendelssohn choir and organist of the Metropolitan Church of Toronto. The friendship which was very much cemented with Mr. Coleman will possibly result in Peterborough being favored first in hearing Mr. Fricker away from Toronto.

Just before leaving, the Factory Football Club of which Mr. Coleman was president, presented him with a beautiful cigarette case of solid silver suitably engraved from "The Field Gun Section Royal Gun Factory," as well as a set of three loving cups for himself, Mrs. Coleman and their child.

Mr. Coleman came direct home from Montreal.

FEARED HIS SON WOULD GO TO WAR.

Montreal, Aug. 5.—Worrying over the fact that his son was likely to be drafted into the United States army, Matthias Beaudoin, a French-Canadian, suicided in the St. Lawrence. Beaudoin lived in the States at one time, and his son, who now resides here, was born there.

REPRISAL PSALMS BANNED

Church Drops "Vengence" Verse Though Dean Protests

Psalm 53, which ventures to support the idea of reprisals, has been placed under the ban of the English Church, by the houses of convocation. The verses in the psalm to which particular objection is taken are as follows:

"The righteous shall rejoice when he seeth the vengence: he shall wash his feet in the blood of the wicked.

'So that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous; Verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth."

Th Dean of Ely, introduced the subject and proposed the omission of Psalm 18.

The Dean of Canterbury opposed the omission and declared that denunciation of wrong-doing and the caalls for vengence were peculiarly appropriate to-day.

CIVILIZATION MAY NOT BE SO VERY FAR AWAY AFTER ALL

Episode in Toronto at the Convention Shows That the Golden Rule Does Not Lack its Disciples.

Toronto, Aug. 6.—Following the win-the-war mass meeting, groups of men and women walked slowly toward the cars in earnest discussion. Several of them gathered at the corner of Church street and Wilton avenue waiting for the long-delayed cars, and three of the men, apparently "hard-headed" business men, stood talking at Rowell's thought-inspiring words:

"No nation can win a war when half the nation is making the sacrifices and half making the profits. We must equalize the sacrifices."

"And they're over there giving up their lives at $1.10 a day," said one of them. "Here if a man loses a hand the Workmen's Compensation Act fixes him up for life, but over there if he loses an eye he gets $50 for it."

"Fifty dollars!" gasped one of the others incredulously.

"Yes, that's all," repeated the first. "They've got all sorts of ridiculous prices fixed on arms and legs and eyes. Rowell is dead right—but I'm afraid civilization has a long way to go before the sacrifices will be equalized. It's a hard thing to separate the rich man from his coin—it's a hard thing to make him see anything."

On the curb nearby stood an old couple—a Darby and Joan of tender face—and Joan clung to Darby's arm, weary of the long wait for the car and dreading the impending struggle to make the high steps before the starting bell would ring. Both wore the blue badge of the Win-the-War Convention. It took little imagination to picture the son for whose return they wait.

A handsome limousine slipped quietly up Church street, quite well filled with a business man, his wife, a friend, and two children. The man was watching the crowds on the curb with keen interest. He spoke to the chauffeur. The car slowed down noiselessly and stopped, and the man, leaning out, called to Darby and Joan:

"Come on in, friend There's lots of room."

They hesitated, but the voice rang true, and with grateful smiles they crossed from the crowd to the waiting car. There wasn't lots of room until Daughter Molly sat on Daughter Polly's lap, and they made themselves as small as possible. But it was decidedly better than the wavering, strap-hanging cars—and Darby and Joan were landed in state before their own door.

It was quite an unimportant happening, and yet it took the sting of hopelessness from the remark of the man who had said: "Civilization has a long way to go before the sacrifices will be equalled."

Civilization knows where she is going, and she is on her way.

gations they have been called upon to discharge, and the sacrifices it has been necessary for them to make. During these three years we have witnessed the departure of some of our best and bravest men; we have followed their careers abroad, even to the grave; we have passed through dark days, many of them; we have read of reverses and of death and slaughter; we watched that gruelling retreat from Mons, those glorious but terrible actions at Ypres, St. Julien, La Courcellette, Vimy, Messines Ridge, and scores of other places; sorrow and sadness have come to our homes, and yet I say that on this anniversary our first thought should be one of thanksgiving to God, thanksgiving that our cause is as bright as it really is; thanksgiving that England and France, unprepared, were able to withstand the first onslaught of the enemy; that they held him until reinforcements arrived; that they have been able during the past three years to do what Germany had taken fifty years in preparing; that today our armies are more than a match for the German legions; that our cause is brighter and more hopeful than ever before; that the enemy is gradually but surely being driven back; in a word, that victory is certain.

Our second sentiment today should be one of gratitude to our soldiers, those brave fellows who went in thousands to uphold the banner of liberty. They went from the Motherland and from every colony over which the British flag flies. They have done wonders. The vast majority of them, peaceful civilians three years ago, became in a few weeks the most daring and courageous of soldiers; they met the most carefully trained enemy and army ever met; they held him; they saved the situation, and today they have him on the defensive.

In this wonderful achievement many have made the supreme sacrifice; they have gone down to glorious death. May their souls rest in peace, and may they enjoy the reward promised to those who lay down their lives for their brethren. Let us revere their memories and let us keep their names in everlasting remembrance, for they died that we might live. Others of these brave men of stout heart and determined purpose, prepared, if necessary, to lay down their lives, have returned from the battle front, bruised, wounded and scarred by shot and shell. We have many of them with us tonight. Look at them. They are brave men. They are worthy of our admiration and gratitude. I am satisfied they have both. Let our good dispositions towards them be manifested in the deep, kind and sympathetic interest we will always take in the returned soldier.

There remains yet another class of our citizen army. It is composed of the fortunate but hardy fellows who for months, yes for years, have been battling at the front to beat back the hordes that threatened the civilization of Europe and the world. Oh, let us not be indifferent toward them. Let us not leave them unsupported. We owe them and the cause we are fighting for the very best we have in men and money. Let us then interest ourselves as best we can and may in supplying the needed reinforcements.

Ladies and gentlemen, today we begin the fourth year of the war. God grant that it be the last. Let us begin it with confidence and determination — confidence in the justice and righteousness of the cause we are supporting; confidence in the God of armies, that when the end of the war does come, it will bring victory to Britain and her allies, and let us be determined to bend every energy to do our part as citizens of a free country, as a people who value liberty as a priceless boon, as a people who are prepared to sacrifice everything in the defence of justice and right.

His Honor, Judge Huycke.

Judge Huycke in seconding the resolutions paid tribute to the splendid address of Bishop O'Brien, and he also pointed out the respect and reverence which his Lordship held in the estimation of the people, not only because of the high position which he held but because he was a Peterborough boy.

Judge Huycke deemed himself most fortunate in being asked to second the motion and he asked the people to read carefully the resolution and he hoped that it was not prepared in vain, as it had been given much thought and drawn up by his Lordship Bishop O'Brien and himself. The responsibility for all that the resolution contained was theirs and it was submitted to the citizens for their approval and action.

This was the beginning of the fourth year of the war and reference was made to Kitchener's prophesy that the war would not be over in three years. At that time the people laughed at it but it had been realized now that the great war lord had known what was what. The war was still as far from completion as it was a year ago and he was just as confident that the righteousness of the cause for civilization and good would still result in a victory for the allies. He had been contrasting the conditions today as with that of a year ago and a few of the events of the past year were gone over. The Somme victory last June, in which so many Peterborough boys lost their lives, the Verdun offensive, the Russians were driving the Austrians back and the Italians were almost to their objective. What was it today. Great Britain had gained many victories. The Canadians had won a brilliant success at Courcellette in September, where many of the Peterborough boys had again laid down their lives so that we and the children running round at home might be protected. In this battle side by side with the 18th Battalion were the men of the 22nd French Canadian Battalion and he paid them a warm tribute and bestowed credit where credit was due. The famous battle of Vimy Ridge was next referred to and his honor in a very clever way drew attention to the fact that the victory had occurred on Easter Monday commonly known as Black Monday but never again would it be known as Black Monday in Canada. Here again it was pointed out that some of the best of Peterborough's sons had made the supreme sacrifice.

The gallantry of the French soldiers, who, in spite of the fact that they had lost a million men, were just as determined as ever to fight to the finish for their own, was referred to.

No Separate Peace.

The separate peace party of Russia, which had been due to court intrigue was a thing of the past and he hoped to see a better condition arise out of the Russian revolution.

How the Roumanians had been deceived by the Bulgarians was also ing to the park where they occupied seats in the stand. They were headed by the Temple Band who gave a splendid rendition of "Onward Christion Soldiers," on the line of march and played several patriotic airs bedwelt on and how the worst had now passed and the fact that "The darkest cloud has a silver lining" was coming true.

Judge Huycke thanked God that the United States had come into the war and was in it fighting up to the neck with the knife into the hilt. The day for ill feeling between Canada and the American people had passed. They were sending men over to France by the thousand it would soon reach millions. The friendship was cemented for all time.

He asked the people again to consider the resolutions. There were no exemptions in Peterborough. Everyone must do his or her bit. Credit was given to those who had sent comforts in the past and the greater need for them by the men in the trenches in the future was strongly emphasized.

There were more Peterborough boys killed in the last year than there had been Peterborough boys sent to replace them. This should not be. Peterborough boys must be reinforced by Peterborough boys. He wished he could go and do his bit.

Judge Huycke made it very clear that it was the people's duty to elect men to office who were pledged to see that the war was prosecuted to a finish. In any election whether the man was Grit or Tory, Catholic or Protestant, no matter what he was as long as he was out to win the war, vote for him.

The food regulations would cause every one to suffer more or less but it was necessary in order to win the war.

He hailed the flag of the Allies and paid particular attention to the Triple Cross of Great Britain and contrasted it with the hideous flag of the Prussian vulture.

In concluding his very able and much appreciated address Judge Huycke looked ahead to the day when the boys would come home. They would ask the individuals "What did you do," and the people must be prepared to answer. Do not be a subject of reproach or scorn. Do something for the men that are fighting for you in this holy cause.

Capt. Burnham's Address.

The resolution so ably proposed and seconded by His Lordship the Bishop and His Honor Judge Huycke will be taken by the loyal people of the City and County of Peterborough as their well-expressed opinions at the end of the third year of the war. Loyalty to one's country means that when that country calls for its people to rise and fight for and maintain it and for all that it stands for, they will do so. We cannot halt between two opinions. We must say either that we will help or that we will not help. We must of course, leave it to parliament our agents and rulers for the time being to say who are fit to go and shall go and who are not fit and shall not be called upon; who are required at home to help maintain the army in the field and who are not. All those, however, who wish to be let alone, disregard not only the safety of the state but their own safety as well and really condemn those who have gone for having done so.

Bow to Necessity.

Shall we leave Belgium to cease to be a nation and to be swallowed up by Germany? If so, that might well be our fate some day. We might as well be asked if we would stand idly by and see others drown or starve. We must bow to the stern and dreadful necessity of the case. There is no way out if we are to be true men and women and prepared to do our duty. We must also remember that if we should desert others they might in like case desert us. Who, if we did so, would ask the United States as some have said, to help us? We must not be quitters. Life has its grave responsibilities as well as its joys. It is true that some people think more of themselves than of their duty to others, and sometimes it is necessary for the state-parent to give a medicine which is balked at. The public opinion of Canada must be allowed to judge of that. Every man and every woman should place themselves at their country's disposal when their country calls. Let there be a clear call from the country and who will refuse? This brings us to the offer of Quebec. Both Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Lomer Gouin have offered on behalf of the French-Canadian people, to obey Conscription if the voice of the people of Canada declares for it. This seems to be then the constitutional way out of a most serious and dangerous difficulty. Our Government should not delay another day in asking Canada to declare its wish. It should perhaps have been done long ago. The irresistible opinion of the Canadian people would then admit of no denial and those who propose to govern without it blindly ignore the one great constitutional remedy for all our present ills and short-comings. But what, some of you say, if the result of the vote should be adverse? Terrible as that would be who is there amongst you who proposes to enforce a measure contrary to the expressed will of the people? Who would he get to enforce it? What would be the result? Not only failure, but hopeless disaster and national ruin.

The Foreign Vote.

But some again say, will you place the fate of Canada in the hands of our foreign vote? The answer again is plain. The Allies will not allow a man of alien birth from Canada or elsewhere to set foot upon the battleground. No such man can be employed in a military way. If therefore, aliens cannot be conscripted, they must not be allowed to conscript others and whilst not deprived of their electoral rights, in other matters, as citizens of Canada, who would say that it is unfair to ask them to forego their franchise in this one case. It is doubtful if one loyal man in Canada of alien origin would, under these circumstances, object.

The Selective Draft.

Now conscription is a word which nobody likes when it means compulsion. I prefer to think of it as it really is, viz.: The selective drafting of men—some to go, some to stay. I believe many, perhaps the majority of our young men, who have not yet enlisted have believed that they were really needed to help in munition making, farming and the running of the business of the country. When the whole business of the country, both in peace and in war, is taken hold of in a businesslike way by the government and men are "selected" in this manner, there will be little, if any, hard feeling. Heretofore we have tumbled along on the voluntary or haphazard system. It is now plain that "selective draft" should have been adopted from the beginning. Our young men at home do not wish to be put to shame and incur the blame and ill-will of their friends at the front. Since it is perfectly clear that the present method is a failure we will all bow like men of courage and good will to the only course left us, viz., that of the selective draft.

Mr. Gillespie Concurs.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., was pleased to join with the other speakers in lauding the resolution so ably presented by his Lordship Bishop O'Brien and his Honor Judge Huycke. He concurred in every word of it and was ready to do all in his power to bring about a successful conclusion of the war. He referred to the win the war convention where the leaders of both parties had set aside their differences in order to accomplish the desired result. Peterborough was willing and ready to join.

Conscription Resolution.

Lieut.-Col. Mills then read the following resolution prepared by the Great War Veterans Association:

Moved by Comrade Whatley, seconded by Comrade Muir and resolved: That Sir Robert Borden as Prime Minister of Canada, be requested to put conscription into force immediately, and that he proceed to take any and every action to relieve, support, and reinforce the men at the front without delay; and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Capt. T. H. Burnham, M.P., for transmission to the Prime Minister.

Signed—

SIDNEY WHATLEY
ROBERT H. MUIR.

Notes.

The war veterans made a fine appearance as they marched with military precision from the Barrie Building before the speakers began the program.

There was some trouble with the electric wires and the only light available on the platform was that furnished by oil lamps that were hastily furnished for the occasion.

Capt. Burnham announced that Majors Lech and Watt had offered their services for duty overseas.

THREE YEARS OF WAR STEELS NATION'S HEART

King George Writes Letter to Lord Mayor of London.

London, Aug. 6.—King George writing to the lord mayor of London, thanking him for his reaffirmation of loyalty and expression of confidence in the efficiency of the fighting forces, says:—

"Three years of war with all they have meant to every home in the British empire have served to weld more closely than ever the bonds of unity and steel the hearts of the whole nation in their firm resolve to secure the sacred principles of justice, freedom and humanity. It is for these we fight, and by God's help we mean to triumph."

HOW UNCLE SAM'S SOLDIERS FARE IN TRAINING CAMPS

American Training Camp in France, Aug. 6.—Gen. Pershing gave an American expeditionary force an example of the strenuous life by sweeping through nearly a dozen villages where United States soldiers are living in France, and visiting nearly all training centres which have been established from America's first great contribution for the war for democracy.

It was not a cursory inspection that the General made. He went into minute details all along the line, questioned private soldiers, company cooks and various other ranks as to how things were going with them and what if anything could be done to improve the situation.

At several company kitchens the American commander interrogated the cooks closely.

"Do you get enough to eat and to feed the men?" he asked the veteran cook who has been in the regular army for a number of years.

"Yes, sir," replied the cook, standing at respectful attention.

"Do you get any vegetables?" asked Gen. Pershing.

"No, sir," replied the cook.

Potatoes in Plenty.

"Don't you get any potatoes?" asked Gen. Pershing with some surprise.

"Oh, yes, sir," was the prompt reply.

"And onions and tomatoes?" questioned the General further.

"Yes, sir."

"And beans?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then what do you want?"

"Nothing, sir."

Gen. Pershing smiled and moved away, satisfied that that particular company was doing very well in war time and in the war zone.

At another company kitchen the cook said the only complaint he had to make was that the company's share of canned salmon had not been forthcoming regularly.

"What do you get as a substitute?" asked the General.

"Well, of course, sir, we get bacon," replied the cook, somewhat subdued.

"Any other complaint?" the commander inquired.

There was none and again the General passed on completely satisfied with prevailing conditions.

Many troopers saw Gen. Pershing for the first time in their lives. His visit was so unexpected at certain points of the far flung training area that the soldiers speculated at first whether he was Pershing. Several times they referred the dispute to the correspondents accompanying the officer.

Picture Identifies Pershing.

"I knew it was Pershing all the time," boasted one old trooper, "because I saw his picture in the paper and he looks just like it."

Gen. Pershing gave orders looking to a little smarter setup of the men in the future. A great majority of the troops now in France are recruits in the regular army and many of them are learning the art of soldiering for the first time.

They are doing remarkably well, but being plunged into actual war training all at once they naturally have neglected some smaller details that would seem unimportant to the uninitiated, but that go a long way toward establishing and maintaining the morale of an army.

Gen. Pershing late in the day found time to visit the war correspondents' headquarters and was entertained there. He will visit one and perhaps two of the American hospital units in the American zone tomorrow.

MORE EVIDENEE WILL BE HEARD AS TO CAUSE

OF THE EXPLOSION AT THE DOMINION ARSENAL AT LINDSAY.

The adjourned coroner's inquest to enquire into the death of William Brown, of Keene, who met death at the Dominion Arsenal, Lindsay, some weeks ago, was resumed on Friday night before Coroner Dr. F. Blanchard, to hear the remaining witnesses, who through injuries received could not give testimony previously. It was found on meeting that one of the principal witnesses, Mr. Stinson, was still in the hospital and unable to attend.

Alex. Black, who was shocked by the explosion at the time Brown was killed, gave evidence which gave information as to where the deceased was a few minutes previous to the explosion, and that he saw him carrying an oblong box in one hand. He did not see the box drop. He was knocked down by the concussion and lost his hearing for a time.

The witness stated that orders were given by Mr. McKeown, and that he had on previous ocasions, when doing the work which Brown had ben engaged upon, carried the explosives to the drying room in the evening. He had been duly warned of the nature of the explosive and the care that he should exercise in handling it.

Col. Weotherbie was recalled to give evidence and Mr. McKeown a foreman, but their testimony was only of a corroborative nature.

The inquest was therefore adjourned to Tuesday, August 14th, at 1.30 o'clock p.m. when the jurors will meet at the Ross Hospital to hear the evidence of Gordon Stinson. The latter, on information from his physician, will not be able to leave the hospital for several weeks, and it will be about that date before he is sufficiently recuperated to give his deposition.

Rain fell at many points throughout the west, with great benefit to the crops.

Premier Martin, of Saskatchewan, says he would rather see Quebec under Laurier than under Lavergne.

Despite the heat, there was a real frost at Madison Square Garden, New York, when the Workmen's Council held a "monster mass meeting" in the interests of pacificism. The galleries held just three people and the auditorium was very sparsely filled.

The Wise Old Bird?

Few People Know This.
Large doses of pills for the liver are not as efficient as small doses.
The big dose purges its way through the system fast, but does not cleanse thoroughly.
The small dose (if right) acts gently on the liver, and gives it just the slight help it needs to do its own work, and do it well.
Take one pill regularly, until you know you are all right.

OUR FOOD CONTROLLER

Fought Hard as Politician, But Was Not Hated.

"Big head, little wit," is a saying rather more stupid than the majority of proverbial expressions. It is utterly discredited and cast out of court when we consider Hon. W. J. Hanna, says J. E. Middleton in The Toronto News. He has a head majestically large, but packed with wits. His record as a professional man in legal practice, as a Parliamentarian, as a platform speaker and as an administrator, shows not only fulness of knowledge, steadiness of purpose, and accuracy of judgment, but a goodly proportion of that quality known in the country as horse-sense—a quality which is the foundation of personality.

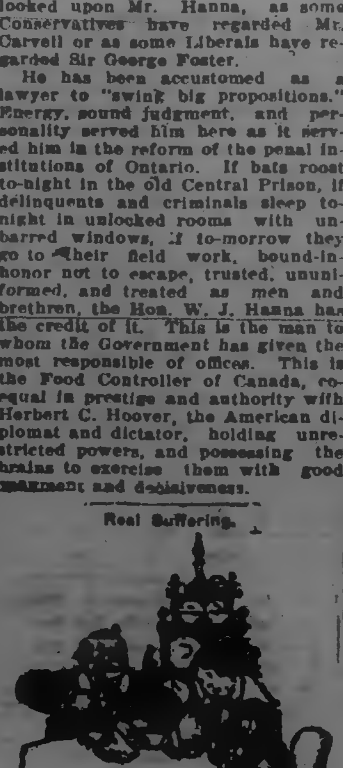
Mr. Hanna's head has all the outward signs of excellence—the distance from the tip of the ear to the crown is marked, the rear curve is graceful. No grossness is seen at the back of his neck. The transferred double chin is not apparent. The sector from temple to temple is splendid and over the eyes appear those little "bumps" and "swellings" which must have something to do with the perceptive qualities. Most men who can think rapidly and brilliantly are dowered with these intellectual foot-hills.

Mr. Hanna's face is naturally strong, but its strength is masked by the wrinkles of laughter and by a seductive cheek-dimple that no voter could ever resist. Dancing eyes behind sparkling glasses consort with a Napoleonic nose and the aforesaid dimple is near a chin like that of Admiral Beatty. Such a head crowns a short but powerful frame. The shoulders are vast, but in contrast the hands are well formed and small. Constantly in Mr. Hanna one sees the clash of force or "bull-headedness" and tact, of determination and diplomacy. If he was able to win a seat in the Legislature from a constituency normally Liberal, if he was able to hold that seat as long as he chose, the reason lay in his personality. He imposed himself upon the people—then charmed them. He challenged their hostility and then disarmed it by some merry jest or by some act of unobtrusive delicacy. He is at once a sentimentalist and a realist, a leader and a driver. If he had been a foreman for the Pharaoh who built the pyramids he would have got enormous quantities of work out of the slaves—but they would have loved him as a father, despite his long-lashed whip.

No man in the political arena fought with more vigor and effectiveness, but his enemies never hated him. He never had the capacity for inspiring that blind hostility which some politicians can arouse with one sentence. No one ever looked upon Mr. Hanna, as some Conservatives have regarded Mr. Carvell or as some Liberals have regarded Sir George Foster.

He has been accustomed as a lawyer to "swing big propositions." Energy, sound judgment, and personality served him here as it served him in the reform of the penal institutions of Ontario. If bats roost to-night in the old Central Prison, if delinquents and criminals sleep to-night in unlocked rooms with unbarred windows, if to-morrow they go to their field work, bound-in-honor not to escape, trusted, ununiformed, and treated as men and brethren, the Hon. W. J. Hanna has the credit of it. This is the man to whom the Government has given the most responsible of offices. This is the Food Controller of Canada, co-equal in prestige and authority with Herbert C. Hoover, the American diplomat and dictator, holding unrestricted powers, and possessing the brains to exercise them with good judgment and decisiveness.

Real Suffering.



Mrs. Benham—I suffered in silence.
Benham—You mean, I suppose, that you wanted to tell a secret and the wire was busy.—Chicago News.

SPREAD OF GERMANISM.

Seventy-three million Teutons Control Hundred Million Others.

Since the beginning of hostilities there has been a formidable extension of Prussian militarism. At first, it held in its grasp only the sixty-eight million people of the German Empire. By April, 1915, it had extended and organized its influence among the thirty millions of Austro-Hungarians, who until that time had taken orders from their own independent military chiefs. After October-November, 1915—the date of Serbia's downfall—the Prussian system reached out to Bulgaria and Turkey. By taking account of these extensions and adding together the populations of the territories occupied by Germany, together with those of her infatuated allies, one finds that to-day — April, 1917— Prussian militarism no longer controls sixty-eight million souls, as in the beginning of the war, but about one hundred and seventy-six million European and Ottoman subjects. This is the brutal, overwhelming fact which Americans must face if they wish to learn the sole solution of the war which will assure to them, as well as to the rest of the world, a durable peace.

The following figures will show how the three groups of the population of Pan-Germany are divided at the beginning of 1917:

1—The Masters— Germans	....	73,000,000
2—The Vassals— Magyars	10,000,000
Bulgars	5,000,000	21,000,000
Turks	6,000,000
3—The Slaves— French (about)	3,000,000
Belgians	7,500,000
Alsatians, Lorrainers	1,500,000
Danes	200,000
Poles, Lithuanians	23,000,000
Ruthenians	5,500,000	82,000,000
Czechs	8,500,000
Jugo-Slavs	11,000,000
Roumanians	8,000,000
Italians	800,000
Armenians	3,000,000
Levantines	2,000,000
Ottoman Greeks	2,000,000
Arabs	8,000,000
Total	....	176,000,000

To sum up, seventy-three million Germans rule over twenty-one million vassals and eighty-two million slaves—Latin, Slavic, Semitic, belonging to thirteen different nationalities—who are bearing the most cruel and unjustifiable yoke that the world has ever known.—Andre Cheradame in The Atlantic.

Orders for Women.

The recent announcement that King George is to open the doors of chivalry to women is another sign that the ancient barriers of prejudice are rapidly breaking down. Apropos of women's presence in orders which have formerly been restricted to men, one recalls the Hon. Mrs. Aldworth, the only woman Free Mason. At Doneraile, a beautiful country seat of Ireland, where Sir William St. Leger, Lord President of Munster, in the reign of Elizabeth, held his court, a meeting of Free Masons was once to take place, so the story goes. Mistress Betty St. Leger, afterwards the Hon. Mrs. Aldworth, being carried away by feminine curiosity concerning the proceedings, hid herself in an adjoining room where, with a pair of scissors, she drilled a hole in the wall and saw and heard the first two degrees in Masonry worked. Merely for the purpose of safe-guarding their secrets, the Masons initiated this lady into the degrees she had seen and heard, and for many years she was a respected, active member.

Little Signs.

"I wonder if the couple on the other side of the aisle from us are husband and wife?"

"They can't be. She's got the seat by the window."—Baltimore American.

A Protest.

"Women is very inconsistent."

"How now?"

"Why, she chains a man to her chariot wheels, and then complains that he's a drag!"—Judge.

All He's Come For.

"Mr. Green has called to pay his respects to you, sir."

"Disappointed again. I thought he'd come to pay me that $10 he owes."—Detroit Free Press.

"BATTER'S OUT" FOR CRAWFORD

VETERAN PLAYER WILL BE DROPPED FROM THE BIG LEAGUE.

It begins to look very much as thought Old Wahoo Sam Crawford is finally about to slip silently out of the picture of big league activities after a span of almost a score of years as a topliner under the big tent. Wahoo Sam is not among those present with the Tigers on the team's visit to the East. The veteran was left behind, though he is suffering from no serious ailment.

In short, it appears to be simply a case of the veteran's dropping away to where Jenning's does not consider him capable of handling a regular berth and does not feel it advisable to carry him along for his pinch hitting alone. Further evidence of the fact that Crawford is slipping or rather has slipped below Jenning's standard for a regular is the situation which the Tigers are facing just now. They could surely use Crawford handily, if he were up to his form of a few years ago.

With Cobb, Veach and Heilman travelling at their normal speed, it meant a tough job for Crawford to keep pace with the younger men because of his slowing down in fielding and on the base paths. But a turn of affairs with the club gave Crawford still another chance.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

BASEBALL FOR THE SOLDIERS

TWO TEAMS OF BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS MAY PLAY BEHIND BATTLE LINE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Aug. 6.—A wealthy enthusiast has offered to finance the undertaking if Clarke Griffith, manager of the Washington Americans, will take two teams of major league ball players to France for a series of games behind the lines for the entertainment of the American soldiers and their allies. One condition of the offer is that Walter Johnson, the famous pitcher, be one of the men selected for the trip.

Griffith will undertake the project if the Government authorities approve.

Canadian Fighters Publish Paper

CANADIANS are becoming familiar with the trench periodicals published by our boys in France, one of the first of these and one of the most successful is The Listening Post which started its career about twenty months ago. Since that time it has appeared, according to the editor, Captain W. F. Orr, "twice monthly, Huns permitting." It is published by the Canadian unit under the command of Lieut.-Col Gilson and the news editor is Sergeant J. W. Campbell.

The most recent issue of The Listening Post to reach Canada indicates that the boys had just been feeling elated over the entrance of the United States into the war. The editor says, "We cannot refrain from commenting on the remarkable change in public opinion in America which has made such a drastic step possible, and we rejoice to note that United States independence — of which we have heard so much in former years—is once more about to vindicate itself."

Mostly, however, The Listening Post devotes itself to making merry about the hardships of war, and is filled with paragraphs that indicate the splendid spirit of the fighting men. Here are a few of the jests in the "Fun From the Front":

Henry—"Gee, I wish the war would finish soon."

Peter—"I don't. I want to get my 'leave' first."

Question—"How are the tanks made?"

Answer—"Quite simple. A rum issue along with a drop of Scotch."

And here is one editorial comment:

> The surest way to identify Canadian troops on the march is not by their "fine physique," "swinging step," and all that war correspondent stuff, but by the Old Chum bags on the nozzles of their rifles.

Although the censor handles the copies carefully, there are stray bits of information in The Listening Post. There is one paragraph that tells us—

> During the recent frosty weather skates figured very prominently in several raids made by Canadians. There is where they slipped it over Fritz. Good old hockey players.

Here is another scrap of news—

> The first "drums" to be brought to France by Canadians are still going strong. Sergt. Keatinge and Corp. Loughton deserve great credit for the success of this band.

One little poem which has a place of honor on the front page indicates that the soldiers at the front have not much admiration for the majors who went as far as England and returned to Canada when the privates went to France. In fact it would seem that the slighting speeches made about the "safety first" majors in Canada have all been echoed in the trenches. "The Ballad of the Mushroom Major" is short, but it has plenty of punch—

We got our promotion far over the ocean:
The farther the quicker, you know;
The battalion disbanded, and here we are landed,
All dressed up and nowhere to go.
Lieutenants abuse us, and Captains won't use us:
We're welcomed like blizzards in May;
We may be old stagers, but we draw major's wages,
And we've got to have some place to stay.

The following war versions of old maxims are also worth quoting—

A bulletin the hand is worth two in the head.

People who live in shell holes shouldn't throw flare-lights.

All is not gold that glitters—Remember a bayonet in the moonlight.

Half a rum issue is better than ten beers.

It's a long communication trench that has no turning.

A roaring shell gathers no moss.

Discretion is the better part of R.I.P.

Something He Overlooked.

Judge—You are charged with breaking a chair over your wife's head.

Prisoner—It was an accident, your honor.

Judge—What! Didn't you intend to hit her?

Prisoner—Yes, but I didn't intend to break the chair.—Boston Transcript.

A Refuge in Noise.

"Charlie tells me to," replied young Mrs. Torkins, "so that I won't hear the things he says while he is fixing the machine."—Washington Star.

Struggle to Hide the Truth.

"What makes you insist on always dancing with that girl? You know you dance badly."

"That's true," replied the determined youth. "I think a lot of that girl. If I dance with her instead of letting her sit down and watch me at a distance, maybe I can keep her from seeing what a fearful dancer I really am."—Washington Star.

His Experience.

The man who had made his pile in the South American trade advertised for a valet.

He looked the first applicant over.

"Have you valeted long?" he asked.

"Me?" replied the applicant. "Why, I'm a reg'lar valetudinarian!"

He got the job.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Dissimilarity.

"You have two sons?"

"Yep, one's a writer and the other a surgeon."

"Both succeeding, I suppose?"

"Yep, one of them at free lancing and the other by charging as much as he can get for his lancing."—Rocky Mountain News.

Possibly Tainted.

"These are evil days for the rich men," said George Ade at a luncheon at the Chicago Athletic club. "I'd rather be a pickpocket than an interlocking director—there's more honor in it.

"They say that a cannibal king recently sent posthaste for his doctor.

"'Good gracious man!' the doctor said. 'You're in a dreadful state. What have you been eating?'

"'Nothing,' groaned the sick man, 'except a slice of that multimillionaire whose yacht was wrecked on Cocoanut reef.'

"'Merciful powers!' the doctor cried. 'And I told you under no circumstances to eat anything rich. George, get the saws and axes. We must operate at once.'"—Boston Advertiser.

Probate Granted to Cameron Will Widow to Pay

COSTS, WITH THE OTHER PLAINTIFFS, WHO ARE CENSURED.

His Honor Judge McMillan at Lindsay has handed out judgment sustaining the will of the late Archibald Cameron, retired merchant, who lived at Oakwood, and had directed that probate of the will be granted to the executors named in the will, John H. Cameron, Edward A. McCorvie and Peter Anderson.

The late Mr. Cameron died on the 18th February, 1917, and the will was filed for probate in the regular way. A caveat or notice opposing the granting of probate was filed by the widow, Mrs. Margaret Cameron, and by three grandchildren, Miss Evelyn Cameron, of Toronto, and Messrs. Stewart and Arch. Cameron, of Oakwood. The parties opposing the granting of probate alleged that that the will was not properly executed, and there was fraud and undue influence used in procuring the execution of the will, and that the late Mr. Cameron was not capable of making a will. The judge directe the trial of the issues and the same came up for hearing at the Court House, Lindsay, on the 28th June.

The trial occupied five days and much interest was aroused. Miss Clara Brett Martin, of Toronto, and Mr. Hartley Dewart, K.C., of Toronto, represented the widow and Miss Cameron. Mr. Thomas Stewart, Lindsay, represented the two grandsons and Messrs. A. M. Fulton and L. B. O.Connor, of Lindsay, appeared on behalf of the executors.

The findings of the trial judge cover a typewritten mamorandum of figteen pages, and in the result the learned judge concludes "that the parties opposing the will were not in any way justified, that they had not made sufficient enquiries from those who had first knowledge of the making of the will, and that they had recklessly rushed into litigation, and had gone to heavy expense in bringing witnesses and expert testimony to contest the will." He further finds that the contentions of the parties opposing the will that the same had not been properly executed or was obtained by fraud and undue influence was not even attempted to be suported at the trial, and that the party who received the largest benefit from the will, namely, John H Cameron, had nothing whatever to do with the making of it and was quite indifferent as to whether or not his father made a will. As the plaintiffs failed in their contentions the judge has directed that those opposing the will should pay their own costs, and that although he felt that he would have been quite justified in directing that the plaintiffs should pay the costs of the executors, as a matter of grace and favor he directs that the costs of the executors be paid out of the estate.

U.S. GENERAL IS SURE OF RESULT

COMPLETE VICTORY FOR ALLIES CONFIDENTLY LOOKED FOR.

London, Aug. 6.—The London Sunday Times received the following telegram from General Pershing, commander of the American Army in Europe, dated Paris, August 4:

"The spirit and morale of the Allied armies are splendid, and the general situation is better than at the beginning of any other year of the war. The Allies should look forward with full confidence to a complete victory.

Kaiser Tells Why Belgium Was Invaded

LETTER OF THREE YEARS AGO IS NOW GIVEN TO THE WORLD.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—A hitherto unpublished letter cabled by the German Emperor to President Wilson on August 10, 1914, giving the Kaiser's own version of how the world war began appeared in The Public Ledger on Sunday in the first published instalment for former Ambassador James W. Gerard's book, "My Four Years in Germany." The document is notable for the plain admission by the Kaiser that Belgium neutrality "had to be violated by Germany on strategical grounds."

The letter is printed as an autograph fac-simile of the original document, and words and phrases appear crossed out and interlined and underscored in the Kaiser's own hanwriting. By official request in Berlin, Ambassador Gerard suppressed the message to President Wilson, which the Kaiser gave him for publication. Mr. Gerard uses it in his book by special permission of the President.

An Important Correction

One of the hand-written corrections is particularly notable. It appears at the close of the German Emperor's cable letter, and substitute for the word "knowledge" the word "news"; it thus makes the most important sentence read:

Instead he (Sir Edward Grey) declared England had to defend Belgium neutrality which had to be violated by Germany on strategic grounds, news having been received that France was already preparing to enter Belgium, and the King of the Belgians having refused my land petition for a free passage under guarantee of his country's freedom."

AN ELECTION IS SURE TO COME

BUT PREMIER TELLS COLLEAGUES UNION IS STILL A POSSIBILITY.

Ottawa, Aug. 6.—That in the near future a Government may be formed based upon a union irrespective of party, race or creed, was the hope—and the belief—expressed by Sir Robert Borden Saturday to the delegation of the Ontario "Win-the-War" convention who presented to him the resolution of the Toronto convention. It called for a national Government and, if possible, the obviating of an election. Sir Robert said the latter was unavoidable. If union government failed, he said, the responsibility would be on him.

Pleased With Interview.

Following the interview with Sir Robert Borden, the Win-the-War delegates had a meeting and gave out the following unanimous statement:

"The members of the delegation wish it to be known that they are entirely satisfied with the Prime Minister's reception of the views put before him. They were particularly impressed by the earnestness and sincerity of Sir Robert Borden's exposition of the steps he is taking to form a non-partisan union Government. They are confident he will succeed and that such a Government will receive the undivided support of all the win-the-war elements throughout the Dominion. Sir Robert Borden convinced the delegation that for constitutional reasons it is now impracticable to avoid a general election. The delegation therefore believes that a nation-wide campaign of education must at once be launched to demonstrate the essential unity of Canadians for the utmost prosecution of the war."

TORONTO MAN KILLED BY TRAIN AT BURKETON JCT.

J. F. Aitken Fell Between Cars While Attempting to Get Aboard---Brought to Peterboronogh Where He Died in Hospital This Morning.

J. F. Aitkin, a representative of the Dominion Glass Co., Toronto, died here this morning as a result of injuries received last evening at Burketon Junction. From what can be learned Mr. Aitken, along with a number of other city folks went up to Bobcaygeon for the week end, and last evening took the train for Toronto on the home journey.

Everyone was happy and enjoying themselves immensely, and at Burketon Junction a few of the hungry ones proceeded to the lunch room where they endeavored to satisfy the wants of the inner man while the train was waiting for the down train to pass.

The train for Toronto pulled in and the excursion train started up, and Mr. Aitken and a few others hurried to catch it, but Mr. Aitken missed his hold and fell between the cars, two of them passing over him.

He was picked up and medical aid called, Dr. McArthur responding. It was found that he had lost his left arm, part of the right hand and part of the left foot, in addition to having his skull fractured.

The injured man was brought to Peterboro at midnight and was taken to the Nicholl's Hospital where Drs. McArthur, Cameron, and Carmichael endeavored to relieve his suffering and dress the wounds, but despite all this he died this morning.

He was maried, and is thought to live at 11 La Fayette Ave., Toronto.

Inquest Opens

At three o'clock this afternoon Coroner Greer opened an inquest at Comstock's undertaking parlors. The following jury were summoned by Acting Sergt. Blade and were sworn in: Messrs. W. H. Meredith, Cyril Lech, D. J. Scollard, J. Picard, R. Wilson, E. V. Warne, Robt. Sturgeon, W. D. Campbell, W. J. Routley, E. Reid, J. E. Fowler, and Geo. Evans (foreman).

The jury viewed the body of the deceased, but there was no one present to identify the remains.

Letters taken from the clothing lead to the belief that it is that of J. Forrester Aitken.

The deceased was apparently a man in perfect health. The body is that of a heavy set man with a short dark mustache.

Friends are expected to arrive from Toronto this evening when the identification will be completed.

The inquest was adjourned until Wednesday, Aug. 15th, at the Police Court.

CITY ENGINEER HAS FREE HAND

CHAIRMAN WEIR SAYS HE DOES NOT INTERFERE IN OFFICIAL'S WORK.

Ald. Weir in moving the adoption of the Board of Works report last night took the opportunity of informing the Council that he took exception to a report in the papers that the chairman of the Board was always interfering with the Engineers Department. He wished it distinctly understood that so far as he was concerned that there would be no interference, he was sorry that he had not understood that the Engineer was not responsible for the carrying on of the work done on the Prince street sewers. It might have been better if he had visited the work more. However, now that he knew that the Engineer was responsible he was out of it unless asked for advice in his capacity as chairman.

Ald. Langford thought that the South End people could get along without sewers for the present.

Ald. Weir queried as to how the Engineer would be responsible for the work.

Acting-Mayor Duncan was always in favor of giving the Engineer a free hand and if he was not doing satisfactory work, fire him.

The report was finally adopted after a sidewalk had been recommended on Aylmer street north of Smith.

"WIN-THE-WAR" IS KEYNOTE OF CONVENTION AT WINNIPEG

Premier Norris Calls for Unity of Purpose ---Alberta Delegates Seem to Have Majority for Laurier to be Retained as Leader.

Winnipeg Aug. 7.—At 10.20 this morning Premier Norris of Manitoba, who was proposed for temporary chairman by Premier Brewster of British Columbia, called the convention of Western Liberals to order.

The convention, he said, must have Canada at large at heart. "One of the most important things I am going to ask the convention to do," he said, "is to create a win-the-war policy. There had never in Canada's history been such demand for unity. The spirit of win-the-war is covering all Western Canada. There would be no difference as to that, though there might be as to the measures which should be taken."

C. M. Hamilton, of Metaggart, Sask., was elected permanent chairman, and Captain Riley, of Calgary, a returned soldier, assistant chairman.

Looks Like Laurier

This is the impression of those who witnesed the pre-convention activities. At noon yesterday some 200 came in from Alberta and marched immediately to the Fort Garry Hotel. Here they joined a number of other Alberta delegates who had preceded them, and at once had a meeting. While the meeting was not open to the public, there seems to be no dispute as to what occurred. Hon. Frank Oliver was loudly cheered when he entered the room, and there was a prolonged outburst of cheering when in the course of his speech, he mentioned the name of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Later in the day a large number of the Alberta delegates, preceded by a brass band, marched around the city carying a banner, which they had evidently brought with them, on which was inscribed: "Alberta is for Laurier.'

The Alberta Liberal members of Parliament who voted for conscription had little comment to make upon the happenings of the day, but admitted that the tide of sentiment was flowing against them. Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, sarcastically observed that Sir Wilfrid Laurier must indeed be a great man when he was able to get Frank Oliver and Charlie Cross to row together in the same boat. W. A. Buchanan, M.P. for Medicine Hat, said that he would insist upon another convention being called in his riding, as he had been nominated before his vote on the conscription bill.

Premier Martin, of Saskatchewan, who has been here for several days, declined to make any statement to the press beyond saying that he came with an open mind and would abide by the will of the majority. The Laurier Liberals, however, claim that they have a clear majority in the Saskatchewan delegation, and Dr. Neely, M.P. for Humboldt an ardent conscriptionist, admitted that the outlook was not at all to his liking.

HUNS RETAKE CRATER.

Gloomy Weather Again Interferes with Artillery Work of Home Troops.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, Aug. 7.—Canadian outposts around Lens have established a new line in a group of houses which is within a few yards of the enemy front line at that point. The Lens-Bethune road is now safely within our lines almost up to the city of Lens. The enemy does not intend to submit to the loss of Lens a little bit at a time as in recent advances without making a fight for it.

While our outposts were establishing their new posts this morning the Germans turned loose a heavy artillery and machine gun barrage upon the crater recently captured and the buildings nearby. Sheltered by this barrage his infantry advanced upon the crater which was only lightly held as an outpost.

Our men in the crater withdrew without suffering any casualties and the Germans reoccupied it.

Destructive artillery shooting was continued yesterday by our artillery at an accelerated rate because of the better light but dull weather has again come and the gunners are disconsolate.

INJURED WHILE AT WORK.

Dennis Guerin Taken to St. Joseph's Hospital This Morning.

Dennis Guerin, who is employed by the Leonard Construction Company and who lives at 120 Sophia street, Ashburnham, was badly injured this morning while unloading lumber at the Quaker Oats plant.

It appears the man was in one of the cars, and the board across the door of the car gave way, throwing Guerin out on to a pile of lumber. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where Dr. McNulty attended to his injuries.

CITY ASKED TO FURNISH RECRUITS FOR FARM WORK

Meeting in Council Chamber Tonight to Encourage Men to go on Farms--Peterborough Asked for 100 Volunteers.

The City Council will meet the Manufacturers of the city tonight to work out the idea of giving assistance to get men to help the farmers to harvest the immense crop in Ontario.

Ald. Worth at the council meeting last night read letters from the Canadian Manufacturers Association in which it was stated that Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. R. Breyfogle and himself had been appointed a committee to organize Peterborough. It was expected that the city would furnish 100 men. The Utilities Commission had decided to proceed with no new work until after harvest in order that men could go to farms if they wanted to. He thought that several of the policemen could very easily be spared. The question of making up the difference in wages did not meet with favor from Ald. Weir and McIntyre who thought the farmer could well afford to pay good wages.

The Correspondence.

The following correspondence on the subject explains itself:

We will ask you, therefore, to report yourself immediately to him. In case he would be away from home, please take the responsibility on your own shoulders, in co-operation with Mr. E. Worth, whose name appears at the foot of the attached copy of letter,

CITY TO PURCHASE MOTOR TRUCK WITHOUT PUMPER

Aldermen Fight Shy of Overdraft and Decide on Lesser Outlay---Manufacturers Were Strong for Modern Apparatus.

After many months of dickering and discussing, Peterborough has finally placed its order for a motor-driven combination chemical and hose wagon. The bylaw authorizing the signing of a contract with the American LaFrance Engine Co. for the new truck at a cost of $8,800 was finally passed.

Ald. Dobbin stated that the bylaw had been held up in deference to the wishes of the manufacturers who were anxious for a pumper. The difficulty had been as to where the extra $3000 would come from. It was August now and it would be December before the new apparatus would be here. Would they delay it and get the pumper later or go ahead and order this pieces which was the one required by the Underwriters.

Acting Mayor Duncan was not in favor of having an overdraft left for next year's council to take care of. He believed that a heavy motor truck was necessary, particularly after the Quaker Oats Co. plant was in operation.

Ald. Worth was in favor of an overdraft. The manufacturers wanted the pumper.

Ald. Saunders would leave it over until next year.

Ald. Duncan was in favor of getting one piece now.

Ald. Langford thought that the present engine was good enough.

Several of the aldermen expressed the opinion that they thought that the motor truck had been ordered long ago.

Ald. Dobbin explained to Ald. McIntyre that the council had tried to get the money from the City Trust but the Commissioners did not have any surplus sinking fund to hand over. The manufacturers had made no suggestion as to where to get the money except by overdraft.

Ald. McIntyre was of the opinion that the pumper would have to come

Ald. Weir was of the same opinion as before. He would like to see the city get the larger piece of apparatus as he believed they would save money later on. A chemical tank could be put on a smaller truck and later on this truck could be utilised in other ways. He was in favor of getting the pumper if the money could be secured.

Acting-Mayor Duncan thought that the chemical would be used 50 times as much as the pumper. The fire brigade would have to be completely motorized in the next three years.

Ald. Worth was of the opinion that the manufacturers would not be satisfied with anything but a pumper. The chemical will satisfy the merchants. A chemical tank could be put on a very much smaller chassis.

Ald. Dobbin stated that Chief Howard had stated that if a chemical engine had been at hand he would have handled the Gemmel fire better.

Ald. Worth was in favor of an overdraft, in order to satisfy all.

Ald. Smith felt the same as ever in regard to the new fire apparatus. The longer it was put off the higher the price. He questioned whether the company would accept the quoted price now as copper and other metals were going up every day. Last year's Fire, Water and Light Committee had had an overdraft if everything had been taken into consideration. It would do no harm new, in order to get the pumper. The manufacturers are the big thing in any city and must be considered.

Mayor Duncan stated that he thought from conversation with Ald. Stratton and Taylor that they were opposed to an overdraft. Ald. Taylor was in favor of this chemical machine.

Ald. Worth and Dobbin fathered a motion that the bylaw be altered so as to get a 750 gal. pumper.

Ald. Weir was not going to cause a further delay and if Aldermen Stratton and Taylor were opposed to an overdraft he would pass the bylaw as it was.

The vote on the motion resulted in a tie and the reading of the bylaw to proceed with the buying of the chemical combination was carried.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH TUESDAY, AUG. 7, 1917

THE NEED OF THE HOUR.

"Of all the pities and of all the deep disgraces, no pity would be greater and no disgrace stronger, having once risen to the occasion, than that we should cease on the path of duty, of fervour, of courage, of sacrifice, and of support. I agree with my hon. friend when he says that Canada has risen to the occasion. My prayer now is that Canada may not decline from that lofty, proud, honorable and proper position. Let Canada make no mistake about her position, and the supreme factor in the long line of factors which are fighting for liberty and civilization on this long battle front. Let Canada make no mistake that for her, and for the cause for which she is fighting, the important thing today is men, and every delay, dilatory or otherwise, which intervenes to prevent the calling of men, the drilling of men, the transport of men, the preparation of them for the final trench work, is just so much which impedes the path to victory, and delays the coming peace, which can only follow a victory on the front fields of battle. — Sir George Foster in Parliament.

RECRUITS FOR THE HARVEST

PETERBOROUGH is asked to furnish one hundred volunteers to help save Ontario crops and there should be no difficulty in raising this number, the company not to be made up of novices, whose services, however willingly rendered, would be practically useless, but of men who have served an apprenticeship on the land and who would be as valuable aids as ever after a few days' training.

The city is in earnest over its desire to help the farmers. The manufacturers will hold a meeting tonight, at which aldermen and citizens are invited to attend to help on the movement. The large employers of labor in the city are ready to make the sacrifice of relieving for a month those of their men who are willing to go out on the farms for that time. All such will be granted free transportation to and from their destinations. If they have had any previous experience, the outing will be more beneficial to them than any holiday pastime they could undertake. They will besides be able to earn money while so engaged.

Farmers are said to be offering $3 a day and board for harvest helpers. This, of course, can be paid only to these who know something about the work. The price does not appear unreasonable. Twenty years and more ago farmers in the rush of harvest paid as high as $2 a day when their produce was selling for less than half of what it brings today.

Three dollars a day and board should satisfy the average city worker who takes up a patriotic line of duty, even if he earns more than that at home. There are very few, we take it, who will look to their present employers to make up the difference between their present wages and what may be paid them in the country. By helping on the farms these men are indirectly laying up a food supply for themselves and families. Many a man has left a good position to enlist for $1.10 a day, and he has not murmured or exaggerated the sacrifice.

THE ACKERMAN BYLAW.

THE CITIZENS will be given an opportunity on Thursday, September 6th, to vote on the question as to whether Messrs. B. F. Ackerman, Sons and Company, are to be allowed their present fixed assessment of $23,790 for another ten years. This is not a money bylaw, so that attention is called to the fact that every voter who possesses the municipal franchise will have the right to vote on it.

This company is one of the most substantial in the city and has been located here for over twenty years. Their record is before the people, and it is all to the credit of the firm. When they erected their plant in this city they were given concessions, and they have more than carried out their part of the agreement in every detail.

The firm foresee a falling off in their present line, that of the manufacture of saddlery, owing to the fact that the automobile is supplanting the horse, both for business and pleasure. They purpose to take up the manufacture of shoes. The proposed change will call for a heavy outlay in putting in machinery and in establishing new business connection. In order to offset this so far as possible and to be able to figure on their chances, the firm asks for a fixed assessment at the present rate which they are charged for ten years.

The new factory will employ at least thirty hands at the start, and probably more than double that number before the end of the first year. At all events, whatever this company agrees to do they will carry out to the letter. In time the factory will be enlarged, and the company now own the land next to their present plant that is necessary for this purpose.

It is a clear, straight business proposition, one that the city cannot afford to turn down. Inducements are being offered to utside firms to locate here. One already well established can be kept with no actual outlay, and at the trifling cost of a small concession. If the firm should leave the city, Peterborough would lose practically all the income from the present assessment besides that derived by the men now employed there.

There should be no doubt as to the result of the bylaw. It should carry by as large a vote and majority as that which has been given other propositions that have been submitted to the electors, propositions with less to commend them.

AS THE MATTER STANDS.

LEADERS IN QUEBEC, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself, say that if conscription is adopted and endorsed by the people as shown by the vote at a general election, then that province will obey the law. The rest of the Dominion should take Quebec at its word and govern itself accordingly by co-operating for the purpose of recording a verdict favorable to the Military Service Act, which in a few days will be a law of the land.

It will strike the most of us that Quebec should not require any further proof that the majority of the Canadian people are in favor of conscription. They have spoken, not directly, it is true, but through their elected representatives. No measure of so much moment submitted to the Canadian Parliament ever received so large a majority as the Military Service Bill. The records fail to show that there was ever such breaking of party ties as when that bill passed its second and final reading. Even in the Senate the size of the majority given it was the political surprise of the year.

Quebec should be willing to accept these favorable votes, these party revolts, as an evidence that the Selective Draft is supported by popular sentiment. Another vote should not be required to induce the people of that province to abate their opposition and cease their hostile demonstration. If they consent to submit only after another expression of the people's will, then it will be apparent that Quebec yielded only when subjected to a double form of compulsion.

Sir Robert Borden told the Win-the-War Committee that waited on him the other day that if there was a demand for his retirement in order to facilitate the work of winning the war, he was ready to step down and out and to serve his country in a humbler capacity to the best of his ability. This is the course taken by the officer who resigns his commission in order to get into active service when there is no place for him in the higher grades of the service. What a contrast it is to the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who refuses to lift a hand to help in the work of winning the war while he is in Opposition, but who talks glibly and boastfully of what he would be able to accomplish if restored to the leadership.

We believe that the majority of the people of Canada deplore the probability of a general election. All such people are vastly more interested in Imperial and national safety than in party success. If an election cannot be avoided in other parts of the Dominion, then the bitterness, the worry and the upheaval can be sidetracked in Ontario if the program outlined by the Win-the-War Convention in Toronto last week is carried out in every riding in the province. The aim of that organization is to elect by acclamation in each constituency some man who has only one guiding principle, some man who will sink everything like political interest in the face of the great task of winning the war.

At the election in 1911 there were thirteen Liberals elected in Ontario and thirty-seven in Quebec. In an election next Autumn, conducted on the old party lines, this disparity in numbers would be still more marked, for there is little doubt that Quebec in the present temper of the people, will be a unit behind Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Quebec would then be in a position to dictate the policy of the nation, and as Sir Clifford Sifton has pointed out, Canada's part in the war would be dropped at once.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

BEHIND every tale of disaster let us look for the German agent.

• • •

POLITICS and conscription cannot be relegated to the same shelf or scrap heap.

• • •

THERE IS a scarcity of fats reported in Germany, but this does not apply to the diplomatic heads.

• • •

CONSIDERING some of the anti-conscriptionists at large, why should, how can, the spirit of Canadians be proud?

• • •

SIR WILFRID LAURIER wants peace, and, considering the positon in which he finds himself, who can blame him?

• • •

PITTSBURGH is said to be short of fuel. Next thing we may expect to hear is that Newcastle, too, is short of coal.

• • •

JESS WILLARD IS said to be a vegetarian, while there are some people who hold that he is a member of the "nut" family.

• • •

TORONTO has about concluded that its baseball team can never bring home the bacon unless it signs the famous player of that name.

• • •

THE KAISER started the war, but he cannot end it as easily any more than the child can quench the conflagration it wantonly set alight.

• • •

THE KAISER has tendered Hindenburg his "inexhaustible thanks." So he really has something that will not run out like men, money and food.

• • •

HEARING that the Utilities Commission has decided to take up no new work for the present, the shade trees of the city will probably join in a sigh of relief.

• • •

IF A REFERENCE to conscription at a public meeting is regarded as a political move, then it is not the fault of that measure, but there is something amiss with the angle from which it is regarded.

GETTING A LINE ON SAM CARTER

"I see that Sam Carter is coming to Peterborough," said Stodgins over the top of his paper. "Would you like to go, my dear?"

"Yes, indeed," replied Mrs. Stodgins, looking up from the sock she was knitting for a soldier. "When will it be here?"

"It?" remanded Stodgins.

"Yes. What date will it be?"

"May I ask," said Mr. Stodgins, "what you conceive Sam Carter to be—a comic opera?"

"How silly of me! Of course not. I wasn't thinking of what I was saying at the moment. It's that new war play, the one that Aanna Held is in! I read about it the other night. I certainly want to go."

"Anna Held!" repeated Stodgins. "Where do you get that?"

"Why, isn't she that great French actress? You know—oh, that's so—it's Sarah Bara I was thinking of! I declare I'm getting so mixed up lately, with the war and everything."

"You mean Theda Bara."

"Yes, that's the one! I must be going out of my head."

"Well, it isn't Theda Bara."

"No?"

"And the other lady you mean is Sarah Bernhardt."

"Oh, yes, of course! Sarah Bernhardt! It's a great war picture, with Gen. Jeffery."

"Well, for the lard's sake," said Stodgins, laying down the paper. "Who ever heard of Gen. 'Jeffery'! My dear girl, do you ever read? Now get it right—it's Gen. Joffrey, and it's pronounced 'Joff.' just life—just 'ike—why like 'toff, or 'soff' or 'boff.' My goodness, Matilda, you can't expect me to remember everything for you!"

"Now don't get mean, Henry. Tell me about this picture."

"I tell you, Matilda, it ain't a picture, it ain't a play, it ain't got anything to do with French actresses. It's a lecture to the working men on compensation."

"Oh! Well, why didn't you say so? Who is it by?"

"Who is it by! I told you it's Sam Carter. He's a man. He gives the lecture. He is a member of the legislature."

"Yes," said Mrs. Stodgins, vaguely, "I remember now."

"He's a political economist."

"I don't think I'd want to go," said Mrs. Stodgins. "You know I was reading the other day, Henry, that this is no time for politics. The country should be united. And politics is a bad thing to get mixed up in. You've often said so yourself."

"I said, Matilda, that Sam Carter's lecture will not have anything to do with politics."

"Well, I don't see how—"

"That isn't the question. Do you want to go?"

"When is it?"

"Next week, perhaps."

"I think it would be just splendid! They say women haven't any sense of humor, but it isn't so, is it, Henry?"

BATTLE CRY OF THE ALLIES

(F. K. Knight in St. Nicholas.)

"Now, after three years in which the whole purpose of Germany has been developed, we can plainly see that, translated into American history, into terms of our past, Liege stands for Bunker Hill, Louvain for Lexington and Cardinal Mercier for Patrick Henry.

"We saw France invaded—outraged, desecrated, partly ruined, and we have seen 1,300,000 Frenchmen lay down their lives to save the land of Lafayette. And yet we did not realize at the beginning the significance of that invasion or the outrage that was to be done France. France, we must always remember, was the first land in Europe, in the world, to follow the lead that we gave in standing for free institutions and raising high the banner of liberty, equality and fraternity. France followed our example. As a child of freedom, she is our child.

"We have sympathy with England, because the laws, the traditions and the standards of living that we have and that are called Anglo-Saxon civilization, came from England. We fought England twice, once upon the sea and once upon the land, and defeated her both times. And out of our victories England learned what she cannot do to colonies. So Australia and New Zealand, Africa and Canada are fighting today with her and with us for the freedom of the seas.

"We have an understanding, too, of the significance of this new movement in Russia. Why is it that in Russia they look with favor upon Americans? Because this new Russia of today is a Russia based upon the principles that Washington and Jefferon and Lincoln taught.

"Yes, the thing that these nations are fighting for is the thing that we have taught the world."

Wit and Wisdom

Hamlet, 1917

To eat or not to eat, that is the question—
Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous prices,
Or declare boycott against them,
And by opposing, end them? To bay—to eat,
No more; no buy, no eat, and then we end
The heartache and the thousand violent shocks
Our purse is heir to—'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished. No buy—no eat—
No eat, and then one long dream—aye, there's the rub;
For in that foodless sleep what dreams may come,
When we have shuffled off this mortal coil,
Must give us pause: There's the respect
That makes calamity of so long life:
For who would bear the whips and scorns of time,
The speculator's wrong, the middleman's contumely,
The pangs of despised protest, the law's delay,
The inefficiency of office, and the spurns
That patient hunger from the unworthy takes,
When he himself might his quietus make
With a bare bodkin? Who would fardels bear
And grunt under a free-lunchless life,
But that the dread of higher prices yet—
That undiscovered limit, from whose bourne
No salary check returns—puzzles the will
And makes us rather bear those ills we have
Than fly to others that we know not of,
Thus appetite makes cowards of us all.

In Modern Language

A girl was required to write a brief sketch of Queen Elizabeth. Her paper contained this sentence:

"Elizabth was so dishonest that she stole her soldier's food."

The teacher was puzzled, and called the girl.

"Where did you get that notion?"

"Why, that's what it says in the history."

The book was sent for, and the passage was found. It read:

"Elizabeth was so parsimonious that she even pinched her soldiers' rations."

Ellen rushed into her mistress's apartment and cried:

"Oh, well, it's her day out, is it not?" calmly rejoined the mistress.

If the Russians and Germans were running in precisely the opposite directions, relatively, we imagine the accounts in the Berlin papers would be substantially the same as they are now.

WE'LL WAIT.

Mary Pickford, the beautiful movie actress, said at a Bar Harbor tea:

"A girl can't dress in less than 90 minutes—and a 90-minute toilet is only an ordinary one at that. A real toilet which includes a hair waving, manicuring and massage, requires three hours.

"The less a girl puts on, the longer it takes her to do it. Girls never wore as little as they do today, and never was it necessary to be as careful and thorough about one's dressing.

"Some men grumble because a girl takes so long to dress, but I say to them:

"'Would you rather wait for an attractive girl, or have an unattractive girl wait for you?"

EDITOR'S MAIL

BRITISH SAILORS' RELIEF FUND.

Editor Review:—

In view of such a mighty task, it is not any wonder that the real significance of the Allied naval situation is not begun to be fully grasped by the public.

In the present war Britain's command of the Seven Seas is the outstanding achievement of mankind in world history.

It is the splendid result of modern scientific progress in the marshalling of all known devices for the conquest of time and distance.

It is a magnificent demonstration of what mankind has been able to accomplish in the eternal conflict with Nature.

Too few minds has been given the capacity of grasping the real greatness of this achievement. Due appreciation will only come by way of the perspective of history, in the pages of which it will stand out as a great milestone in the progress of mankind and a summation of ceaseless toil.

Who will dare to place a limit on what we owe to the British sailor. Rather let us uncover our heads and offer all the aid and comfort that we may to his widow and his orphaned babies.

Contributions to this Fund will be thankfully received at any Bank, and acknowledged through the press.

Editor Review:—

Ontario needs 10,000 men to assist the farmers to garner her harvest. This need has arisen within the past few days and is largely due to weather conditions.

It is unnecessary to tell you that the world needs every pound of food that we can produce and that no one dare suggest that Ontario's harvest must not be fully gathered. The Honorable W. J. Hanna, Food Controller for Canada, made this abundantly clear to a meeting of employers of labor last Thursday. Nothing that we have issued about the need of food in the Homeland and among our Allies is an exaggeration of the real condition.

The men needed to harvest the present crop must come from our cities, towns and villages and, in these, from the ranks of those now employed. No apology is necessary for asking men under the pressing circumstances of today to volunteer for the next few weeks for farm service. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Ontario Retail Merchants' Association, our Boards of Trade and similar bodies are behind the movement to secure these men.

Will you be kind enough to do whatever you can, through your editorial and news columns, to keep the people of your community fully informed as to the need and to call upon them in the strongest possible way to help in meeting it?

Steps were taken to ascertain the need very acurately before this call was made, and we have the assurance of the District Representatives of the Department of Agriculture that our estimate, that 10,000 men are needed, is not too high.

The Ontario Government will pay the railroad fare, both ways, for men who volunteer for farm service, and the present employers of these men are being asked to make up to the men the difference in the wages which they may receive from the farmer and those which they are now getting.

It is hardly necessary to point out that if there is a world shortage of food, the men who are fighting for us cannot be allowed to go hungry. The shortage will be felt right at home, in this land of plenty, if export facilities can be provided to take the food overseas.

In the face of these conditions, no condemnation too strong can be placed upon those at home who refuse to seriously face the need and do their best to meet it.

Yours faithfully,
ALBERT H. ABBOTT,
Secretary.

BRAINS VERSUS DRESS

Educated Women Should Dress Well, Even On Little

Dr. Elizabeth S. Chesser writes: It requires brains to dress well on little. It means the exercise of caution and judgment to avoid fashion's pitfalls in the shape of passing atrocities, to chose what is at once suitable, becoming and according to the mode. There was a time when English women were popularly supposed to be devoid of taste in the adornment of their own persons. They were compared unfavorably with French women and Americans.

Arrayed in severe tailor-mades, flat of feet and broad of waist, they were to be met careering over the country intent upon improving their minds. It is an excellent thing for women to improve their minds if they attend to their coiffures and clothes into the bargain. Unfortunately, three women out of four seem incapable of paying equal attention to the inside and the outside of their heads at the same time.

But we are improving in this respect also. Women—even intellectual women—are not nearly so badly dressed as they were years ago. We are beginning to realize that a nice taste in science or philosophy is quite compatible with elegance—that it is possible to love books and chiffons at one and the same time. The wonder is, that with so many women who have to dress on a small allowance, there are so few who can even turn out a blouse with their own hands. Many women train as typists and teachers and inspectors, but few make any effort to qualify themselves to be wives of poor men. A knowledge of dressmaking and cooking are the main essentials. The woman who knows how to make her frocks can indulge in her love of chiffons with an easy conscience.

WHEN "BOY IN BLUE" WON FAME FOR CANADA

Palmy Days of Sculling Game—Edward Hanlan as "Best Ever"—His Grand Record

Says James C. Rice, the famous Columbia coach: "There has arisen a discussion over the relative merits of Charlie Courtney and Ned Hanlan as scullers. I could not feel that I had done justice either to Hanlan, Courtney, or myself unless I unqualifiedly upheld Ned Hanlan of Toronto as the greatest sculler that ever sat in a boat. Regardless of size or weight, boat or water, in his prime the "Boy in Blue" from Canada gladly rowed and unfailingly defeated all those who challenged his right to supremacy. I know that Charlie Courtney himself has said that was so in years past.

It is not alone his record of victories from 1876 to 1884 that puts him in the forefront of the scullers of the world, but it was the way that he won them, and the mastery with which he handled a shell that stamped him, in my opinion, as without a peer. He was not the best boatbuilder in the world by any means. He might not have been the most expert rigger in the world, although I believe that his success is testimony to the soundness of his theories along these lines. There was one thing that he could do, however, and that was to pull a boat through the water faster than any other man in the world, and he did that with such a degree of success that his time records in many events have never been equalled to this day. As a coach he may have had his superiors, as an oarsman he had none.

Without doubt Courtney was a master sculler, and his deeds as a coach at Cornell are so well known and so universally appreciated that I do not need to touch upon them. But the great coach of Cornell, who never in his life offered an alibi for a losing crew, would certainly support me in saying that "Hanlan of the Island" was the best sculler that we ever laid eyes on, and between us we have seen the best that any nation could produce.

LUNENBURG'S NOTABLES

For some fifty years Lunenburg County, N.S., was seldom without a shipbuilder in public life. Capt. Coffin, of Shelburne, might be mentioned in this connection. He sailed his own ships before he became receiver-general in the Mackenzie ministry. The Killams of two or three generations; the Lovitts and Bakers and J. R. Binney, of Yarmouth, were among the noted and opulent shipbuilders and owners, and represented the county either in the Legislature, in Parliament or in the Senate. Hon. Colin Campbell, of Digby; Mr. Pickup, of Annapolis; Mr. Jones, of Yarmouth, belong in this class. In Kings County, Nova Scotia, the Woodworths; and in Hants County, J. B. North, Senator Churchill, the Bennett Smith family, the O'Briens, of Noel, and the Putnams and Arthur Cochran, of Maitland, may be counted among the public men who were shipbuilders. This partial list might be carried back for two or three generations.

GIRL OF THE NEW TYPE

Narrow Ideals and Interests Going—A Western Inspiration

Ada Patterson says: A woman who visits colleges and lectures to girls told me about the new type of girl. "She was a western girl, of course," said the lecturer. "Everything big and new and fine seems to come from that quarter. She strode into my office. Strode is the word. She was one of the biggest, newest, finest things I ever saw. She seemed all white teeth and glowing eyes and shining hair and long, straight limbs. It was advice hour after the lecture and she had come to me for advice. 'I came to ask you how I can be of use in the world,' she said.

"Just let the world look at you and admire your young strength and draw inspiration from it," the lecturer was stirred to answer, but didn't. Middle aged and prudent, she moved with caution. "And when I had finished my talk with the girl I found that she had done about the life work of one woman, and was ready to undertake another," she said.

The girl had helped her widowed mother to bring up the younger children. She had taken a claim and put out the crops and built the house with her own hands. She had helped put her brother through college. Things were going well at home. The chance had come, or she had made it, to go to college. The first year that question had risen in her heart and mind and reached her lips. "How can I be of use to the world!" Not, "How can I advance myself!" Not "Where can I turn to make the most money!" Not "How can I have a good time the rest of my life!" Not, "How can I hook a husband!" But "How can I be of use in the world!"

That girl, and the girls like her, are heralds of a new age. The age of the broadening souls and quickening brains and deepening hearts, of women. The [illegible] of the old fashioned mother is departing. To the sweet-faced, self sacrificing, a little lower than the angels mother, our greetings and reverence and adieus. She is going. There will follow her a more spirited type, one of broader, wider vision and larger sympathies.

GARDENS FOR BEAUTY

"Back to the Soil," is Health-giving Advice

Everyone knows the healing qualities of the soil. The sting of the bee and many other insects will be drawn out in less time by a mud plaster than by any of our latest known antiseptics. All the animals instinctively turn to the soil to cure their ills. Dogs bury themselves in it to heal skin trouble and rid themselves of vermin by soil baths. Handling soil is good for anyone, and women are taking more and more to the occupations that mean a living from the soil. Cultivating flowers and small fruits are foremost among the things women are undertaking. Several colleges to teach women floriculture have come into existence in the last six years, because of this.

Flowers and children are always associated, and the cultivation of either should be a woman's forte. Beside the health-giving properties of the handling of soil, is the interest created in planting the seed and watching its unfoldment. It is quieting, also, to the nerves to attend plants—they are always responding to your care and giving such a return on the labor and time expended that the pleasure is only known by those who love them and work for them.

Any women who is run down, grown morose and has lost her grip, will find a new world open for her by cultivating plants. The daily revelation, that is changing from start to ending of each season, will keep her from mental depression, and the life with the beautiful will reflect itself from her countenance. It is a beauty tonic—this cultivation of flowers. It will pay you a hundred fold in beauty and health.

HOW TO MAKE STARCH

This is the way to make plain boiled starch: Allow two tablespoonsful of starch to a gallon of water. Wet the starch with cold water until it is of the consistency of cream. Then pour over it the water, which is bubbling. Stir constantly until smooth and boil for five minutes. Add an inch of candle—to a gallon—or a tablespoonful of lard to give a very smooth starch. This is the foundation for all starching, excepting that done with uncooked starch. If a very stiff starch is desired a tablespoonful of gum arabic water to a quart of starch gives good results. To prepare gum arabic water pour two cups of boiling water over a quarter of a pound of gum arabic. When the gum is dissolved, strain the [illegible] into a bottle, cork and keep on hand for use in the laundry.

POPULATION PERILS

Hundred Thousand Babies Die Every Year in England

In the death rate, as in everything else, war is establishing its own disastrous record. Not only in the trenches are the lives of Britain's best sons being paid away. It has been nobly stated that the men at the front are fighting for the lives and liberties of our children. Yet of those very children, whose happiness depends upon the victory of right over might, scores of thousands are perishing. And the pity of it is that at least half of these lives, with the exercise of a little care, could easily be saved!

Few are aware of the fact that a baby dies every five minutes throughout the year! Every year over 100,000 babies perish, and at least 50,000 of these could easily be saved. An entire army corps of England's future generation wiped out through carelessness and neglect!

Do Not Live

Here are some more tragic facts. Of every 1,000 children born in this country, no fewer than 250 die either at birth or during the first year of life. Eleven die during the first twenty-two hours; twenty-two die in the first seven days, whilst thirty-six are wrested from their mothers at the tender age of one month.

Fewer babies are being born now than ever before in the history of our country. Whilst one baby is getting help nine others are being neglected. What does this mean? Simply this. That decrease in population means decrease in power!

It is a deplorable fact that there are only about 600 health visitors to visit 70,000 babies. Only one visitor for every 1,000 babies or so! How can we expect to counteract this evil? There should be at least 1,800 health visitors continually at their work endeavouring to alleviate the lot of the family who cannot afford the facilities offered to their wealthier and more fortunate fellow-beings.

The professional and educated classes lose under fifty babies in every 1,000. On the other hand, the unskilled labor and artisan classes lose over 150 per 1,000. This means that the poorer classes lose three babies to every one baby lost by the professional classes. "Why should this be?" the reader will say; "there is something wrong here." Of course there is something wrong!

Evils of the Slums

In Hampstead the infant death rate per 1,000 is seventy-four, in Shoreditch 148. You congratulate yourself that you do not live in Shoreditch. But have a thought for those who do. Bad housing conditions, ignorance, dirt, and vitiated air, all tend to cause heavy infant mortality. In many of the houses in Shoreditch five people live in one room. It is their bedroom, dining-room, drawing-room, kitchen, scullery, and outhouse. This is the reason why so many children grow up maimed and stunted. It is the object of National Baby Week to combat all these evils; the evils of drink, of poverty, of bad sanitation, but, above all, the evil of ignorance which is the chief of all these contributory causes.

Grandmother at Thirty-Four

Who is the youngest grandmother in the United Kingdom? A correspondent, "Grannie," certainly made a good bid for the record, for she says: "I was married at sixteen; a year later I was mother of a daughter, who married at the same age as myself, and at seventeen has just given birth to a son. Thus, at thirty-four, I am in the proud position of being able to nurse my grandchild. And yet, so youthful am I, that nobody will believe I am more than in the early twenties. In fact, I am usually taken for my daughter's sister!"

An eminent French statistician computed that during the course of an ordinary life the average man will eat seven four-horse wagon-loads more food than is good for him.

Floating Island

Scald two cups of milk in a double boiler. Stir into it two eggs into which half a cup of sugar has been beaten. Stir until it forms a creamy coating in the spoon. Flavor with vanilla. Strain into a serving dish and garnish with a meringue. Dot with jelly just before serving.

Test For Boiled Eggs

When boiled and unboiled eggs get mixed, spin them, and the boiled ones will spin around quite fast, while those which have not been cooked will hardly spin around once.

When peeling onions ho'd a cork between the teeth and the eyes will not become affected.

Health and Beauty Hints

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

Vera B.: Your skin will grow soft, clear and smooth after a few applications of a plain almozoin jelly-cream, made at home as follows: Put 4 tablespoonfuls glycerine into ½-pint water, and in this dissolve 1 ounce almozoin (which you can buy at your druggist's). Apply a thick coat of this to the skin before retiring, then wash off in the morning and use more of the jelly-cream for massaging. This gradually dispels the wrinkles and lines and banishes pimples, blackheads and the "muddy," oily look. The almozoin jelly-cream is greaseless and will not grow hair.

Mrs. A. T.: You may not require glasses. Get from your druggist one ounce crystos and dissolve in 1 pint water. Then put a few drops in the offending eye several times a day until inflammation and soreness have vanished. This crystos eye tonic is especially good for granulated eyelids, and using it strengthens the eyes and gives them a youthful sparkle.

Adeline: The reason for that dryness of hair after your shampoo is scalp's tissues and makes them over-because that kind of soap irritates the sensitive. Canthrox will correct this, for it is a tonic as well as cleanser and is so stimulating to the blood vessels and scalp tissues that the danger is entirely eliminated. To prepare your shampoo, dissolve a teaspoonful of Canthrox in a cup of hot water, then pour it slowly on the head as you rub briskly. This dissolves every trace of dust, dandruff and excess oil, and after rinsing the hair will dry quickly and evenly.

Lucy G.: Loss of weight is a serious matter and calls for prompt action. Get from your druggist 1 ounce kardene and put it, together with ½-cupful sugar, into ½-pint alcohol; then add hot water to make a full quart. Take a tablespoonful before each meal. This simple home remedy increases your appetite and gently cleanses the system of impurities, restores a healthy condition to the vital organs. When this is done your weight will be normal and the glow of health will be upon your cheeks.

Mrs. A. R. J.: I make a good lotion that is very helpful to my skin by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax in ½-pint witch hazel or hot water, to which is added 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine, which will soon correct that oily, sallow, "wornout" appearance of your complexion. This simple lotion is soothing and healing and imparts a velvety smoothness and natural loveliness to the complexion, not possible with powder and rouge. You will like the spurmax lotion because it is easily applied and cannot be detected when on.

Lucille: I always use a plain quinzoin hair tonic, made at home by pouring 1 ounce quinzoin into ½-pint water. Rub a little well into the scalp twice a week and you will soon rid the scalp of dandruff and restore the hair roots to health. The regular use of quinzoin tonic will restore the former gloss and even color to the hair and make it soft, long and fluffy.

Mrs. M. N. T.: Your excess weight can be easily and quickly reduced by taking this parnotis treatment, made at home as follows: Put 4 ounces parnotis (which you can get at your drug store), in 1½ pints hot water and strain when cool. Take a tablespoonful before meals until weight is where you want it. No harm results from the use of the parnotis treatment, and the flesh is left solid and the skin soft and smooth.

WOMEN GOOD ADVISERS

Money Matters Should Not Be Hidden From Wives

In most cases, perhaps, it would be as well if the husband had no secrets from his wife with regard to money matters. There are exceptions, of course, but these are the wives notoriously extravagant, who would fritter away on nothing any income—no matter how large. The vast majority, however, are entitled, for more reasons than one, to share with the husband all knowledge relating to income and expenditure. To look at it from the point of view of the housewife—the good, careful woman, who may be relied upon to get the best value for money and never to waste a penny. How can she possibly draw the line between parsimony and extravagance if she has no idea of what her husband's means are? It is due to her, not merely for her share of work in and toward the home, but because, doubtless, she, in a large measure, is responsible for her husband's business success, that such secrets should not be hid from her. On this latter score, there are, no doubt, many divided opinions; but, in the majority of cases, the man who unburdens himself of all business troubles and business ambitions has every reason in the long run to be thankful for having done so.

For A Severe Burn

In case of a severe burn exclude the air from the burned part with a thin past made with water and cooking soda, starch, or flour. Smear on a cloth and cover the injured surface. If these are not at hand, use vaseline, lard, cream, or any grease. In using grease use the cleanest possible. Do not use old grease or dirty grease. If time will permit, heat the grease and then cool it before using it.

Grape Juice Souffle

For this souffle add two tablespoonsful of softened gelatine to two cupsful of water and heat until gelatine is dissolved. Strain and cool, when it begins to stiffen beat in the stiff whites of four eggs and fold in a cupful of whipped cream. Pour into a mold and chill. Serve with cream.

Water For Auto Engines

When the water is kept in motion by thermo-syphon action it is quite important that the radiator be kept reasonably full in order to aid in forcing the water upward. It is good practice to add a little water frequently instead of waiting for the automobile engine to knock for water, especially in summer. With cars using the igniter system care should be taken that the points are cleared frequently. If this is not done the motor will refuse to throttle down and pull evenly.

FINGERS OR FORKS?

The Right Way to Eat Fruit Is a Worry

"Fingers were made before forks." So said Jill to herself when she was in doubt about a certain point of table etiquette, and straightway used her fingers. Somebody had passed a dish of fruit her way when she was out at a supper party, and the thought came—should she use her fingers or her fruit fork to take the apple she wanted from the dessert dish?

Jill used her fingers and was right in doing so, for, unless there is a spoon and fork provided in the dish fingers come before forks. In any case, they can be used for large fruit, such as apples, oranges and bananas. When grapes are offered there should be silver scissors provided for cutting their stalks, otherwise they must be pulled apart.

Now as to the manner of eating fruit. People usually prefer to use the silver knife and fork, when these are provided, but many a Jack and Jill have wondered whether to peel the fruit before cutting it into halves and quarters or to quarter first and then peel the sections. The latter is the usual method, simply because it is easier and more convenient, but both ways are correct.

Suppose we are eating an apple or a pear; we halve and then quarter the fruit, then take a portion on our fruit fork and peel it with the knife, cutting out the core last of all. Bananas are eaten in the following way: cut off one end with the fruit knife, then peel; cut again when the other end is reached and eat the fruit with the silver knife and fork.

But with dry fruits plenty of latitude is allowed. We really please ourselves as to whether we munch an apple or eat it with knife and fork, and there is no end to the manner in which we may eat an orange. Generally speaking, the least messy way is to be preferred. It is correct to cut this fruit into halves and quarters; it is also correct to cut the peel only into quarters, so that it comes off in four parts and leaves the orange to be divided into sections and eaten with the fingers.

COUNCIL'S ROUTINE, AS DISPOSED OF LAST NIGHT

Long List of Communications Received and Dealt With by City Fathers--City Not Liable for Blasting Accidents.

The City Council met last night, and it was seen that the holiday season was effecting the aldermen, as there were a few absentees. However, the business was put through in good time, and with little, if any, argument.

The communications received and dealt with are here noted:

From the city treasurer giving a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the different departments and the appropriation.—This was sent on to the Finance Committee.

From the acting provincial secretary enclosing a copy of the order in council approving of the city's bylaw regarding a municipal coal yard. This was filed.

From Chief Howard reporting the accident whereby the premises of Mr. Schwartz were damaged by the bursting of the hose. This was laid over.

From the Fidelity and Casualty Co., reporting on the inspection of the city boiler and requesting certain repairs. The Property Committee were instructed to attend to the trouble.

From the residents of a section of East City asking for a sidewalk from Concession to Ross streets. This was sent on to the Board of Works.

From the Union of Canadian Municipalities asking that the city be represented at their convention, which is to be held in London on Aug. 27th.— Passed up, as the council does not favor attending conventions this year.

From the Toronto General Hospital regarding Blanche Deline. This matter had already been attended to by the Finance Committee.

From B. F. Ackerman Co., regarding the new factory. This had been dealt with by the Manufacturers' Committee.

From Plumbing Inspector Thompson, asking an increase of salary equal to $10,00 per month. This was referred to the Property Committee.

From O'Connel and Corkery, notifying city that they were claiming damages on behalf of Mr. Stinson for an accident to his horse on July 22nd.—This was sent to the Legal Committee.

From the City of Deseronto, stating that the council of that place had approved of the local resolution regarding further grants from the Government to the C.N.R. and G.T.R. Received.

From the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, acknowledging receipt of the council's communication regarding the jitney service to East City in connection with the street railway. Their engineering department were looking into the subject.—This will be kept alive by the Railway Committee.

From J. J. Turner and Sons in regard to the suggestion made to advertise the city by means of a bulletin board on the market building.—This was left to the Manufacturers Committee.

From Superintendent McMillan, of the G.T.R., stating that their trains did not run through the city at a high rate of speed, as this was impossible owing to the semaphore system at all entrances. The noise caused by engines in the yard had been ordered abated as much as possible. He wanted to be given the number of the offending engine in future.—Referred to the Railway Committee.

From Police Magistrate Dumble regarding the committment of certain children to the Children's Shelter.—Received.

From E. L. Goodwill on behalf of the Dickson Co., notifying the council that they would claim damages from their city if their tenants at 14 Murray Street were injured by the blasting at the Quaker Oats Co. plant.—The city solicitor had already advised that the city is not liable.

Acting-Mayor Duncan informed the aldermen that he had repaired several broken windows by the shock, as instructed by the Leonard Construction Co.

From the town of Cobourg regarding its approval of the resolution asking the Government to refuse further grants to railways.

From Malone, Malone and Long, regarding certain city debentures.—This was sent to the Finance Committee.

From the Board of Health recommending the building of sewers on certain streets of the city.—Board of Works will deal with these.

From W. E. Perdue, asking for a sidewalk on the north side of Sutherland Street.—This was referred to the city engineer.

From the Dominion Railway Board, approving of the application of the C.P.R. for a siding across Hunter Street to the Quaker Oats Co.

PRAYER CAUSES CHURCH SCENE

PASTOR INTERCEDED FOR ALLIES; PACIFISTS OBJECTED.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—Pacifists are stirring up controversy in the Ravenswood Methodist Epsicopal church. Their belligerency is said to be due to the preaching of Americanism by the pastor, the Rev. Kirk W. Robbins, of Scotch descent, and the prayers that he utters in his church services in behalf of the armies of the United States and its allies.

The "storm" of disapproval on the part of a few members of the congregation broke last Sunday morning at the usual church service and threatened, it is said, to throw the hour of worship into disorder. The pastor is reported to have stated that he would give up his pro-American attitude.

The order of worship last Sunday had gone along serenely as usual, according to a member of the congregation until the pastoral prayer. In it Dr. Robbins beseeched Providence fervently in behalf of the allied armies. Scarcely had he pronounced the "Amen" when a pacifist member in the centre of the congregation leaped to his feet excitedly.

"We've had enough of this business of praying for the armies," he shouted. "God Almighty is a God of peace. This is man's war, and we don't want to drag God into it. I don't want ever to hear another word from that pulpit about the war."

Dr. Robbins' face turned white and his hands trembled with anger.

"I'll preach and pray for America as long as I stand here," he said. "And before I quit I'll resign."

For five or ten minutes the debate continued, other members rising to their feet in the confusion. Finally the first "belligerent" pacifist marched out of the church, several other members following him. Then the service proceeded.

COST OF GAS, TOO IS FORCED UP

GOES TO $1.40 FOR DOMESTIC AND $1.30 FOR COMMERCIAL USE.

The Hydro Electric Power Commission notified the City through the Council last night that on and after August 1st the price of gas would be as follows:

For domestic use per 1000 fet...$1.40
For commercial use per 1000 feet 1.30

It was pointed out that the increased cost of coal and other material necessitated the higher price.

Gave up His Trade After Forty Years

"Tanlac Beats Anything I Have Ever Taken," Says Brown —Gained Twelve Pounds.

"There's bound to be something unusual about Tanlac to make a man my age gain twelve pounds and feel like a young man again," said C. H. Brown, a few days ago. Mr. Brown has been a resident of Hamilton for forty-seven years and lives at 248 Main street. For forty years of this time he was a glass blower, and according to his statement, he was forced on account of ill health, to resign his position with the Dominion Glass Company, where he had been employed for twenty years.

"For four or five years," he continued, "I had suffered with rheumatism and was generally run-down in health. My appetite was so poor I seldom wanted anything to eat and I just kept falling off in weight. I was so dizzy when I tried to work I would almost fall and my legs pained me so bad I couldn't stand up long at a time. I was so nervous and miserable I could hardly sleep, and actually I never had a good night's rest in four years until Tanlac straightened me out. No other medicine ever seemed to do me any good and I got in such a bad fix I had to give up the work I had been doing for forty years and try to find relief.

"I had lost faith in all medicines because I had been disappointed so many times, but when I read how Tanlac was helping so many people here I decided to try it, and now I can truthfully say it is all that others claim for it. When I first started on it I weighed only one hundred and thirty-three pounds, I now weigh one hundred and forty-five—have actually gained twelve pounds—and that certainly seems remarkable for a man sixty-nine years of age. I really feel almost as good as I did when I was thirty and believe I could stand regular work again. All the pain has gone out of my legs and I can stand on my feet all day and everybody is telling me how much better I look. I have been taking the Tanlac tablets, too, and find them great for constipation. All my nerves, dizzy feelings are gone. I sleep good every night for the first time in four years, and get up in the mornings without that tired, no account feeling I had so long. And eat, why, I can eat just anything I want and as much as I please without the slightest trouble afterwards. Tanlac beats anything I have ever taken. I have told numbers of people what it is that has brought me out so and several of my friends are now taking it on my recommendation.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

Matters Cleared off Civic Docket

ALDERMEN DISPOSE OF A NUMBER OF QUESTIONS OF LONG STANDING.

The City Council last night passed on several matters that have been hanging fire for some time.

The bylaw giving Harry Evans, the street commissioner, an increase of $100 was passed.

Ald. Smith had a motion passed authorizing the preparing of a bylaw to repeal the bylaw relating to a fixed charge for sewer building and making the property owners pay for the sewers according to cost.

Ald. Dobbin wanted the light east of Chambers street on Hunter street left where it is. Some time ago it had been ordered moved nearer to the corner of Chambers street. This was left over.

City Engineer Parsons will look into the building of a sidewalk on Smith street between Reid and Downie streets.

Ald. Langford complained regarding the dusty condition of Water St. north since the heavy gravel trucks were drawing gravel from Kendry's and Hilliard's. The street will be oiled in a few days.

Mr. Garvey, 299 Murray street, was given permission to dig a drain under the supervision of the city engineer.

Ald. Saunders drew the attention of the engineer to the condition of the sidewalk at 151 Park Place.

Ald. Smith wanted the light at Reid and Downie streets lowered and pointed northwest. Ald. Dobbin will look into this.

CITY READY FOR COAL BUSINESS

PRICE OF FUEL TO CONSUMER MUST NOT EXCEED $10 A TON.

Peterborough's Municipal Coal Yard is now ready to do business just as soon as a supply of coal arrives and this matter is in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The bylaw passed its third reading last night and authority was given to Ald. Dobbin's committee to purchase whatever coal was necessary as long as it could be delivered in the city for less than $10.00 per ton.

WILL VOTE SEPT. 6

On Question Of Fixed Assessment For Ackerman Co.

The vote to fix the assessment of the Ackerman Co., will be held on September 6th, as the necessary bylaw passed the council last night.

The present assessment of the company is $23,790, and they propose to start a shoe factory employing 30 extra hands, and it is more than likely that double the number will be employed after the factory gets under way.

GETS $100 FOR HIS HORSE.

Contractor McMillan to Recieve Compensation For Loss.

Last winter Mr. McMillan, one of the snow plowing contractors, lost a valuable horse by its being elotrocuted on Weller street. The Utilities Commission denied responsibility for the accident and an appeal was made to the council.

It has been up several times and most of the aldermen were of the opinion that something should be done for the contractor.

Last night it was decided on a motion of Ald. Smith and Worth that Mr. McMillan be given $100 without prejudice in full settlement of his loss.

SETTLE WITH MR. SWARTZ.

Whose Household Effects Were Injured When Hose Burst.

A. Swartz will be offered without prejudice $47.28 in settlement of the damage caused by the bursting of the hose while the firemen were flushing George street. This was decided on by the Council last night.

Some of the aldermen questioned whether the city was really liable but it was thought only fair to recompense Mr. Swartz for his loss. Mr. A. W. Cressman estimated the damage for the city.

REGICIDES PAY PENALTY AFTER FIFTEEN YEARS

Men Who Assassinated Serbian King and Queen Are at Last Put to Death---Others Are Under Sentence.

Corfu, Greece, Aug. 7.—Fate has at last fallen on the band of military regicides which some fifteen years ago broke into the royal palace at Belgrade at night and assassinated King Alexander and the Serbian Queen Draga. Three high officers recently have been shot after military court-marshal. Three more are awaiting death sentence, seven officers, including a general have received life sentences, and some thirty officers have received sentences of one to five years.

While the outside world was shocked, the band of assassins enjoyed at home a certain immunity, and even glory for having rid the country of a dissolute ruler and his plebian gypsy queen. The name of Druga had been well known in the concert halls of Emoin before she had the luck to win a king.

Feels Incubus of Clique

King Peter felt the incubus of this murder clique through the early years of his reign. The return of his family dynasty to power and his kingship after years of waiting in exile were dependent to some extent on the work of this army clique. While condemning their action the king tolerated them.

In time the murder clique became so powerful in the army councils that all officers who disapproved the crime was retired from active service and placed in the reserve. This went on for years with the murder clique occupying the chief commands and all others excluded from service or advancement.

Prince Becomes The Regent

But all this changed about a year ago when the vigorous young prince, Alexander, became regent owing to the age of King Peter and his infirmity from his terrible exposure in the exodus before the German-Bulgarian invasion of Serbia. One of Alexander's first acts was to restore to active service the great number of officers retired and disqualified by the murder clique.

The clique revived their watch watchword of the former murder, "Union or death." This time their designs were aimed at the prince regent and a plot to assassigate him was to have been carried out on Aug. 23 of last year. The plot was discovered and wholesale arrests followed of all of those officers who had so long enjoyed immunity and power.

The Legislature at its last session passed a bill authorizing the municipalities to tax the property of the Hydro Electric Powre Commission for the land value of the property occupied only.

At the meeting of the City Council last night the Tax Collector was instructed to collect taxes from the commission amounting to $633.84, being on a valuation of the lands of the commission by the assessor amounting to $24,100.

Ald. Smith, who introduced the motion, explained that a representative of the commission had gone over the figures with Mr. Henry and that they were satisfactory.

SERIOUS OFFENCE NOW TO PERMIT RUBBISH TO ACCUMULATE.

The City Council last night passed a bylaw which now makes it a very serious offence for anyone to allow an accumulation of boxes, papers, shavings or any inflamable material or rubbish to be on his premises anywhere in the city limits.

There have been a great many complaints regarding offences of this kind and the Police and Fire Department will take action under the "Safety first" idea.

Are Tried By Court Martial

More than forty high officers were gathered in the net. Their trial by military court-martial has been proceeding for months. Those condemned to death include Cols. Dimitrivitch, Milanovitch, Touszovitch, Lazitch, Lieut.-Col. Vesnitch and Commander Bulovitch. Gen. Popvitch heads the list of those condemned to life imprisonment. The others are colonels and captains who have been high in power until now. In the list are most of the band who carried out the murder of Alexander and Queen Draga.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE REGATTA

VAST CROWDS EXPECTED AT BIG ANNUAL EVENT NEXT MONDAY.

The big event on the civic holiday next Monday will be the annual regetta held off Juniper Island by the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association. This year there is a much larger program of sports and the yearly function will be more entertaining and interesting than ever.

As usual the Stoney Lake Navigation Company is making preparations to take care of the vast crowd that always goes from this city to witness the regetta. Arrangements this year will be as complete as ever and that leaves nothing more to be said. The steamer Stoney Lake will leave for Juniper Island at 8 o'clock in the morning and the steamer Empress and Manita will ply between Lakefield and the scene of the regetta all day, meeting every Grand Trunk train at the former place.

CITY ASKED

ed out, nor must our allies at the front be left without the food necessary to carry on the fight.

All eyes in Europe are turned expectantly to Canada to help relieve the food shortage. The crop in the West is a poor one. Ontario's crop is the largest ever, but owing to weather conditions, crops which would ordinarily have followed one another in sequence will all mature at the same time. Farmers cannot do the impossible. They will work from dawn to dark, and their women folk will do the same, but despite their best efforts, a considerable part of the crop will go to waste unless help in large quantities is immediately forthcoming.

In this emergency the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has been applied to for help; in fact, the authorities say we are the one organization that can now save the situation. On behalf of the association we have refused to assume a responsibility which properly belongs elsewhere, but we have undertaken to do our very best under the critical circumstances facing Canada and the Empire. Nor will it help matters any to say that if the farmers offer sufficiently high wages they can obtain all the help they want. The fact of the matter is they are being swept off their feet by the extraordinary conditions, and nothing but quick and thorough organization will get them anywhere. The crop, every bit of it, must be saved at any cost.

Yours faithfully,
G. M. Murray.

Fares Paid.

Mr. Matthews is out of the city and so cannot attend tonight's meeting, but Mr. Breyfogle and Ald. Worth will be present, and a good attendance is earnestly requested.

The fares of men who volunteer for farm work will be paid. The banks of the city will be asked to become recruiting offices for farm helpers and to record the names of those who volunteer.

CANADIAN SOLDIER'S LETTER

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets have kept him Fit through Two Wars.

Sapper A. Hartley of the A Company, Canadian Engineers, whose home address is 906 Trafalgar St., London, Ont., is one of many who hav written in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. He says: "As a constant user of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, I would like to add my testimony to their value. I used them when I was in the South African War and, finding the benefit of them there, have taken them since whenever I felt rundown. I always recommend them, for I know that they do all that is claimed for them. In my opinion they are the best tonic anyone can take for loss of appetite, poorness of the blood, or general weakness of the system."

A free sample of Dr. Cassell's Tablets will be sent to you on receipt of 5 cents for mailing and packing. Address: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., 10, McCaul St., Toronto.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets are the surest home remedy for Dyspepsia, Kidney Trouble, Sleeplessness, Anaemia, Nervous Ailments, Nerve Paralysis Palpitation, and Weakness in Children. Specially valuable for nursing mothers and during the critical periods of life. Sold by druggists and storekeepers throughout Canada. Prices: One tube, 50 cents; six tubes for the price of five. Beware of imitations said to contain hypophosphites. The composition of Dr. Cassell's Tablets is known only to the proprietors, and no imitation can ever be the same.

BAN ON JOY RIDING IN SWEDEN AND RESTRICTION ON USE OF FUEL

Only Two Rooms in Every House in Denmark to be Heated Next Winter.

Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 7.—Pleasure motoring and motorboat cruising in Sweden is virtually stopped by the drastic regulations that went into effect recently. Cards are issued permiting only such motor driving as is necessary. Already there are bread, sugar, and coffee cards, while spirit ration books and milk cards will soon be issued.

The automobile and motor boat restrictions will bring about a great change in Stockholm and especially on the waters in its vicinity, where boating has been the chief pastime on all holidays. All night motoring has been stopped and only public vehicles which serve a few incoming long distance trains are permitted on the streets after 9 p.m. There are only 106 public automobiles in Sweden's capital. It is believed that horse vehicles will not reappear.

Night motoring has already been stopped in Copenhagen, Denmark, and those motoring by day are subject to many restrictions, including the necessity of using adulterated gosoline, the odor from which is abominable. No motoring is per-permitted on Sundays.

Fuel and lighting problems in Scandinavia are becoming acute. In the city 2,000 apartment houses are without electricity. Electrical fittings are scarce and costly. Copenhagen has limited every family or boarder to twenty hectoliters (five and a half bushels) of coal for the coming winter in case Germany does not permit extensive imports of coal from England. Many families bought coal in the spring at low prices, but the state has seized all bought since February and the supply will be pooled for the common good.

Copenhagen families next winter will be permitted to heat only two rooms in each house. In the kitchens, where gas is used, gas cannot be burned during certain hours under penalty of its being shut off entirely for five months. In Sweden there is a kerosene famine, and no supply is in sight for private consumers.

CAN YOUR EGGS!

When They Are Cheap Preserve Them In Water Glass.

EXPERTS TELL US HOW TO.

Instead of Relying on Wartime Prices and Cold Storage, Be Ambitious and Hoard Your Eggs In a Big Crock Down In Your Cellar.

[Prepared by the New York State College of Agriculture.]

Eggs should be preserved during March, April, May and June, when the production is greatest and the price is lowest. Eggs preserved in water glass can be successfully kept for as long a time as one year. They are practically as good as fresh eggs for all cooking purposes. The commercial water glass solution may be obtained from any drug store. Water glass in the form of a powder is now on the market. It can be dissolved in a definite quantity of water, as stated in the directions on the package, and for this reason is more reliable than the store kind.

If the commercial water glass solution is to be used mix one and one-half quarts with eighteen quarts of pure water; water that has been boiled is preferable. Stir the mixture until the ingredients are thoroughly mixed. A stone jar is the most suitable vessel for the mixture. Two eight gallon jars are sufficient for thirty dozen eggs, using the amount of solution just prescribed. After the water glass is thoroughly mixed pour it into the vessels to be used, being sure that the vessels are absolutely clean. Place the eggs in the water glass, see that those at the top are submerged under at least two inches of the liquid and cover the jars in order to prevent evaporation. Put the jars in a cool place where they will be undisturbed during the year.

Preserve only absolutely fresh eggs; stale eggs will not keep in any preservative. Have your preservative ready to receive the fresh eggs as you get them. If there is any doubt as to the freshness of the eggs candle them, or see whether they sink when placed in a dish of fresh water. If an egg sinks it is reasonably fresh.

Do not preserve dirty eggs or eggs that have been washed. Washed eggs will not keep because the protective gelatinous coating has been removed by the washing, and dirty eggs will become tainted in flavor.

Do not use the same liquid preservative more than a year.

Use spring eggs, they will keep better than summer or fall eggs.

Use infertile eggs rather than fertile eggs for preserving.

Rinse the eggs with water after removing them from the preservative.

Eggs that are in good condition when removed from the water glass solution will usually remain good for at least two weeks.

If it is desired to boil eggs preserved in water glass prick a small hole through the large end of the shell before placing them in the water. The pores of the shell have been sealed by the water glass solution and without the pinhole the expanding air within the shell would burst it.

His Stock in Trade.

The nervous little man next to the car window sized up the fat man who shared the seat with him and ventured the inquiry:

"How's business?"

"Can't complain," said the other laconically.

"What do you deal in?"

"Mothers-in-law, billygoats, slit skirts, the weather, tramps, stranded actors, candidates, politics and the like."

"Whattye tryin' to do?" snarled the nervous little man. "Tryin' to kid me?"

"Nope," the fat man grinned. "The things I have named in a large measure comprise my stock in trade. You see, my dear sir, I am a professional writer of jokes and anecdotes."—Youngstown Telegram.

Arranging a Demonstration.

"I suppose," said the candidate, "that I can depend on your support?"

"I dunno," replied Farmer Corntossel, in a low tone. "Mirandy an' the two girls are hangin' out o' the window, over the porch, tryin' to hear what we're talkin' about. I want to support you, but you'll make it easier for me if you'll sort o' get agitated as we walk toward the gate an' holler 'Votes for women!' a few times."—Washington

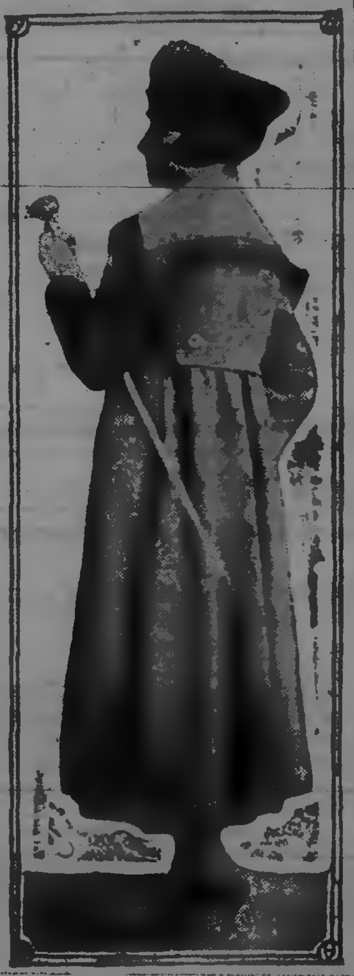
SLENDER MODEL.

Utility Coat For Cool Days All the Year.

Khaki colored broadcloth cut empire top, with a wide fitted belt and wide pointed collar, topped by a satin one on smaller dimensions, makes this handsome model for the vacation girl. The hat is a brown lisere straw.



EMPIRE LINES.

Stuffed Spareribs.

Two pounds of spare ribs, a pound prunes, a pound sour apples, one-quarter cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful cracker crumbs. Wash, pick over and soak prunes over night in enough cold water to cover.

In the morning stew gently for fifteen or twenty minutes or until soft when pierced with a wooden skewer or a needle kept for cooking purposes only. Chop apples finely, add sugar and cracker crumbs and mix thoroughly together.

Sew the spareribs together so that they form a pocket. Stuff with the mixture. Place the ribs in a pan, add prune juice and bake one hour.

Clips Are Useful.

Instead of basting long seams, use the little clips used by business men for holding papers. A few of them placed along a seam will hold the edges together while it is being stitched. Keep a box in the work basket for such uses.

She Paid Cash.

She was notorious for wanting credit and the druggist was on his guard.

"Oh, yes."

"And can I have it charged?"

"To 120 pounds pressure," he answered urbanely.

And then she fished up the necessary coin.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

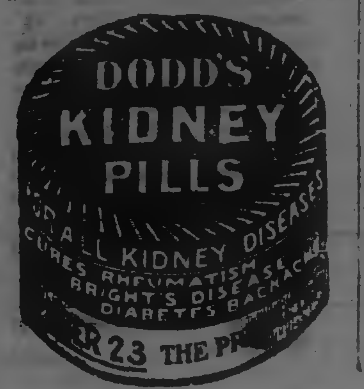
Men's pay for women who labor during the war is the demand of the women's great organizations throughout the country.



HORSEBACK RIDING

Women Should Learn Healthful Habit and Quit Side Saddle

The woman who cannot ride has missed one of the greatest joys in life, as well as one of the surest means to health and beauty. There is nothing quite equal to a canter along a river side, or a ride through the woods and over the fields. In an auto you can only go on the highways, scudding along with a trail of dust behind on the paths that man has brought to the highest state of civilization. On a horse, you can turn into the smallest side paths, or go where there's not a track to prove that people have preceded you. You can be close to Nature, ride through the woods, over the hills, breathing the pure air, enjoying the views and sensing the strange sympathetic companionship of the horse beneath you. Riding will make you sure of eye, well-controlled in muscle. The actual exercise, up and down in the saddle, is the best thing for stomach troubles and impure blood. Men with gout find their best cure in horseback riding.

The side-saddle was invented for Ann Boleyn, one of Henry the Eighth's wives, because one foot was shorter than the other and she was ashamed of it. Other court ladies, of course had to follow her fashion, and down to the country peasants the women all took to riding that way. In the days of prudery succeeding, when it was thought immodest even to think that a woman possessed two distinct legs they thought side-saddles had been invented because they were ladylike whereas they are apt to injure both horse's and rider's backs and are useless on a spirited animal. Get a sensible riding habit, breeches, boots, skirt and coat. And ride whenever you can.

WASHING AUTOMOBILES

Clean water plentifully used is the best thing for the finish of an automobile and the only rule to follow is to apply it with a soft sponge, being careful to rinse all dirt or grit out of the sponge after each application so as not to scratch the finish. Some garages where washing is done carefully find that when mud is caked on thickly, they get best results with slightly warm water, but it should not be hot, by any means. Hot water might act detrimentally on the varnish. In any case the mud should be well soaked so that it will drop off of its own accord. Never rub the sponge on the finish as it will inevitably leave scratches or dull places which cannot be eliminated. This is the big point which many garages overlook. They go at the sponging process as if it were a floor they were scrubbing instead of a highly polished surface. Naturally most of the washers are more interested in getting the job done than in taking care of the finish on somebody else's car. One or two careless treatments may not make themselves apparent to the owner, but before long the dulling procedure will make itself evident.

LIGHTNING IN HOUSES

Where the Most Dangerous Places in a House Are

The records show that when unprotected houses are struck by lightning people are injured or killed in almost every conceivable location in the house. It seems that there is no place in a house to which lightning will not penetrate, although many statements to the contrary have been made.

Some places in a house are undoubtedly more dangerous than others, however, among such being the vicinity of stoves, places between masses of metal on the exterior of the building, and metallic masses in the interior, whether earthed or not, and near chimneys.

An example of a place between metallic masses would be between a down spout and a steam or hot water radiator. Other dangerous places in a house during a thunderstorm are at telephones, or touching screen doors or other metallic bodies which connect with the exterior of the building.

THE ROOKIE

The ranks they are filling,
Battalions are drilling
For service over in France;
The sergeant is yelling,
The captain is telling
Us how to lie down and advance.
The boob to the left of me,
Who's twice the heft of me,
Doesn't know left from his right;
I've drilled and I've drilled,
But if I must be killed,
I want to go over and fight.

Tom Seaton was a great little grabber in his day, but now he's over-grabbed himself and he is out in the cold. He is the gink who jumped the Phillies in 1914 to sign with the Brookfeds $8,000 a year. And now he can't land a job.

Step up; you fans, and take a look at Johnny Brook, the new rookie who has enlisted with the Cardinals. Doesn't he look pretty good? He played fine ball with the Muskogee team of the Western Association, and his career with the big show looks promising.

Poor old Comiskey! Now he stands a chance of being soaked $10,000 because a foul ball hit a woman in the face. Those faces will get in the way sometimes, do what one will.

D'ye see that prancing nag coming down the road with that lop-sided driver? Sure enough, it's Hank Gowdy! After Hank left the Braves to enlist in the Ohio National Guard, he made such a hit in his regiment that he was promoted to a staff job, and now he rides a horse. Well, that's better than riding the poor umps.

Grouchy Gus says: "There is enough baseball material lying around loose these days, when so many leagues are busting, to enable some of the stars of the diamond to discern objects on the ground directly in front of them. Their line of vision is no longer blocked by their chests."

Another blow for the low-lying Robins! Poor old Zach Wheat will be laid up for several weeks to come! and oh, what a difference to Col. Ebbets?

Among the teams hardest hit by the draft are the Giants, who stand a chance to lose six of their best players. Some of them, being married, will claim exemption. More members of the team are affected by the great lottery held at Washington, but their homes are scattered all over the country, and they will have to wait for "returns" from home before they can tell where they stand. Those who have been called are Ferdinand Schupp, McGraw's star pitcher; Dave Robertson, the right-fielder; George Burns, left-fielder; Jeff Tesreau, pitcher; Ernie Kreuger, utility catcher; and Poll Perritt, pitcher, and Kreuger is almost certain to be drafted, while the others will perhaps continue in the game. Among the players on other National League teams who are called are: Carson Bigby, left-fielder; Pitcher Bill Evans; W. Wagner, utility left-fielder, and Al Mamaux, pitcher, all of the Pirates. The Robins stand to lose Cadore, Pfeffer, and Smith. Horace Eller of the Cincinnatis, has also been called. J. Feldon Wyckoff, former pitcher of the Boston Red Sox and now on the playing staff of the Buffalo International League Club, has received his invitation to don the U.S. army togs.

Cy Young's Unbroken Records

When it comes to breaking records every players in any league must still take off his cap to old Cy Young, justly known as the "greatest ever" in his line. It was on August 3, 1890, twenty-seven years ago to-day, that Young climbed into the uniform of the Cleveland Nationals and pitched his first game in the major leagues. That was the beginning of a pitching career which lasted for 22 years, and which is only one of the many records this remarkable player made. It hasn't even been equalled, and very likely never will be. During his long career Young hung up a few other records that will serve as targets for a long time. He pitched three no-hit games—one for the Cleveland Nationals and two for the Boston Americans. The first was in 1897, when Cincinnati was the victim. In 1904, for the Red Sox he pitched the greatest game of his life, against the Athletics, not a man reaching first base. He pitched another no-hit game in 1908. Another record he holds is that of pitching twenty-three consecutive innings of hitles ball, and the successive retirement of sixty-eight batsmen. Young performed many other notable feats, such as pitching forty-five innings without being scored on. When he joined the Cleveland Nationals he had had only a brief minor league experience with the Canton club. Cleveland got him from Canton for $500. He spent nine years with the Cleveland Nationals, then two seasons with the St. Louis Nationals, and eight years with the Boston Americans. He returned to Cleveland in 1908, and remained there until 1911, when he was given his unconditional release, and finished out the season and his career with the Boston Nationals.

PUGILISTIC ANNALS

1891—Joe Mandot, French-American lightweight, born at New Orleans. This French baker boy has an excellent ring record, and, although he has been properly licked several times, he has just as often come back. In 1913 it looked very much as though Mandot was ready to bid farewell to the ring, for Leach Cross knocked him out in New Orleans, and a few months later he was pounded to a pulp and knocked out "on his feet" by Bud Anderson. After a rest of several months he began another campaign, and was fairly successful. In September, 1914, he licked Ad Wolgast in a ten-round bout at Milwaukee, following it up by a victory over Joe Rivers. Then he fought a draw with Johnny Kilbane. Mandot began his career in 1908 as a featherweight.

1891—Eddie Hanlon knocked out Joe Ryan in two rounds at San Francisco.

1911—Harry Wuest stopped Mike Schreck in three rounds at Cincinnati.

73 VOLUNTEERS FOR FARM WORK

LOCAL EMPLOYERS WILLING TO RELEASE MEN TO HELP IN SAVING ONTARIO'S HARVEST

Manufacturers at Meeting Last Night Agree to Furnish Each His Quota to Make up the One Hundred This City is Asked to Supply---Police Force and Fire Brigade to be Asked for Volunteers.

The Manufacturers of Peterborough are bound to do their bit towards harvesting the immense crop of grain with which the Province has been blest. The meeting last night was marked in this respect. Every representative of the factories who were present signified their willingness to give their share of men to help in the field. If the farmers do not want the assistance that is offered, the captains of industry are not to blame.

The meeting of the manufacturers of he city that was held in the City Hall last night, was the result of an appeal made by the Food Controller to the Canadian Manufacturers Association that the manufacturera release for a period of 30 days enough men to see that every ounce of the crop was harvested.

Messrs. T. F. Matthews, W. R. Breyfogle and Ald. Edgar Worth were appointed as the local committee to organize the local managers and to endeavor to have Peterborough's quota of harvest hands, set at 100, ready for immediate despatch to the farms. The response to the call to attend the meeting was answered by over 20 of the manufacturers or their representatives. Among those present were Messrs. W. R. Breyfogle, Edgar Worth, Ald. Dobbin, Col. Miller, H. O. Fisk, Geo. Gladman, J. A. Harper, Adam Hall, Ald. Stratton, Eastwood, Ross Dobbin, J. W. Meyers, Alex. McGregor, E. W. Bor- Ald. Weir, T. Donaldson, Vincent bridge, G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., Ald. Smith, Joseph Wearing, and R. M. Glover.

Cooperative Effort.

W. R. Breyfogle opened the meeting by stating that Peterborough had been asked to furnish 100 men to assist in the harvest and it was felt that by a cooperative effort on the part of all the employers of labor in the city that there would be no difficulty in getting the men. If the different manufacturers would furnish their pro rata share of the men required, no one industry would be hampered in any way and the wish of the food controller acceded to. The DeLaval Co. would send 8 or 10, the Matthews-Blackwell Co. would send 10 and the other concerna had yet to be heard from.

Ald. Worth thought that quite a few men who had not been working during the past few months could be secured. He referred to the school teachers, organists, and such who are at liberty during the summer months.

Are Farmers Indifferent?

Ald. Stratton cited an instance where an employer of 1500 had offered the services of many of his men to the farmers for the harvest and had offered to pay the men the difference in their pay. Only one application had been received. He was quite sure all the manufacturers were ready to do their part if the farmers made application.

Mr. Breyfogle stated that while there might be plenty of help in some neighborhoods in others there was a shortage and the Government was willing to pay transportation both ways for the men who would register.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., who has been receiving applications for help stated that he had sent a number of men out and in many instances took them out in his car. He had six men ready to go out as soon as application was made for their services. Some of the men offering were not likely looking but could be used,

Mr. Breyfogle stated that Mr. Matthews was unable to be present owing to a previous appointment but had requested that the 100 men be secured and it could not then be said that the manufacturers did not do their part.

To Shift Mr. McCrae.

Mr. V. Eastwood asked what Mr McCrae was doing in Norwood at present where it had been stated that his services were not so much required as in Peterborough?

Mr. Gillespie thought that Mr. McCrae should always be in Peterborough and Norwood should be the branch office.

It was finally moved by Mr. Eastwood and seconded by Ald. Stratton that a message be sent to the Government asking that Mr. McCrae be sent to Peterborough and make this his headquarters for the next three weeks at least. This carried.

Mr. Eastwood offered the use of an office for Mr. McCrae if necessary.

To Start the Tractors.

Mr. Gillespie drew attention to the Government tractors which were here but not in use owing to operators not being at hand.

Later on a motion was passed asking that Mr. McCrae ask the Government to secure operators at once as the land is in good shape to plow now.

Mr. J. A. Harper for the Matthews-Blackwell stated that they had asked for volunteers from their men. Twenty offered to go but that the firm could only spare 10.

Col. Miller was of the opinion that the manufacturers were more anxious to help than the farmers were to apply for it. There were a lot of farmers working in the city at other jobs.

Mr. Breyfogle stated that the Bankers Association had agreed to enroll men who applied there for work.

Acting-Mayor Duncan stated that the feeling of the City Council was that all the city employees who wished to go would be given their liberty for 30 days. The council did not think that the city should be asked to make up any difference in pay.

Mr. Gillespie stated that the farmers were quite willing to pay $3 a day for good men. The green men were paid less.

Ald. Smith asked how many autos were coming into the city every morning loaded with farmers to work in local factories.

Mr. Eastwood remarked that the answer to that question would not harvest the crop.

Mr. Gladman of the William Hamilton Mfg. Co. while he was willing to put the question of volunteering to help in the harvest up to his men, did not think there were any who would be of any use.

The question of making up the difference in the pay to the men who volunteer brought forth from Mr. Breyfogle the statement, "The men should be just as patriotic as the manufacturers and sacrifice a little." There would be no question of pay if Germany was right at our doors ready to invade the city. The present crisis was just as important.

Col. Miller—"The men in the trenches only get $1.10 per day.

Ald. Stratton and Ald. Worth agreed that fifty per cent of the policemen could be easily spared and also some from the Fire Department. The city would let the later go and it was moved that the Police Commissioners let the police go. This carried.

Ald. Weir fathered a motion which was seconded by Adam Hall that the Government be urged through Mr. McCrae to get the tractor plows at work.

Mr. Gillespie stated that he had an application from an operator and another could be taken from the thrashing job he was on.

Ald. Worth was going to hand some of the blank forms which are passed around at the meeting to the police and get them to have a number of the young men sign up. He was also going to see if a number of the men who crank motor boats all summer could not be better employed on the farm.

All the men present took a number of the agreement forms to assist in the harvest and when these are signed will hand them to Mr. Gillespie.

The meeting adjourned and during the day returns will be made of the number of volunteers to Mr. Breyfogle.

WILL CARRY ON WAR TO THE END

NEW ZEALAND PARL'T IS IN CONFLICT TILL FOE IS VANQUISHED.

WELLINGTON, Aug. 8.—The New Zealand Parliament today, amid the greatest enthusiasm, passed a resolution in favor of "carrying on the war until the Germans have been vanquished."

NO EMBARGO ON COAL FROM U.S.

AMERICANS TO REGULATE, NOT RESTRICT, EXPORTS TO THIS COUNTRY.

Washington, Aug. 8. — Reports that the United States would embargo coal shipments to Canada have been denied officially. Canada has been receiving large quantities of coal from this country recently because of the Dominion's reduced production, but coal experts now connected with the American Government say that the United States is producing enough coal for both countries and that the problem is solely one of equitable distribution.

New England users have complained that while coal is scarce in the northeastern states, great shipments are going through to Canadian consumers.

RUSSIANS WILL NOT QUIT FIGHT

AMERICAN COMMISSION IS HOPEFUL AS TO OUTLOOK IN THAT COUNTRY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Aug. 8.—The American commission to Russia returned today filled with optimism regarding conditions in the new republic and hopeful concerning the prospects of Russia's future part in the war.

Assuranies that United States will remain in the war till the end and improved railroad facilities were declared by the different members of the commission to be among the outstanding needs of Russia.

"The situation is very hopeful," said Elihu Root. "The morale of the Russian people is good, and altogether I should say the outlook is encouraging."

TWO MINISTERS VOLUNTEER FOR WORK IN THE HARVEST FIELDS

Rev. G. I. Craw and James Skene Willing to Help the Farmers—73 in all Secured Today.

The first day's canvass for volunteers for farm work resulted in the securing of the names of seventy-three out of the one hundred aimed at, and the chances are that the full quota will be obtained before night.

Two ministers have offered to help save the crop. They are Rev. Jas. Skene, of Havelock, and Rev. G. I. Craw, of Springville, both Presbyterians, who were attending today's session of the Peterborough Presbytery in the city and of which Mr. Craw is moderator. When they were approached by a canvassing meber of the police force, Acting-Sergt. Blade, both readily consented to spend their vacation on the farm. Mr. Craw wants $3.50 and Mr. Skene $3 a day. Both are men with farm experience and will no doubt be worth all they ask after a day or two in the fields.

The result of the canvass by the manufacturers up till 3 o'clock today totalled seventy-three, with some returns yet to hear from, so that there is no doubt of Peterborough giving its required quota.

The seventy-three recruits were furnished as follows:

De Laval Co	22
Matthews-Blackwell Co.	10
Chief of Police and Police Force Canvass	20
Utilities Commission	6
Bonner-Worth	3
Peterborough Cereal	2

A Fight Between Soldiers and Slackers

(Special to The Review.)

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—From word received here, a dangerous feeling is springing up amongst the returned soldiers everywhere towards those who do not care whether the men at the front have help from home or not. The next election, it is thought, will be a fight between the soldiers and the slackers of all kinds.

LIBERALS OUT WEST ARE SPLIT ON LEADERSHIP

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Followers Are Not so Confident as They Were Yesterday---Unionists and Laurierites May Compromise.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Winnipeg, Aug. 8.—The resolutions committee of the Western Liberal Convention presented this morning resolutions connected with banking and cold storage. The banking resolution calls for the establishment of local agricultural banks with $50,000 paid up capital without branches and with power to lend on chattel security.

Hon. Mr. Motherwell and Mr. Haslam, who spoke, said most of the minor questions had now been disposed of, and it had been necessary to handle them first as they never would have received attention after the great question of win the war had engaged the attention of the convention. For the West, said Mr. Haslam, this question of credit in all its phases was next to winning the war the most important that could occupy the attention of the convention.

Question of Leadership

The big western Liberal convention is now under way, with about 1,00 delegates, including 50 women. The fight is on between the Laurier Liberals and those who want to break away altogether from Quebec, organize a new party and help form a national government. Three hundred more delegates arrived this morning, and many of those are conscription Liberals, hence there is not the same overwhelming confidence in the Laurier camp.

The fight is now dividing the commitee on resolutions, which consists of over 100 members. A large majority of the Alberta and British Columbia delegates are for the old chief, and it is probable that he has a good majority in Saskatchewan. On the other hand, Manitoba is almost solid for union government, and finds some support among the delegates from the other three provinces. The opposition from Manitoba is so determined that the party leaders fear a split, and every effort will be made to agree on a compromise. The wires have been kept hot between Winnipeg and Ottawa in an effort to get Sir Wilfrid Laurier to declare that he will, a last resort, enforce the Militia . in the event of his being returned to power. If he will make this concesion he can get the convention by an almost unanimous vote.

The anti-conscriptionists were greatly delighted to learn that Dr. Michael Clark of Red Deer had left the city in disgust and returned to Ottawa. This was taken to indicate that the anti-Laurier Liberals had given up the fight but prominent members of the anti-Laurier wing, like J. W. Dafoe and W. A. Buchanan, M. P., say the result is still in doubt. The most that can be said is that both sides are playing for position and seem unwilling to come to close grips. The campaign for the Laurier leadership is largely based upon hostility to Sir Clifford Sifton.

Tribune Swings Over

When the delegates left the convention hall this afternoon, newsboys were calling: "Here's The Winnipeg Tribune, an Independent Liberal paper. We don't handle the Sifton sheet."

This is taken to mean that The Tribune, which has been supporting union government, is ready to swing into line behind the Laurier Liberals in case they carry the convention.

Platform Planks

Equal rights for women in the matter of homesteading was favored.

"Votes for Women" were advocated.

Hereditary titles for Canada were opposed.

Special attention was given to the shipbuilding industry on the Pacific Coast, and the Dominion Government was urged to operate the dry dock at Prince Rupert on an efficient basis.

An investigation into the cost of farm machinery was also recommended.

SUCCESSFUL RAIDS MADE BY BRITISH LAST NIGHT

Prisoners and Machine Gun Captured—French Hold Their Line But Russians Fall Back- -German Poles Are in Revolt and Martial Law Declared.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Aug. 8.—The official statement says: "Parties of our troops successfully raided the enemy's trenches last night near Lombaertzyde and captured a few prisoners and a machine gun. The enemy's artillery was active during the night to the east and north of Ypres, particularly in the neighborhood of Westhoek and the Ypres Staden railway.

Crown Prince Worsted.

Paris, Aug. 8.—Troops of the German Crown Prince last night launched attacks on French positions east of Vauxaillon and west of the Californie plateau in the Aisne region. Official statement issued today says all attacks were repulsed. German raids north of St. Mihiel, in the Verdun sector and in Upper Alsace were checked by French fire. On the greater part of the Aisne front, the statement adds, there was heavy mutual artillery fire.

Russian Reverses.

London, Aug. 8.—The newspaper Novoye Vremya of Petrograd reports the Russians have evacuated Proskurov in Podolia on Bug River as well as Kamenetz-Podolsk, 53 miles south.

As Berlin Tells It.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—The British forces after a bombardment of drum fire last night pressed forward from Nieuport on the coastal sector of the Belgian front but were driven back after hand to hand fighting, it was officially announced today by the German army headquarters staff. Artillery activity in Flanders, the statement adds, increased during the night to greater intensity.

London, Aug. 8.—A correspondent at Lausanne, Switzerland, of the Exchange Telegraph Company, says the situation in Poland is critical. The Germans are said to be discussing the possibility of organized revolt by the Poles. All German women in Poland, including the wives of high military and civil officials, have returned to German. Martial law has been declared at Warsaw and in other Polish centres.

Riots which had been suppressed with much bloodshed in the mining area have been renewed.

Berlin, Aug. 8.—North of Fokshani, on the Roumanian front, the forces of the Central Powers and their allies extended their success, says an official statement issued yesterday by the German war office.

GET READY FOR CONSCRIPTION

GOV'T PREPARING TO PUT THE ACT IN FORCE AT ONCE.

Ottawa, Aug. 8. — An announcement in Parliament by Hon. C. J. Doherty showed that the Government has already under way plans for enforcing the Military Service Act. The Minister told the House that there was an officer of his department in the office of the solicitor-general and that information from members of Parliament that would lead to facilitating the operation of the Act would be received by the official. To Sir Wilfrid Laurier Mr. Doherty said information was needed as to number of tribunals required in the various constituencies, and the places where these would best serve the convenience of the people.

Russians Begin New Drive in Galicia

Rome, Aug. 8. — The Italian official statement says there were lively encounters on the Trentino front yesterday between Austro-Hungarian and Italian patrols. Italian air squadrons on Monday and Tuesday dropped four tons of high explosives on Austrian military positnons in the Chiapovano valley, causing great destruction.

HOW LIQUOR ADS MAY BE STOPPED

LEGISLATURE CAN PASS AN ACT FORBIDDING THEIR PUBLICATION.

Ottawa, Aug. 8—Hon. Mr. Doherty introduced a bill in Parliament to aid provincial governments in the enforcing of temperance legislation. It has several provisions. For an offence under the act a man may be tried either in the province from which he sent the liquor, or in that to which the liquor fas shipped. The bill authorises the seisure of liquor in connection with charges of infraction, and the confiscation of the same in the event of conviction. A third provision prohibits sending through the mails into or within any province, advertising matter looking to the sale of liquor, the circulation of which matter is forbidden by any provincial law.

In reply to a question by Sir Sam Hughes, Mr. Doherty said this covered advertisements in newspapers to the extent that their circulation in provinces which had legislation forbidding such advertising matter would be subject to prohibition.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY, AUG. 8, 1917

FOR UNION.

"I should like to see in this country an extension of the parliamentary term, a government formed by a fair union of both political parties pledged to carry on the effort of Canada in this war until it shall be crowned with a victorious conclusion. I should like to see the efforts of both political parties in this country thrown in that way into this great struggle in order that the issue which we all pray for may be brought about. I should like to see that done, and if that were done, I am sure that we could have by unanimous agreement in this House an extension of the parliamentary term, and the carrying out of every measure which is necessary to the winning of the war.—Sir Robert Borden.

SAVING THE CROP.

IF THE FARMERS of Peterborough County require help to save their crop, that help will be furnished them by the city. This was made evident at the meeting of the leading manufacturers held in the City Hall last night when, with only one exception, the employers of labor agreed to release those of their working staffs who were willing to accept the offer, for thirty days. The places of these will be kept for them and their fares will be paid if they go a distance by train. Those employed by farmers in the county will be taken out to their new occupations by autos at no expense to themselves, the cars to be furnished by the citizens.

Food Controller Hanna has asked this city to furnish one hundred harvest volunteers. If they are not needed around home they will be distributed throughout the province where their services are required. The Manufacturers' Association has taken up this matter, and the indications are that Ontarios big crop, one of the greatest on record, will be saved in time.

No farmer need lose anything for lack of help. All that is asked of him is that he pay the current rate of wages, and care will be taken to see that none but men with some experience or fitness for the work will be sent them and that the farmers receive value for their money. The men who are behind the movement in Peterborough, Mr. Gillespie especially, know what is required of men who go to the country to work in the harvest fields.

The manufacturers of the city are willing to release from their staffs their fair quota in order to make up the one hundred asked for. The only sign of hesitating last night was on the part of a manufacturer who is largely engaged in the making of munitions — an industry almost as essential now as food production itself. He said that his firm was not only short of help but had no men with any experience on the farm. However, he promised to look into this point further and do what he could.

There was one matter brought up at the meeting last night which affects the street railway company. Nearly all the employes are from the farm, and it was felt that a number of volunteers could be secured from among them. The police force, too, it was held, could be reduced temporarily by at least half for the same purpose.

It has been charged that there are enough farmers working in the city, coming in by auto and team every morning, to save the crop without other assistance. This was referred to last night, but the sentiment of the meeting was that he answer to that question would not help the issue to the slightest extent. The imperative duty is to save the crop by any and all means.

There are scores of young men in the city who have been raised on the farm. These will volunteer when the matter is placed before them, and their services will be valuable. A few weeks at harvest work would be a veritable holiday for such men. They would be in no danger of losing their situations in the city. There is little sacrifice involved in working at a clean and healthful occupation for a few weeks at $3 a day with good board and lodging included. These volunteers will not only be benefiting themselves but will be rendering their country a patriotic service. Better help conserve the nation's food supply now than go on short rations next winter. If the change involves any financial or other sacrifice, what is it when compared with that the enlisted men are making?

"LOCK, STOCK AND BARREL."

THE EXAMINER calls for a new Government, "lock, stock and barrel," and would sweep away the last vestige of the one now in office. There is no good in that Administration when regarded through the partisan eyes of our contemporary, even though out of a sinning world Noah and his family were spared and there was at least one righteous man in Sodom and Gomorrah.

Give The Examiner its way, and with whom would it supplant Sir Robert Borden? By the man who is pledged to his own province to use nothing like compulsion, but to leave the question of duty to individual conscience; the man who declares he is in the war to the end, and who, in order to make good his word, would end it at once so far as Canada is concerned.

No win-the-war policy for our neighbor. Win the election is to be its slogan. The fortunes of Sir Wilfrid are more precious to it than the fate of the men in the trenches. Even in the face of calamity it can dream of nothing but party interests and hope for nothing but party success.

A WALK-OVER FOR SIR SAM.

OUT IN THE constituency represented by General Sir Sam Hughes the Liberals are having difficulty in finding a candidate to oppose him. Several conventions have been called and the names of three or four of the stalwarts presented, but one and all have declined the honor. Another attempt will be made two weeks hence to find a standard-bearer.

This leads the Lindsay Warder to suggest that Sir Sam be returned by acclamation. It says:

> "We see that a representative meeting of Orillia citizens has resolved to put politics aside in the coming election and nominate one candidate and one alone. This man will at once be representative and independent of either party — a 'win-the-war' candidate. Why not do this in our constituency?
>
> "We have a win-the-war member in parliament now. As minister of militia he was supported by the freethinking citizens of Victoria and Haliburton; Liberal and Conservative alike. He will be returned to parliament by an overwhelming majority if there is a fight. Why put the constituency to the expense of a needless contest?
>
> "If the Liberals wish to have a fight, the Conservatives will give them their money's worth. But let us all unite in returning to Ottawa our win-the-war candidate."

If The Warder had been writing of West Peterborough instead of its own constituency, it could not have been more apt in sizing up the situation.

THE FIZZLE AT WINNIPEG.

OVER SIX THOUSAND patriotic Canadians, representing all classes and parties, met at Toronto last week, and, throwing politics to the wind, agreed upon a policy for the winning of the war.

About three hundred hand-picked delegates, partisans to the core, are now in session at Winnipeg. They hoist above their heads a banner inscribed with the motto, "Win the War," with the same object as that of the enemy craft that flies the flag of the power with which they are at war, in the hope of escaping detection. They are out, not to win the war, but the election, and their first utterances betray them.

A majority of the delegates at Winnipeg have sworn allegiance to Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the leader who has forfeited the support of the better element in his party, the man who has refused to co-operate with the Government in war work, who has given his own race a pledge that if he is returned to power he will drop the conscription measure and force no one into military duty.

It cannot be that the Western Liberals are sincere in their admiration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is not that they love the chieftain who has talked himself out of sympathy with so many of his followers. They realise that without Sir Wilfrid and his solid Quebec following, party success is impossible, and rather than lose a chance of a victory at the polls they are willing to fall in behind him.

The war record of the western provinces is libeled by the action of the scheming politicians at Winnipeg. Their action is a stunnig response to their constituents who are in the trenches in Flanders and who are calling for help from those at home. The soldiers who have first-hand knowledge of the situation are for conscription. Their representatives, actual and in prospect, in convention at Winnipeg, are playing for delay. The leader they have chosen is out of sympathy with the country's defenders.

It is altogether likely that good will come out of the evil that is being so brazenly worked at Winnipeg. The entire country will be aroused to a sense of the danger that threatens it. The Canadians who have only one aim now, that of winning the war, will be united more closely than ever. The convention now in session at Winnipeg, this latest political fizzle, will be followed by another, which, like the one last week in Tornto, will be composed of patriots instead of politicians, and which will represent the true spirit of the Canadian people.

PUERILE PRATTLE FROM GEORGE STREET.

> Governments are demanding from labor the pound of flesh, in the way of service, but governments are not tumbling over each other to give labor recognition by fair representation.—The Examiner.

A STRIKING example, the above, of the desperate attempts made by our contemporary to stir up ill feeling against the government. The matter of representation is not a gift of the government, but a privilege of the people. Labor can have all the representation in parliament it desires if the unions will only hang together in politics as they do on the wage question.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

EVERY DAY nowadays marks some new eruption in the Liberal party.

* * *

ANY VOLUNTEER in khaki has the Apollo in summer attire beaten in looks.

* * *

IN ITS NEW temperance legislation Parliament is, as usual, recognizing provincial rights.

* * *

THE WAR can never be won with honor to Canada with Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the national helm.

* * *

THE BEST available man the local Liberals have refuses to carry the standard while Sir Wilfrid Laurier leads.

* * *

THE EXAMINER does not require a new government half so badly as it needs a new set of political principles.

* * *

THE LOCAL LIBERALS fail to show their hands for the simple reason that they hold no cards worth while.

* * *

BETTER WEAR KHAKI than the prison stripes that will be forced on the man who attempts to dodge the draft.

* * *

IF THE GERMANS knew anything of the Golden Rule they would be stripping it now of its precious metal to help win the war.

* * *

"WORRY," says an American clerical dignitary, "is as sinful as drinking." And the worst of it is, it cannot be stopped by legislation.

* * *

THE OPPOSITION at Ottawa should help to keep "The Fiddlers" out of the country as the book tends to uncover their own besetting sin.

* * *

AFTER LOOKING over the bunch at the Winnipeg convention the West will probably decide to exercise more care in selecting members of Parliament.

* * *

"DADDY, what did you do in the great war?' "I was too old to fight, my son, but at least I did not vote for Laurier and against helping the boys who were at the front."

"WE CANNOT allow sectional organizations to direct the war or make terms," says Lloyd George. And it will strike the most of us that this is something that must be guarded against in Canada.

BUILDING STRONG MEN AND WOMEN

Incidental to the work of developing armies the civilized world finds that a great part of its human material is below standard. It is a shocking thing that peace and industrial prosperity should be accompanied by a physical degeneration of a large proportion of the people. In the United States the young men found physically unfit for army service are alarmingly numerous. Other countries show far worse conditions.

A returned Belgian relief commissioner, in discussing the physical state of the German army at the present time, said the other day: "The new troops are of poor physique, a large part of them boys without sufficient nourishment during adolescence. They have had no butter fats and little meat. A boy needs the most intensive feeding from 14 to 18. The younger Germans are not comparable to the older for stamina. Since Germany became an industrial nation the physique of the people has been declining rapidly. The much talked of German social conservation measures did some good. Probably the German working classes are slightly better fed than the English, and better housed, but not much. Since the war the condition of the people has gone downward, while the British physique has improved. The war will prove the making of the British working class. It has higher wages and better food. The reverse is true in Germany."

The manifest need of improving the living conditions of the people in their home cities gives point to the appeal of Charles H. Wacker, chairman of the Chicago plan commission, for aggressive support of the comprehensive program of improvements for that community. In order to develop a strong, capable and virile people, says Mr. Wacker, it is necessary to provide for the young generation more light and air, better housing, more parks, playgrounds and bathing beaches. With these provided it is reasonable to think that a much higher average of physical strength and health will be enjoyed by the people. These important elements of contentment and prosperity must be promoted systematically by progresive communities.

Building physically sound men and women is a work of the highest usefulness, and it certainly should not be neglected, especially at this time when war is applying its merciless tests to the peoples of the leading nations.

HIS FAITH IN MANKIND JOLTED

"Human nature is a great institution," observed the druggist. "The more I study my fellow men and remark their curves, the more respect and admiration I have for them."

"Every now and then I feel and talk that way," said the county constable, "and whenever that occurs somebody is sure to come along and sell me a gold brick or burglarize my hen roost. I'm naturally optimistic, even enthusiastic, where human nature is concerned, but I have had so many umbrellas swiped by bosom friends that there are moments when I take a pessimistic view.

"Just now I am feeling that human nature is greatly overestimated, and I doubt whether there's a man in the country who won't bear watching.

"Yesterday I made a trip in my auto to a rather desolate and untenanted part of the county on official business. On the way home something went wrong with the engine of my car. I am pretty handy at fixing such things, and I began tinkering away. Now and then a grand old farmer would come along in his car, and he'd always stop and get out and ask whether there was anything he could do. Two or three offered to tow me to town, fourteen miles away, and several of them got themselves all greased up reaching around in the engine to find out what the trouble was.

"Thus they would come and go away, kind, considerate, anxious to help a brother in distress, and you will not be surprised when I tell you that I sat down on the running board of my car and wept out of the fullness of my heart. The goodness of man filled me with emotion I couldn't control.

"Well, I tinkered and fussed and it seemed that I couldn't get the engine to going. The afternoon was growing old, and I was a long way from shelter and refreshments. So at last I concluded that I would walk to a farmhouse and telephone to town for help. The nearest house that had a phone was four miles away, and it took me some time to make the trip, for I had to climb barbed wire fences and was treed for a while by a dog that hadn't had anything to eat for a long time.

"At last I got to a phone and got connection with a garage in town, and received a promise that a man would be out to haul me in immediately, so I walked back to my car. Imagine my emotions when I found that during my absence it had been stripped of its tires, which were new, and a lot of my best tools.

"I was standing there wringing my hands and gnashing my teeth and wishing I had some sackcloth and ashes when the garage man arrived. He sized up the situation at once and began doing some sleuthing. He was a natural born Sherlock Holmes. Wtihout the aid of a dark lantern or even false whiskers, he announced, after examining the tire tracks around us, that he knew who had swiped the goods. It was Wolfman, a farmer some miles away. 'He has a three cornered patch on his tire that I put there myself,' said the sleuth, 'and he stopped here about half an hour ago, and his tracks are here, where he pulled your tires.'

"We went to Wolfman's and found he missing goods under a pile of hay. I didn't say nothing much to him. I felt too sick.

"For it was Wolfman's generous conduct more than anything else that had made me sit down on the running board and cry. There wasn't anything that man wasn't willing to do to help me out of my predicament.

"When a thing like that happens to a man it takes him about three weeks to recover his faith in human nature."

Sounds Convincing

It was on the morning of St. Patrick's day, and the farmer thought he would treat his servant boy, so he gave him a very big glass of whisky. The farmer's wife thought she would treat him also, but she gave it to him in a very small glass.

He looked at it and asked: "Ma'am, how are those glasses made?"

"Oh, you know, these glasses are all blown."

"Well," said the servant, "whoever blew that one must have been very short of breath.

A DAILY NOVELETTE

It was just after a heavy downpour and mud flowed like water.

"If Sir Walt Raleigh were only alive today," murmured Matrix Millen in a maze of meditation as he watched a pretty, perky person kick her path through a polshy puddle.

"By Jupiter," he went on, "the old boy would blush for shame if he could see the ungallant attitude of the modern male. I'm going to let the next woman across this puddle over my old raincoat, just to show knighthood still lives."

At that moment a tall, thin woman started to put one No. 9 shoe into the northwest corner of the puddle.

"Allow me!" cried Matrix Millen, and, whipping off his raincoat, he dashed it gallantly down at her feet, not splashing more than a quart and a pint of mud on her.

"Vandal Highwayman!" screamed our heroine, and came at our hero with upraised umbrella.

Matrix Millen fled, pursued by a mob of 800.

The afternoon of the day he was released from jail a beautiful creature approached him timidly and said, "I should like very much to know the way to George street."

"What do I care?" replied Matrix Millen, and strode on.

Help Build the Bulwark Against Famine!

Go—help—now. Ontario's Record Harvest must be garnered.

It would be criminal to lose a sheaf of it for want of labour.

As a high, patriotic and unselfish service, many employers have pledged themselves to release a percentage of their men for this work, and to make it financially possible for them to go. The Ontario Government will pay railway fare both ways of all men who go.

If you, Mr. Employee, are asked to go,—go! Don't hesitate. Lack of experience is no bar. THE SPIRIT is the THING.

AT THE CITY'S PLAYGROUNDS

HOW LITTLE PEOPLE ARE ENTERTAINED THIS HOT WEATHER.

The attendance at the city playgrounds during the recent spell of hot weather fell off somewhat, but both grounds, especially King Edward, have been largely attended during the cooler periods.

From attendance records at the King Edward grounds, it is shown that between three and four hundred boys and girls come regularly for amusement. The daily attendance has run as high as four hundred and fifty.

On account of the scarcity of labor many of the older boys are working and consequently the girls come in larger numbers.

Many interesting articles such as pillow covers and work baskets are being made by the girls in the industrial work and the management is kept busy furnishing material to work with.

Aside from the attraction offered by the swings, football, baseball, lawn tennis and other games are greatly enjoyed by the youngsters.

Groups of from twenty to forty boys under twelve years of age report twice a week at the Y.M.C.A. for swimming lessons, while the older boys are taken to various points along the river for the same purpose. Because of the lack of dressing facilities, the bushes furnish the dressing rooms for boys and girls.

The boys and girls are perfectly safe when they go to the river, as the supervisors are in charge, and also teach the youngsters to swim.

Something in the way of a treat is being considered for the "kiddies" and efforts are being made to get free transportation to one of the parks for a picnic.

An agreement is in process of negotiation between the U. S. Government and the Netherlands whereby in exchange for foodstuffs the Dutch Government will take over the greater part of the work of transportation for Belgian relief, the other Dutch tonnage may be made available for American uses.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—During June and July, while the conscription bill was going through the Commons there were 10,698 enlistments in Canada, and 7,894 casualties of all kinds at the front. RUSSIA'S OFFICERS

How Difficulties in Securing Suitable Material were Overcome

In spite of the confusion and dislocation which followed the peace with Japan, both by reason of the return and incorporation of the great Manchurian with the Western army, and also because of the political disorders of the day, yet important military reforms were inaugurated without undue delay. The two great weaknesses of Russia in face of Germany were the inferior character of her officer corps, socially, educationally and technically, and the poverty of her railway system. An officer corps is the growth of time, and needs corresponding classes in the nation to provide its personnel. The aristocracies and bourgeois classes of Western Europe, fortified by the tradition of feudal times and inherited ideas of military honor, contribute young men competent to officer troops.

But Russia has very limited numbers of such families in proportion to her vast population. To find competent [illegible] higher commands, not to reckon the vast numbers required to lead the troops of the line, was a most difficult problem, which constantly became harder. The first reforms after the Japanese War aimed at extending the system of technical education for officers. These measures had begun to produce important results by 1914, and the improved leadership of the Russian forces was one of the most unpleasant surprises experienced by the enemy at the beginning of the war.—Daily Telegraph, London.

AIRMAN'S NEWSPAPER

Says the Manchester Guardian: We all know in a way of the changes that the wonderful development of air travel in the war has brought about, but until peace comes we can have little idea how it will affect ordinary life. A hint of it can be seen in this story, told to me by a friend who dined recently at the Royal Flying Corps headquarters in France. "Would you like to see to-night's paper?" he was asked. He thought it was a joke, but the 6.30 edition of a London paper was handed to him. The explanation was: "One of our fellows brought it over with him." This aviator had left in the morning, had been at the War Office before business hours, and was back in France in time for dinner!

FROM BLAZING ZEPPELIN

Jumped and Landed Alive with Coat as Parachute

When the Zeppelin Z 48 was brought down in flames in East Anglia the bodies of four of the crew who jumped from the burning airship were found in the neighboring fields. It was learned that three other men also jumped from the Zeppelin and landed on the ground alive. One of them, a warrant officer, had a miraculous escape. He told a petty officer who captured him that he had a device by which he turned his coat into a sort of parachute. In the last part of the Zeppelin to catch fire, he postponed his jump until the airship was near the ground and alighted unharmed although very much dazed. He was walking about when he was captured by the petty officer who was home on leave at the time.

Collision in the Air

Death from Misadventure was the verdict at the inquest on Lieut. E. R. Mackey and Second-Lieutenant G. S. Raine, two Royal Flying Corps officers, who were killed while flying over Hertfordshire through their machine colliding with another 800 feet up in the air. The second machine, after being twice righted, came into contact with an oak tree and fell, the pilot, Lieutenant W. G. Potts, being injured.

LIBERALS AT WINNIPEG BRING COMFORT TO QUEBEC

Followers of Sir Wilfrid Laurier Pleased to See Western Politicians Line up With Them --- Union Government Not Yet Impossible.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—There is great rejoicing among anti-conscriptionists and Quebec French-speaking Liberals over the news from Winnipeg this morning that there is a strong feeling among the delegates to accept Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader and that the majority of the delegates may line up under his banner.

The advocates of union Government are not altogether displeased over the same news. If there is not to be formal union between the Liberals and the Conservatives, and if the convention could not be unanimously in favor of coalition, the Eastern Conservatives and war Liberals would much prefer to have the machine Liberals line up behind Sir Wilfrid. They know then where they stand. The issue would be clear conscription or anti-conscription, for Sir Wilfrid is irrevocably opposed to conscription. What has been feared has been a double-faced campaign such as Hon. George P. Graham proposed to run in Ontario, a policy of conscription under the leadership of Laurier.

If the convention decides for Laurier it will not put an end to union any more than the decision of the convention of Liberal candidates in Ontario killed it in Ontario. That convention, indeed, gave the movement an impetus and union in Ontario of all the war elements is now virtually consumated. What the Western Liberal members who were for union feared when they left Ottawa was that the machine politicians and Laurier elements had controlled the appointment of delegates. It looks as if their fears were justified.

Second Meeting Likely.

Liberals who are more interested in winning the war, than in winning the elections, are just as numerous in Western Canada as in Ontario, and Sir Robert Borden has the assurance of hundreds of prominent Liberals in the west that they will support him in his conscription measure. Ottawa looks for a second war convention in the West as in Ontario, and union with these elements will result. In any event, whether there is formal union or not between the political organizations there already is union outside the politicians.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is keeping in constant touch with the Winnipeg convention. It is understood that an effort is being made to get the Liberal leader to agree to another voluntary recruiting effort, and if that fails to consent to conscription. Such an offer was made to him by Sir Robert Borden and was refused. The war Liberals in the House also urged their leader to accept this course. He refused, and they were compelled to abandon him. The Western Liberals are not likely to be any more successful. It is understood Sir Wilfrid will wire his reply today.

Candidates Discussed.

With union between the win-the-war party in Ontario and Sir Robert Borden already virtually consummated there is already considerable discussion on the question of candidates. No candidate can be endorsed who is not prepared not only to support conscription and a forward policy, but to support the war leader, Sir Robert Borden. Support of a war policy and acceptance of the leadership of Sir Wilfrid Laurier or side-stepping of the issue will not be acceptable. Unless they change their attitude, most of the Ontario Liberal members who voted for conscription will have to be opposed by the war party candidates. They endorsed the two-faced position of Hon. George P. Graham at the Toronto convention and have not yet repudiated that convention. Mr. Hugh Guthrie, of course, will be accepted as a war candidate in North Wellington and if he is opposed it will be by a Laurier and an anti-conscriptionist candidate.

It is realized that there will be many difficulties in the way of securing one set of war candidates, but the obstacles are not regarded as unsurmountable.

"Trooper" Mulloy is spoken of as a candidate for the war party in Dundas to succeed Hon. Andrew Broder.

Preliminary reports to the Federal Reserve Board indicate that the issue of $300,000,000 of treasury certificates offered last week by Secretary McAdoo will be over-subscribed.

CANADIANS ARE LUMBERING WITHIN SOUND OF THE GUNS

J. R. Davis, Formerly Assistant Lockmaster at Lift Lock, Writes Interesting Letter to The Review From "Somewhere in France."

The Review has received the following interesting letter from Pte. J. R. Davis, formerly assistant lock master at the Lift Locks, and who is now with a Forestry Battalion in France:—

Somewhere in France,
July 7th, 1917.

Editor Review: Thinking a letter to the Review from one of the theatres of the Great War might be [illegible] submit the following:

After an exciting voyage across the Atlantis on the s.s. Mauratania, sister to the ill-fated Lusitania, we arrived in England in November last where we spent two months in training at Bramshot and Whitley camps. Crossing to France we were quartered at La Havre for another two weeks and then came on to our present location, where we have since remained.

Our camp near La Joux railway station, in the Jura Mountains, is at an altitude of 3,000 feet, surrounded by a dense forest of splendid timber mostly spruce and balsam. We are practically the pioneers of lumbering according to modern methods, in this part of France. The forests for at least a century and a half had not known the sound of falling timber. To-day four large saw mills, the machinery of which is all Canadian manufactured, are being operated both day and night. An immense amount of work has also been done in preparing and properly equipping the various camps. Electric light, telephone and waterworks systems have ben installed, roadways have ben constructed, hundreds of huts erected, while on every side the hum of mills toots of motor cars motor lorries with shouts of horse and ox drivers give the vicinity an air of industry which is unique.

One of the great drawbacks to the place is the climate, which is abominable. Excepting in February we have not had a fine week since our arival. Snow and sleet almost every day during March, April and May, and rain about two-thirds of the time since. Inhabitants tell us that February and September are the only fine months of the year. All the men, however, are well provided with rain-proof clothing, and rarely is any time lost on account of the weather.

In my capacity as bush foreman I have under me one hundred and thirty-five first-class Canadian lumbermen whose equal it would not be easy to find.

On account of the war there is a great scarcity of labor in the country The men are all away in the army. The women do the work on the farm, or that small part of it that is done. From an agricultural point of view everything is in ruins. Really, nothing has been cultivated during the past three years. Raising garden stuff and dairying appear to be the sole industries. For the people one cannot have but a strong admiration for the dignity, confidence and unity they have displayed during the time of stress. It is good to be among them just now, for every one is doing his duty in some form or other. There is no complaining, but every one is ready to make any sacrifices demanded of him. My admiration for their behavious under this great trial is unbounded. You see no despondency anywhere, in spite of their great losses. They are serious, determined and confident.

There are about 2,500 Canadian lumbermen in this district, and from all reports a more patriotic, steady and self-sacrificing body it would be difficult to find. The inhabitants are their great admirers and in numberles ways show their admiration for them and everything pertaining to Canada.

Their hospitality is truly remarkable. A call at any farm house, no matter how poor the family, and the visitor is sure to have luncheon offered him. Light wines are drunk [illegible] drunkenness I have yet to see. An evidence of the feling shown to our men was touchingly displayed at the funeral of Private Iceton, a Toronto boy, recently killed in a railway accident. Crowds of old men and women gathered about the grave side and at the conclusion of the service, out of their poverty, none of whom could raise more than a few centimes, procured a handsome silver gilt wreath bearing the inscription "Gratitude." Excepting La Belle France, the French love Canada best. To the valor of our boys during the war is mainly due this sentiment.

I would not have you suppose that life here has only its serious side. We have more to occupy our time than work and sleep. When off duty the boys are anything but idle. Concerts—and we have many fine artists —are held once a month, and athletc contests are almost a daily occurence. Dominion Day was celebrated in a manner fitting the occasion. From morning till sundown athletic events were the order of the day, which was brought to a close by a grand concert at night. Fraternal societies, which are largely represented in our ranks, hold frequent informal meetings. On Saturday, June 30, the Masonic brethren met in a nearby town and had a most enjoyable time. On the following day a group photograph was taken in front of a monument on a hill where Napoleon rested his whole army for a day during his celebrated march across the Alps into Italy.

In the matter of rations we are well supplied, much better than any other branch of the service in the field. This is due to the French Government from whom we now draw supplies who are, on account of our location, beter fitted to do the work than the British.

On the first of August we will have been six months in France, which entitles us to a ten day furlough, which most of us expect to spend somewhere in Great Britain. Canada, however, is the country to which we are hoping soon to return. While none of us regret our experiences here, and all will remain till a victorious peace is proclaimed, may we not be pardoned for a longing to see again our homes and loved ones beyond the ocean?

Peterborough men of the old 242nd Battalion, now part of the Canadian Forestry Corps in France, send their kind regards to the old friends at home.

Yours sincerely,
J. R. DAVIS,
Assistant Lock Master,
Lift Lock, Peterborough.

MOTHER OF FOUR CHILDREN

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Kept Her Well and Strong

Lincoln, Illinois.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for ten years with good results and I have four healthy children. This summer I was in a very run down condition and the very hot weather seemed more than I could stand, but I commenced taking your Compound in June and from then until September 25th, when my last baby was born, I got along much better than I had before. My baby was a girl and weighed 14 pounds at birth, and I recovered very rapidly which I am sure was due to your medicine. I am well and strong now, nurse my baby and do all my work. I had the same good results with your medicine when needed before my other children came and they are all healthy. My mother has taken your medicine with equal satisfaction. She had her last child when nearly 44 years old and feels confident she never would have carried him through without your help, as her health was very poor."—Mrs. T. F. Cloyd, 1355 North Gulick Ave., Decatur, Ill.

Expectant mothers should profit by Mrs. Cloyd's experience, and trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WILLIAM ROSS FELL OFF TRAIN DIES OF INJURY

WAS TRAVELLING ON PASS TO RAILWAY'S SHOPS IN MONTREAL.

William Ross, a young man about 33 years of age, met death Saturday afternoon last by falling off the Port McNichol train as it was pulling out of Lindsay. It appears that the young man, who was employed as a car checker for the Canadian Pacific at Port McNichol, was on his way to spend the holiday at Montreal, and was travelling on a pass.

Contrary to rules, Ross was standing on the rear platform of the outgoing train, and it is assumed was pitched off while the train was rounding a sharp curve in the vicinity of Beall's tannery. He was missed by a passenger who had been talking to the unfortunate victim and on reaching the junction the conductor and crew members passed through the car but failed to locate him. The train was backed up and Mr. Ross picked up in an unconscious condition.

On being conveyed to the depot Dr. Blanchard C.P.R. physician, was communicated with and examined the young man previous to his being removed to the hospital. He was in an unconscious condition and suffering from a fracture of the base of the skull, from which he failed to recover.

Not Known

William Ross, the victim of the fatality, is unknown to the C.P.R. Company at Montreal, whither he was travelling on a pass. Efforts have been made to locate his relatives, if any, but without success. Workmen at Port McNichol, where he was employed, appear to know nothing concerning his home or his friends.

Mr. Norman Price, of Montreal, claims agent for the Railway Company, is in Lindsay looking into the accident.

UNION OF MUNICIPALITIES

A DIPLOMATIC LOVER.

She vowed she'd never eat again
Till women got her rights from men,
And I, who loved her deeply, feared
My joy in life had disappeared.
Till haply all my soul was fired
With inspiration most inspired.
I got a tray one summer's day
And on it placed soft clams poulet,
A lobster broiled and muffins sweet,
A fillet mignon - tres petite—
New peas and grapefruit mayonnaise,
A pair of cool cafe parfaits,
A camembert so rich and rare
It perfumed all the summer air,
A choice of French patisserie
As dainty as such cakes can be,
A tiny glass of greenest mint,
A nesselrode with marrons in t,
With nuts and maccaroons galore,
The which I carried to her door.
She cried, she sighed, renewed her vow,
Declaimed, proclaimed—but, anyhow,
Gave up the fight, began to eat
The clams, the mignon tres petite,
The camembert so rich and rare
That scented all the summer air,
And so on till my starving queen
Had swept that platter wholly clean!
Prince, really there's no slightest need
Our militants by force to feed
While there are subtler ways discreet
In gentleness to make them eat!
—John Kendrick Bangs in Puck.

LINEN FROCK.

Good Model For the Home Dressmaker to Choose.

Irish linen is a real luxury this summer because of its scarcity and costliness. The one-piece pictured is fashioned of old rose linen closed with white ball buttons and cut with a straight, loose belt and kangaroo pockets.

MODISH EFFECT.

Wild Carrot Seed.

Seeds of the wild carrot are small but very numerous and are covered with weak bristles which catch on wool, hair and clothing and distribute the weed for considerable distances. They frequently are harvested with grass, clover and alfalfa seed and are widely distributed by this means. As found in clover seed, the wild carrot seeds are usually without barbs, as these are rubbed off in the clover huller.

Nonsinkable Safes For Ships.

Nonsinkable safes so placed that they will rise to the surface as soon as a ship sinks are the invention of Menotti Nanni. The Popular Science Monthly in describing them tells of the hundreds of millions of dollars now at the bottom of the sea that might have been saved by their use.

A Housewarming.

"I want a dress to put on around the house," said the lady in the department store.

"How large is your house, madam?" inquired the fresh clerk.

Don't hurry, but eat hearty!
Be just as mannered as can be,
For, sure, you're playin' party!"

MAYBE BUYING MATCHES

Never Struck You As Being An Important Job. But It Is!

It is important that you buy none but EDDY'S

"SILENT 500"

The matches with "no after glow."

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

PRIVATE WILLIAM JOHNSTONE MILNE, of a Canadian Infantry Battalion, who was awarded the Victoria Cross for capturing two machine-guns, killing the crew of the first and putting out of action the crew of the second.

Peach Batter Pudding

Slice into a deep earthenware pudding dish sufficient peeled peaches to half fill it. Add two or three of the pits and dust thickly with sugar. Sift into a bowl two even cups of flour and add one teaspoon of salt and a pinch of baking soda. Beat the whites and yolks separately of four eggs. Add to the yolks one pint of milk and then gradually beat the liquid into the flour. When very smooth and free from lumps, fold in the stiffly whipped egg whites and pour over the peaches. Bake for three-quarters of an hour and serve immediately on removal from the oven. Eat with cream or hard sauce.

COMPARE TWO V.C.'s

Deeds of R.N.R. Commander and Marine Corporal Officially Cited

Two Victoria Crosses were announced as follows: Lieut.-Cdr. W. E. Sanders, R.N.R. In recognition of his conspicuous gallantry, consummate coolness, and skill in command of one of H.M. ships in action.

Lce.-Corp. W. R. Parker, R.M.L.I., R.N.D. On the morning of May 1, 1915, in reply to a message from an isolated fire trench at Gaba Tepe, Gallipoli, a party of non-commissioned officers and men were detailed to carry water and ammunition, and Parker volunteered from the stretcher bearers. Several men had been killed in a previous attempt to bring assistance to the trench. It was necessary to traverse an area 400 yards wide, swept by rifle fire. It was daylight when the party emerged from shelter and at once one of the men was wounded. Parker organized a stretcher party and, going on alone, reached the fire trench, all the water and ammunition carriers being killed or wounded. He rendered assistance to the wounded in the trench, which had to be evacuated, and he helped to remove the wounded, although himself seriously wounded.

MUNITION MIRACLES

British Production Multiplied Many Times Over in Short Period

Dr. H. E. Howe in an address before the American Chemical Society in Kansas City brought out some changes in certain industries that the war caused in England. At the beginning of 1917 the production of high explosives was sixty-two times what it was in 1915. British munition factories were early in 1917 making more heavy gun ammunition every twenty-four hours than they made in the first year of the war. The monthly output of heavy guns was more than six times what it was during the year 1915. From May, 1915, to May, 1916, the production of bombs increased thirty-three fold. Fourteen times as many machine guns were made during the year beginning August 1, 1915, as in the twelve preceding months. The daily output of twelve national projectile factories would fill a train one mile long, requiring eight engines to pull it.

Blinded Soldier's Luck

"A Canadian who lost both eyes in the war was trained at St. Dunstan's, went back to Canada, married a pretty girl, and obtained a first-class job in Toronto," said Sir George Perley, Canadian High Commissioner, at the exhibition of work by disabled heroes in Sotheby's New Galleries, Bond-street, West.

Mrs. Lucas, wife of Sergeant Edward Lucas, Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, died at Dungannon, County Tyrone, after giving birth to three sons.

New Zealand was made equal with the other Dominions by Lord Liverpool being styled Governor-General instead of Governor.

The Milk Cure

The milk-cure is frequently recommended for Bright's disease, gout, neurasthenia, intestinal putrefaction and a few other diseases. The treatment usually begins with four ounces of warm skimmed milk every two hours; after a few days, six to eight ounces every four hours. Sometimes it is given flavor with weak tea or coffee. After four to six weeks other food is gradually added to the dietary.

Do not throw away one drop of sour milk. Many things can be made with it if one knows how.

Hamlet: Greatest Talker

Hamlet has more to say than any other character in any single Shakespearean play; Richard III. is a poor second; and Iago, Othello, Coriolanus, and Timon follow in the order named. Hamlet's lines would fill nearly eighteen columns of a newspaper, Richard III.'s thirteen columns, Iago's twelve and three-quarters, and those of the other three a little over ten columns each.

Convict Not a Convict

A convict in Britain is a person who has undergone penal servitude—a sentence of over two years. Up to two years the sentence is one of imprisonment, and the term "convict" is erroneously applied to such offenders.

Captain Mackenzie Rogan, M.V.O., is actually the oldest soldier serving on the British front. He has seen fifty years of service. He is the director of the Coldstream Guards' Band, which plays to the British "Tommies" behind the firing line.

PETERBORO PRESBYTERY APPROVES AT REGULAR SESSION HERE TODAY.

The Peterborough Presbytery held a meeting here this morning when there was a large attendance of the members.

It was expected that the resignation of Major Beattie would have been dealt with, but action was deferred until the second Tuesday of September.

The call from Lakefield for the Rev. P. L. Jull, B.A., was received, and Messrs. Young, Fairbairn and Dr. Smith were heard in support of the call, and it was sustained. It will now be dealt with by the Ottawa Presbytery on the third Tuesday of September, as Rev. Mr. Jull belongs there, and he will have to accept or decline it at that date.

Among those present at the meeting were Revs. G. I. Craw, Peterborough, James Skene, Havelock, J. E. Smith, Lakefield, J. P. McInnis, Omemee, W. S. Mahon, of Pontypool, H. Brown, Warsaw, and W. L. H. Rowand, Peterborough.

Her Forethought

A girl who had recently figured in a romantic runaway match was, after her return home, telling her dearest friend all about it.

The latter interrupted with this question: "When you eloped with Louis did you leave a note telling your folks where you had gone "

'Why, of course," said the wife. "If I hadn't, how on earth would papa have known where to send us any money."

Campbell, of this city, and one brother avid, residing in Cavan. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the residence of Mr. Frank Campbell to the Little Lake Cemetery at 2:30 o'clock. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. G. I Craw at 2 o'clock.

JAMES M. BENNETT.

The Citizen of Auburn, New York, contains a long sketch of the life of the late James M. Bennett, who recently died suddenly in that place. Mr. Bennett was well known in this city where he spent three years as superintendent of the now defunct Cordage Company. Referring to this period of his life the Citizen says:

"In the middle of the late '90's he accepted a position as superintendent of the Canadian Cordage Company, located in Peterborough, Ont., a position which he filled most satisfactorily for about three years. He then returned to Auburn, his former home and had ever since been with the Columbian Rope Company.

The late Mr. Bennett is survived by a widow and four children, two sons and two daughters. He was a native of Scotland and nearly 80 years old.

JAMES JEFFERSON REID.

In the death of James J. Reid of Burleigh Township who passed away on July 31st at his home, the township lost one of its oldest and most respected citizens. He was born May 13, 1844, at Flint Creek, New York State, and came to Burleigh over forty years ago. Thus he encountered and overcame many obstacles which pioneer residents are forced to come in contact with. He was a quiet man, always to be found at his home, busy with his farm duties. In politics he was a lifelong Liberal, but took no active part and in religion he was an adherent of the Methodist Church. During his lengthy illness, although suffering greatly from cancer, he was always patient and thinking of the comfort of others.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife, three daughters and six sons, namely: Mrs. Wm. McCauley of Burleigh; Mrs. R McCauley of Dummer; Miss Emma, at home; Messrs. Albert, Hilliard, and Gordon of Burleigh; Alexander of Peterborough; James of Chesley, and Thomas, somewhere in France. He leaves also one brother, Mr. Washington Reid of Warsaw, and one sister, Mrs. Bulah Esplen of Port Elgin.

The funeral which was largely attended took place on Thursday to Warsaw cemetery. Service was held at the house and at the grave by Rev. S. Carr of Apsley.

The family have the deep sympathy of all their friends in their bereavement.

"A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home

WAR AND CONSERVATION

United States' Action and Canada's Supply of Power

Canada depends upon the United States for a large portion of her coal supply both for domestic and industrial purposes; she is therefore much interested in the coal conditions obtaining there. Communications from Secretary F. K. Lane of the U. S. Dept. of the Interior show how acute the situation was made by the entrance of our neighbors into the war. One of the remedies urged, particularly applicable to Canada, was the conservation of fuel by the efficient use of all available water-power. Elimination of unnecessary consumption of coal is considered a problem of national interest and of immediate concern.

New power requirements should therefore be met, so far as practicable by utilization of hydro-electric energy, this would also apply to present steam generating energy consuming coal or oil in its production, says Conservation. Thus, all water available at water-power plants should be utilized to produce energy up to the capacity of the works and the requirements of the population and industries within transmission distance of the site; every facility should also be given for the efficient development of new sites.

In regions where water-power can be made available steam-power plants should be operated only to carry loads in excess of those that can be carried by water-power plants. The adoption of this course, in many cases, would mean cheaper operation, particularly in view of the rapidly increasing price of coal. Every additional hydro-electric horse-power used in Canada means the yearly liberation of from 10 to 12 tons of coal for domestic heating or other purposes where hydro-electric energy cannot be so effectively substituted.

FISHER vs. CHURCHILL

Antwerp and Gallipoli Sometimes Classed as "Sacrifice Hits"

When Winston Churchill returned to the government some of his earlier affairs were discussed as follows: With regard to the Antwerp venture many believe that it was a necessary attempt for the purpose of showing Belgium, which had suffered so much, that she could depend upon Great Britain to stand by her in a crisis. As an American writer says, Antwerp was a "sacrifice hit." The Dardanelles, too, might be similarly regarded. It was a move on behalf of Russia, and in the early days of the war the tremendous efforts made by Russia were factors almost as decisive as the Battle of the Marne. Churchill was primarily responsible for both Antwerp and Gallipoli, and he went out of office not merely because they failed, but because he essayed them against the advice of Baron Fisher. Later developments have shown that Baron Fisher did not make his advice emphatic. He was rather cautious in predicting failure for both efforts. Had he flatly refused his sanction they might never have been undertaken.

TROUBLE ALREADY STARTED IN QUEBEC ANTI-CONSCRIPTIONISTS USE DYNAMITE

HOME OF LORD ATHELSTAN DAMAGED BY DYNAMITERS

Windows Blown Out But No One Injured ---Proprietor of Montreal Star Had Been Warned by Letter to Expect Death if Conscription Bill Passed.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, Aug. 9..—The summer home of Lord Athelstan at Cartierville was dynamited last night. The house was badly damaged.

Lord Athelstan is proprietor of the Montreal Star and was formerly known as Sir Hugh Graham. The Star has been very active in supporting conscription.

Lord Athelstan was not in his residence when dynamiters partially wrecked it. A hole three feet by four feet was torn up in the lawn, and windows were smashed. Thomas Graham, brother of the baron, and eight servants were sleeping on the premises. No one was injured. The house is six miles from Montreal.

Auto tracks leading to within three hundred yards of the house were discovered this morning, and it was learned that a car with six men in it was heard to drive quickly away from the vicinity at 4 o'clock this morning, the time the explosion took place.

Lord Athelstan has received numerous threatening letters, posted in the United States, warning him that the passing of the conscription bill would be succeeded within ten days by his death and that of a number of other prominent people in Montreal and Ottawa.

Later information shows that both Lord and Lady Athelstan with their daughter and Mr. Thomas Graham and eight servants were all sleeping in the house at the time of the outrage.

EXONERATE C.P.R.; WILLIAM ROSS INQUEST OVER

TRAIN CREW AND PASSENGERS TESTIFY THE MAN WAS INTOXICATED.

"The deceased William Ross, came to his death on Saturday, August 4th, by falling off a C.P.R. train, while under the influence of liquor. The C.P.R. trainmen are not responsible for injury to the deceased."

The above verdict was recorded by the coroner's jury, which inquired into the cause of the death of Wm. Ross, C.P.R. car checker, Port McNicoll, who was fatally injured by falling from a C.P.R. train near Beal's tannery, on Saturday, Aug. 4th.

The jury comprised the following: John O'Reilly (foreman), Alex. Clark, A. J. Campbell, Geo. Ashman, A. E. Moore, Robt. Touchburn, John Dundas, George Cuthbert.

Conductor Bott, of the Port McNicoll train, testified that he had ordered deceased off the coach platform into the coach, as he appeared to be incapable of looking after his own safety.

Mr. R. M. Miller, Peterborough, testified that he notified Conductor Bott that Ross was missing from the train, which was backed up about half a mile, where deceased was found.

Mr. Fred Marrion, of Peterborough, testified as to having seen a large bottle of liquor near the deceased when his body was found.

Mr. Bert Bate, of Lindsay, testified that he saw a large bottle on the deceased, who was in a staggering condition on the train.

Dr. Blanchard, who made the examination, was then called, and stated that on the body was found $42.50 in cash, a bank book on the Royal Bank, Pt. McNicoll, for $151, a post card, a watch, and a bottle containing about 1½ ozs. of extract of Jamaica ginger. The bottle was corked and appeared to be nearly full. The doctor stated that he thought he detected an alcoholic smell off the body and the nurses thought the same.

SCHOONER LOST IN HEAVY GALE; 12 ARE DROWNED

The "George A. Marsh," Belleville, Foundered in Lake Ontario.

TWO ON BOARD ESCAPE.

All of Those Who Perished, As Well As the Saved, From Belleville.

Kingston, Aug. 9.—News that 12 persons were drowned in a terrible gale which swept Lake Ontario all Tuesday night, when the "George A. Marsh," a three-masted coal schooner, of Belleville, foundered between Nine Mile Point and Pidgeon Island, was the startling news that came over the telphone from Bath, where the first news of the awful tragedy was received. There were 14 people on the vessel, and out of that number 12 were drowned, all of whom, so it is stated, belonged to Belleville. Those who were drowned were: Captain Smith, his wife and five children; Wm. Watkins, mate; George Cousens, deck hand, and Mrs. McClennan and two children. The survivors were Wm. Smith, about 19 years of age, a son of the captain, and Mr. McClenna. The "Marsh," which is owned in Belleville, was on her way from Oswego to Kingston with a cargo of coal for Rockwood hospital.

Lost From Boat.

The schooner foundered about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The first news of the terrible lake tragedy was received when Hugh McCartney and Benjamin, two young fishermen from Amherst Island, went out in their boats several hours later to lower their nets, when they came across Mr. McClennan and Captain Smith's son coming in from the scene of the wreck in a small boat. It is stated the wind blew at the rate of 35 miles an hour and that it came up very suddenly. Marine men say that a wind of this velocity is a most remarkable happening for a summer month. It appears there were five people in the boat in which McClennan and young Smith made their escape, but that they were lost, as the storm tossed the small craft about with terrible force. McClennan had one of his little children clasped in his arms, but the little one died from exposure.

TRIUMPH FOR BORDEN WAR POLICY

(Special to The Review.)

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—Later telegrams from Winnipeg show that early advices from the Liberal convention were paving the way for a backdown. Neely, Liberal, broke away from Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the conscription vote in the Commons, and it is his resolution that was carried unanimously, thus approving the Borden policy, condemning, of course, Borden's inefficiency and mistakes. The result is considered a complete triumph for the Borden military policy.

The Opposition's attack on public ownership last night in the Canadian Northern Railway debate is another and perhaps a greater surprise.

Irishman to Raise Regiment of Jews

WILL BE EMPLOYED IN SERVICE IN PALESTINE, WAR OFFICE SAYS.

London, Aug. 9.—The war office has decided to organize a Jewish division or brigade, and the work will be undertaken by Lieut.-Col. J. H. Patterson, D.S.O., an Irishman. It has been estimated that there are 40,000 Jews in the British army, including 8,000 colonials. About 30,000 are on foreign service.

It is intended to employ the Jewish force in Palestine, and their religious convictions will be considered in every way. They will have their own cooks and bakers, and the dietary will be in conformity with Jewish ideals.

Three Months Short of Century Mark

DEATH OF ONE OF FIRST SETTLERS IN WEST DURHAM.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—Mrs. Mary Gibbard, the last of the first settlers of West Durham, died yesterday at the home of her son, Mr. George E. Gibbard in Toronto. If she had lived until next November she would have been one hundred years of age.

The internment will take place in Bowmanville.

PORT HOPE HOME BURNED.

Port Hope, Ont., Aug. 9.—A house on Hope street, owned by John Huffman and occupied by Wm. Creamer and family, was totally destroyed by fire Tuesday night.

BRITISH AIRMEN OPERATE 40 MILES BEHIND GERMANS

STREET RAILWAY MEN ARE GIVEN RAISE IN PAY

NEW BEGINNERS GET FIVE CENTS, OLDER HANDS 2½ CENTS AN HOUR.

The motormen and the conductors employed by the Street Railway recently applied to the hydro-electric commission for a new wage scale? A deputation laid their case before Sir Adam Beck with the result that dating from April 1 last the men are to work on a new schedule. Beginners will receive 23 instead of 18 cents an hour, while those older in the service will now get 27½ instead of 25 cents.

SENATORS PASS CONSCRIPTION

MILITARY SERVICE BILL IS ADOPTED WITHOUT DIVISION.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—After nine amendments to the motion for the third reading of the Military Service Bill had been presented and in turn been declared defeated, that measure was passed by the Senate without a division last night. Had it not been amended in certain respects in the Upper Chamber, it would now be ready to receive the Governor-General's assent and so become law. As it is, however, the bill must be returned to the Commons, where the changes made by the Senators will be discussed and concurred in. Only one of these amendments is of importance. It provides that no prosecution for any violation of the Act or the regulations shall take place without the consent of the Minister of Justice. This amendment, inserted at the instance of the Government itself, is regarded as a providing means for preventing hasty and ill-considered prosecutions.

Yesterday's discussion hinged essentially on the question of the advisability of specifically exempting divinity students. This exemption had been inserted in the Commons and afterwards eliminated. Senator Landry proposed an amendment that "clergy" within the meaning of the Act entitled to exemption should be "clergy as defined by the laws of each denomination." In the only recorded division of the day this was defeated by 34 to 24, six French Conservative Senators voting for the amendment and two Liberals against it.

WERE PLEDGED FOR LAURIER

CONVENTION AT WINNIPEG PACKED WITH HAND-PICKED DELEGATES.

Ottawa, Aug. 9.—A sidelight on the Winnipeg convention was cast by a letter received by one of the Ministers from a friend at Yorkton, Sask., explaining the manner in which the delegates had been sent. The letter says:

"You cannot hope for anything from the Liberal party in the West. They have nominated delegates to the convention in Winnipeg from Yorkton. One is a Pole, another is a Ruthenian, and I understand he cannot write his own name, and one is a Dane with little or no education. The fourth is a woman, wife of an engineer on the C.N.R., who has been about six months in the Yorkton district. I understand they are all pledged to support a resolution of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

Drop Bombs on Railway Tracks, Derailing One Train and Blowing up Another---Germans Exposed French and British Prison-to Explosives Dropped at Treves and Essen

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 9.—Last night's official statement reads: "Heavy rain is again falling. Our allies gained further ground during the day northwest of Bixschoote. Hostile raiding parties were repulsed last night and this morning north of Roeux and in the neighborhood of Oppy. The enemy's artillery continued to show great activity east of Ypres. Yesterday in spite of a continuous mist our airplanes bombed the enemy's railway tracks, sidings, and trains forty miles behind the German lines, causing much damage, derailing one train and blowing up another. Bombs were also dropped the previous night on an enemy ammunition depot. One of our machines is missing."

French Take Prisoners.

Paris, Aug. 9.—The official statement says: There has been activity of artillery on both sides in the region of Pantheon and Epine de Chevregny. A surprise attack by French troops to east of Noisy farm resulted in their bringing back prisoners.

In the region of Eparges, to the north of Vaux-Les-Palameix, one of our detachments penetrated the German trenches, and after a spirited engagement in the course of which they inflicted heavy losses on the enemy and broke up his organizations, returned without losses to our lines.

There is nothing to report on the remainder of the front.

Have Exposed Prisoners.

Paris, Aug. 9.—The authorities have learned that when French aviators bombed Treves and Essen last month, the Germans placed French and British prisoners at Karlsruhe in open places where they would most likely be hit if that town were bombed and compelled them to remain until the danger was past.

A Secret Passage.

Rome, Aug. 9.—Discovery has been made that there was a secret underground passage between the villa formerly occupied by Prince Von Buelow, the German ambassador, and the hotel Eden, kept by a German, presumably to facilitate secret meetings.

Losses By Subs.

During the week ending August fifth Italian shipping losses comprised two steamers and one small sailing vessel.

Two Italian airplanes which recently raided Pola, destroyed two Austrian submarines that were being repaired there.

LIBERALS WOULD ADOPT ANY MEANS TO WIN WAR

Dr. Neely's Resolution Passed by Winnipeg Convention is Vague But in Reality is Approval of Sir Robert Borden's War Policy

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—The vital resolution presented to the Liberal convention by Dr. Neely, M.P. for Humboldt, is as follows:

"In this war of democratic civilization against military despotism, the conditions call for the putting forth by each allied belligerent of its full power as the only assurance of victory; in times of peril the entire resources of the country, moral and financial, man power and wealth, are justly disposable by the State for the preservation of its national liberties. The imperative duty of the people of Canada today in regard to the war is its continued and vigorous prosecution.

"1. By conferring with the British Government for the purpose of definitely ascertaining the scope and character of the service that can best be rendered by Canada in the conduct of the war.

"2. By the maintenance, in unimpaired strength at the front, of our forces, and the taking of all steps necessary to secure required reinforcements for the Canadian contingent.

"3. By organizing the production of other contributions to the war, such as food, munitions and other war necessities, upon lines of the greatest efficiency.

"4. By the complete extinction of profiteering in all business having to do with munitions and the necessaries of life, if necessary, by the nationalization of these industries or by the adaptation of the British system of control.

"5. By the recovery for the public treasury of undue profits obtained since the beginning of the war by exploitation of the interests of the people for the present requirements of the State.

"6. By the application of a combined system of sharply graded taxation upon incomes and excess profits which shall insure that every citizen shall bear his or her full share of the war burden according to his or her means.

"7. By thoroughly organizing the nation and carrying out this program by whatever means may be necessary for its accomplishment."

A garden party in aid of the Red Cross will be held on the grounds at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes, McKellar street, on Tuesday August 28th.

"Holmewood Hall" as the residence is called, is situated at the end of the George street car line and overlooks the river and is a very ideal spot for the holding of a garden fete.

The festival will be on both afternoon and evening. There will be all kinds of amusement and refreshments served. The ladies are already arranging for the booths and in addition there will be tables for bridge and five hundred. Those interested in Red Cross work are asked to keep this date open. Full details of the fete will be announced at a later date.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY, AUG. 9, 1917

A PATHETIC SURVIVAL.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is opposing the Conscription Bill in Canada. He might as well oppose the use of sandbags or the rifle in war. The law of conscription is today becoming the law of self-preservation. There are a certain number of people at home and in Great Britain who wish to stop the war and "fake up" a truce with Germany, and they are the natural foes of conscription as the first essential to a continuance of the war. Sir Wilfrid Laurier does not belong to these pacifists—far from it; he appears to be, rather, a pathetic survival of the old Liberalism before the war. He will, of course, be swept away, and shortly the only white country on earth where conscription will not exist as an elementary law of life will be Ireland.—London Saturday Review.

UTTERLY UNFAIR.

THE DEPARTMENT of Labor engaged Mr. O'Connor, a lawyer, but lacking business training, to investigate the packing house business of the country. His report was sent in and was given to the newspapers before it was submitted to Parliament. The reporters, in the rush of getting the matter before the public, overlooked the fact that there is a vast difference between the margins alluded to by Mr. O'Connor and the actual profits made by the company. The mischief was done, however. The people were given the idea that the Davies Packing Company made a profit of five million dollars in their sales of bacon alone in one year.

Mr. O'Connor himself, let it be said to his credit, has done what he could to correct this erroneous impression. He has suffered by the premature and incorrect publication only to a lesser extent that the companies involved. So far as one firm is concerned, Mr. O'Connor has written over his own signature to say that there is nothing in his report that reflects upon them.

That should be sufficient to induce the public to suspend judgment until the matter is investigated, but the virus of political animosity continues to get in its deadly work . A misguided and misinformed local contemporary echoes the scandals that have been started higher up and represents the Davies company, with a former local man at he head of it, as daylight robbers who have grown rich through the misfortune of war.

Figures may never lie if left to themselves, but in the hands of the designing and the innocent they are often made to tell strange stories. The margin of five million dollars referred to in the O'Connor report does not represent profits. It would be just as fair to say that a merchant whose sales for a year totalled $200,000 was that much richer. The farmer who buys a pig for say $5 and after putting it through the fattening process sells it to the packing house for ten times that amount, is not $45 to the god by any means when his expenses are reckoned. The packing houses are in the same position.

Why not be fair? Why attempt to deceive the people all for political gain? If any minister at Ottawa loses his position over the affair it will be because he made use of his position to wreak a personal vengeance. Such a course would be sufficiently reprehensible, but it was infinitely worse to influence the public mind by springing a baseless sensation.

The action of our local contemporary in this matter will go further in confirming the general impression that it is lacking both in political principle and in moral courage.

ON THE WRONG TRAIL.

THE LIBERALS in convention at Winnipeg abandoned themselves to the adopting of resolutions and led off with one condemning Sir Robert Borden. That at least was expected. It will not escape notice, however, that, up to the time of writing, the delegates have not had the hardihood to venture on encomiums upon their own former leader who has deserted them on the eve of battle.

Another resolution adopted by the convention favored carrying on the war with the utmost vigor. How is this to be accomplished by a party that has its face set in the wrong direction? The Liberals should know by this time that they have nothing to expect from Sir Wilfrid Laurier. They have since the beginning of their convention overheated the telegraph wires urging the chieftain to agree to resort to conscription if the voluntary system proves a failure after another trial.

But Sir Wilfrid Laurier refuses to budge. The interests of the Empire and the nation are made secondary to the wishes of his own people. Under no circumstances will he favor compulsory military service.

The Western Liberals are no doubt sincere in their desire to win the war. They can never hope to achieve their object while associated with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and what is left of his followin. They must drop politics and unite with the people of the east who are out to win the war regardless of what politician or party is effaced by the movement.

THE BILL IS LAW.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that the Military Service Bill has passed its third reading in the Senate without a division. The sentiment was so pronounced in favor of the measure that it was not necessary to divide the Upper Chamber on the question of its final adoption. The bill will probably be signed by the Governor-General today, and will at once become a law. What is still more to the purpose, its operation will begin at once.

The Military Service Act has been thoroughly discussed, and has been the main question before the public for months. There has been no attempt to suppress debate by a resort to closure. It was passed by the largest majority ever given an important measure in the Canadian Parliament, and the support which it received in the Senate is another convincing proof of its popularity.

The people have spoken through their elected representatives and the verdict is clear. Even Quebec should now be ready to accept the issue and submit to the finding, just as the province has pledged itself to do if the Act were approved by either a direct vote or as shown by the result of the coming general election. The Bill is now a law of the land. Anyone who talks against it or who opposes it in any way must be ready to take the consequences.

A QUESTION OF SANITY.

The statements made by and in behalf of the young woman who shot her divorced husband five times in the back and killed him as she might have killed a dog at Westbury Long Island, on Friday evening, indicate the prevalence of queer notions as to the laws under which we are supposed to live, says the New York Sun. The idea seems to exist that the death penalty is the proper punishment for conjugal infidelity; and that a wife does nothing more than is to be expected if she cooly and deliberately takes the life of a husband who has been unfaithful to his marriage vows. Her subsequent utterances are as remorseless as the killing; and her counsel declares: "If I fail to acquit that poor little woman on the story she has given me I'll walk up to the judge and hand him over my certificate of practice."

Meantime the victim of the homicide is being deprived of his character as he has been deprived of his right to live.

Of course if Mrs. De Saulles was insane when she killed her former husband she will be and ought to be acquitted; that is to say if she was so mentally deranged as not to know the nature and quality of her act or know that it was wrong. Her present apologists, however who insist that her husband's marital misconduct constitutes any justification or excuse for her wicked act are either ignorant of the law or without respect for it. If Mr. De Saulles was sane, in the legal sense of the term, when she fired the fatal shots, and is acquitted of responsibility therefor, the acquittal will be equivalent to whiting in the statute book: "A husband's adultry shall hereafter be punishable by death at the hands of his wife."

No jury in the world would adjudge Mr. De Saulles worthy of death for the acts of which his wife complains. Why, then, should a jury excuse her for inflicting the death penalty upon him?. There is only one valid reason: her insanity.

It is intolerable that the law should sanction any infliction of capital punishment except through its own agencies and for offensives that have previously been denounced as capital.

Such cases as these are becoming as common in the United States as the lynching of Southern negroes, and the first conviction of a woman so accused has yet to be recorded. The record will be different when women themselves are called to serve on juries.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE BILL is now law, Quebec notwithstanding and nevertheless.

• • •

TOMORROW is fish day, and do not forget that, if you are planning a meatless day once a week.

• • •

THE HARVEST truly is plentiful, but among the ministers the farm volunteers are painfully few.

• • •

AND THE SLACKER, too, will cease his pool games long enough to cast his vote against conscription.

• • •

THE ROCK at Quebec may shift its positon, but Sir Wilfrid will never budge from his anti-conscription stand.

• • •

THE LOCAL Liberal party appears to have dwindled down to the men who declare that they do not want the nomination.

• • •

LIBERALISM these days, in Peterborough and the country over, seems to be largely a matter of squaring it with conscience.

• • •

THE ALIENS and the slackers will not hesitate about "going over the top" when it comes to voting against conscription.

• • •

IT IS THE SOLDIERS in the trenches, not Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who are entitled to the support of the Canadian people.

• • •

CABINET CHANGES in Germany will avail the people nothing. What they require is a change of kaiser, or, better still, of constitution.

• • •

THE DETHRONED CZAR is not to be allowed to vote. If transported to Canada his right to do so would scarcely be challenged except by the soldiers.

• • •

THE MAN who talks of winning the war and then works against conscription is as illogical as the confirmed bachelor who advises women to marry.

• • •

THE LONDON Advertiser piously calls upon the people to pray for a leader. No one will deny the necessity so far as the Liberal party is concerned.

• • •

THERE IS TO BE an election in which the interests of the soldiers are, or should be, paramount. Then let the soldiers be given every chance to declare themselves.

• • •

WHEN a political convention finds itself threatened with a deadlock it can always find vent for its feelings by adopting a resolution or two condemning the other side.

• • •

AMBASSADOR GERARD'S book on Germany seems to establish nothing quite so clearly as that it is impossible for the Kaiser to tell the truth except by accident.

• • •

THE ONLY COURSE left open for Sir Joseph Flavelle in order to secure the support of The Examiner is to move to Peterborough. While he is at a distance it is safe to attack him.

• • •

IF THE ALIENS of enemy nationality are to be allowed the franchise at the coming election, then every man in uniform should be given at least two votes to offset this malign influence.

A WORD TO THE WISE

(Brockville Times)

Why will the rural correspondent insist upon assuring newspaper readers that "a sad case of drowning" occurred or a wedding was "quietly" celebrated? A truly humorous case of drowning or a riotously celebrated mariage would possess the element of the unusual which is another word for the news value.

WHY NEGROES COME NORTH

A well known and reputable Negro of Birmingham, Ala., writes to J. C. Manning, a former member of the legislative of that State, but now residing in New York, complaining of the treatment of his people by the Southern whites. The letter, published in the New York Sun, is as follows:

Dear Mr. Manning: There is not a man living who knows the whole situation of alarming conditions that exist among my people in the South. Only a few days ago two young negroes, who left Lowndes county the latter part of last year because they could not make a living (and against the will of the white man whom they had been working for all their lives for nothing), hearing that their old father was dying, went back to see the last of him. Simply because they would not agree to stay, the white man, as usual, began to cuff and kick them around. When they attempted to defend themselves, and having made their way to Montgomery, they were arrested as they started to board the train for Birmingham, where they had work. Carried back, on the way a mob, as usual, overpowered the Sheriff and hanged them both to the first tree they could find, simply because they would not stay and work on the farm, where they could not even get enough to eat.

Always your friend,
C. A. HOWZE.

A Nation In Danger.

Commenting on the letter Mr. Manning says:

On January 15 The Sun published a letter from my pen on the subject of "Negro Migration From the South," and I then stated that unbearable conditions were causing the self-exile of colored people from the South and that it would keep up until a half million had left for the North.

That many have already left the South, and as many more will have come within the next six months.

Just such incidents as related by Mr. Howze are a reason why life is intolerable for colored people in these States that have lynched the liberty guarantees of the Constition, and now, so freely and restrained, lynch colored people as a daily pastime.

The reelection of President Wilson has caused the "South in the saddle" oligarchy to feel that they have the nation by the tail and a down hill pull; while a sort of go as far as you like with the "damn a negro anyhow" sentiment is enthroned. Sooner or later this thing is going to cause this whole country to hang its head in shame.

I forewarn the North that unless public sentiment is quickly aroused against this mob law menace, this spirit of mob government and political thugism, there is something so shameful ahead coming of this increased and increasing inhumanity as will bring regret and remorse to all the people of the entire country.

INDIAN RIVER

(Special Correspondence.)

Indian River, Ont., Aug. 8.—Miss Berna Clements was the guest of Miss Hazel Hall on Sunday last. Miss Hall drove her home on Monday with her magnificent car.

Mr. David Kidd was in both Warsaw and Westwood on Sunday.

Winning the war by the aid of phonographs may seem absurd to the general public. However, the Indian River Win-the-War Committee has made that resolution. Records of sermons are to be procured for the purpose of economizing in preachers. Also records imitating officers giving commands and tin cans rattling are to be bought in huge quantities. The phonograph in this case is to be placed directly in front of the German front line. The Germans will immediately open fire on it, and the allies are calculated to get behind them and win a complete victory.

The farmers in this locality are right into their harvest now. Peas and oats are being cut by not a few.

If you ever have a thought
That you'd like to find a spot,
Where the frogs spring,
And the mud-turtles sing,
Where the water is right,
And the fish bite;
Just find the little ridge,
Just below the railroad bridge.

He Couldn't Raise Hand to His Head

Arthur Ward Suffered With Rheumatism for Fifteen Years.

"Rheumatism had me in its clutches for fifteen years and there was never a day or an hour during that time I was free from pain until I got relief by taking Tanlac," said Arthur Ward of 1978 Dundas street Toronto. Mr. Ward is by trade a stationary fireman. He has lived in Toronto for a number of years and is now employed by the Government.

"My shoulders and arms hurt me so bad," continued Mr. Ward, "that I couldn't raise my hands to put on my cap and coat and my wife had to help me to dress and undress. I would come home at nights from my work simply suffering agony. My neck was so stiff I could hardly turn my head and my leg throbbed and pained like a bad toothache. In fact, every muscle in my body seemed to be affected and I would just toss and roll all night in so much misery I couldn't sleep. I would start off to my work in the mornings so crippled up and stiff I could hardly move. The pain in my leg seemed to go clean to the bone and at times I couldn't bear my weight on it at all. I tried everything in the way of medicines, and during the past three years have had four operations on my leg, but got little or no relief. I just can't describe my awful suffering and had just about given up all hope of ever getting any better.

"My wife had been keeping up with the Tanlac testimonials so one day she said, 'Arthur, I believe if you will try Tanlac it will help you.' So more to please her than anything else I bought a bottle, and I can tell you frankly, it is the finest thing I have ever taken, and two bottles have done me more good than everything else put together. Of course I'm still taking it but my rheumatism is already so much better that I hardly notice it any more, and my general health is greatly improved. I'm never bothered any more with those awful pains through my body, all the stiffness has gone out of my arms shoulders and legs, and while my work is hard I can stick to it all day and feel good when night comes. I'm feeling fine now, better than I have in years, so you see I have the best of reasons for praising Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Tame Drug Co., Ltd.

TO REMOVE MILDEW

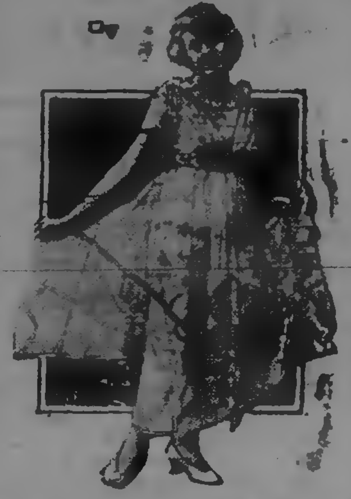
How to Restore Clothes That Seem Ruined

A woman generally takes the utmost care when she wears a linen blouse. She will guard it zealously against every spot or stain. Then, one day, she will find that despite her care while wearing it, the blouse has acquired several ugly mildew spots. To remove them, try boiling the blouse in sour milk and hang it in the sun to dry, after which proceed to wash and boil in the ordinary manner. Or try rubbing the spots with a piece of green tomato, and leave the garment in the air for twenty-four hours. A third method is to mix soap with powdered starch, salt and lemon juice. Apply this mixture to both sides of the article and lay it on the grass until the stain disappears.

Powdering the Baby

There are diverse opinions about powdering baby after the bath. If the baby is dried perfectly this should not be necessary in cool weather, but it is not easy to dry a baby absolutely. It is therefore well, after drying a child, to powder it well. The powder should be of the simplest kind; the purer it is the healthier it will keep the skin.

Debutante's Frock



An extremely simple dance frock is shown, suitable for the debutante, the drop being a simple circular affair corded at the bottom. The double tunic and its pointed bottom finish with a narrow metal footing. The bodice is very simple, the tulle veiling having a band of metal brocade.

Watch Baby's Breathing

A mother should begin to train the baby to breathe through its nose at once. This advice seems threadbare with repeating. But there are new babies and new mothers in the world every day.

The habit, once formed, is likely to continue through an individual's life. To try and train a good-sized child, or, worse still, a grown person to breathe through the nose is a problem.

The nose is a better filtering plant than man has been able to invent. It not only filters the air, but it also warms and moistens it, preparing it for contact with the lungs. Pure air is just as necessary to the lungs as pure water is to the stomach. Therefore breathe only through the nose.

If you find trouble in breathing this way, or the child seems unable to breathe through the nose while sleeping, adenoids or some other obstruction may be causing the trouble. Such a difficulty should always be a warning to the mother to have the child's nose and throat carefully examined at once.

NEWFOUNDLAND'S PART IN WAR SACRIFICES

Ten Thousand Volunteers in Less Than Three Years for Sea and Land Fighting

Sir W. E. Davidson, K.C.M.G., Governor of Newfoundland, as chairman of the Patriotic Association of the oldest Colony, issued a report of Newfoundland's share of the war burden. Newfoundland is only about the size of the State of New York. Until recent years it had not a human settlement beyond sight and sound of the Atlantic Ocean. The chief industries are the relatively poor ones of fishing and lumbering. The population is only about a quarter of a million.

All Over the World

"Newfoundlanders," says Sir W. E. Davidson, "are found in most boarding parties and wherever handy men are required to man ships' boats on stormy seas. The Newfoundland R.N.R. serve in drifters and mine-sweepers, in cruisers and torpedo-boats, in battle ships and armed auxiliary cruisers. Many know the North Sea well and the Channel and the narrow seas. Many have cruised as far north as Jan Mayen Land and are familiar with the coast of Iceland and the shores of the northern isles. Others are serving in the Mediterranean, the Persian Gulf, and all over the Atlantic.

"When the Greif was sunk Newfoundlanders were in the Alcantara and won prize money in that famous fight. Others were in Beatty's squadron when the Blucher was sunk. Some helped to hunt the German High Sea Fleet back behind its mine fields when they ventured out just for once as far as the Jutland coast. Many were in action at the Dardanelles, and several received special distinction in that service."

A Grand Regiment

Of the Newfoundland Regiment's deeds Mr. Beach Thomas wrote: "The names that glitter on its banner are Gallipoli, Beaumont-Hamel, Gueudecourt, the Somme, and Monchy. The First Newfoundland Regiment sent 3,431 men overseas up to May 20 1917; 237 (until then) were killed in action, 108 died of wounds, and 42 of disease. The wounded (many twice or even thrice) is 1,136, the missing 441, and 4 are prisoners of war. The total number of Newfoundlanders who have offered themselves for active service is over 10,000, "the flower of the race — to fight for right."

ALL SORTS OF NURSES

A convalescent British soldier writes: Our ministering angels had their nicknames. One was "the dear little girl," so-called because a sentimental Royal Fusilier always alluded to her in these terms; another was "Whiz Bang," an expert nurse from London, who combined a great deal of medical knowledge with a most lively disposition. "Fatty" really was not fat. She was nice and round and plump. "Grandma" was a Scottish lady of proud name and advancing years, and her title was one of grateful affection, for she insisted on procuring the sleepless ones hot milk ad lib. and saw that we had hot tea first thing in the morning and plenty of "backsheesh" cigarettes. Her language was stately and mid-Victorian, and she could reduce the matron to silence. Our matron was one of those women whom experience had not soured.

C.O. KILLED IN ACTION

Man Whose Effigy was Publicly Burned in England

A conscientious objector whose effigy was publicly burned at Bath when the tribunals were first set up made the supreme sacrifice. He was Pte. Henry Bellamore, Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry, son of Mr. H Bellamore, St. John's-road, Lower Weston, Bath.

Bellamore, who was an insurance agent, told the tribunal he considered the war was an invention of the Devil, and that he would go to gaol or be shot rather than do anything towards helping on the war.

He also stated that if he saw a wounded soldier with crutches fall he would not help him if there were anyone else to do it, even if he knew the man was suffering from wounds received in defence of his country. Subsequently Bellamore joined up voluntarily, and among his comrades was highly popular.

Pride in His Hospital

Just as some of the New Army men found difficulty at first in "fatigue work" so did some of our nurses, but they would never let you know it, is the testimony of an observant Tommy. A man always has the convenient short expletive, but nurses must not say it in hospital, though they must think it pretty often. The experienced campaigner takes almost as much pride in his hospital as in his regiment, and it is an extraordinary thing, but the simple request of some nice little V.A.D. lady has much more effect than the bellowed demands of the beefiest of sergeant-majors, for such is the perversity of the soldier.

Advancing Amid Clouds

The greatest and perhaps the least known use of camouflage is to hide troops advancing in an attack in daylight. This is done by expelling great clouds of smoke or vapor from the trenches before the infantry go over the top. Generally the men wait until the cloud has settled over the enemy's trenches, confusing them and preventing their firing accurately at the attackers. Sometimes the attacking troops leave the trenches with the cloud and advance in its protection.

Mr. James Kershaw, who had just retired from business as a Manchester cotton manufacturer and was helping the Church Army in France, was killed by a shell.

Prince Charles, second son of the King of the Belgians, became a naval cadet at Osborne.

In one "push" the British tanks used two million gallons of petrol, says the [illegible].

FELT LIKE A NEW PERSON

After Taking Only One Box Of "Fruit-a-tives"

EAST SHIP HARBOUR, N.S.

"It is with great pleasure that I write to tell you of the wonderful benefits I have received from taking "Fruit-a-tives". For years, I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches, and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicines seemed to help me. Then I finally tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid. After taking one box, I feel like a new person, to have relief from those sickening Headaches".

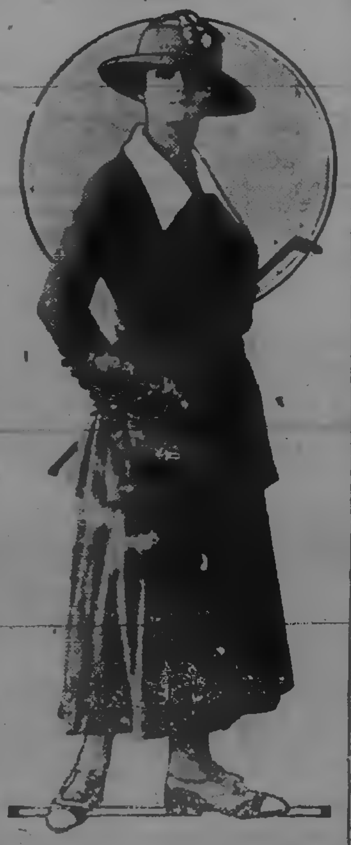
STEAM VEGETABLES

That is the Way of the Best Modern Hotels

More preferable than any boiling method for a vegetable is the steaming method. This cooks and bursts the starch cells even more satisfactorily and positively conserves the maximum amount of mineral substances in the vegetables. There is just as much difference between steaming and boiling vegetables as there is between a baked and boiled potato. Possibly not all knew that in the best hotels all vegetables are steam cooked. This accounts for the fact that vegetables under the hands of a competent chef are much more appetizing and flavorful than they are when they emerge from the hands of the average cook.

A Sport Outfit



For general sport wear a suit of green La Jerz is both practical and smart. Novel buttons serve to trim and fasten the coat. The deep pointed cuffs and pockets together with the square collar are interesting details. The semi-sport hat and buckskin shoes serve as appropriate finishing touches.

Rose Embroidery

If you desire a quick and unusual way to embroider the rose design, work the centre in solid satin stitch, using three colors. Outline all the other petals. You will be surprised how much character this bit of satin stitch in the centre will give the design. The leaves should be in long and short stitch and the scrolls in outline. Pillow cases, too, are often decorated with this braid. The hems are turned on the right side and held in place by rickrack and large initials are outlined in the centre by sewing the braid over the marked outline. Sheets may be hemmed to match the cases, so that the decorated portion can be turned down over the counterpane.

Unmarried First

It is the single men to whom a country has a right to look to do its fighting—in the first place, at least—and if they fail to respond out of a sense of duty it should be made as difficult as possible for them to remain at home when they have no good excuse for doing so.—Edmonton Journal.

For Rumpled Ribbons

When a tie or ribbon becomes wrinkled or creased it may in a minute be made as smooth and as fresh as new by slightly dampening the wrinkled spot and then wrapping the tie or ribbon around a clean, lighted electric bulb.

To Clean Linoleum

To care for the linoleum on your kitchen floor with the least work, wipe off each week with a cloth wrung out in warm water and then go over it with skim milk. If there are any bad spots soften with a little linseed oil.

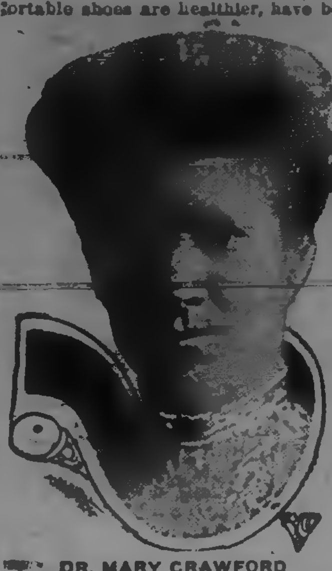
There is probably no remedy on earth quite as [illegible] a brilliant [illegible] that a man [illegible] shape of her foot or the dimple in her elbow.

HEELS AFFECT COMPLEXION

Woman Physician Says Low Heels Mean Good Health

The height in heels makes a difference in the color of the complexion according to Dr. Mary Crawford, of New York, who makes physical examinations of women applicants for civil service positions.

"Women who wear low-heeled, comfortable shoes are healthier, have better complexions and are happier than those who wear high-heeled shoes," she avows.



DR. MARY CRAWFORD

"When a woman's feet feel comfortable she doesn't hesitate to walk. Walking makes the blood circulate and good circulation aids the complexion and general health." There you have the philosophy of Dr. Crawford.

HUNNISH BOOMERANG

War to Promote Trade Merely Assisted Japanese

Before the war Japan depended almost entirely upon Germany for her dyestuffs, drugs and chemicals, says the Japan Magazine. The war suddenly cut off Japan's supply. She was wholly unprepared for entering this new industrial field. But the government stepped in and with the help of sufficient state subsidies, the Japan Dyestuff Cie. (capitalization of 8,000,000 yen), the Domestical Pharmaceutical Cie. (capital 1,000,000 yen), the Oriental Drug Cie. (capital 5,000,000 yen) and the Japan Glycerine Cie. (capital 3,000,000 yen) appeared in the market.

T. Fujimoto, the manager and chief chemist of the J. D. C., succeeded in producing glycerine from fish oil. Other Japanese chemists set to work on a process of how to produce aniline from benzine. In brief, Japanese chemical industry entered a new phase, and Germany, who started this war to conquer the world, but succeeded in emancipating it from Teutonic influences.

COMEDIES OF HOSPITAL

How Wounded Tommies are Kept from Bitter Thoughts

"She's a fine lass; aye, an' she wears silk stockin's an' her feyther's a colonel," reported the intelligence department in a hoarse whisper to Ward 2. Patients in war hospitals are as interested in their nurses as schoolboys are in their masters. My own preference for nurses is one very common in his Majesty's Army, however, writes a wounded soldier. The intelligence department, one Angus McNicol, of a Highland regiment, having ascertained that the new probationer was assigned for day duty in Ward 1, the headquarters staff of Ward 2 sent out a diplomatic mission to endeavor by fair words and the recital of interesting deeds to win the attention of the new nurse and cause her to transfer her allegiance. There are many similar little comedies in hospital life. They serve to keep the wounded soldier from bitter thoughts.

Didn't Like Honor

Just before graduating as honor man at the Harrisburg (Pa.) Technical High School, modest John Watchman disappeared, leaving a note that he could not stand "all this raving about being at the head of any class." A few months later his parents received a letter which said only: "I am with the British army in France."

There were seven wranglers, five men and two women, in the smallest mathematical tripos list on record published at Cambridge in 1917.

The British Postmaster-General recommended that all eggs in parcels to troops should be hard-boiled.

Queen Alexandra sent the London hospital toys for little air-raid sufferers.

SOME GOOD RECIPES FOR SWEET PICKLES

Spiced sweet pickles may be made of pears, grapes, cherries, apples, peaches, watermelon rinds, mangoes or ripe cucumbers. The delicate fruits are seeded or not according to preference and put directly into the spiced vinegar. The tougher material is soaked in brine, drained, scalded in alum water and then in the spiced vinegar.

By the old method, the spiced vinegar is heated and poured over the pickles, which are covered and allowed to cool. Each morning for nine days the vinegar is drained off, reheated and poured over the pickles. They are then scalded or covered closely and set away. The vinegar is delicious for mince pies and in "sweet pickle jelly" to be used as a relish with meats.

Sweet Pickled Peaches.—Seven pounds of fruit, seeded, half as much sugar, one pint of vinegar and one ounce each of stick cinnamon or cassia buds, whole cloves, mace and allspice.

Sweet Pickled Pears—Use the small proportions as above, omitting mace and allspice and using two ounces of green ginger root, scraped and sliced.

Pickled Plums or Prunes—Use recipe for peaches. A delicious relish made by using dried prunes and a few slices of sweet orange, rind and all. This is ready for use the second day and should be served with meat or game. If the vinegar is sharp, use half vinegar and the rest of strong tea, and increase the sugar.

Pickled Muskmelon—Use small green melons. Remove seeds and rind. Cut in slices lengthwise. For each quart of water use half a pint of vinegar—cover the melons and cook slowly till tender. Drain and put in the syrup given for peaches. When it boils once remove from the fire. Drain melons and reheat vinegar on two succeeding mornings. On the third day cook the syrup until thick and pour over the melons and seal.

FOR HORSE BREEDERS

War Wastage Enormous — Start Breeding Now

The breeding of horses has become a matter of prime necessity. The demand is increasing and will continue to increase long after peace has been declared. If Canada is to take advantage of the situation the time to start in is now. There will be an assured market demand for foals at weaning time from mares bred now. Not only has the wastage by reason of war been enormous, but in all the belligerent countries, not omitting Great Britain, there has either been a partial stoppage or a whole stoppage of breeding by reason of the scarcity of labor, the disturbed conditions, or entire devastation.

Whether the war lasts or ceases there must continue an undiminished demand for horses. When peace comes there will be a long period of replenishment. Then quality as much and even more than quantity will be required. Hence the evident call to every Canadian farmer is to breed and to breed to the best available, to utilize his mares for production and to secure the immediate services of the best pure bred sire of type in his neighborhood.

CHILD "RECRUITER"

This little girl from Minneapolis made speeches in New York and other big cities to secure enlistments in the military forces of the United States.

Honors for Brave Nurse

Military honors were accorded the funeral at Eastbourne, of Miss Constance Mary Hodges, a London Red Cross nurse, who died at her post in a military hospital in the town. Miss Hodges, daughter of Colonel Hodges, Dorchester, had a medal for work in Louvain.

For wearing a discharged soldier's badge, Edward Wyles, an absentee, was in London given six weeks' hard labor.

Increased Production

Let us all catch the main idea that more production is possible. Live men are now on the executive agricultural jobs in the Western provinces. It should be an important part of their political gospel to preach production. If men, willing to farm, are deserving of help to farm and produce, the State should endeavor to do more than it has done in assisting to dig the riches out of the soil.

Thrift Will Win The War

Thrift means economy, and economy is largely a matter of where you buy.

Some people, somehow, get more for their money than others. Their money isn't worth any more, but they make better use of it.

Strange? Not a bit. They simply know where to shop. We know them well, and they know us.

That's why they're our customers.

If economy is worth while, then no person can afford to ignore this event.

Every day and every hour is saving time at Turnbull's Overloaded Sale.

Twilight Service

The twilight service in front of the town hall on Sunday evening was largely attended and great interest was manifested. Rev. W. H. Higgs took for his subject: "How long halt ye between two opinions." His eloquent discourse was listened to with close attention. A mixed choir led the singing, which was hearty and very much enjoyed. That beautiful selection, "Some day the silver chord will break," was well rendered by Rev. Dr. Lee and Rev. W. H. Higgs, and thoroughly appreciated. Mrs. Lee was the accompanist. A colection was taken and the response was very satisfactory. There will be no twilight service again until September, when after a few weeks' holidays the minister will even be in better form than formerly, and new vim will be put into the meetings which are becoming more and more interesting.

AN EX-FIREMAN SAVED HOUSE

DANGEROUS BLAZE ON ELM ST. IS CHECKED BY VOLUNTEERS.

The fire department were called out this morning to a house occupied by Mr. Frank Driscoll. 468 Elm Street. In some unknown manner a fire got started in a clothes closet, and if it had not been for the prompt action of two of the neighbors it would have resulted more serious. As it was the place was filled with smoke and was put out by the chemical tanks by the department.

Chief Howard speaks in very high terms of the skill shown in keeping the fire under control. One of the assistants confessed to the chief that he once worked in an Old Country fire hall.

The damage will amount to $25 or $30.

SIR WILFRID REFUSES TO CHANGE HIS ATTITUDE

Will Not Agree to Resort to Conscription Even if Voluntary System is Given Another Trial and Again Proves a Failure.

Winnipeg, Aug. 9.—The proceedings at the Liberal convention cannot be interpreted as an endorsation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. That, if it comes at all, must come later. The convention, under whatever leader it controls, appears to be out to win the war. Every reference to keeping Canada in the forefront of the great conflict is applauded. Delegates who have sons at the front are given tremendous receptions. Denunciation of the profiteers and the combiners and of those who are throttling agriculture are all pointed to as menaces to the Empire's success. The Premiers of the four Provinces, Martin, Sifton, Brewster, and especially Norris give every sign of being impressed with the tremendous nature of the great struggle. It is as to method that the difference will arise.

Refer to Necessity.

It is noticeable that the Premiers, in their addresses almost invariably refer to the necessity of union in Canada. That, also, is the outstanding feature of the resolution by which the convention has condemned the Government. It calls for all classes being united in one passionless effort for success. In other words, there must be no sectionalism. All this may or may not be interpreted as indicating that the Westerners are not willing to abandon voluntary recruiting without another trial, if there is going to be disunion in the country as a result. In fact, it may be said with some certainty that if Sir Wilfrid Laurier would send the convention a despatch saying that he is an ultimate conscriptionist, and will enforce compulsion if voluntarism fails on further trial, the big gathering would be behind him to a man. The point of divergence lies in the fact that many delegates, especially those from Manitoba, are not willing to dispense with conscription as a last resort. Indeed, many of these argue that Sir Wilfrid himself would employ it if necessary.

NO VOTES FOR ALIEN FOES SAY GREAT WAR VETERANS

Returned Heroes Will Act as Electi n Agents to Post Men in Trenches as to How to Vote.

Toronto, Aug. 9.—"If the election is a failure—after we have done all in our power to put in a conscription Government—then and then only will the real test come of the success or failure of our organization," declared Capt. D. M. Matheson, M.C., while the Great War Veterans assembled at Massey Hall last night at their annual election of officers cheered him to the echo.

"What has gone before will only be good practice compared with what we may have to do then," declared the officer. "Do you get me?" "We do, we do," shouted the veterans.

Capt. Matheson moved a resolution which was unanimously adopted calling upon the Government to pass a bill that will allow all soldiers, irrespctive of age, who are overseas, to vote at the forthcoming election. The Great War Veterans will also circularize all the soldiers at present overseas, pointing out who are the conscription and anti-conscription candidates in the ridings in Canada.

All aliens of enemy nationality will be disenfranchised if the war veterans have their way. A resolution recommending the Government to give effect to such action was moved by Comrade Haight, and carried unanimously.

Lieut. Machell Protested.

Lieut. H. E. Machell, who was elected vice-president of the organization, protested on the grounds that it was a Western problem and did not concern Ontario, but when Secretary W. K. Knight of the Dominion G.W.V. declared that the motion should be carried in order to give a lead to the Government, it was carried unanimously.

May be Walkout, G.N.W Operators Not Satisfied

WANT SAME CONCESSIONS AS GIVEN TO MEN OF CAN. PACIFIC.

After nearly six weeks of trying to secure a settlement regarding a new wage and time scale for the Commercial Telegraphers of the G.N.W., the committee which is in Toronto now considers itself ready to take more drastic action, and this morning C. E. MaLette, general chairman of the committee, said: "The situation is extremely serious. They may break at any time."

At a meeting in Toronto, an impromptu walkout was threatened for a while, the men being spurred by the report of a conference held with the general manager of the G.N.W., G. D. Perry. To the men he stated through the Department of Labor, that the management absolutely refused to discuss the proposed change in the wage scale and working rules, or to offer any increase whatsoever. Vigorous communications from Montreal and Winnipeg urge a strike.

"We have been nearly six weeks trying to gt to the point of talking over our demands with the management, and we are no nearer to a real conference now than we were then," said Mr. MaLette. "It looks as if a strike would be forced upon us, through our inability to get a decent hearing. The Canadian Pacific telegraphers are now receiving from $13 up to $20 per month more than we are. Their committees are treated with respect; they are met like men and matters are gone over in a reasonable way, but the G.N.W. telegraphers are not even given a chance to argue their claims."

Special meetings have been called at Ottawa, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and all points west of Winnipeg to discuss the latest events, and the committee is now awaiting wdrd from them.

England's Part in War Told in Plain Figures In Norcliffe's Speech

DECLARING that German agents, with the idea of creating friction between the Allies, had attempted to spread the report that England was keeping the bulk of her army at home to repel invasion, Lord Northcliffe replied recently with the statement that England now had an army of 2,200,000 on the French front apart from her armies in Egypt, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and Salonica. Lord Nostbcliffe outlined the accomplishments of Great Britain since the beginning of the war. He declared that the British people would see the war through to a finish.

"When I speak of Britain," he said, "[illegible] British nations—Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa—to Newfoundland, the West Indies, and the other units of Empire upon which the sun never sets. There is no red spot, however tiny, on the map of the British Empire which has not freely and gladly poured out its red blood in the rally to the motherland and world-liberty."

Lord Northcliffe added:

"What Britain has done. In the first place, we bottled up the German High Seas Fleet; swept the trade routes clear of German raiders, and prevented Great Britain and France being blockaded by sea and strangled. The British navy saved democracy in the early days of the war.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE

"In the second place, Britain buttressed the world's credit. Every one will remember the panic in the early days of August, 1914, when securities of all kinds were tumbling to apparent disaster. Britain stopped that panic, and began from the very start of the war to advance loans to its Allies—to the extent, finally, of over five thousand million dollars.

"In the third place, Britain provided the other members of the Allies with vast quantities of shipping, coal, material, and other vital necessities.

"In the fourth place, we raised huge popular loans for the conduct of the war. The last Victory Loan totalled to over six thousand million dollars. It was by far the biggest loan ever raised by any nation.

"In the fifth place, the five united British nations recruited under the volunteer system millions of men before they were obliged to resort to conscription. Millions of men offered themselves for the fight. I am no advocate of the volunteer system, because of its manifest injustices and its inefficiency for the waging of a war of the present character. But I think there is cause for pride in realising that millions of Britons from all over the world offered themselves voluntarily for war, Great Britain alone raising over 4,000,000 men.

"At the present moment we maintain over 2,200,000 men on the French front, apart from our other large armies in Egypt, several other parts of Africa, Mesopotamia, Palestine, and at Salonica. The word "maintain" means that we keep that huge mass of men up to fighting strength, constantly replacing the terrific drain of killed, wounded, and sick.

"German propagandists, with the idea of creating friction between the Allies, have tried to spread the legend that Britain keeps the bulk of her army in England to repel invasion. That is characteristically untrue. The militia forces in England consist of troops in course of training; of units of oldish men of little military value; and of the last reserve line, which we still call by the name of "volunteers," or, better, home defence men. All of these latter are over the military age of forty-one.

"We Britons are slow. It is the temperament of the race. We were slow in realising the reality of the German menace. We were slow in estimating the power of the German armies. We were slow in organizing ourselves to meet the full necessities of the war.

"But though we are slow, I think I may claim that we are thorough. When the bulldog catches hold, it keeps hold. We shall hang on. We shall see this thing through to a finish."

Valuable Ore Deposits.

Finnish Lapland is believed to contain vast deposits of the highest-grade iron ore, equal, if not superior, to the deposits of Swedish and Norwegian Lapland.

PETERBOROUGH MARKETS.

There has been absolutely nothing doing on the local market this week. The only thing that arrived to give the market clerk a chance to collect a toll was a wagon load of huckleberries. These are plentiful, but the load sold for about 15c a quart.

The egg and butter markets are very doubtful at present, particularly the latter, as the demand is not very strong and the prices are fluctuating every day on the Toronto market. Eggs are in demand, and the tendency is for a little higher prices for strictly fresh eggs.

Potatoes have arrived in such large quantities from the local gardens that the price has dropped to 50c a peck and is likely to go lower. All other vegetables are easy to be had at almost any price.

There is very little doing in the live stock market locally. The demand in Toronto and Montreal is for well-finished cattle, and there are few if any around Peterborough at this time. The grass-fed cattle are not much wanted by the abattoirs.

The local hog market remains steady with prices quoted at $16 for local delivery. There have been a few instances where a slightly higher price has been paid a short distance from here, for a specially fine bunch of bacon hogs.

There has been a good demand on the market for good spring chickens. The well-finished kind will easily bring good prices and find a quick sale.

A POETESS SPEAKS

One Woman's Belief In Universal Military Training.

AUTHOR OF EMINENT VERSE.

A Member of the Vigilantes, a Committee Composed of Well Known Authors and Literary Folk, States Her War Litany—Extract From Poem.

Following is the patriotic creed of the well known poetess Marion Couthouy Smith:

"I believe in universal military training and service for the following reasons:

First.—Because I believe in democracy, and I cannot honorably have the privileges of a free government unless I am willing to fulfill its obligations. Equal rights imply equal responsibilities.

Second.—Because I believe in a citizen soldiery rather than a large standing army. The latter is essentially an autocratic institution and is the only form of service that may degenerate into that sort of predominance over the civilian element which we call militarism.

Third.—Because the volunteer system has been proved inadequate in national emergencies. It involves inequalities in service, in privilege, in caste, in responsibility and in opportunities for training. We must apply democracy to service and make readiness a part of every man's life from the start.

Fourth.—Because the system of universal training has succeeded in other countries, notably Switzerland, and has been conducive to peace rather than war.

Fifth.—Because a woman must raise her son to be a man, and that implies, when he is full grown, his own control over his own destiny and his individual fulfilment of his duties and obligations. If his duty calls him to be a soldier he is in less danger, if he is physically and mentally trained from boyhood, than if he were left unprepared and unfit. The potential soldier is the better man in any position.

Sixth.—Because, if it is the part of every man to hold his life at stake for protective duty to the state, it is the part of every woman to hold her life's treasures at stake for the same duty. She has no right in time of peril to live under the protection of other women's sons. She must give active help and personal sacrifice. To shirk individual obligation is to incur an individual penalty in the loss of self respect and spiritual force.

Here is one of Miss Smith's latest poems:

TO THE MOTHERS.

Mothers of men, do you not know
What you gave to the world in your hour of woe?
Born of courage, and doomed to stress,
A man for the tasks of men—no less!

Mothers of women, can you not feel
What all the signs of your life reveal?
You have brought forth love, with its sword and fire,
And love's high crown is the lost desire.

Mothers of men, have you not known
That the soul of the child is not your own?
If God has sealed him for palm and cross,
To hold him close were your bitter loss.

Mothers, mothers, will you not see
All that your gift to the world may be?
These who must fight a wrong abhorred
Are Michael's angels, who bear the sword.

Mothers of men, then loose your hold!
Love grants more than your arms infold
Under the cross you stand apart,
With Mary's sword in your dauntless heart.

Darning by Machine.

Darning by machine is easy, speedy and results in a mend that is scarcely noticeable. To darn place the article in an embroidery frame to hold steadily and keep it straight. Move the stitch of the machine to the shortest point and take out the presser foot screw. Use a fine thread. Place the article to be darned under the needle, hold firmly and move steadily back, forth, sidewise or wherever you wish to go, not turning the goods around at all.

Shades For Sickrooms.

When, as in case of sickness, we wish a soft, warm light in a room rather than the glare that an electric light imparts, make little bags of china silk, any color desired, and put them over each bulb. It is well to run elastic around the edge of the circle which you cut from the silk, so that the bulb can be easily removed by just slipping out of the bag.

Must Raise Revenue.

British Columbia is facing the problem of revenue-raising somewhat determinedly. The special features of the new plan now proposed are a poll tax upon those not already paying a minimum of five dollars in provincial taxes; increased levies on wild lands; an increase in succession duties and in the taxes on war profits; and a tax on theatre tickets. The poll tax is a reimposition, and in its new form will not affect any otherwise bearing their share of the public burden. Men who are best able to bear the larger burdens will be called upon for a super-tax on incomes.

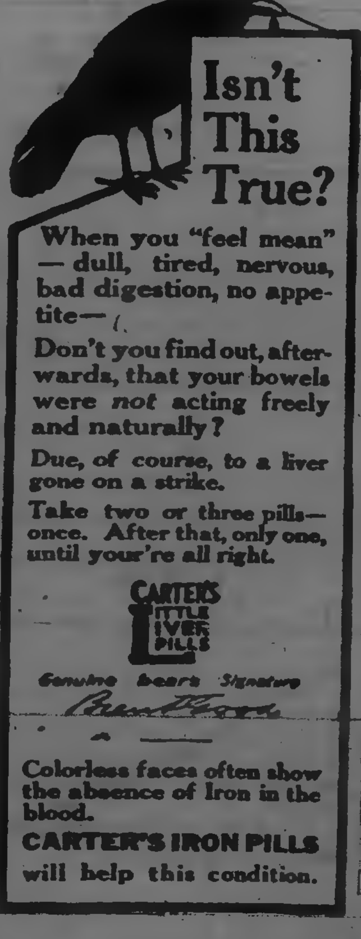
Record Mineral Production.

British Columbia last year established a new record in its mineral production, which approximated the $45,000,000 mark in its monetary value; and the Government is hopeful of quoting even more favorable figures at the end of the present year.

Raw Eggs Keep Longer Than Boiled.

Raw eggs keep good much longer than cooked eggs, even when these are hard boiled. This was proved by Dr. Leon Lindet, a member of the Paris Conseil d'Hygiene, after many French soldiers had reported that the hard boiled eggs they received from home had gone bad, while the raw eggs remained edible for weeks.

Dr. Lindet explains this fact by saying that the boiling makes the inner membrane pervious to gases, liquids and microbes, and the white of the egg becomes an agglomeration of coagulated albumen and particles of a serum that is an ideal medium in which microbes thrive.



Isn't This True?
When you "feel mean" — dull, tired, nervous, bad digestion, no appetite—
Don't you find out, afterwards, that your bowels were not acting freely and naturally?
Due, of course, to a liver gone on a strike.
Take two or three pills—once. After that, only one, until your're all right.

SUPERSTITIONS AT FRONT.

Man From Saskatchewan Foretold Dire Happenings.

Superstition of the ancient black witch sort is coming back into its own as a result of the war. Not only England but all the other European countries report the same condition—that wherever men are facing death they incline to watch little signs and omens, and this spirit quickly spreads through their families.

All units leaving for the front have some kind of a pet or mascot, usually a cat or dog, and the lives of these pets are guarded with extreme care. An Australian artillery battalion which got into action early in the Dardanelles campaign had a black cat which made its first appearance during the battalion's first engagement. Men on every side of the unit were killed, but not a casualty occurred among those protected by the cat. Thereafter the commanding officer kept the cat in his quarters and each day sent his orderly out with the cat while it had its airing.

There were no chances taken of the mascot getting into danger, for whenever the orderly sallied forth on the constitutional the officer made him tie a string around its neck to prevent it running away. The jokes that were passed by other units upon the orderly leading the cat may well be imagined. The battalion was later moved to the Somme and on June 26 discovered that the mascot had got into a house which was under heavy fire. One shell was seen to burst directly over the building and a rush was made to find the cat. It was discovered on a kitchen table, hair on end and spitting but unhurt. Unfortunately it died later of shell shock, and the same day the battalion was cut to pieces while defending an exposed ridge.

Little omens that seem ridiculous to the average man are reverenced by those who are about to face death. In an infantry regiment from Canada there was a private who boasted that by putting on his left sock and shoe first he invariably had good luck. The others were continually "joshing" him about his superstition and one morning before the big push in July of last year they hid his left sock and shoe just to make him use some picturesque Saskatchewan profanity. He not only provided the expletives, but he announced to his unit that dire happenings were pending. Sure enough, when he and his comrades went over the parapet soon afterward their casualties were heavier than any of the nearby units. Thereafter every man who survived religiously put on the left shoe and sock before touching the right.

Another superstition common among the fighting forces is that by rubbing spilled wine or spirits back of the ears it brings good luck. It is believed that this sign spread among the Canadian forces through contact with the French, who believe in the omen religiously. Just before the start of a raid or dash over the parapet the English forces are served with a ration of whiskey or brandy, and in every case the men quietly gather around the one who pours out the stimulants, holding their hands under the jug to catch the drip and rubbing the little they catch back of their ears.

Indians in Khaki.

According to a telegram received by his mother, Mrs. Mary Belanger, at the Mission, Fort William, Pte. Augustine Belanger, M.M., has been killed in action. He enlisted with Colonel Hay's battalion and was first wounded in June last year. He was a despatch carrier and received the Military Medal for faithful and brilliant work performed while the battalion was under fire. Nearly 100 Indians have left the Thunder Bay District with the 52nd, 94th, and 141s Battalions. Of the 20 who left with the 52nd, under the late Lieut.-Colonel Hay, of Quebec, five have been killed, and all but two have been wounded.

The DeLaronde family of Nipigon sent four soldiers to France. Dennis was killed in action in June, 1916; Alex. was wounded and sent home, but re-enlisted at the first opportunity; Joseph won the Military Medal for holding a trench with a machine gun after his companions were killed. Pte. Alex. Chief has been wounded three times. Pte. Rod Cameron was one of the crack shots in the Canadian army. Before leaving for France he defeated the best marksmen in 12 battalions. He was killed in action. Two other splendid snipers were Ambrose and Laurence Marten, of Nipigon. Laurence was killed in action and Ambrose was severely wounded. Pte. Simeon Oombash journeyed over 400 miles to enlist at Port Arthur. He could not speak a word of English, but turned out to be one of the best and smartest soldiers in the 141st.

Molybdenum is Valuable.

The more one learns about molybdenum the more one feels that Canada, which is the principal source of this metal, has in it a product quite as valuable as nickel, if not more so. Molybdenum is now used as a substitute for tungsten or vanadium in hardening steel, for which purpose its use is far more economical. It lengthens greatly the durability of gun metal and armor plate. It is valuable in high explosives, and it has other uses in war. But this is not all. It takes the place of platinum in the compounding of chemicals used for dyes, while it has also been found effective as a support of the filament of electric lamps. Its possibilities, however, are only beginning to make themselves known.

Honored by Russians.

Major-General R. C. Uniacke, belonging to a noted Canadian soldier family, has been gazetted for a Russian decoration, Order of Saint Anne, First Class, with Swords. Uniacke previously was twice mentioned in despatches.

A GENERAL UNEASINESS.

It Was the Only Drawback to an Otherwise Auspicious Occasion.

CHIMES filled the air, the brightly dressed guests filled the church, and the merry wedding spirit filled the brightly dressed guests. Great clusters of orange blossoms also filled the church, casting their petals here, there and everywhere, or, to put it all in one word, everywhere.

But stop! Is all serene?

No, not quite all. An undercurrent of disquiet, vague uneasiness, has made itself apparent.

"It's foolish of me, I know," said the bride, chewing gum rapidly to hide her perturbation and show her lovely teeth. "It's foolish of me, I repeat, but I have the dreadfulest mysteriousest feeling that all is not well, when I can see perfectly well that all is!"

"How silly, Bismarkina," reproved her mother, who looked her best in an afternoon gown of citron. "And yet, to tell the truth, I, too, have a feeling that I can't explain—a feeling that somehow, some which way, something is amiss. Of course, you are still a miss, but that's not what I mean."

Then the father, who was furiously smoking his pipe to keep his spirits up, admitted that even he was unaccountably nervous, and even the minister was forced to acknowledge that his mind was not entirely at peace.

It was then that some one discovered that though the time set for the wedding had come and gone the groom had not yet arrived.—London Tatler.

Formerly Love in a Cottage.

The young man approached the old man with considerable trepidation, although he was well acquainted with him.

"I suppose it's about Alice," said the old man, not unkindly.

"Yes, it's about Alice," said the young man, with simple directness. "I love her, as I am sure you know, and I want your consent to our marriage." The old man looked at the young man as a father would look at a son.

"Clarence," he said, at last, "I give my consent gladly. I welcome you as a son-in-law, but before proceeding further with this thing, let me ask you one serious question. Alice is the daughter of honest but rich parents. She has been brought up in luxury, as the saying is. Do you think you can make happy in your solitary $500 runabout a girl who has been used to a $9,000 imported limousine?"—Puck.

How Norway Has Suffered At the Hands of Germany In Spite of Neutrality

THE German outrages upon Norway, which have been marked by a diabolical ingenuity lacking in the German outrages on most other countries, seem to have culminated in the discovery of infernal machines in the baggage of the German diplomatic courier, Baron von Rautenfels. Those were addressed to the German Embassy at Christiania, and were intended to be placed upon Norwegian ships for the purpose of blowing them up when they got to sea. How many Norwegian ships had already disappeared in that way and been laid to the account of the convenient submarine may never be known. This follows hard upon the discovery that Germany was hiring depraved Norwegian sea captains to keep the submarine commanders informed of the sailings of ships from Norwegian ports. Germany has been making war upon Norway openly and destructively because the destruction of Norway's carrying trade is now one of the objects of the war.

Norway, if she had stood alone, and if the country could follow the lead which King Haakon would doubtless give them if he followed his own inclination, would doubtless have ended this intolerable situation by an official recognition of the state of war that exists. In the beginning of the war, however, such an action might have laid her open to an attack by Sweden, and even now her position is dangerous, though less so than that of the other European neutrals.

KING HAAKON

The trouble is that Norway is only one member of the Scandinavian alliance, dominated by Sweden, which agreed at the beginning of the war to act as a unit. Denmark, which lies open to German conquest, cannot fight, and Sweden, which is dominated in its turn by a pro-German court and king, will not.

The three countries all suffer heavy privations, but Norway is in the worst position. She is chiefly dependent upon her shipping industry, as they are not upon theirs. Her sentiment is favorable to the Allies, while that of Sweden leans to Germany, and that of Denmark is concerned only with self-preservation. The barbarity of the Germans toward her may be in part accounted for by this fact, and her shipping men assert that when a Norwegian vessel is sunk the crews are massacred to prevent a report of the outrages reaching home. They point to the fact that many vessels disappeared without a trace, but this may be accounted for by the discovery that German diplomats have the habit of placing infernal machines on them before they sail, and yet two of the Scandinavian countries continue to throw all their weight toward keeping Norway out of the war.

If, nevertheless, Norway should enter, her principal service to the Allies would be in furnishing armed merchant ships and thus aiding in the extermination of U-boats and in scourging the submarines away from her three-mile limit, outside which they now lie in wait for Ally and neutral ships. The Norwegian-American Chamber of Commerce has solemnly denied that Norway reships to Germany products imported from the United States, and, if this is true, it might account for the exceptional savagery of Germany's war upon her, for other neutrals are not so squeamish. Germany does, however, import Norway's own products, and only a month ago the workmen of Christiania marched upon the Government building and presented a demand that exportation to Germany be stopped. It would be if Norway entered the war.

King Signs Commissions.

His Majesty King George the Fifth signs every commission for his army and navy. Of course in war-time this involves a tremendous amount of labor, and it is not surprising that many officers of more than six months' standing have not yet received their actual commissions.

It is believed that kerosene was first used for lighting purposes in 1826.

BRITISH WANT CHEESE.

Story of Negotiations With Dominion Government.

Hon. Martin Burrell announced in the Commons recently that the Cheese Commission had been authorized by the British Board of Trade to pay 21¾c f.o.b. steamer, Montreal, for No. 1 finest grade cheese, and that buying on this basis would begin as soon as arrangements could be made. The price to factories would, of course, be less the inland freight and usual handling charges. Existing methods of buying and selling at country points would be continued. The Cheese Commission would meet the trade at Montreal as soon as possible in order to complete arrangements to give effect to the Board of Trade proposals. The Minister of Agriculture explained that last Autumn the British Government had attempted to secure all the Canadian cheese, but acted too late in the season. The Canadian Government recommended that for the present season plans should be perfected in January or February, but nothing was done. In the meantime the British Government had commandeered the New Zealand cheese at 19c per pound, and recommended commandeering the Canadian cheese. To this the Canadian Government objected, but suggested a commission with one British representative, to arrange the matter.

The British Commissioner arrived about the middle of April, but found that owing to the maximum price of cheese in England and the shipping problem it was impossible to secure Canadian cheese or even transport it to England. Such a condition threatened to seriously affect the cheese industry. The British Government then announced that they would commandeer all cheese arriving in England from Australia, New Zealand, the United States or Canada. The Canadian Government had taken the ground that while it was its duty to assist the Mother Country in its food supply it also had a duty to the producer and consumer in Canada. The Government had contended that if the price were fixed too low it would result in the diversion of the raw material to other products and a curtailment of the supply of cheese. The result of the negotiations was the present offer of purchase from the British Board of Trade.

WON VICTORIA CROSS.

Five Canadians Awarded for Conspicuous Bravery.

Five Canadians are included in the list of 30 soldiers awarded the Victoria Cross. Captain Thain W. MacDowell, a B.A. of Victoria College, enlisted at Ottawa in 1915. With the assistance of two others he captured two machine guns, besides two officers and 75 men, and continued to hold the position for five days, although wounded.

Sergt. Ellis W. Sifton, son of an Elgin farmer, near Wallacetown, charged a machine gun and single-handed killed all the crew. He then held off an enemy party advancing down a trench until British troops gained the position. In carrying out this gallant act he was killed after having saved many lives by his conspicuous valor.

Lieut. F. M. Harvey, of Medicine Hat, attached to the Strathcona Horse, ran ahead of his men, jumped into an enemy trench, shot down machine gunners, and captured gun.

Pte. Wm. Johnston ([illegible]), Moose Jaw, killed crew of machine gun with bombs and captured the gun in first German line; on line reforming he again located another machine gun and stalking the second gun as he had done the first, he succeeded in putting second crew out of action and capturing the gun. He was killed shortly after capturing the second gun.

Major Frederick Lumsden, Marine Artillery, brought into the lines under heavy fire, six enemy field guns.

Canada's Crop Outlook.

While unfavorable climatic conditions, in all parts of Canada, prevented the early completion of sowing operations, and while there are indications, in the great wheat-producing Provinces that a somewhat smaller acreage than usual will be planted, the outlook for the Dominion as a whole is that the total volume of food crops for the coming season will be somewhat greater than the average. The appeal for greater production has been general throughout all the Provinces, and reports received at the Government headquarters in Ottawa indicate that the response will justify the assurance that Canada, when the harvest season rolls around, will be able to offer for export a volume of grain approaching, though possibly hardly equaling, that of last year.

A condition could hardly be imagined in which Canada would not be able to produce far more than enough of the staple foodstuffs to meet the needs of her own people. But the domestic requirements now seem commonplace in comparison with the duty of supplying food in liberal quantities to the allied armies at the front. Canada realizes this imperative need, and, under more favorable seasonal conditions, would have prepared to meet it. Wheat is the great staple crop in the chief exporting Provinces, and, theoretically at least, it cannot be expected to yield if sown much later than the middle of May. Thousands of acres of rich land in the wheat belt could not, it is said, be sown until after that time. But there is nothing to prevent sowing these lands with oats and forage crops, and this course was followed. Oats are a good substitute for wheat, and should be raised where conditions do not permit the production of corn crops. The great aim should be to add to the bulk of the world's grain supply. It is not necessary that the grain should be wheat.

Impressed the Huns.

Writing thirty feet underground, with the guns of Vimy Ridge blazing overhead, a young soldier, with his heart full of pride at the glorious victory, says:

"I know there must be flags flying in honor of what the Canadians did here.

"Oh, what a sight when all our guns opened up, in a second the quiet was broken with the din of our big guns. The German prisoners told me that 'we take our hats off to the Canadians,' and well they might that day.

"Our boys are still advancing, but we are staying back for a few days' rest. We worked twenty-four hours the first day, and it was very little food we had time to eat, but did that matter as long as we were getting the poor boys out?

"There is so much talk just now about our prisoners in Germany and the way in which they are treated. Now, I am in a position to know that the prisoners we take are well treated, what one would say returning good for evil, such as our boys passing them cigarettes and food as they pass along.

"Why, I have talked to lots of them, and they were tickled to death to be taken prisoners by us, and work! Say, they couldn't do enough for us. I had four of them with me while the rush was [illegible]

ITALIANS WIN IN AIR FLIGHT

AUSTRIAN GUNS REACHED AIRSHIPS, BUT ALL RETURNED TO BASES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, Aug. 9.—An official statement issued by the Italian War Department today regarding operations on the Austro-Italian front says: Yesterday patrol engagements took place along the whole front, the enemy leaving dead on the field and prisoners in our hands. The artillery struggle was more brisk at some points of Middle Missonzo and on the Carso.

In the morning our flights persevering in the operations begun on Monday raided Chiapovano Valley and by dropping numerous bombs caused new destruction and fire in military establishments in this locality. A heavy defensive fire reached machines and hit some of them but our gallant airmen were able to bring them all back to their bases.

Soccer in Italy.

In the days before the war, when athletics held a prominent place in the world's concern, both cricket and football were gaining rapidly in favor throughout Italy. English football and cricket terms were being imported into the language wholesale, much to the concern of the Italian language purist, and one of the largest athletic clubs of Italy possessed an entirely English title, namely, "The Milan Football and Cricket Club"; at any rate, it was English on paper. The Italian footballer and cricketer has persevered in spite of the war, and to-day is showing himself as incorrigible, where untoward circumstance is concerned, as his English colleague. Reports from the Italian fronts tell of matches being organized between the Italian and British artillerymen now fighting, side by side, on the Carso.

There will be niches in the spacious corridor for the erection of statues, and the walls are to be utilized for the portrayal of scenes associated with the cause for which the Allied nations are fighting.

The demand in Europe for castor seed and oil from India is fairly modern, as statistics show that India did not begin to produce the medicinal oil until about 1815, and, in fact, imported medicinal castor oil prior to that period, though the castor plant is known to have existed in India for a very long time.

ONTARIO TROOPS IN A SUCCESSFUL RAID DRAW NEAR TO LENS

Meet With Slight Resistance and Few Losses ---Return Reluctantly Saying it Would Have Been Easy Matter to Take Possession of the City.

(By Stewart Lyon.)

Canadian Headquarters in France, August 10.—Under the protection of a heavy barrage, shortly after 4 o'clock Thursday morning, raiding parties on a front of over two thousand yards penetrated the enemys positions in the Cite du Moulin and the St. Laurent sectors, returning with several prisoners. The raiders on a large part of the front attacked, passed over the enemy's first line and support trenches, which were found to be lightly held and in bad condition. A number of the enemy's subterranean shelters were demolished, but nothing is known as to the fate of their occupants. Our men returned to their own trenches with manifest reluctance. Some of them said there would have been no difficulty in pushing forward into the streets of Lens. The troops engaged were from Ontario. Their casualties were slight.

At some points the trenches were found to have been pounded out of all semblance to defensive positions. Many dugouts also were seen that had been blown in by our heavy guns.

One exploring party had land mines exploded in front of them near a crater, which was the scene of lively fighting earlier in the week. Undeterred by the explosions, they pushed on and encountered an enemy patrol of thirteen men who took shelter in the dugout. Only two answered the call to surrender, and the remainder were killed in the destruction of the dugout.

OVER 100 OFFER TO AID FARMERS

APPLICATIONS FOR MEN COMING IN SLOWLY TO MR. GILLESPIE.

Volunteers from citizens who will spend thirty days or any part of that period on the farms are pouring in to Mr. G. A. Gillespie at his office on Aylmer Street.

So far the number of applications from the farmers for assistance has been very light, and if Mr. Gillespie does not receive applications here for them he will send the names to the head office in Toronto.

Mr. McCrae will have all the ministers announce the offer of assistance given by the Canadian Manufacturers on Sunday.

The number of names now on roll ready to go at a moment's notice is over 100, and a few are being sent in every hour.

Toronto sent in over thirty men to assist farmers in the Lindsay district.

G.T.R. EMPLOYEE DOING HIS BIT WELCOMES GIFT

FROM G.T.R. EMPLOYES' ASSOCIATION AND IS GLAD TO SEE "GREENBACK."

Mr. W. J. Fee, Mechanical Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway Co., has received the following letter of acknowledgment from Sapper Fred Scott, a Lindsay boy at the front and a former G.T.R. employee.

G.T.R. Employees Association.

Lindsay, Ont.:

Dear Sirs,—Your most welcome token of appreciation at hand, of April 19th, and certainly more than glad to get it, and hardly know how to thank the Association for it. It is surely something we can get along with alright, as you say, as there is always some little thing we can get to make our meal more home-like, and that means a lot, and as you know, without this little necessity it would be out of the question, although we have nothing to grumble about. We are pretty well treated over here, and by the people at home, but what looked so good to me was the good old Canadian money again. It is the best on the land. I have seen pretty nearly all kinds of different money, but the good old greenbacks have them all beaten, and we will surely be glad when it is all over and we are able to handle them again.

You say a slight token, but that will go a long way over here. I'll tell you, and we are always glad to get things, no matter how small they are. You should hear our artillery handing it to old Fritz just now. It would do your heart good. Will thank you all once more, and remain,

Yours truly,
SAPPER FRED SCOTT.

THE PARTY FIGHT IS NOW ON

(Special to The Review.)

Ottawa, August 10. — The action of the Winnipeg convention in endorsing Laurier and asking that Borden be retired in his favor, has put all hopes of a national or union government out of further consideration and renders the coming election an old-time, straight party struggle. Each party will appeal as such to the electors. It is rumored that the House will prorogue within a fortnight.

The following was the resolution adopted by the convention with only fifteen delegates dissenting. It was introduced by Hon. A. G. Mackay, formerly leader of the Liberal party in the Ontario Legislature:

> "Resolved, That this convention place on record its admiration of the life and work of the greatest of all Canadians, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and of his earnest endeavor to carry out his duty as he sees it in the interests of all Canada respecting our part in the great world struggle. We express the hope that his long experience and matchless statesmanship may be utilized in uniting the people of Canada in this great crisis in the successful prosecution of the war and carrying out the program of this convention."

This had been unanimously passed by the resolutions committee. "This resolution is not concluded in loose words of fulsome flattery," Mr. Mackay pointed out. He added that he would be frank about the clause as to "carrying out his duty as he sees it."

BEEF, BACON AND WHITE BREAD TO BE CONSERVED

Food Controller Issues Drastic Rules Regulating Their Use.

NO WHEAT FOR WHISKEY.

Two Beefless and Baconless Days a Week and Less Bread Allowed.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug 10.—Definite regulations, to come into effect at once, for restricting the use of beef, bacon and white bread in public eating places and for prohibiting the use of wheat in the distillation or manufacture of alcohol, have been promulgated by order-in-council at the instance of the food controller. The serving of beef and bacon is prohibited on Tuesdays and Fridays, and at more than one meal on any other day. Substitutes, such as corn bread oat cake, potatoes, etc., must be provided at every meal at which white bread is served. Under the order, the expression "bacon" includes cured (either pickled or smoked) sides, backs, hams and any portion of what is termed in the trade, Wiltshire sides.

The term "public eating places," includes any hotel, restaurant, cafeteria, club, or other place where meals to the number of twenty-five per day are served to persons other than members of the family or household of the proprietor. In all such public eating places there must be prominently displayed a printed notice to the effect that all persons in ordering their food ought to consider the needs of Great Britain and her allies and their armies for wheat, beef and bacon, and that the food controller requires the public to do everything in its power to make these commodities available for export by eating as little as possible of them and by making use of substitutes and avoiding waste.

No Wheat in Alcohol.

The regulation relating to the use of wheat in the manufacture of alcohol reads:

"No person shall use any wheat in the distillation or manufacture of alcohol unless such alcohol is to be used for manufacturing or munitions purposes, and no person shall use wheat in the distillation or manufacture of alcohol for manufacturing or munitions purposes unless such person has obtained a license therefor from the food controller for Canada. No fee shall be payable for any such license."

Heavy penalties are provided under the order for violation of the regulations. In the case of public eating places the proprietor or manager, any clerk, employe or servant violating any of the said regulations shall be guilty of an offense and shall be liable, upon summary conviction for the first offence, to a penalty not exceeding one hundred dollars and not less than twenty-five dollars, and for each subsequent offence to a penalty not exceeding five hundred dollars and not less than one hundred dollars, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

The Penalties.

Any person violating any of the provisions of the regulation relating to the use of wheat in the distillation or manufacture of alcohol shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable upon summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding five thousand dollars. The order-in-council is based on the final recommendations of the food consumption control committee, which was recently appointed by the food controller.

Other Positions in That Neighborhood Are Also Wrested From the Germans---French Break Into Enemy Lines---Huns Fail in New Counter Attack.

London, Aug. 10.—On the battle front, directly east of the Belgian town of Ypres the British completed the capture of the town of Westhoek and secured the remaining positions held by the Germans on Westhoek ridge.

French Progress

Paris, Aug. 10. — French forces last night made further progress against the German positions on the Belgian front. Frenchmen broke into the German lines, occupied several farms to the east of Bixschoote and west of Langemarck and captured a number of machine guns, according the the official statement to-day.

Huns Retire With Loss

Further German attacks, notably south of Allies on the Aisne front near Avocourt Wood in the Verdun region and north-west of Fliery, in Woevre, were checked by French fire, the Germans leaving prisoners in the hands of the French.

Teuton Defences Damaged

London, Aug. 10.—French forces on the left flank of the British lines in Belgium made further progress to the east and north of Bixschoote, last night, according to the official report made to the War Office to-day by Sir Douglas Haig. British raiding parties blew up German dugouts on a wide front east of Monchy Le Preux on the Arras front, the report adds, and greatly damaged the Teuton defences.

ELUSIVE LUBIN PLAYS HIS GAME ON COUNTRYMAN

ANOTHER CHECK ARRIVES AT LINDSAY CASHED IN MONTREAL.

The elusive Mr. Lubin has been heard from again. He is still working his cheque racket, and at the same time, evading the authorities.

A cheque has been received at a Lindsay bank, which the young French-Canadian succeeded in passing at Montreal. It was for the sum of $18. Lubin used another name, but the cheque number was the same as that appearing on the cheques issued in Lindsay and elsewhere. The cheque is said to have been issued about the first of the month. Lubin, it is reported spent some time in Brockville and Cornwall after leaving Kingston. A stranger, answering his description, it is said, interviewed a launch party at Brockville, and requested them to take him across the St. Lawrence to the American side, but they refused.

It seems strange that with a complete description of the man in their possession, the police of the waterfront towns have failed to run Lubin down. Chief Short of Lindsay has secured a very good picture of Lubin and will have a cut struck off for the purpose of furnishing the police of the country with a likeness of the much-wanted young man.

Lubin took the name of Laurant when issuing the cheque, which was made out in favor of G. Daoush, of Montreal.

To the south in Moldavia the Russians and Roumanians are attempting to reoccupy the positions north of Fokshani, lost to Field Marshal von Mackensen's men. They have attacked the Austro-Germans with strong forces, but Berlin says the effort failed. The number of prisoners taken by the Teutons in this region is reported to have reached 3,300.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY, AUG. 10, 1917

THE EXAMINER OPPOSED TO CONSCRIPTION.

THE EXAMINER finally ventures forth from the dugout in which it has huddled ever since the question of conscription has been before the country, and remains in the open long enough to declare its position on that issue. Just as was suspected from the first, our contemporary is opposed to compulsory military service. It is still a mere party hack and a blind follower of the lead of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the man who, on the gravest question that has ever come before the people of Canada, has deserted his followers all for the sake of his own province.

The Examiner does not take this stand without an effort, feeble and futile, to justify itself. It claims that conscription is not necessary. Then, to its own undoing., it quotes figures to support this assertion.

During the months of June and July the number of enlistments in Canada was 10,698. The Canadian casualties at the front were only 7,894 in the same time. This shows a gain in the fighting strength of the nation of 2.804 in two months' time, or a trifle over 1,000 men a month.

Where, then, reason's The Examiner, is the necessity for conscription? What have the men in the trenches to complain of, so long as Canada is sending men to the fighting line faster even to a slight extent than the soldiers already there are being killed or wounded?

In the first place, the boom in recruiting noted for the months of June and July is easily accounted for. Conscription itself was the reason, as was noted from the time the measure was definitely taken up in Parliament. The very prospect of such a measure being adopted—and its passing was taken for granted from the start, induced a number of young men who had been hesitating for months to get in under the voluntary system and so avoid the odium of the draft.

Casualties in the Canadian army for the same period were comparatively light, less by nearly three thousand than the number of enlistments, it is true, simply because during that time the soldiers from this country were enjoying something of a breathing spell. According to the cabled reports they were not engaged in the recent tremendous drive, but were employed in the neighborhood of Lens, in an attempt, in which daily success was recorded, to wear down the enemy at that point.

The records show that in the month of May alone the number of casualties in the Canadian army, engaged at Vimy Ridge, was over 20,000, or twice that of the enlistments at home in double the time. Those statistics rather upset the argument of The Eaminer. Another engagement like that of Vimy Ridge would probably convince our neighbor of its error and induce it to admit the necessity for conscription which it now denies.

But let it be granted that the conditions to which The Examiner alludes are normal. Taking its own figures as correct, the gain of enlistments over the casualties is, say 1,000 a month. Suppose that ratio was maintained indefinitly for the duration of the war. Canada aims to raise 100,000 additional men. At The Examiner's ratio, it would require something like eight years to obtain the full quota.

Eight years is too long to wait. But even that calculation is liable to fall through at any moment. When the Canadian troops take part in another offensive, another engagement such as that at the Somme or Vimy Ridge, the excess of casualties over the enlistments under the voluntary system would again be sufficient to excite the dismay even of our slow-going and self-satisfied neighbor.

The files of The Examiner will show that in the past it has repeatedly called attention to the disparity between the enlistments and the casualties, and that it has frequently called upon the Government to do something. What that something was that it had in mind it did not take the trouble to elaborate. But now that the Government has done all that was left it to do, The Examiner is not satisfied.

With the machine wing of the party, The Examiner favors the idea of dropping conscription and dallying longer with the voluntary system. Let this be done, and the revival in recruiting, which it is so careful now to note, will slump again.

Anyway, it is interesting to find where The Examiner stands on this matter and what its platform will be upon which its party candidate is to stand. if any man has the temerity to face the voters of West Peterborough on such an issue.

The number of enlistments for the months of June and July include the men taken on the Forestry and Railway Construction Battalions. None of these men are eligible for trench duty. It is doubtful if out of the ten thousand and more enrolled there were actually two thousand men for service at the front.

FEW MISTAKES MADE.

"But, in speaking as I do, very earnestly upon this subject, I desire to make it perfectly plain that this Government, in proposing this resolution (for the extension of Parliament) does not come before Parliament as a suppliant. Whenever it becomes desirable or necessary in the public interest that the record of the Government should be submitted to the judgment of the people, we are quite prepared and willing to abide by the verdict of the electorate.

"During the past three years the responsibilities and burdens imposed upon those to whom is entrusted the administration of public affairs have been greater than can possibly be realized by any one who has not been called upon to grapple with and fulfill them. We have discharged those responsibilities to the best of our ability; we have not spared ourselves in the effort to achieve their just accomplishment.

"In all our endeavors there has been no regard for any consideration but the conscientious performance of our duty; otherwise we should have been entirely unworthy of the trust reposed in us. To admit that mistakes have been made is simply to admit that the members of the Government are human and therefore not infallible; but I am confident that as few mistakes have been made in Canada as in any part of the Empire."—Sir Robert Borden.

THE LEADERLESS PARTY.

THE WING of the Western Liberal party that was represented by the delegates at the Winnipeg convention placed itself in the ignominious position of wooing a leader who has voluntarily deserted them. Their overtures were rebuked, and, in order to gain their point they were forcd into shaping their platform in accordance with his dictation. The fight is now on. If the delegates at Winnipeg represent the sentiment of the majority of the voters of the West, the issue is clear. As stated in a despatch to The Review from Ottawa, the coming election is to be fought along the old party lines and Parliament is likely to be dissolved in a fortnight or three weeks.

There were two outstanding features of the convention at Winnipeg, the resolution introduced by Dr. Neely and the one fathered by Hon. A. G. Mackay, a man who, as former leader of the Opposition in Ontario, was drilled in the Liberalism of this province. The Neely resolution was really an approval of the Borden war policy. There was nothing in it, either proposed or commended, that the present Government has not already adopted. Out of consideration for the feelings of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the resolution contains no mention of conscription, but the allusion is there. It recommends the taking of all steps necessary to secure required reinforcements for the Canadian contingent, just as Sir Robert Borden, with the support of both branches of the Federal Legislature, has decided to do.

The first clause of the Neely resolution recommends conferring with the British Government for the purpose of definitely ascertaining the scope and character of the service that can best be rendered by Canada in the conduct of the war.

Sir Robert Borden spent two months in England on just such a mission. He sat in conference with British Cabinet Ministers and war officials. He visited the armies at the front. If any man in Canada knows what the British authorities expect and what the Empire requires, that man is Sir Robert Borden. Any further conferring on this point would be a sheer waste of time, a play for party advantage, a sop thrown to Quebec.

Last summer was not the first time Sir Robert Borden conferred with the Imperial statesmen on questions affecting the safety of the Empire. There was that conference in 1912, when the very war in which the nations are now involved hung as a shadow over the world and against which the Empire was making preparation. Sir Robert Borden returned to Canada then with a defence program. The Opposition jeered at his claims, and, by political manipulation, frustrated his plans. Sir Robert was right in 1912, as subsequent events have so clearly shown. He is right today. Is the error of 1913 to be repeated now?

Mr. Mackay's resolution was as elastic, as guarded, as ambiguous, as that of Dr. Neely. It sounds like a carefully prepared eulogy on a dead man whose weaknesses are all, in charity, to be forgiven and forgotten now that he is gone. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was praised for his earnestness in "carrying out his duty as he sees it," the last being a very fitting saving clause.

Earnestness is not sufficient. Many a statesman, like many a private individual, has been sincere in a course that was diametrically opposed to the right.

The delegates humbly ventured to express the hope that Sir Wilfrid will yet utilize his experience to unite the people of Canada in this crisis.

Vain hope. Sir Wilfrid was besought by telegraph to at least compromise on conscription, and refused. That issue has been eliminated from the platform out of deference to his wishes; at least it has been carefully concealed under a skilfully woven network of verbiage. The mountain refused to come to Mahommad, but the latter has drawn near the mountain.

The platform of the Western Liberals will find no favor with the majority of the party in other parts of the Dominion. It is too hazy on the conscription issue to appeal to even Quebec, even though Sir Wilfrid Laurier is said to have endorsed it. It was prepared to catch the vote of the aliens of the West. Without that vote the Liberals have not the slightest chance of success. The franchise is the weapon the alien holds to fight the plans of the Canadians and Britishers. Deprive him of that weapon, and in the West the Liberal platform will lack for supporters.

TEACH THE CHILDREN TO SWIM

"Mother, may I go out to swim?"
"Yes, my darling daughter:
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb
And get into the water."

This is the way Commodore Wilbert E. Longfellow, field agent of the first division of the American Red Cross, would have the old jingle read. In other words, he would teach swimming in childhood, for he holds that the kiddie that can keep his head above water when he is a kiddie will be safe in water in after years. Commodore Longfellow is in Chicago on a two weeks' visit, and while he is there he will deliver several lectures on swimming and give instructions at some of the beaches and natatoriums.

To Teach First Aid Methods

While there making a hit with the youngsters whose mothers have put a ban on swimming anywhere else than the bath tub, Commodore Longfellow, who isn't such a long fellow, although well rounded and a marvel in the water, will try to show women who have lined up with the first aid service of the Red Cross all about land and water first aid methods.

He is a member of the United States life saving service and he knows enough to realise that Chicago has much to learn about life-saving methods, although realizing that the professional life savers here are among the pick and flower of the service.

Within the last five years there have been 1.577 drownings in Chicago, or an average of 315 a year. Of this total only 106, or an average of 21 a year, have been suicides, leaving a yearly average of 294 accidental deaths in the water.

With the aim of reducing this appalling average, Commodore Longfellow will give all classes instruction in resuscitation.

How To Bring Back Life

Here is a bit of instruction he will give the women:

"Get patient into the open air. Lay him face down. Arms should be raised to the shoulder level or higher. Turn face to one side. Remove any foreign matter from the mouth. Kneel astride patient at level of hip points. Place hands palms down over the floating ribs, thumbs on each side of and parellel with spinal column. With arms stiff, lean your weight forward on the ribs, and count six. Then suddenly remove your weight, but not your hands, and count four. Repeat this process in regular rhythm about fifteen times a minute, until breathing is restored.

WHAT TO DO IN A THUNDERSTORM

If you are out of doors in a very severe electrical storm, the Electrical Experimenter offers the following rules for your protection:

1. Keep away from wire fences. They may carry a dangerous electrical charge long distances. Cattle in pastures are frequently killed from the neglect of farmers to ground all fence wire.

2. Keep away from hedges, ponds and streams.

3. Keep away from isolated trees. Oak trees are frequently struck; beech are seldom struck. It is safe in a dense forest.

4. Keep away from herds of cattle and crowds of people.

5. Do not hold an umbrella over you.

6. It is safer to sit or lie down in an open field than to stand.

7. Drivers should dismount and not stay close to their horses.

8. Do not work with any large metal tool or instrument.

If you keep indoors:

1. Keep away from the stove and chimney. The hot gases from the chimney may conduct the lightning to and down the chimney.

2. Do not take a position between two bodies of metal, as the stove and water pipe, for example. An exception to being near metals is the case of an iron bed. One of the safest places is on a mattress in an iron bed, provided you do not touch the metal. The metal surrounding you makes a safe cage, which will prevent the lightning from reaching a person inside.

3. Do not stand on a wet floor nor draw water from the well or faucet.

4. Do not stand directly under a chandelier, near a radiator nor on a register.

5. Do not use the telephone.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

IF ECONOMY is really to become a national virtue, the war has not been in vain.

• • •

OUT WEST it seems that a man cannot be a true blue alien unless he is a Liberal.

• • •

AFTER ALL, the West is more concerned over business conditions than over the war.

• • •

DEPRIVE the alien of the vote, and the new platform of the Western Liberals will perish of dry rot.

• • •

DESPITE the Western machine, there are still good Liberals in the country who favor conscription ou and out.

SEVENTEEN YEARS AGO

From The Review of Aug. 10, 1900:

Cadet John Fessenden, son of Mr C. Fessenden, of the Collegiate staff, received orders from the War Department in England to proceed to Woolwich at once. Cadet Fessenden (now a lieutenant-colonel) was with one of the first British regiments to go to France when the war broke out, and has since been decorated by the Kings of Italy and Serbia for gallant conduct.

ALGONQUIN PARK.

This attractive Ontario Government reserve of nearly 2,000,000 acres is one of the popular resorts this year. Splendid fishing has been experienced and the weather is all that can be desired. 2,000 feet above the sea and swept by pine scented winds assures the visitor of pleasant days and cool evenings. The Highland Inn, situated on Cache Lake, is the social centre of this great reserve, and the log cabin camps, built on picturesque lakes some miles distant from the hotel have become most popular. All are of one accord that there is not a summer resort in America that surpasses this beautiful territory. Free illustrated literature telling you all about it from Grand Trunk Railway Agents. For reservations, rates, etc., write Miss Jean Lindsay, manager, Highland Inn, Algonquin Park Station, Ontario.

A DAILY NOVELETTE

It was just after Bintz sisters' refined juggling act, the worst performance of any kind that the great detective had ever yawned through, so he decided to seek relaxation and diversion by surprising the occupants of his stage box with his intimate knowledge concerning them.

"Pardon me," he said smilingly to the thin, nervous man at his right, "but how is the restaurant business?"

"Pretty well, thank you—er—that is, rotten. But—how—did—you—?"

"Very simple," explained the great detective. "You have the underfed, ill nourished look that characterizes so many restaurant proprietors. And you, sir"—turning to the stout man in the checked suit on his right—"are a barber. How do I know? Because, like eleven out of every ten barbers, you are in urgent need of a shave."

The stout man nodded meekly, and the bushy faced gentleman just behind him opened his mouth in amazement.

"You, sir," the great detective said to him, "are for the first time in your life witnessing a vaudeville performance. I noticed that you applauded that last act vociferously for at least two minutes, whereas if you had ever witnessed a vaudeville performance before, no matter how poor, you would have known that act wasn't worth applauding."

"I do know it," admitted the bushy faced man. "And as a matter of fact, I'm gosh dinged tired of applauding it, for I've sat through the darn thing every afternoon and night for seven months now. But the Bintz gals are my datters, and they must have their applause."

Just then the lights went down, and the great detective unobtrusively withdrew.

Foe Invents Ruse to Take Away Guns

Germans Save Their Artillery By Exploding Peculiar Capsules.

Paris, Aug. 10.—The French War Office announces that the Germans have invented a new ruse to lull their opponents into the belief that artillery batteries are still in position for action when actually they have been withdrawn, and by it to prevent untimely advances.

The device consists of a mechanism fitted with half a dozen globular capsules filled with an explosive which is placed on the side of the battery to be or being withdrawn. The capsules explode every 35 or 40 seconds with a sound exactly like that of a field gun heard from a distance. They are said to easily fool a listener into thinking that he is still facing artillery.

FOURTEEN YEARS AFTER

In the days of the South African War Hilaire Belloc wrote cleverly about the way in which millionaire mine-owners were luxuriating in Cape Town while Britishers were fighting. He penned, in a famous poem:

"We also know the sacred height
Upon Tugela side
Where those three hundred fought with Beit
And fair young Wernher died;
The river banks where Eckstein stood."

The names Wernher and Eckstein were then joined in a rhyme. They are now joined in death. Second-Lieutenant A. P. Wernher was killed in 1916. Next was announced the death in action of Lieutenant Ludwig A. Eckstein, of the King's African Rifles. Both were sons of the millionaires Belloc wrote about.

THE UNEQUAL TEAM

The Horse in the Lead is Working the Harder

Often some writers say that they have observed that the horse behind is always thinner and a harder keeper and so he does more work than his mate. But does this prove anything? There is just as much difference in horses as in men. Some men are fat, work hard and eat little.

Did a lazy horse ever go in the lead? No, he has tried everything, and has found from experience where the easy place is.

In driving two horses on a wagon with a heavy load, if one horse is in advance the tongue will be inclined to move toward the rear horse, showing a side draft. Now the horse in the lead must be exerting a greater force to cause this draft.

Take a pair of balance scales and put a weight in one pan; of course this side will go down. The balance scale and the evener are the same, each is hung in the centre. So whichever horse will exert the greater force on an evener will go ahead and will remain there as long as he continues to exert the greater force.

SGT. DUNCAN MACNEIL

OF THE CANADIANS

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured His Dyspepsia Completely.

Sergeant Duncan MacNeil, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, writing from Europe (his home address is 116 Pleasant St., Halifax, N.S.) says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of dyspepsia, often being in bed for days at a time. When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected."

NURSES "GOOD FELLOWS"

Military Hospital that was Staffed Entirely by Women

The British soldier is not verbose except when he has jangled nerves and will insist on fighting his battles over again, so the personnel of our military hospitals very rarely hear the thanks that men would fain express to them, writes a military man. It has been my good fortune to be in hospitals largely staffed by V.A.D. members. At one place even the doctors were ladies, and I believe that this particular hospital is regarded, very rightly, as a soldier's heaven throughout the realm of Scotland.

Wily customers imagined they "could swing the lead" with the chief lady doctor. Could they though? She was as keen-sighted as the gruffest expert of the "R.A.M.C." She had seen service with the French Army and she knew of the wiliness of certain warriors. A rule of this hospital was that no one nurse was to go out with any one patient. You could only sally forth in alliances of three. But these nurses were most excellent "good fellows," and besides their work in the hospital, which was hard enough, would take their patients out to tea and the subsequent delights of a kinema.

HUN CORPSE FACTORY

The Famous Army Order that Shocked the World

The London Times published a photographic reproduction, hitherto unpublished, of the Daily Army Order issued by the Supreme Command of the Sixth German Army on December 31, 1916, and containing (paragraph 5b) the now famous instructions, of which the following is a translation:—It has become necessary once more to lay stress on the fact that when corpses are sent to the corpse utilisation establishments returns as to the unit, date of death, illness, and information as to (contagious) diseases, if any, are to be furnished at the same time.

Camouflage is "Bluff"

The varieties of camouflage are infinite. Probably the most ancient example is the wooden horse of Troy. Any little trick that makes the enemy see what does not exist, or prevents his seeing what does exist, anything that makes him do something he ought not to do is camouflage. Its best synonym is "bluff."

Incubator Points

The incubator is always ready, if its attendant makes it ready. Clean it, disinfect it, locate it in a clean place where the temperature will vary the least during the day. Level it with a spirit level. Run it a couple of days before the eggs are put in. Test the incubator thermometer. An accurate thermometer is necessary for good results. Give due consideration to moisture and ventilation. They are essential to good hatches of good chicks. Give the lamp attention daily. It is important that it work perfectly.

When there is a lack of egg production, it is scarcely ever attributed to the management, although it is generally due to some condition that comes because of the management.

No Railway Tickets

In the early days of railways in Great Britain the Chancellor of the Exchequer would not have been able to tax tickets, for the simple reason that they did not exist. The adventurous traveller who desired to journey by rail presented himself at the booking office about an hour before his train was due, and a clerk leisurely took down his name and address and other particulars, which he entered on a way bill like so much goods. He then gave him a receipt, and this constituted the contract note for his journey.

The average is less than 100 eggs per hen per year. First aim to make that average 120 eggs. Then go to 150 eggs. And, finally, if that is possible, reach the 200-egg record.

A CANADIAN ABROAD

Head of O.A.C. Records Some Impressions of Antipodes

President G. C. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College travelled 26,000 miles by ocean and by rail in visiting Japan, China, New Zealand and Australia, and in a sort of bird's-eye sketch of the trip, noted the following points as of interest to Canadians:

There are 150,000,000 people on the American side of the Pacific, and 900,000,000 on the other. The trade that is being developed between these masses will one day be one of the great factors in the world's commerce.

In New Zealand the pastures are green all the year round. The Maoris of New Zealand are the most interesting of native races. Seventy years ago they were cannibals. To-day they are in the pulpits, in the courts, often pleading the cases of white clients, and in the cabinet itself.

In Canterbury Plains you can strike water anywhere by driving a pipe down six feet. In the city of Christchurch every house is supplied by water, under pressure, which is piped from its own back yard.

Australia covers an area equal to three-fourths the size of Europe. Ninety-six out of 100 of the people living there are native born, or natives of the British Isles.

The Commonwealth is all agricultural. All the boots and shoes, all the socks and hats used there, even the sash and glass for the windows are imported.

Climatic conditions vary greatly. In some parts there is a rainfall of 60 inches in a year and in other parts severe droughts lasting for months. In a parched district Prof. Creelman was offered a sheep for twelve cents, and a young horse for a shilling. Even in such districts, however, after a rain, the whole country will be in bloom in a week.

PROF. CREELMAN

Horse racing is the national sport. There are sixteen race tracks in Sydney, and they try to have four meets a year each.

Love of the country is a distinguishing feature of Australian's life. In Melbourne 1,500 trains leave for the country daily, and in the morning as people troop back to the city from their country homes they are all carrying bouquets clipped from their own gardens. It is like a great floral procession.

In Japan the size of the average farm is two and a half acres, and a hand tool is the one implement of cultivation. There and in China work on the farm goes on from the first streak of dawn to the last gleam of evening sun.

In China, in the opinion of people who have lived there for sixty years, all the missionary effort that has been put forth has had no more effect than the scratch of a pin. It is hard to produce much effect on a mass of 400,000,000 with 40 centuries of inherited traditions. Not four per cent. of the people there know of the late Chinese revolution. Not four per cent. know whether they are under an empire or in a republic.

Potatoes on Vacant Lots

A definite proposition for the utilization of vacant city lots for growing potatoes on vacant lots was discussed by a committee of prominent citizens of Toronto. Mr. James C. Forman, Assessment Commissioner, reported that there are 2,870 acres in vacant lots, two thousand acres of which represent good cultivated land once used for vegetable farming. The estimate is that at a conservative figure these lots could produce between $200,000 and $300,000 worth of potatoes, nearly enough to feed the city.

LOAD VESSEL IN HOUR

Record Speeds Made in Canada's Inland Elevators

An elevator of Port Arthur is thus described: Each one of the two shipping units of this mammoth grain plant can ship grain on vessels at rate rate of 100,000 bushels per hour. Of course, some vessels which require a great deal of "trimming" cannot take the grain from the elevator as fast as it can be given, but if no trimming is required 100,000 bushels in one hour can be placed on board a vessel by each shipping unit of this great elevator. Even when grain has to be trimmed in the holds of vessels great despatch is made, as for instance the S.S. Neebing, which has had a full cargo of 100,000 bushels placed on board and trimmed in seventy-five minutes.

The shipping bins of each of the two shipping units, which are respectively called "A" and "B," can hold approximately 50,000 bushels, and save considerable time in the working of the elevator, in finishing vessels whose cargo takes considerable trimming, for the grain can be weighed up and left for the grain trimmers to take as they require it. These men are necessary in the loading of any vessels which "fill up," as the grain as it runs from the spouts from the elevator, piles up in cone shape in the vessel's hold, and consequently a great part of the grain which is spouted into the vessel at the end of her shipment has to be trimmed back and up against her decks, so that no shifting of her cargo is possible in a heavy sea.

NEW FOREST-RANGING

Efficiency in Forest Protection—How it is Attained

A fire ranger says: In the old days when we saw a fire, we mostly did our best to put it out, although we would have done far better if there had been proper organization like in a company of military engineers. But I'm working now for a co-operative association of limit holders. I was hired direct by the manager. He didn't ask if I was on the 'right side' of politics or had the recommend of the Local Member. I got the job on merit. The first week I found I was on a new sort of fire-ranging proposition entirely. My inspector laid down my orders. They included daily patrolling, putting up fire warnings along the trails, educating the settlers about their clearing fires and issuing them permits to burn, keeping the telephone lines in order, constructing trails during wet weather, preparing safe places for camp fires for use of fishermen and hunters, and there were other duties that filled up the time to the limit.

It wasn't a case of a string of orders handed out from an office, for if I did not perform each and every duty on schedule the inspector required a good reason. I have seen him dismiss a man on the spot for being absent half a day from his post. That's what I call discipline, and fire ranging needs it as bad as a locomotive works. The association built lookout towers on most of the hill tops and strung telephone lines from the towers down into the valleys and across country, connecting up all the main points of the system and keeping every ranger in touch with his comrades.

PROTECT GRAIN OWNER

Checking Of Grain At Twin Cities By Government

After the grain car at Port Arthur or Fort William is rechecked as to grade and load lines it is sent on to the terminal elevator, or hospital elevator, the latter which treats rejected and "no grade" grain, and there unloaded, weighed, cleaned or dried, if necessary, and all under direct supervision of government officials, who issue reports as to weight from which government weight certificates are issued and sent to the owner, and which are attached by the owner to the grade certificate issued at Winnipeg, and to the bill of lading issued by the railway when car was loaded, the three documents making the history of the car complete as to ownership, grade and weight, and with such as security the owner can secure from the banks large loans, enabling him to hold his grain to such time as he may deem opportune to sell with greater profit to himself.

The Care Of Cows

Milk fever can generally be prevented by feeding sparingly for a few weeks before calving, and by giving the cow a pound of salts a week before she is due and another smaller dose at the time of calving.

Bad milking is a common cause of udder trouble. If cows are not milked clean they are liable to go wrong in the udder, and particularly so when in their full flow of milk. Another source of bad udders is carelessness in drying off the cows.

Cows should always have access to salt; it is essential for the maintenance of health.

Care should be exercised in turning out cows in the spring. They should be housed for the first few nights and [illegible] to grass [illegible] bloat [illegible] may [illegible] if not [illegible]

MANY KINDS OF SPRUCE THRIVE IN CANADA

The Blue Variety a Very Satisfactory Tree For Ornamental and Hedge Purposes—An Expert's Views

There are three species of spruce native to Eastern Canada, namely the white, red, and black, but the white is much the best for ornamental purposes, and the black spruce has not done well under cultivation at Ottawa, says W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist in "The Canadian Horticulturist." The black spruce grows naturally in swampy ground and appears stunted when grown in well drained soil. The red spruce, which is a very prominent tree in the Maritime Provinces, is a good deal like the Norway spruce in color of foliage but is not as graceful a trees as the Norway. The white spruce is, however, a very desirable tree. One should get the bluest specimens that can be obtained as individual trees vary much in color, some being much bluer than others.

This native spruce is a more graceful tree than the Colorado blue or Rocky Mountain blue spruce, but both are necessary. Where there is only room for one the preference is given to the Colorado blue, as one cannot get quite as blue an effect from the white spruce and the Colorado blue spruce takes less room. Moreover, the white spruce suffers from the Spruce Gall Louse, which in recent years has injured the appearance of it. The variety of Colorado blue spruce known as Kosteriana is particularly blue. They are obtained grafted. If one has a large place and needs many trees the cheapest way to obtain blue specimens of this spruce is to buy small mixed seedlings and select those of best color, as the Colorado blue spruce varies from a most attractive shade of steely blue to green, and all gradations are found in the seedlings.

Well grown specimens of the bluest shades are expensive. This spruce is one of the hardiest. It succeeds well in the prairie provinces, where the temperatures are very low sometimes. It is a rather slow grower, but eventually reaches a good height.

One of the best spruces is a western native species, Englemann's spruce, which grows in the Rocky Mountains. This does very well at Ottawa. It has a more graceful outline than the Colorado Blue Spruce and while the leaves are not quite so blue they are of an attractive bluish green shade. The Norway Spruce has been planted on private grounds in Canada, more, perhaps, than any other species.

There are several reasons for this. It is one of the cheapest spruces to buy; it grows rapidly; and it is quite ornamental particularly for the first twenty-five or thirty years. The Norway Spruce is the fastest growing spruce of all the species which have been tested at Ottawa. Its pendulous branches make individual specimens very attractive and its large cones add also to its interest. It has been much used for wind-breaks in the province of Ontario and is very desirable for this purpose.

Many hedges have been made of this tree and where they get plenty of light are quite satisfactory, but if the hedges are shaded they lose their foliage at the bottom. There are large numbers of dwarf, variegated and weeping forms of the Norway Spruce but none of them are very attractive.

The Servian Spruce is a beautiful species which it was thought was going to be hardy at Ottawa, but in a very severe winter it was killed.

Non-Treating a Wife

Cubitt Cooke, licensee of the White Lion, East Finchley, was fined $175 at Highgate, England, for breaches of the no-treating order. His waiter, Sidney Neakes, was fined $1.20, Henry Puddicomb $25 for treating his wife, and the latter $1.20 for drinking the liquor.

Fantastic statistics of Russian losses published in Austria are found to have been quoted from the lists of an imaginary bureau.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

"CONSCRIPT THE WOMEN"

The compulsory mobilization of all classes of able bodied young women in France for war work is being constantly urged by French writers. Foremost among these advocates of the conscription of women is Henri Berenger, who pays a fine tribute to English women. "In England," he says, "the co-operation of women in war work is far greater than it is in France." There are about 10,000,000 women in France. Of these 5,000,000 should be available for war work. About 2,000,000 are serving in some capacity now. But it is necessary that the other 3,000,000 should come forward, says the French Government.

FIRST CORPS' RECORD

Six Weeks' "Redemption" by a Famous French Unit

The following is from a correspondent with the French armies on the Somme: The 1st Corps of the French army established a six weeks' record. Under the command of General Guillaumont, it is composed of regiments from the northwestern part of France now occupied by the enemy. Thousands of the men came from villages and farms just a few miles beyond the German front, where every foot of ground gained meant one step nearer home. The corps was taken to the Somme on August 23.

The remainder of Maurepas was retaken at a single bound on the day following their arrival. The next village taken was Le Forest, followed by Hospital Farm, Bouchavesnes, Rancourt, Combles, and Bregicourt.

At the end of six weeks the corps had captured, in addition to the villages and the score or more of highly fortified trenches and positions that defended them, 4,000 prisoners, 23 cannon, of which eight were heavy, and 70 machine guns. The losses in killed and wounded inflicted on the enemy are placed at 40,000.

During a goodly portion of those six weeks the First Corps had before it units of the famous Prussian Guard, the French, from September 2 to 5, taking amongst a total of 1,200 prisoners 750 alone from its various regiments. The entire ground regained by the corps extended on a front of 2 miles to a depth of 3½ miles.

ROLES SOON REVERSED

Cool Lieutenant Took Many German Officers Curiously

Incidents in the capture of prisoners are legion. A young Scotch officer, who had pushed through to a very distant point far in front of the rest, lost all his men but two, and they were sent off to guard approaches. He himself walked to the door of a battalion headquarters and told the German staff that they were his prisoners. They accepted his assertion, but, discovering his loneliness, lured him into an inner room and politely suggested that the position was reversed. He was the prisoner and they the captors. The interpretation was as politely accepted.

Now this inner room was fitted with a giant periscope, and the face of the German who was revolving it soon began to grow longer and longer. "British soldiers are all round us," he said at last, and at the word the Scots lieutenant quietly proposed to the room that the original position should be restored. "As you were." The first assertion, after all, was the right one. They were his prisoners. Throughout the incident and after it the German in command behaved "as a gentleman."

MRS. SHEEHY SKEFFINGTON

The widow of the Dublin editor was active politically long after the tragedy of the rebellion. Sheehy Skeffington was shot by order of Capt. Bowen Colthurst, who was later adjudged insane.

The "Victory" Waist

The wife of a French soldier in Switzerland, writes The Evening News Paris correspondent, possesses a unique war souvenir—a waist made of bits of silk picked up on the battlefield of Verdun. Her husband, an engineer, collected all the fragments he could find of silk forming parachutes for star rockets. This, after being cleaned, was made into a waist, which the owner calls the "waist of victory."

Belgium vs. France

Ten thousand people witnessed a real war international football match between elevens representing France and Belgium. This was their annual game. By special permission of King Albert all the necessary players were able to come from the front. The Belgians, whose forwards showed the better football, gained a splendid victory by 4 goals to 1. The crowd cheered the fighters of Belgium and each man was shouldered as he left the field.

FOURTEEN YEARS AFTER

In the days of the South African War Hilaire Belloc wrote cleverly about the way in which millionaire mine-owners were luxuriating in Cape Town while Britishers were fighting. He penned, in a famous poem:

"We also know the sacred height
Upon Tugela side
Where those three hundred fought with Beit
And fair young Wernher died;
The river banks where Eckstein stood."

The names Wernher and Eckstein were then joined in a rhyme. They are now joined in death. Second-Lieutenant A. P. Wernher was killed in 1916. Next was announced the death in action of Lieutenant Ludwig A. Eckstein, of the King's African Rifles. Both were sons of the millionaires Belloc wrote about.

THE UNEQUAL TEAM

The Horse in the Lead is Working the Harder

Often some writers say that they have observed that the horse behind is always thinner and a harder keeper and so he does more work than his mate. But does this prove anything? There is just as much difference in horses as in men. Some men are fat, work hard and eat little.

Did a lazy horse ever go in the lead? No, he has tried everything, and has found from experience where the easy place is.

In driving two horses on a wagon with a heavy load, if one horse is in advance the tongue will be inclined to move toward the rear horse, showing a side draft. Now the horse in the lead must be exerting a greater force to cause this draft.

Take a pair of balance scales and put a weight in one pan; of course this side will go down. The balance scale and the evener are the same, each is hung in the centre. So whichever horse will exert the greater force on an evener will go ahead and will remain there as long as he continues to exert the greater force.

Says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Cured His Dyspepsia Completely.

Sergeant Duncan MacNeil, of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, writing from Europe (his home address is 116 Pleasant St., Halifax, N.S.) says: "For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of dyspepsia, often being in bed for days at a time. When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected."

NURSES "GOOD FELLOWS"

Military Hospital that was Staffed Entirely by Women

The British soldier is not verbose except when he has jangled nerves and will insist on fighting his battles over again, so the personnel of our military hospitals very rarely hear the thanks that men would fain express to them, writes a military man. It has been my good fortune to be in hospitals largely staffed by V.A.D. members. At one place even the doctors were ladies, and I believe that this particular hospital is regarded, very rightly, as a soldier's heaven throughout the realm of Scotland.

Wily customers imagined they "could swing the lead" with the chief lady doctor. Could they though? She was as keen-sighted as the gruffest expert of the "R.A.M.C." She had seen service with the French Army and she knew of the wiliness of certain warriors. A rule of this hospital was that no one nurse was to go out with any one patient. You could only sally forth in alliances of three. But these nurses were most excellent "good fellows," and besides their work in the hospital, which was hard enough, would take their patients out to tea and the subsequent delights of a kinema.

HUN CORPSE FACTORY

The Famous Army Order that Shocked the World

The London Times published a photographic reproduction, hitherto unpublished, of the Daily Army Order issued by the Supreme Command of the Sixth German Army on December 21, 1916, and containing (paragraph 5b) the now famous instructions, of which the following is a translation:—It has become necessary once more to lay stress on the fact that when corpses are sent to the corpse utilisation establishments returns as to the unit, date of death, illness, and information as to (contagious) diseases, if any, are to be furnished at the same time.

Camouflage is "Bluff"

The varieties of camouflage are infinite. Probably the most ancient example is the wooden horse of Troy. Any little trick that makes the enemy see what does not exist, or prevents his seeing what does exist, anything that makes him do something he ought not to do is camouflage. Its best synonym is "bluff."

Incubator Points

The inlubator is always ready, if its attendant makes it ready. Clean it, disinfect it, locate it in a clean place where the temperature will vary the least during the day. Level it with a spirit level. Run it a couple of days before the eggs are put in. Test the incubator thermometer. An accurate thermometer is necessary for good results. Give due consideration to moisture and ventilation. They are essential to good hatches of good chicks. Give the lamp attention daily. It is important that it work perfectly.

When there is a lack of egg production, it is scarcely ever attributed to the management, although it is generally due to some condition that comes because of the management.

No Railway Tickets

In the early days of railways in Great Britain the Chancellor of the Exchequer would not have been able to tax tickets, for the simple reason that they did not exist. The adventurous traveller who desired to journey by rail presented himself at the booking office about an hour before his train was due, and a clerk leisurely took down his name and address and other particulars, which he entered on a way bill like so much goods. He then gave him a receipt, and this constituted the contract note for his journey.

The average is less than 100 eggs per hen per year. First aim to make that average 120 eggs. Then go to 150 eggs. And, finally, if that is possible, reach the 200-egg record.

A CANADIAN ABROAD

Head of O.A.C. Records Some Impressions of Antipodes

President G. C. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College travelled 26,000 miles by ocean and by rail in visiting Japan, China, New Zealand and Australia, and in a sort of bird's eye sketch of the trip, noted the following points as of interest to Canadians:

There are 150,000,000 people on the American side of the Pacific, and 900,000,000 on the other. The trade that is being developed between these masses will one day be one of the great factors in the world's commerce.

In New Zealand the pastures are green all the year round. The Maoris of New Zealand are the most interesting of native races. Seventy years ago they were cannibals. To-day they are in the pulpits, in the courts, often pleading the cases of white clients, and in the cabinet itself.

In Canterbury Plains you can strike water anywhere by driving a pipe down six feet. In the city of Christchurch every house is supplied by water, under pressure, which is piped from its own back yard.

Australia covers an area equal to three-fourths the size of Europe. Ninety-six out of 100 of the people living there are native born, or natives of the British Isles.

The Commonwealth is all agricultural. All the boots and shoes, all the socks and hats used there, even the sash and glass for the windows are imported.

Climatic conditions vary greatly. In some parts there is a rainfall of 60 inches in a year and in other parts severe droughts lasting for months. In a parched district Prof. Creelman was offered a sheep for twelve cents, and a young horse for a shilling. Even in such districts, however, after a rain, the whole country will be in bloom in a week.

PROF. CREELMAN

Horse racing is the national sport. There are sixteen race tracks in Sydney, and they try to have four meets a year each.

Love of the country is a distinguishing feature of Australian's life. In Melbourne 1,500 trains leave for the country daily, and in the morning as people troop back to the city from their country homes they are all carrying bouquets clipped from their own gardens. It is like a great floral procession.

In Japan the size of the average farm is two and a half acres, and a hand tool is the one implement of cultivation. There and in China work on the farm goes on from the first streak of dawn to the last gleam of evening sun.

In China, in the opinion of people who have lived there for sixty years, all the missionary effort that has been put forth has had no more effect than the scratch of a pin. It is hard to produce much effect on a mass of 400,000,000 with 40 centuries of inherited traditions. Not four per cent. of the people there know of the late Chinese revolution. Not four per cent. know whether they are under an empire or in a republic.

Potatoes on Vacant Lots

A definite proposition for the utilization of vacant city lots for growing potatoes on vacant lots was discussed by a committee of prominent citizens of Toronto. Mr. James C. Forman, Assessment Commissioner, reported that there are 2,870 acres in vacant lots, two thousand acres of which represent good cultivated land once used for vegetable farming. The estimate is that at a conservative figure these lots could produce between $200,000, and $300,000, worth of potatoes, nearly enough to feed the city.

LOAD VESSEL IN HOUR

Record Speeds Made in Canada's Inland Elevators

An elevator of Port Arthur is thus described: Each one of the two shipping units of this mammoth grain plant can ship grain on vessels at rate rate of 100,000 bushels per hour. Of course, some vessels which require a great deal of "trimming" cannot take the grain from the elevator as fast as it can be given, but if no trimming is required 100,000 bushels in one hour can be placed on board a vessel by each shipping unit of this great elevator. Even when grain has to be trimmed in the holds of vessels great despatch is made, as for instance the S.S. Neebing, which has had a full cargo of 100,000 bushels placed on board and trimmed in seventy-five minutes.

The shipping bins of each of the two shipping units, which are respectively called "A" and "B," can hold approximately 50,000 bushels, and save considerable time in the working of the elevator, in finishing vessels whose cargo takes considerable trimming, for the grain can be weighed up and left for the grain trimmers to take as they require it. These men are necessary in the loading of any vessels which "fill up," as the grain as it runs from the spouts from the elevator, piles up in cone shape in the vessel's hold, and consequently a great part of the grain which is spouted into the vessel at the end of her shipment has to be trimmed back and up against her decks, so that no shifting of her cargo is possible in a heavy sea.

NEW FOREST-RANGING

Efficiency in Forest Protection—How It is Attained

A fire ranger says: In the old days when we saw a fire, we mostly did our best to put it out, although we would have done far better if there had been proper organization like in a company of military engineers. But I'm working now for a co-operative association of limit holders. I was hired direct by the manager. He didn't ask if I was on the 'right side' of politics or had the recommend of the Local Member. I got the job on merit. The first week I found I was on a new sort of fire-ranging proposition entirely. My inspector laid down my orders. They included daily patrolling, putting up fire warnings along the trails, educating the settlers about their clearing fires and issuing them permits to burn, keeping the telephone lines in order, constructing trails during wet weather, preparing safe places for camp fires for use of fishermen and hunters, and there were other duties that filled up the time to the limit.

It wasn't a case of a string of orders handed out from an office, for if I did not perform each and every duty on schedule the inspector required a good reason. I have seen him dismiss a man on the spot for being absent half a day from his post. That's what I call discipline, and fire ranging needs it as bad as a locomotive works. The association built lookout towers on most of the hill tops and strung telephone lines from the towers down into the valleys and across country, connecting up all the main points of the system and keeping every ranger in touch with his comrades.

PROTECT GRAIN OWNER

Checking Of Grain At Twin Cities By Government

After the grain car at Port Arthur or Fort William is rechecked as to grade and load lines it is sent on to the terminal elevator, or hospital elevator, the latter which treats rejected and "no grade" grain, and there unloaded, weighed, cleaned or dried, if necessary, and all under direct supervision of government officials, who issue reports as to weight from which government weight certificates are issued and sent to the owner, and which are attached by the owner to the grade certificate issued at Winnipeg, and to the bill of lading issued by the railway when car was loaded, the three documents making the history of the car complete as to ownership, grade and weight, and with such as security the owner can secure from the banks large loans enabling him to hold his grain to such time as he may deem opportune to sell with greater profit to himself.

The Care Of Cows

Milk fever can generally be prevented by feeding sparingly for a few weeks before calving, and by giving the cow a pound of salts a week before she is due and another smaller dose at the time of calving.

Bad milking is a common cause of udder trouble. If cows are not milked clean they are liable to go wrong in the udder, and particularly so when in their full flow of milk. Another source of bad udders is carelessness in drying off the cows.

Cows should always have access to salt; it is essential for the maintenance of health.

Care should be exercised in turning out cows in the spring. They should be housed for the first few nights and [illegible]

MANY KINDS OF SPRUCE THRIVE IN CANADA

The Blue Variety a Very Satisfactory Tree For Ornamental and Hedge Purposes—An Expert's Views

There are three species of spruce native to Eastern Canada, namely the white, red, and black, but the white is much the best for ornamental purposes, and the black spruce has not done well under cultivation at Ottawa, says W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist in "The Canadian Horticulturist." The black spruce grows naturally in swampy ground and appears stunted when grown in well drained soil. The red spruce, which is a very prominent tree in the Maritime Provinces, is a good deal like the Norway spruce in color of foliage but is not as graceful a tree as the Norway. The white spruce is, however, a very desirable tree. One should get the bluest specimens that can be obtained as individual trees vary much in color, some being much bluer than others.

This native spruce is a more graceful tree than the Colorado blue or Rocky Mountain blue spruce, but both are necessary. Where there is only room for one the preference is given to the Colorado blue, as one cannot get quite as blue an effect from the white spruce and the Colorado blue spruce takes less room. Moreover, the white spruce suffers from the Spruce Gall Louse, which in recent years has injured the appearance of it. The variety of Colorado blue spruce known as Kosteriana is particularly blue. They are obtained grafted. If one has a large place and needs many trees the cheapest way to obtain blue specimens of this spruce is to buy small mixed seedlings and select those of best color, as the Colorado blue spruce varies from a most attractive shade of steely blue to green, and all gradations are found in the seedlings.

Well grown specimens of the bluest shades are expensive. This spruce is one of the hardiest. It succeeds well in the prairie provinces, where the temperatures are very low sometimes. It is a rather slow grower, but eventually reaches a good height.

One of the best spruces is a western native species, Englemann's spruce, which grows in the Rocky Mountains. This does very well at Ottawa. It has a more graceful outline than the Colorado Blue Spruce and while the leaves are not quite so blue they are of an attractive bluish green shade. The Norway Spruce has been planted on private grounds in Canada, more, perhaps, than any other species.

There are several reasons for this. It is one of the cheapest spruces to buy; it grows rapidly; and it is quite ornamental particularly for the first twenty-five or thirty years. The Norway Spruce is the fastest growing spruce of all the species which have been tested at Ottawa. Its pendulous branches make individual specimens very attractive and its large cones add also to its interest. It has been much used for wind-breaks in the province of Ontario and is very desirable for this purpose.

Many hedges have been made of this tree and where they get plenty of light are quite satisfactory, but if the hedges are shaded they lose their foliage at the bottom. There are large numbers of dwarf, varigated and weeping forms of the Norway Spruce but none of them are very attractive.

The Servian Spruce is a beautiful species which it was thought was going to be hardy at Ottawa, but in a very severe winter it was killed.

Non-Treating a Wife

Cubitt Cooke, licensee of the White Lion, East Finchley, was fined $175 at Highgate, England, for breaches of the no-treating order. His waiter, Sinney Neakes, was fined $1.20, Henry Puddicomb $25 for treating his wife, and the latter $1.20 for drinking the liquor.

Fantastic statistics of Russian losses published in Austria are found to have been quoted from the lists of an imaginary bureau.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

ACCIDENTS IN ONTARIO.

Nearly 16,000 Were Reported First Six Months of This Year.

For the first half of the present year 15,954 reports of accidents were received by the Workmen's compensation Board. Since the Act came into force on Jan. 1, 1915, there have been a total of 55,024 accidents dealt with.

During the first months of this year fatal accidents numbered 242, or since the Act went into operation 865.

The new medical aid provisions passed at last session of the Legislature went into effect on July 1. Under these provisions workmen meeting with accidents on or after that date became entitled to necessary medical and surgical aid and hospital and nursing services for a period not exceeding one month.

Few men are brave enough to allow a mindreader to expose their thoughts in the presence of friends.

PETERBOROUGH PATRIOTIC LADIES DOING GOOD WORK

Local Progressive Club Sent 148 Pairs of Socks for Men in Trenches During July ---Also 11 Bales for Field and Hospital Comforts and Requirements.

During July the Peterborough Progressive Club sent to Miss Plummer (Capt.), Field Comforts Commissioner, 148 pairs of socks for the men in the trenches. Since March the club has been able to forward eleven bales. These contained socks, hospital supplies and surgical dressings. They were divided between the Field Comforts and Moore Barracks Hospital. Some bales have been ackowledged, while others are still on the way. The club also did some sewing for the local Red Cross, consisting of 50 pairs pyjamas.

Letters All Should Read.

The following letters to the Secretary and Treasurer of the club will be found interesting reading:

Canadian Field Comforts Commission,
Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe.
July 23, 1917.

To the Secretary Progressive Club,
Peterborough.

Dear Mrs. Cameron;

In future, instead of addressing the boxes for shipment to Captain Plummer or Miss Arnoldi, please address to—

Officer 1-c Canadian Field Comforts Commission,
Moore Barracks,
Shorncliffe.

as we are told this will hasten delivery on the railways and docks. The Admiralty now give us shipments at fortnightly intervals and we are allowed up to a very generous weight. It is not counted by pieces and our cases are unlimited as to size and weight.

We wish to draw your attention to our "Order Parcels." We are keeping a large stock of articles suitable for such parcels always on hand and on receipt of money and names of men to whom the parcels are to be sent, will be able to despatch them in a few days. So many articles can be bought cheaper over here at wholesale prices for which we have very good arrangements and we think that this department ought to be more widely known as it saves filling up the ships with addressed parcels.

Captain Plummer and Miss Arnoldi have gone to France for a few days and will probably get some useful hints as to the needs of the troops.

Yours faithfully,
LIEUT. E. W.
For Mary Plummer, (Capt. C.F.C.C.)

Canadian Field Comforts Commission.
Moore Barracks, Shorncliffe,
July 18th, 1917.

Mrs. Morris,
Treas. Peterborough Progressive Club, Peterborough.

Dear Mrs. Morris:

Thank you very much for the ten dollars. Will you please convey our thanks to the lady who contributed this.

We are having a very good response to our appeal for money for special requests. This is a department of our work which is growing steadily and the officers and men at the front seem so very grateful to have someone near at hand to whom they can send when they have a real need.

We have been busier this year than we have ever been before in the summer months; of course the much greater number of men in France makes a difference, but our supplies have been splendid, shipments coming in regularly and large ones. We are now awaiting a shipment of about 300 pieces which is on its way from the docks.

The continual gratitude and appreciation which come all the time in the letters of acknowledgment make this work so very much worth while and we are so glad to be able to forward the things (socks, etc.) for the women at home and to know that they reach their men in the fighting line.

With best wishes to your club,
Yours faithfully,
MARY PLUMMER.
Capt. C.F.C.C.

TRAIN STALLED FOR FIVE HOURS BY HEAVY RAIN

KINMOUNT VISITED BY A VERITABLE CLOUDBURST ON WEDNESDAY.

Kinmount was visited by a severe rainstorm—a veritable cloudburst —on Wednesday afternoon, which was reported to be the worst seen in that section in years. The rain came down in torrents for a considerable period, and it was not olng before the main street in the village resembled a rushing river. The water was over a foot deep on the street, and in some of the stores, and as it swept along in its turbulent course carried sand and other material with it.

The Haliburton train was stalled at the station for five hours, as the sand on the track had accumulated to the depth of two feet. The water also washed the track away under the mail car, and it was found necessary to send to Lindsay for an engine before the train could proceed north.

Conductor Bowhey's train did not reach Haliburton until midnight.

APPLY AT ONCE.

Chance For Victoria Farmers to Secure Harvest Hands.

About thirty men arrived at Lindsay from Toronto who have placed their services at the disposal of the farmers for the next four weeks in harvesting their crops. The men are all big, husky chaps who hold good positions in the city and drawing good wages and have been released by their employers, in order that the farmer may be helped out. This movement is entirely patriotic and the men deserve great credit for their offered help. Th farmers are not taking advantage of the men as fast as they are arriving but the local branch of the Agricultural Dept. is placing them as rapidly as possible. Those requiring men for the farm work should apply at once.

WILL ATTEND CHURCH.

The Royal Black Preceptory will meet at Victoria Hall at 6 o'clock Sunday evening to attend divine service at Knox Church.

CAN'T HAVE FUEL DEPOT.

Ottawa Must Get Its Coal Next Winter Through Local Dealers.

Ottawa, Aug. 10.—The city of Ottawa cannot have a municipal fuel depot. This has been decided by the Ontario Railway Board, who have refused to approve of the by-laws passed by the city and which were discussed at a hearing a few weeks ago.

The reason given by the board for the refusal to approve the by-laws was primarily that the committee which was sent by the city to investigate the coal situation reported against the establishing of the depot and this report was approved of and carried by the city council.

Another reason for the refusal was that the city had obtained its fuel through local dealers, as well as the Government doing the same thing. The evidence produced before the board also showed that the coal dealers had acted in a fair manner, that one-third of the coal needed for Ottawa was already in the cellars of the citizens, and also that the city was not in a position to get coal any better or cheaper than the local coal dealers could.

THE VETERANS' OUTING

Two Steamers Chartered To Carry Soldiers And Their Families

The War Veterans' Excursion down the river to-day was a great success as far as the crowd was concerned, and it looks as though the weather man was going to be very considerate and furnish grand weather for the outing. Both steamers, the "Stoney Lake" and the "Geneva" caried their share of the excursionists.

Harwood and Idle Wild will be visited on the trip.

RELATIVES NOT FOUND OF LATE WILLIAM ROSS

The body of the late Wm. Ross, who met his death by falling off the Port McNicol-Peterboro train at Lindsay, on Saturday evening, last, still lies in the morgue. Efforts are being made to locate the unfortunate man's relatives or friends, but so far no particulars have been received.

ABOUT PATRIOTISM.

Christine Terhune Herrick of the Vigilantes Tells What It May Mean.

Patriotism means a lot to most of us when it is accompanied by a sort of grand stand play. We can all feel thrills and chokings in our throat at the sight the flag borne up the street ahead of a brass band playing patriotic airs.

The time when we get over that and feel the hardships of a patriot is when we go home and plan for meals, or count up the change left after doing the day's marketing, or debate upon what we can afford to have for dinner. Then we shed our trailing robes of glory and begin to grumble like any uninspired creatures who have never cheered a flag or kept step to a martial tune.

"Why were we ever drawn into this wretched war?" we cry. "Look at the price of meat and vegetables! Do you know what I had to pay for my last bag of flour? It's a shame that the necessaries of life should be taxed like this! No, children! You cannot have cream on your strawberries, and I'm not sure I can afford to get the strawberries! Such a nuisance having to pinch and fuss like this. I am sick to death of it!"

Just then and there you show that you don't know all patriotism can mean to a woman. Stop and think why everything is high priced, why you have to scrimp and strive. Here is where you have your chance to show your patriotism!

What are we doing as a nation? Why were we "drawn into this war?"

You may be able to answer promptly enough that we are working to support democracy and freedom against militarism and autocracy. But have you ever thought that the little economies that fret and harass you are your part of this big business?

It is very fine to wear a badge and join a canteen contingent or a Red Cross unit and trot about to meetings and hurrah for the flag. But if you do your "bit" in another way you are serving your country just as much, although in a smaller measure, as if you volunteered for some spectacular service that kept you in the public eye.

Glorify your small renunciations and worries by calling them by their true names, sacrifices you are bearing for the sake of your country, in order that you may be able to do more for those who have infinitely less than you. Don't be afraid to say that it is patriotism which keeps you cheerful when you have to cut down here and pare off there and do without somewhere else. Tell your children that these minor privations, like the bigger ones borne by our brothers and sisters across the sea, are endured for freedom just as much as the trials of the pioneers from whom we are proud to trace our descent.

Hold your head high; remember that a hero is only one who does more than his duty and go about your daily round of work with the bearing and the heart of one who is qualifying to have a cross of war pinned to her kitchen apron!

Good Proof.

"How's that dude getting along who wanted to be a cowboy? Is he a fighter?"

"Must be a fighter. He still wears his monocle."—Kansas City Journal.

He Knew Mountains.

The new boy in the school was being examined in geography.

"What kind of mountains are there in South America?" he was asked.

"High," he replied.—Judge.

HOW TO CAN VEGETABLES

The following directions for canning vegetables has been supplied by the Department of Agriculture:

ROOT AND TUBER VEGETABLES

Carrots, Parsnips, Beets, and Sweet Potatoes

Wash thoroughly. Scald in boiling water sufficiently to loosen skin. Plunge quickly into cold water. Scrape or pare to remove skin. Pack into jars whole or cut in sections or cubes. Add boiling water and one level teaspoonful of salt to the quart. Place rubbers on tops in position. Partially seal, but not tight. (Cap and tip tin cans).

Sterilise 90 minutes in hot water bath.

Remove jars. Tighten covers. Invert to cool and test joints. Wrap jars in paper to prevent bleaching and store.

Note.—In canning beets, if vinegar is added to the water in the proportion of one part vinegar to four of water, the natural bright color will be preserved.

Hot Water Bath Canning Outfit

These are manufactured commercially, but may be adapted from a new wash boiler with a frame for holding the jars. A deep pail, a kettle, or any other container which is at least six inches deeper than a quart jar, and which has a close fitting cover, makes an excellent home canner when equipped with some means of preventing the jars from resting directly on the bottom. Wire frames with bail handles can be obtained. After placing the jars in the canner, surround them with warm water reaching to within one inch from the tops of the jars. Do not have the water hot enough to break the jars.

HOW THE POLICE DO THEIR "BIT".

CHIEF AND MEN CULTIVATE GARDENS, HELP FARMERS, RAISE STOCK.

Peterborough's police force are not to be outdone by the city firemen when it comes to doing their bit on the farm. The local handlers of offenders against the law, from Chief Thompson down, are all cultivating crops for themselves, and in addition have spent their hours off duty assisting farmers adjacent to the city in getting their crops ready and into the barn.

The Chief and eight members of the force have 12¼ acres to take care of, on which they have, in addition to the crop of potatoes and other vegetables, 360 fowl, 13 pigs and other incidentals.

One of the force helped a farmer to take off 75 acres of crop, and a number of them helped relatives during their vacation.

Then to finish things off, the police succeeded in getting over thirty men to sign up to work on the farm for thirty days, and some of them are willing to go themselves if granted leave of absence.

Captain Foster and Wilfrid McElhiney who are in the hospital yet, are both doing well.

CHEESE PRICES HIGHER IN THE OLD COUNTRY

Messrs. W. Weddel and Co., Ltd., of London, England, write under date of July 13th regarding the market for dairy produce in Great Britain:—

Cheese.—The Government have at last released a certain proportion of their reserve stocks for civilian consumption, and against July applications are allocating 50 per cent. of the total quantity asked for by the trade, and now that the Government scheme has materialized it is hoped that matters will work more smoothly. Dutch cheese continues to receive more attention, and prices have improved all round. There is also a fair enquiry for English and Scotch cheese at Government control prices.

TWENTY FINE STEERS AVERAGED 1368 LBS.

Mr. L. D. Thompson of Dobbington, cattle dealer, purchased from Mr. James Mitchell twenty steers, which made up as fine a load of cattle as has been shipped from this section of the country for some time. The animals averaged 1,368 pounds, and eleven and a half cents per pound was the price paid, the total cheque being $3,146.40. The cattle were of the Durham class, and had been on the grass since the 10th

PETERBORO SALESMEN MADE GOOD CHEESE SALE

Mr. H. S. Johnston, secretary of Flavelles Limited, Lindsay, stated that salesmen on the Peterboro Board secured a good price for cheese, namely, 21 3-16 cents. This is the highest price paid for some time back, 21 cents being the standard.

THE NIGH[illegible]

Ghastly Work in the Hospitals B[illegible] of the Trenches.

The drivers leave their cars [illegible] go toward the entrance of a[illegible] cellar where a stretcher-bearer stands. He welcomes them, and the usual talk begins of how long the war will last. There are several cases inside, he says, and more are coming for the enemy has been firing trench torpedoes. He says that the cases will not be ready for an hour, and then at one in the morning some sick are coming; the cars will have to wait for instructions. The drivers go down the sloping patch into the cellars. The cellar roof has been propped and heaped with layers of timber balks interspersed with sandbags, and the cellar itself, shored up, is like a mine. It is a vast place with several rooms in it, from one of which, strongly lighted, comes the sound of voices and of people moving. Looking round near at hand, as the eye becomes accustomed to the darkness, one sees some loaded stretchers on the floor near the doorway. Three dead men, who were alive an hour ago, lie there awaiting burial. They were all hit by one torpedo, says the stretcher-bearer, these and five others, but these three died on their way to the Poste. Some said that the dead look as though they were asleep, but no sleep ever looked like death. These men are not asleep; they are dead, whatever that may mean. Their uniforms are clean; there is no mud on their boots. By their clean equipment it is easy to see that they were men of this night's relief; probably they were only an hour in the trenches and now they are relieved forever.

Farther from the door, in a darkness like that of an old ship's forecastle, are stands of bunks for the stretcher-bearers. Those who are off duty lie asleep there, "like a trooper's horse, all standing"; that is, with their clothes on. Beyond them is a kind of office where two men are playing draughts, one man is writing a letter, and a fourth is reading a newspaper.

Away to the right, where the voices and the movement are, is a larger room. Men move about in it, softly, and one man with his side to the door is bending over something. He is the Medecin Chef of the Poste watching a dying soldier in the very article of death. He and his assistant are dressed in white sterilized operating robes. The orderlies stand about the table, intent upon their tasks. A saline injection is at work. There is a smell of ether and a blinding presence of iodine. One man has his hand on the patient's wrist, and all eyes are turned upon the poor fellow's face, as his breath fails. "Both his legs were broken by the torpedo," says the doctor, "and we have done all we could, but he has lost too much blood." The man dies, even as he speaks; tender hands very gently order his body and lay it on its stretcher with the three others near the door. Another wounded man, lying on a stretcher, is lifted onto the operating-table. One of his legs is shattered; but this man is a grizzled country laborer, much stronger than the man who has just gone. He looks round on the people with a look of terror, like an animal's terror. Someone says, "N'ayez pas peur." The anesthetist lowers a mask upon his face, pours ether, and murmurs, "Respirez." The man breathes hard for two minutes, and then in the drunkenness of the fumes struggles up, claws at the orderlies, and swears and calls upon the Holy Ghost. The orderlies grin and glance at each other; the man falls into unconsciousness, and his wound is laid bare and searched. The doctors shake their heads and cut off the leg below the knee, and an orderly plobs it into a tin bucket, foot uppermost. Before the man has completely recovered consciousness he is off the table, wrapped up upon his stretcher, and another wounded man takes his place.—John Masefield in Harper's Magazine.

ROSEBUSHES.

For the Arbor and Trellis That Are the Apple of Your Eye.

Prepared by the U. S. department of agriculture.

THE character of the foliage and hardiness should be important considerations in choosing types of climbing roses for covering arbors, trellises, pergolas, pillars and similar structures. Roses used in this way are usually in conspicuous places, and flowers can be depended on for ornamental effects for a relatively short period only during the year. Climbing roses with a poor leaf development or those especially liable to attack by insects and diseases therefore make but a poor appearance.

The climbing roses are divided roughly into two divisions by farmers' bulletin 750, roses for the home, recently issued by the United States department of agriculture. The pillar roses are those not growing more than six or eight feet high. The more vigorously growing roses of the group are the climbers or ramblers.

Of the trellis and arbor roses the members of the wichuraiana or memorial group are among those most resistant to disease and insect attack. They have foliage pleasing to the eye throughout practically all seasons. The blossoms are white and single. The multiflora climbers flower in clusters. Many of them, however, especially the so called ramblers, are subject to mildew and insect attacks. They are reasonably hardy in the north. Roses of the laevigata group, represented by the Cherokee, on the other hand, require a warm climate. This is true also of the roses of the climbing Noisette group, represented by the Marechal Niel and Lamarque. These roses are suitable for culture only in the warmer sections, where the winter temperature seldom falls below 10 degrees F. above zero.

Save Your Bottles.

A serious shortage of preserving jars and cans is threatened.

Glass bottles, especially wide necked ones, are useful for putting up fruits and jellies.

Put up fruit juices in ordinary bottles.

Reserve regular preserving jars and cans for canning vegetables, soups and meats.—United States Department of Agriculture.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

This is a big year for the men behind the bat as far as heavy hitting is concerned. If you don't believe it, look at Bill Fisher of the Pirates, Tom Clarke of the Reds, and Bill Raridan of the Giants. These amiable gentlemen are all in the .300 class.

The champion kickers' pennant ought to be offered by some well disposed fan. There are several contenders for such a trophy, among the leaders being John McGraw, the doughty manager of the Giants (with the accent on the "dough"), and Kid Gleason, the slightly less doughty assistant manager of the Chicago White Sox. Both are kicking in the .600 class.

Good-night, Lee Magee! The role of utility fielder seems hardly to fit a name which only yesterday was sufficient to make the fans sit up and take notice. But that's the way of the world, and even more so the way of baseball. You've got to deliver the goods or be shelved. And so Lee is holding down the bench for the Browns.

Miller Huggins still has hopes that the Cardinals will win the pennant. Well, why not? He has a perfect right to hope anything he likes. Isn't the kaiser still hoping to win the war?

Grouchy Gus Says:

"When a fellow takes his girl to the ball game, and explains every play, it's a sure sign that, after they're married, she's going to be the boss."

New York fight fans are still discussing the disgraceful scenes that were witnessed during the so-called bout between Billy Miske, of St. Paul, and Joe Bonds, of Denver. The latter acted as substitute for Bob McAllister, the Californian, who could not appear because of an injury to his wrist. After the first thirty seconds of the first round Bonds was all in and the crowd was roaring to have him taken off, as he was simply being slaughtered by Miske. After 1 minute and 26 seconds Bonds complained of being hit low, and the referee sent the men to their corners. During the one minute rest Bonds complained to the referee that he was being punished too much to continue. The official, however, gave the nod to the timekeeper to ring the bell. Bonds was lifted out of his chair, and could hardly stand. Miske instead of showing a little sportsmanship by refusing further to punish the poor fellow, went after him and beat him up, and finally put him completely out. Of course, the referee was more to blame for not putting an end to the disgraceful performance. It is this sort of thing which gives boxing a black eye in the mind of the public.

Ned Painter Loves.

In the list of champions of the ring the name of Ned Painter does not appear. And yet this gladiator of a century ago would certainly have held the coveted honor had he not loved a girl more than fistic fame and the riches incident to the championship. It was ninety-nine years ago on August 7, 1818, that Painter earned the right to consider himself England's greatest fighting man, by defeating Tom Spring. At that time Tom Cribb was still nominally champion, but the veteran had long since retired from the ring, and had not put up his hands in many years. A host of young fellows naturally came forward to claim the honor soon to be relinquished by Cribb, and among them were Tom Spring, a pupil of Cribb, and Ned Painter. These two soon had eliminated the other contestants, and in 1818, on the 1st of April, they met to decide the issue. The first combat went to Spring, but Painter was ill at the time, and not in condition to fight. His friends were certain that when in condition he could certainly defeat Spring. Painter at this time met and fell violently in love with the daughter of a prominent citizen of Norwich. His affection was reciprocated, but the prospective father-in-law was a Quaker, and opposed to violence in all its forms. He indignantly refused to consider Painter's suit unless he should solemnly promise to leave the ring and all its associations. Painter accepted the condition, and arranged to settle down as a tavern-keeper in Norwich. As preparations for the realization of his dream of bliss were being completed, however, the sporting papers began to be filled with accusations of cowardice and fraud directed against Painter. The Earl of Derby, who had been his backer, was said to have inspired these accusations, and it was alleged that his lordship even indited some of the articles. With his honor thus impugned, Painter bade farewell to his sweetheart, and issued a challenge to Tim Spring. They met near Kingston on August 7, and from the first Painter was the master of the situation. At the end of an hour and four minutes Spring was stretched out senseless, and Painter was entitled to lay claim to the championship. With his honor satisfied, however, his thoughts returned to the Quaker girl, and he sped back to Norwich to beg forgiveness from the maiden and her enraged father. At first he was turned away, but persistence won, and the boxer who had thrown away a championship for the greater gift of love married the girl of his dreams, and, we have every reason to believe, they lived happily ever afterward.

Pugilistic Annals.

1818.—Peter Crawley defeated Ben Sutcliffe near Kingston, England. Crawley who became champion of England by whipping Jem Ward in 1827 was then a butcher who followed fighting only as a sideline, and the same was true of his opponent.

1906. — Harry Baker defeated Frankie Neil in 20 rounds at Los Angeles.

1913.—Freddie Cole defeated Tommy Dixon in 7 rounds at Joplin, Mo.

A Chic Boarding House

There is even a humorous side to the war. The town of Nancy, in Flanders war zone, which is being bombarded once in a while by German big guns, has a boarding house keeper who announces in a local paper that he has for rent "ground boors with bomb proof vaults" and "bedrooms sheltered from taubes," and states he "has gathered enough coal for the entire winter."

Cocoanut Pudding

Bring 1 1-2 pints of milk to boiling point, then add three tablespoonsful of cornstarch moistened with one cupful of milk, the yolks of four eggs beaten with one-half cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Now add one cupful of chopped cocoanut and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Pour into a buttered pudding dish. Beat up the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, then beat in one-half cupful of sugar, turn on to the top of the pudding and brown lightly in the oven.

BERLIN'S POLISH TRICK

Socialist Protest in the Prussian Parliament Over "Liberation"

According to Berlin the Polish question was discussed in the Prussian Diet. Herr Stroebel (Socialist) said the so-called proclamation of an independent Poland without the Reichstag being informed was an act of sovereign autocracy. "We also," he added, "are for the liberation of the Poles, but for self-liberation without foreign assistance. It is desired to hold the Poles firmly in hand. Such liberation means nothing but annexation.

"The Poles fear that the new State will be only a vassal of Prussia and Germany, and that its new army will fill the gaps in our army. By the proclamation the war is aggravated and prolonged. We want peace, but not the creation of new causes for conflict."

Please Don't "Disturb"

The British Home Secretary was asked: "Whether complaint has been received from enemy aliens interned at Alexandra Palace that their rest was disturbed by the tread of the guard on sentry duty at night; and whether to meet such complaints a quantity of cocoanut matting, involving considerable expense, has been, or is about to be, supplied in order more effectually to secure the comfort of those interned?"

DEADLY WATERSPOUTS FOUND THE BLUECHER

Terrible Details of Effect of British Naval Gunnery Given by a German Survivor

One of the most vivid descriptions of the effect of shell-fire in a naval action was that given by a wounded survivor of the Bluecher to a Times correspondent. His story deserves to rank with Semenoff's account of Tsushima. When the British battle-cruisers came in sight the Bluecher's people saw the deadly waterspouts creep nearer and nearer. They watched them with a strange fascination. "Soon one pitched close to the ship, and a vast watery pillar, a hundred metres high, fell lashing on the deck. The range had been found. Dann aber ging's los! Now the shells came thick and fast, with a horrible droning hum. At once they did terrible execution. The electric plant was soon destroyed and the ship plunged in a darkness that could be felt.

All in Darkness

"'You could not see your hand before your nose,' said one. Down below decks there was horror and confusion, mingled with gasping shouts and moans as the shells plunged through the decks. It was only later, when her range shortened, that their trajectory flattened and they tore holes in the ship's sides and raked her decks. At first they came dropping from the sky. They penetrated the decks. They bored their way even to the stokehold. The coal in the bunkers was set on fire. Since the bunkers were half empty the fire burned merrily. In the engine-room a shell licked up the oil and sprayed it around in flames of blue and green, scarring its victims and blazing where it fell. Men huddled together in dark compartments, but the shells sought them out, and there death had a rich harvest.

Horror After Horror

"The terrific air pressure, resulting from explosion in a confined space, left a deep impression on the minds of the men of the Bluecher. The air roars through every opening and tears its way through every weak spot. All loose or insecure fittings are transferred into moving instruments of destruction. Open doors bang to and jamb, and closed iron doors bend outward like tinplates, and through it all the bodies of men are whirled about like dead leaves in a winter blast, to be battered to death against the iron walls. There were shuddering horrors, intensified by the darkness or semi-gloom. As one poor wretch was passing through a trap-door a shell burst near him. He was exactly halfway through. The trap-door closed with a terrible snap. In one of the engine-rooms—it was the room where the high velocity engines for ventilation and forced draught were at work—men were picked up by that terrible Luftdruck, the whirl-drift at a street corner, and tossed to a horrible death among the machinery. There were other horrors too fearful to recount."

RIGHT HON. AUGUSTINE BIRRELL who as Chief Secretary for Ireland, was blamed in some quarters for much of the war-time trouble in Ireland.

Australian Racing

There's a certain hotel in Sydney, Australia, which advertises thusly in "Snowy" Baker's programme: "We are only one hundred yards from the stadium. The first man to reach our hotel with the complete news concerning the result of the bouts will be given a prize of one pint." The "Ad" doesn't mention the fluid. Probably that is optional with the winner.

FATHER AND SON V.C.'s

Field-Marshal Sir Evelyn Wood, in a letter with regard to the posthumous bestowal of the Victoria Cross on Major W. La Touche Congreve, whose father, Lieutenant-General W. N. Congreve, won the same award seventeen years before, mentions the case of Lieutenant-Colonel J. V. Campbell, whose name appeared in the same list of V.C. awards. Lieutenant-Colonel Campbell's father, Captain the Hon. Robert Campbell, who was Sir Evelyn Wood's staff officer, was killed in the Zulu War of 1879 while performing an act of extraordinary courage, "for which," writes Sir Evelyn, "as I reported officially, I should have recommended him for the Cross had he survived."

The Entente Cordiale

Prince Arthur of Connaught presenting a British decoration to a general of France is another illustration of the strength given the Franco-British alliance by comradeship in arms, recognition of sacrifices and abilities and by the democracy of royalty.

Hindenburg's Strategy Follows Out Domineering Pan-Germanism

Prof. T. G. Masaryk, the exiled Austrian member of parliament, writes in an English paper as follows: When the allies are tempted to question the wisdom of Hindenburg's strategy and to accuse him of being obsessed by the East, let them not forget that he is a Prussian and a true representative of the soul of the German people. THE BATTLE HYMN.

Promised to Oust the "Star Spangled Banner" of America.

Although "The Star Spangled Banner" is still the air which brings patriotic Americans to their feet, a number of people in the United States have recently been trying to win favor for "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." It can be sung to "John Browne's Body," one of the finest marching tunes in existance and also an American melody. Still there are persons who do not think it suitable for a national anthem, and perhaps they are right. However, there can hardly be two opinions about Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's poem. As Dr. Lyman Abbott recently said of it:

"'The Battle-Hymn of the Republic' is equally appropriate in all sections of the country. It is pervaded by a religious spirit, but is wholly free from sectarian or theological phraseology. It is equally fitted to express the spiritual faith of Roman Catholic and Protestant, Jew and Christian conservative and liberal, and it is inspiring in its poetic form as it is inspiring in its elevated Catholic spirit." Whether it will oust "The Star Spangled Banner remains to be seen. There is something in the contention that the form and the melody are not quite hymnlike.

NEW TORONTO CONDUCTOR.

Mr. A. H. Fricker, the new conductor of the Mendelssohn Choir, arrives in Toronto during the coming week. A recent number of the Yorkshire Post refers to the many expressions of appreciation tendered Mr. Fricker, prior to his departure from England. The Leeds Philharmonic Society presented to him and to Mrs Fricker valuable gifts and the Society's Score of "The Messiah"; the Morley Choral Society, of which he had been conductor for fourteen years, presented him with a massive piece of silver and an address. At Leeds University the honorary degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon him as a recognition of the faithful and enduring service rendered the community by the training and inspiring of many hundreds of singers, as well as in his capacity as conductor of the Saturday Night orchestral concerts in the Leeds Town Hall. A felicitous compliment at the conferring of the degree was paid him by the members of the Leeds Symphony Orchestra, contributing two delightful pieces of chamber music. The same evening Mr. Fricker gave his final organ recital in the Leeds Town Hall to a large audience, who recalled him again and again, as if loath to let him go. Shortly after Mr. Fricker's arrival in Toronto the organization of the Mendelssohn Chorus will be taken up.

THE COUNTRY CHOIR

Does Not Compare With That Of 40 Years Ago

Kate Douglas Wiggin, the eminent novelist, attended the recent Saco Valley Music Festival, and made a speech, in the course of which she remarked: "The country choir does not compare with that of 40 or 50 years ago and the congregations don't begin to sing as well. True, they are mostly off motoring—these congregation—but even the loyal churchgoers of this generation do not make music as their fathers did. Where now can you pass an old-fashioned white-painted meeting-house on Sunday morning and hear the great bursts of melody that used to pour through the open doors and windows? The tender strains of "Naomi" or "Ariel" or "Duke Street," dignified and stately, "Coronation," magnificent, triumphant? When I was a child I believe you could have heard our congregation sing "Bring Forth the Royal Diadem" a quarter of a mile away, and, though the quality of tone may not have been equal to the quantity, I am sure it was as good for the soul as it was for the lungs. I should like to hear a present day audience shake off its listlessness, open its throat, and sing the old hymns once more, but nobody under 50 even knows the words nowadays. The village singing school is gone, too, and the musical instrument in the district school leaves much to be desired. The young people seemingly sit no more on the stone steps or out under the trees, singing in the moonlight. I am glad if they have outgrown the cheerful inanities of "Seeing Nellie Home" or "By Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean," but have they put anything better in their places?"

"How they so softly rest
All, all the happy dead,
Who, bravely striving
Fought and won life's dreadful battle.
How they so softly rest,
Quiet in quiet graves,
Ere to salvation they waken once again.

Famous Orchestra

The famous Conservatoire Orchestra of Paris, which is coming to America in the autumn, has played only twice outside of its own hall—once at the Beethoven Centennial at Bonn and last year on a trip through Switzerland. It is stated that Montreal has already guaranteed $4,000 for a single concert, while Denver has subscribed $6,000 for one, and one may ask "Where does Peterboro come in?"

THE TWO SCARLATTI'S

Scarlatti's name appears frequently upon piano recital programmes, but there is a cloudiness apparent. Not always is a master's first name given. Domenico was the man who wrote for the "gravi-cenbalo" which was the modern pianoforte's grandfather. Yet a prominent musical journal confounds him with Alessandro, who is generally considered as the originator of the instrumental symphony. Domenico Scarlatti was far above the tinkling tunesmiths of his time. His passage work was as vivid and graceful in its way as that of Chopin and is fully as welcome to music lovers. What other writer could stand while the instrument, for which he wrote, developed from such a triviality as the cenbalo to the stentorian concert grand pianoforte of to-day? It is said that Scarlatti became known outside of Italy through the efforts of a Dublin organist who had become enthusiastic over some of his compositions.

ABUSED IN MOST HOMES, PIANO TONE AFFECTED BY NEGLECT

A Little Care Prolongs The Life Of Instruments

"That sounds a good deal better than my old tin pan," said a citizen the other day while listening to a friend's piano. There was no apparent reason for the difference in the two instruments. They had come from the same warerooms. Each of them stood in the "best room." Each was used with tolerable frequency. But one was a worthy companion, while the other was less desirable. A brief inquiry showed, at least partially, the cause of the variation. The good piano had been regularly tuned. Four times a year the tuner called and the faults caused by our variable climate were repaired. Again, the good piano was set at some distance from the radiator and the parlor fireplace. Once more, it was usually kept closed and thus the mechanism was protected from too long an exposure to either damp or super-heated air.

The owner of the "tin-pan" had treated exactly as he would have treated a common chair. He had it dusted occasionally, but with that all care was over. Now the fact should appeal to most people that a pianoforte is a subtly fashioned piece of machinery. From sounding board to string peg it must be perfectly adjusted. If, like Captain Cuttle's watch, it is to do a man credit. The wonderful thing about the modern piano of average type is not that one occasionally fails, but that so many "stand up" under such remarkable usage. Standardized work in the factories has done much to bring Canadian pianos to a high pitch of excellence. Standardized care in the household will do much to maintain them in good tone and make them a joy for ever.

ORGANS THEN AND NOW.

Those who revel in the music furnished by our fine organs in the city churches are more or less familiar with the great number of stops, pipes and other means at the disposal of the organist to furnish the wonderful and the thrilling effects that he produces. But it is interesting to stop and think of the marvellous advance there has been in the art of organ building.

As far back as 1684, we are told, there was built in the Temple Church, London, what was then considered a large organ. It had ten stops in the Great Organ, six stops in the Choir Organ, and seven stops in the Echo Organ, employing in all 1,715 pipes. Between forty and fifty years later there was erected in Christ Church, Spitalsfield, what was then called the largest organ in England. It had six more stops in the Great Organ, three more in the Choir Organ, and had eight stops in the Swell Organ. This one contained 2,216 pipes. On the continent, however, there were some larger ones, even to the figure of 4,988 pipes.

Any of these are outclassed several fold by the fine organs of today. The present standard of the organ-building art is a fine tribute to the musical development of our country, for dotted all over Canada from one coast to the other are to be found great organs which are "doing their bit" to foster and cultivate locally a real musical life.

CHOIRS OF QUEBEC SET GOOD EXAMPLE

Choir Members Need Benefits — Resulting from Getting Together.

Knowlton in the Eastern Townships had an interesting convention beginning July 30th and continuing to August 6th. It was the fourth annual Church Choir Assembly under the auspices of the Knowlton Conference. The association includes choir members from Ottawa, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Granby and Knowlton, and its aims and objects make interesting reading. The chief object is to inspire in choir members an enthusiasm for the best music of the Christian Church. The word Christian is broad enough to include all denominations and sects. After all, music is not a sectarian device, but a universal art. The founders of the association, nevertheless, insist that church choirs should make the music a "part of Divine worship," and therefore that they should strive for efficiency in its rendering. A class for organists and choirmasters was one of the features of the convention. There was an exposition of methods in choir training, an analysis of current church music, and lectures on topics of general interest and importance. Among those specifically interested in leading the discussions were Rev. Henry J. Kilbourn, Montreal, Rev. Edward M. Fuller, Richmond, Vermont; Mr. Arthur H. Egg, the brilliant Montreal organist, Mr. A. E. Whitehead, of Sherbrooke, Dr. Herbert Sanders, of Ottawa, Mr. J. Hopkins Ould, Montreal, Mrs. Foster Lane Haviland, of Portland, Maine, and Rev. Charles S. Deeprose, Montreal.

The plan is admirable and might be adopted with advantage in various town circles of Ontario. Consider the possibilities in such a convention drawn from all churches in Hamilton and the Niagara Peninsula! Another circle including London, Stratford, St. Marys, St. Thomas, Woodstock and Sarnia woul bed possible. In Toronto the opportunities are infinite. There is too little co-operation between choirs in Toronto. Each one lives, moves and has its being in a watertight compartment.

WHY HUSBANDS DESPAIR.

Here's One Reason, and It Shows How Really Unimportant a Big War Is.

"COME here, my dear," he said. "I want to show you something. This is a war map, which I cut from a newspaper. Don't you think it would be nice for us to follow the course of the armies and try to get a better idea of the situation?"

"Yes, dear."

"Draw your chair a little closer. You want to know something about the fighting nations, don't you?"

"Yes, dear."

"Of course. Now, let's see. Ah, I've got it upside down. There, that's right. The evening papers say that Bilek in Bosnia was the scene of a severe engagement between the Montenegrins and Austrians. Can you find Bilek?"

"How do you spell it, dear?"

"I'll look in the paper. Yes, here it is. General Vokovitch has left Bilek and is marching on Tchainitch. Just look for Tchainitch while you're at it."

"How do you spell it?"

"I'll look."

While he looks his wife stares at the map, picks it up and turns it over. She at once becomes absorbed in what she sees.

"Oh, George," she cries, "look here!"

"Have you found it?"

"No, no, dear, but listen. 'Choice sale of dress remnants at Boosle's. Take your pick at 7 cents a yard.' I must go down the very first thing in morning!"

He stares at her.

Then he picks up the map and flings it into the wastebasket.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bethmann-Hollweg Was Devoted to Philosophy. Drifted Into Policics

DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG, who will be chiefly remembered in history as the author of the "scrap of paper" phrase, has retired into private life, and it is said that he will devote the remainder of his life to writing history. Perhaps he will try to explain some of his extraordinary actions of the past two years. A careful picture of the man who so recently was driven from his post of Chancellor of the German Empire is drawn by a close acquaintance of the German Chancellor:

Bethmann-Hollweg had a brilliant career at Bonn University, and had he followed his natural bent he would have devoted himself to the study of philosophy. As it was, his family insisted on his entering the German civil service, and in German fashion he fell in with his parents' desire without much hesitation.

Bethmann-Hollweg was promoted steadily from one important civil post to another, and yet, during this period of advancement, his name was almost unknown to the mass of the German people. They had no more say in the matter of the advancement of Bethmann-Hollweg to the supreme political position than they had regarding the purchase by the Kaiser of a dog or a horse. Bethmann-Hollweg, in 1905, was appointed Prussian Home Secretary, and it was then that his name first became familiar to the man in the street in Berlin. Shortly afterward he was appointed Assistant Chancellor to Prince Bulow, who was then Chancellor.

DR. VON BETHMANN-HOLWEGG

It was during his service as Home Secretary that Bethmann-Hollweg became largely converted to all that the most advanced Prussian militarism stood for. Ultimately he became a far more ardent Pan-German even than Prince Bulow. In a speech I heard the present Chancellor make at Munich in 1909 he declared that though Germany was then happily free of all immediate anxiety so far as her foreign relations were concerned, her present and future position as a great power must ultimately rest on her strong arm, and though the strength of her arm was greater than it ever had been it must grow yet stronger.

It was a speech after the Kaiser's own heart—provocative and boasting to a degree. It had, as a matter of fact, been prepared by the Emperor, and it was delivered by the Kaiser's own order for the special benefit of Prince Bulow, who had at that time fallen out of favor with the Emperor. This speech marked a most critical juncture in German affairs, and if ever the whole history of it comes to be written it will make not only extraordinarily interesting reading but will throw a lurid light on the events that led to the war.

To a man of his temperament and character, once he had conceived an aim or object as a good and desirable one to reach, he would not hesitate about the means he employed in reaching it. The thing with him would be to reach it, if possible; and, if he did not reach it, then he would regard his failure philosophically. The human misery and suffering that his acts might be responsible for would never trouble him a jot.

Korea's Gold Mines.

The total output of the Korean gold mines last year exceeded 15,000,000 yen ($7,500,000). This amount is far greater than the gold production of the mother country. The three largest gold mines in Korea—Unsan, Suan, and Changsong—are managed by foreigners. The largest gold mine entirely directed by Japanese is the Asano, in Suman district, South Pyongando. Keusong mine in the same province, managed by the Furukawa firm, is equally prosperous. Holchang mine, in Songchon district, is developing greatly. Most of the gold ore produced in Korea goes to Japan for refinement, but a refinery has recently been built at Chinnampo that will save some of these shipments.—East and West News.

To Conserve Canada's Food

THE Canadian Pacific Railway Co. has played an important part in the interests of Canada in the world war in a great many ways, and has again been honored by the recent appointment of Mr W. A. Cooper, one of its prominent officials, to the Food Conservation Committee. Mr. Cooper has had considerable experience in dealing with foods, having been connected with the dining cars of the Canadian Pacific for twenty years, and his wide knowledge will be of much value to the Committee in the conservation of Canada's food stuffs. On this committee Mr. Cooper is associated with Judge Rose, Toronto; Mr. W. Wright, Toronto; and Miss Watson of the Guelph College. Mr. Cooper was born in 1871. After leaving school he commenced work with the Grand Trunk Railway as a junior clerk under the late William Wainwright, for whom later he acted as Private Secretary. Leaving that company in 1891 he joined the Canadian Pacific Railway service as Chief Clerk to the General Superintendent of the Eastern Division and subsequently assumed the duties of Inspector of Sleeping and Dining Cars, from which he graduated in 1897 to Assistant General Superintendent, and in 1905 was appointed Superintendent. In 1910 Mr. Cooper was promoted to General Superintendent, and during the past four years has been Manager of the Dining, Sleeping, and Parlor Cars, operating also the station restaurants, and train news service. For the years 1908, 09, and 10, Mr. Cooper filled the position of President of the American Association of Dining Car Superintendents.

The Protection of Wheat.

Much has been written on the romance of ranching and police work on the Canadian prairies, but there is scarcely less of romance, though not of so exciting a nature, associated with the peaceful farms that now dot the landscape which was once the haunt of the buffalo and the Indian. When a car of grain is loaded at an elevator or platform in Western Canada and is billed to its destination it immediately becomes the property of the Dominion Government, and no one can interfere with that grain until it has been inspected, weighed, and binned by Dominion officials. Then the warehouse receipt is issued, either to the owner or his agent, for the grade and quantity contained in the car.

Canada can boast of having developed a system not equally in any other country in the world. The marketing of grain throughout Western Canada is as well carried out as efficient organization can make it, and the credit of this is due largely to the efforts of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Thousands of pounds are spent every year for telegraphic communications with the consuming markets of the world, and the Exchange daily posts all over Western Canada prices prevailing in the leading markets.

Isle of Malta Has Long History

IF one desires length of days in the matter of history, one is sure to find it in a Mediterranean island. Crete, for instance, is to-day generally regarded as being the oldest land in the world. Cyprus, too, carries its story back, with the utmost certainty, two thousand years before the Christian era, and Malta is not much younger. When the Phœnicians came to Malta, as they did about the tenth century B. C., they displaced a much older civilization. The island was inhabited by a people about whom little is known, but it was they, and not the Phœnicians who were responsible for the wonderful megalithic monuments which are to be found so frequently in Malta and on the neighboring island of Gozo. Then, about the sixth century came the Carthaginians. They came as friends of a sister Phœnician colony, not as conquerors; but, in the great struggle with Rome in the third century B. C., they were at last driven to levy tribute on the island with the result that the Maltese rose in revolt, handed over the Punic garrison to the Roman general, Titus Sempronius, and Malta became a Roman municipium.

In a history so long and so full of detail as that of Malta, it is not now possible to do more than refer to its great landmarks. The coming of the Phœnician, the coming of the Carthaginian, and the coming of the Roman, have already been referred to. The next great event was the coming of Christianity, in the first century of the Christian era. It was of course, on the island of Malta, or Melita, as it was then called, that St. Paul was shipwrecked, on his voyage from Cæsarea to Rome, and Publius, "the chief of the island," whose father St. Paul healed of a fever, became, according to tradition, the first Christian Bishop of Malta.

Then, in the eleventh century, after a period of Arab control extending over some three hundred years, came the Norman, in the person of Count Roger, son of the famous Tancred de Hauteville, at that time master of Sicily. The Maltese welcomed him as a deliverer, and the Arab dominion came to an end. That was in 1090, and, for nearly five hundred years, through some line or other, the Normans remained masters of the island. It was its history in the sixteenth century, however, which made Malta famous. The Knights of St. John had been driven out of Rhodes by the Turk, and, after eight years, during which they were without a home, the Emperor Charles V. granted them Malta, subject to an annual tribute of a falcon in acknowledgment that Malta was under the suzerainty of Spain. The Knights set about establishing themselves in their new home with vigor. They had measured their long swords with the Ottoman scimitar in Rhodes, and they knew that the Sultan would never rest until he had driven them from their new stronghold. They determined, therefore, to render themselves as secure as possible. Establishing themselves on the promontory guarded by the Castle of St. Angelo, on the southern shore of the Grand Harbor, they fortified the neighboring town of Borgo, and waited. For thirty-five years the Turk held his hand, and then the storm broke. The Sultan Soliman II. sent an army against Malta, under the command of the veteran, Mustapha, and in the May of 1565 the famous siege began. For four months the Knights and the Maltese Christians, under the able leadership of the Grand Master, Jehan Parisot de la Valette, successfully withstood every effort of Mustapha and the Turkish Admiral, Piali, to secure possession of the island. Finally, on September 8, the Ottoman forces were definitely defeated, and driven in confusion to their ships. With the defeat of the Turk, the order reached the height of its fame and power. New knights flocked to be enrolled, but thence onwards the knights lapsed from their old ideals, and, when they were finally driven from Malta by Napoleon, as they were in 1798, they had long ceased to command the respect of Christendom. The Treaty of Amiens, in 1802, provided for the restoration of Malta to the Order of St. John, but against this decision the Maltese strongly protested, and when, by the Treaty of Paris, in 1814, the island was formally handed over to the United Kingdom, the settlement was received with satisfaction.

A BRILLIANT CAREER

GENERAL A. W. CURRIE HAS NEVER LOST A TRENCH.

New Commander of the Canadian Troops in France Was Born in Ontario, but Lived Most of His Life in British Columbia—Won His Promotion by Splendid Work.

FROM a humble position in a little-known Middlesex county village to commander of the Canadian forces in France, the men who "saved the situation" in the second battle of Ypres—that is the brilliant record of Major-General Arthur William Currie.

Major-General Currie was born forty-two years ago in the village of Napperton, which apparently is not considered important enough to be listed in the Canadian Almanac. It lies some miles west of the town of Strathroy, in the West riding of Middlesex, and not far from the dividing line between Middlesex and Lambton counties.

The son of William Currie and Jane Garner, he was educated at the Strathroy Collegiate Institute, and at the age of eighteen he left Ontario to seek his fortune in British Columbia. Arriving at Sidney, B.C., in 1893, he secured a precarious living in the position of teacher in the public school of that village. After some years in that profession he entered the real estate business, and later became head of the firm of Currie & Power, real estate agents, Victoria, B.C.

While in British Columbia he identified himself with the 5th Regiment of the Canadian Garrison Artillery, with which he served for fourteen years. Leaving the artillery, he joined a Highland regiment in Victoria, which is allied with one of the famous regiments of Highlanders in Scotland. He took a keen interest in all matters affecting the militia, and soon became Lieutenant-Colonel of his regiment, the 50th, of Victoria. He also became President of the British Columbia Rifle Association in 1907, and retained that position for many years. Rifle-shooting was his recreation.

He married in 1901 Miss L. S. Chatsworth-Musters of Victoria. Before going to the front he was a prominent Liberal, an Anglican, and a member of the Masonic Order.

Major-General Currie was among the first Canadians to volunteer for active service when the war broke out, and immediately orders were received for the Canadian volunteers to mobilize at Valcartier he entrained with his Highland regiment for the great concentration camp in Quebec. Shortly after reaching Valcartier he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General in command of the Second Infantry Brigade, and it was in that position he went to Salisbury Plain and eventually to the firing line.

There are few Canadians who do not know the part taken by the Canadians in the second battle of Ypres, their first big engagement after reaching Flanders. General Currie's brigade, which was in the hardest fighting of that terrific struggle, was composed of the 5th, 7th, 8th, and 10th Battalions. His conduct was such that the King made him a Companion of the Order of the Bath, while France conferred upon him the Legion of Honor, and the Croix de Commandeur.

At the battle of St. Julien General Currie's brigade was holding 2,500 yards of trenches, when the 3rd Brigade was forced by German gas to retire. Currie's brigade had maintained its lines, but when the Canadian Highland Brigade had changed its position it became necessary for him to repeat the tactical manoeuvres of the 3rd Brigade against overwhelming odds. It is written of him that "in the very crisis of this immense struggle he held his line of trenches from Thursday at 5 o'clock till Sunday afternoon. And on Sunday afternoon he had not abandoned his trenches. There were none left. They had been obliterated by the artillery. He withdrew his undefeated troops from the fragments of his field fortifications, and the hearts of his men were as completely unbroken as the parapets of his trenches were completely broken."

Some months later, in September, 1915, General Currie succeeded General Alderson as General Officer Commanding the 1st Canadian Division, the operations of which he has since directed with the same skill, gallantry, and determination which he exhibited at Ypres. General Currie's division won more glory and victories at the Somme, when at Courcelette and Thiepval his troops proved just as brilliant and just as successful in the offensive as they were on the defensive in the second battle of Ypres. The same division, with much fresh blood, of course, has again performed a brilliant feat of arms in the capture of Vimy Ridge. It is General Currie's proud boast that his division "has never lost a trench."

Holland Is Fat Neutral, But Lives in Trepidation While the People Suffer

HOLLAND, the fat neutral, has not enriched herself as a port of entry for hungry Germany without fear and trepidation. This little nation of disproportionate resources is armed to the teeth, while she barters between the belligerents for much of the world's food surplus. She has as many men in arms as if she were at war, and her navy bristles with guns on decks cleared for action.

Thus armed, and thus enriched by trade, she begs to be permitted to remain neutral, not because of the profits of neutrality alone, but also because of the perils of being gobbled up by Germany or of being punished by the Allies.

Acute crises affect Holland at intervals. She is in a fever of excitement now over the new British war zone regulations, which are intended to tighten the blockade against Germany through Holland, but which Holland protests as a complete prohibition of her North Sea trade.

England has tried to buy up Holland's surplus food supply, but always the shrewd Holland traders were able to find entrance into Germany for food already sold to France and England. Many crafty Dutchmen have grown enormously rich in the war trade. The recent riots of women in Amsterdam and dumping of potatoes intended for England were in protest against their own merchants rather than against the Allies, for the Dutch food speculators have almost sold the Holland consumer out and prices are almost as prohibitive as they are in Germany.

Coffee, sugar, cigars, cocoa, fish, butter, eggs, beef, cheese, and even wheat flowed into Germany in unprecedented quantities. The blockade tightened, but exports failed to decrease proportionately. The Government long ago introduced bread tickets and regulated the quantity of various commodities to be used. There is a real shortage of other foods, but still the traders continue to smuggle stuff into Germany.

An American embargo against Holland is now advocated by England, and Holland is fearful. Great Britain presented to the United States figures showing that from Scandinavia and Holland enough fat is going into Germany to supply the whole army. Most of these exports are replaced with imports from America, and it is declared that the United States, through the power to order embargoes, can prevent all shipments of fats into Germany. In particular, coal has enabled Germany to exact from Scandinavia and Holland food in return for this fuel, for which they were almost absolutely dependent upon Germany.

The zone recently established in the North Sea by the British Government has drawn protests from the Dutch Government, which maintains that these regulations render the passage of all shipping to and from Holland around the northern coast of England completely impossible. The other routes are included in the German danger zone.

Holland as a belligerent would be formidable. Every invader has there met his Waterloo. Not by flooding her low-lying lands alone, as did the founders of the House of Orange against the harsh Spanish rulers, can Holland defend herself. She is at home on the sea. Her colonizing instinct has been second only to that of England and Spain and Rome, while her fleet has traditions of victory at sea that make her respected as a power quite beyond the pygmy size of her territory.

Russia and English Literature.

A book which possesses special interest just now, dealing with the Russian people and their taste in literature, makes its appearance under the title, "My Slav Friends." The author, Rothay Reynolds, is an authority on nearly all matters affecting the vast empire of the Tsar, and he speaks of the keen interest in English affairs displayed by Russians of all classes—

"It is not our politics alone that interest the Russians. A new play by a notable writer is produced in London, and a few days later the people of Moscow and Petrograd read an account of it in their newspapers. A remarkable novel is published in London; criticisms of it appear in the Russian press, and copies of it on the counters of Russian booksellers. As for our older writers, they are household names. Dickens is as familiar in Russia as in England. It is known that even the monks of the Troitsky Lavra read Walter Scott.

"The reason why most educated Russians exercise discrimination in the choice of English books is that they have a great literature of their own with which to compare them, and moreover know the finest books in the English language, as one of the most brilliant lecturers Cambridge has produced might have discovered had his Russian friends been candid. He came to Petrograd to deliver a course of lectures on English literature, and his name and reputation attracted a large audience. His lectures, which had been appreciated in English provincial towns, were admirable, but elementary. And Russians expressed disappointment. 'We know all this,' they said, and indicated that they had expected a series of elaborate psychological studies of the British poets. From the small boy of Pskov who loved Sherlock Holmes to the Grand Duke who made a fine translation of 'Hamlet'—most chivalrous, most spiritual Grand Duke Constantine—the Russian nation has done homage to English letters."

The "Mad" French Never Conquered

"YOU are a crazy nation." Such was the angry exclamation of a German colonel to the Frenchwoman with whom he was lodging in the part of France now evacuated by the triumphantly retreating Hindenburg. The incident is recorded by two French physicians, who went to the invaded territory as soon as it was free, for the purpose of bearing aid to the victims of German maltreatment, and, incidentally, of piecing together all the evidence they could find about the state of mind of the invading army. They write of their experiences in The Revue de Paris. The colonel in question made his remark just after the French had rejected the tricky peace offer of Germany last December. When the pitiful remnants of the French population in the occupied territory heard of this a thrill of joy ran from village to village. "We have refused to negotiate for peace; that shows that we are the stronger!" But to the German colonel, discovering that the French had not yet had "enough of war," it was a sign that they had gone mad.

It is well known that the Germans in the invaded French provinces published three or four times a week a newspaper, The Gazette des Ardennes. Our French doctors were fortunate enough to find a complete file of it. They studied it to excellent advantage. For in this publication, running over two years, there was disclosed the entire programme of German propaganda in France. The Gazette was absolutely the only means of public information about what was going on open to the French inhabitants of the invaded region. Everything else was cut off from them. And The Gazette told them many things they wanted to know. It printed the names of French soldiers who had been made prisoners or who had been wounded. It published the official war bulletins, besides giving a certain amount of local news. Hence the French eagerly read it. But throughout the German aim was to take advantage of thus getting a printed page into the hands of French readers, in order to endeavor to create among them an opinion about the war and its outcome. A part of this was cleverly concealed or only insinuated; a part was bold-faced and open. A great many significant extracts from The Gazette are brought together, with the appropriate comment, by the two French physicians.

The whole was one more gigantic display of German ingenuity misapplied. To no other conquerors would it probably have occurred even to attempt to sway the opinions of a people to whom their very presence was a constant outrage. Yet nothing is too hard for German efficiency. So the Gazette des Ardennes set to work, first of all, to poison the minds of the French against the English. It recalled the ancient wars between France and England. It even wrote, in bad French, verses celebrating Jeanne d'Arc for having driven the English out of France. How she must suffer, "pauvre Jeanne," at the thought of the ancient enemy again on French soil! This was stupid enough, but worse was to follow. The French were to be shown the fatal error of their ways. They hoped to win back Alsace and Lorraine by persisting in the war. The thing was impossible, but even supposing the lost provinces could be secured, at what a price it would be! Much more than they were worth. The leaders of the Government at Paris were on the wrong tack. Instead of hate between Germany and France there ought to be affection and cooperation — even an "alliance." "France could be and should be the intelligent financial partner of a populous and laboring Germany. Together they could make themselves masters of the world and put an end to war." Of such was the amazing folly of this German Gazette published to witch the conquered French. Our investigating doctors were at pains to ask right and left what had been the effect upon French readers of this constant patter of German intrigue. The replies would be discouraging to the missionaries of Kultur. Said Madame Larrey, in her wine-shop: "There was no need of taking pains to discover that they were only printing lies in their wicked paper." That looks like lucidity instead of lunacy.

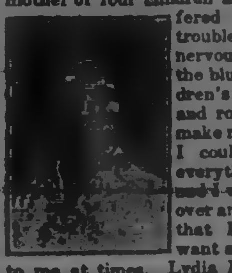
If France seems a mad nation to the disappointed Germans, to other peoples she appears to have attained, through her sacrifices and her heroic endurance, to a pitch of spiritual exaltation. Henri Bergson made an address before the French Academy a month ago. He said, "France has been for the whole world, in this terrible crisis, a model of courage, of patience, or resignation, and, to express it all in one word, of simplicity in sacrifice. France appears as a lofty moral personality; and the world cherishes for France a feeling like that which France herself professes for Jeanne d'Arc."

A Wartime Palace.

Prince Albert's palace at Laeken, which has recently been the scene of drunken orgies among the German officers billeted there, stands in a magnificent park some four miles north of Brussels and though a modern building occupies the site and is an almost exact facsimile of a former royal chateau once a favorite residence of Napoleon I. The original was burned down on New Year's Day, 1890, when Napoleon's library and many priceless art objects were destroyed. In the early days of the German occupation of Belgium the Duke of Brunswick established himself in high state at Laeken.—Dundee Advertiser.

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.



Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—MRS. ROBT. Drunkenness Decreases.

One year ago June the first the temperance legislation came into effect and a Winnipeg paper states that of 83 Winnipeg hotels existing at that time, 28 have closed their doors. A report compiled by the city police department shows a great decrease in drunkenness under prohibition. "Drunks" for eleven months, from July, 1915, to May, 1916, numbered 3,223 and from June, 1916, to May, 1917, the last months for which reports have been compiled, only 724. An increase of 108 in general crimes is reported in the same period.

Take Off Your Coat and Give the Farmer a Hand!

When, three months ago, we called upon Ontario's farmers for mighty efforts to avert the threatened Famine and World-Hunger, they responded splendidly.

Aided by Providential weather, Ontario's Crop is one of the biggest in her history.

The farmer has done his part.

We Town and City men must do our part.

The crop is on the ground — the farmer can't possibly take it off unaided.

To lose a sheaf of it for want of harvest-help would be an unthinkable crime.

We call upon the Men of Ontario to rouse themselves. To co-operate, employee with employer, in this patriotic service. Many employers have agreed to make it financially possible for their employees to do this work, and the Ontario Government will pay railway fare both ways of all men who go.

Help us, so that we may send word to Ontario's Sons in the trenches — that Ontario's Second Line of Defence stands fast, — that here, as well as there, we "Carry On."

HORSEFLESH IS 86 CENTS A POUND

A recent statement of the American food administration reads as follows:

"The demand for fats in Germany, notwithstanding the enormous quantities that have until recently been received through the neutral nations is illustrated by advertisements in German newspapers just received here.

"'For sale, for cash on delivery, fat for frying, 17 marks ($4.05) per pound,' reads one advertisement.

"'Goose fat, 22½ marks ($5.36) per pound,' reads another.

"'Duck fat, one-quarter pound for 4.75 marks ($1.12)' is a Dresden bargain sale announcement.

"Salted goose legs are quoted at 94 cents each. Minced goose meat brings the same price. Larded goose breast, a delicacy, will cost the epicure $2.08 per pound. Fresh fowls for soup are quoted at $1.01 per pound and up.

"An official distribution of cheese is announced for Dusseldorf, with the announcement that there will not be sufficient to supply everyone, but that 'those who were not supplied at the last distribution and also go empty at the forthcoming distribution will be given preference at the next distribution. They must, therefore, preserve the current voucher.' Prices quoted are 82 cents per pound for Gonda (Dutch) and 58 cents per pound for Swiss cheese.

"Young country laying hens are advertised for sale at $3.32 each.

"Well-fed snow-white Emden giant geese" are offered for sale at prices ranging from $11.91 to $19.06 each.

"The egg ration at Hamburg for one week in June was one egg per person.

"Rabbits bring high prices. 'One buck, one doe and three young rabbits' are offered for $8.34.

"Horses are in great demand for killing, and delicacies made of horse flesh are advertised at prices varying from 63 cents to 86 cents per pound."

ONTARIO VETERINARIES WANT QUACKS PUT OUT

The 43rd annual convention of the Ontario Veterinary Association decided to ask the Government to protect the profession from the unqualified "quack," and to encourage young men to enter the profession. Dr. C. S. McDonald, of Toronto, was elected president; first vice-president, Dr. J. A. Campbell, Toronto; second vice-president, Dr. J. H. Engel, Waterloo; secretary-treasurer, Dr. H. E. GERMAN MADE SAUSAGES OUT OF DOGS AND CATS

In a letter received from Geneva, Switzerland, by Mr. A. A. Dion, of Ottawa, the following significent item appears with reference to high prices, etc.: "Just to mention one thing, butter is $2 to $2.50 per pound, and one has almost to fight to get any. Still we must not complain. A German told me that every poor cat and dog in Germany has been slaughtered and turned into sausage. We are not quite so badly off as that yet. The war does not look like ending yet, but everyone over here is glad America has come in, I think chiefly on account of the moral support.

THE CAR SHORTAGE

Consignees Can Help by Ordering Full Carloads

The railways solicit consignees' co-operation in their endeavor to provide all their patrons with a satisfactory freight car supply.

Consignees Can Help by Ordering Full Carloads.

Many consignees never order more than the minimum authorized under the tariffs and classification. The result is an economical waste which reduces the efficiency of the railways and the public suffers.

To increase the average car loading by 1 ton, would be equivalent to placing 10,960 additional freight cars in service in Canada.

To fully load cars would go a long way towards solving our transportation difficulties.

Railways realize that some consignees cannot always order full carloads, but they are requested to help by ordering in as large units as possible.

A Car Saved Is a Car Gained.

The difference between minimum loads and full loads of certain standard commodities is given herewith:

Flour shipped in 214 lb. barrels. Minimum load 210 bbls.: A 30 ton car will hold 300 bbls., a 40 ton car will hold 415 bbls. 98 lb. sacks. Minimum load 459 sacks: A 30 ton car will hold 673 sacks, a 40 ton car will hold 900 sacks.

Sugar shipped in 100 lb. sacks. Minimum load 300 sacks: A 30 ton car will hold 660 sacks, a 40 ton car will hold 940 sacks.

Cement shipped in 87½ lb. sacks. Minimum load 457 sacks: A 30 ton car will hold 754 sacks, a 40 ton car will hold 1074 sacks.

Nails shipped in 107 lb. kegs. Minimum load 280 kegs: A 30 ton car will hold 616 kegs, a 40 ton car will hold 870 kegs.

Consignees Can Help by Promptly Releasing Cars.

To most consignees such an appeal is unnecessary—they do not delay cars under load. There are others, however, who appear to be satisfied if they release cars in what is known as "free time." Again, there are others who hold cars in storage service for weeks, and such consignees are largely responsible for car shortages and terminal congestion.

A recent check of cars placed for unloading and held by consignees at some of the stations on one of the railways showed 700 cars delayed an average of twelve days. Had these cars been released within even five days they would have made nearly 1,400 trips, and would have handled about 35,000 tons of freight. 2,615 other cars unloaded within three days could have been placed for delivery on the tracks occupied by these 700 delayed cars.

The railways do not want their cars to earn demurrage, but want them employed in carrying freight.

A Rolling Car Gathers No Demurrage.

If consignees will order freight from shippers so as to increase the average loading by 5 tons per car, and if they will reduce the average delay in unloading by 24 hours, it will prevent car shortages.

In Co-Operation There Is Efficiency.

Hotels Without Bars.

The question of prohibition in its relation to hotel profits has been given a great deal of attention in Canada and the United States during the past year, and it would now appear, from the evidence gathered by experts, that apart from the temporary profit loss the earnings of the hotels have not seriously been impaired, says The Financial Times of Montreal.

The Financial Times has been enabled to secure some interesting data on this important question, which we present to our readers.

The manager of a first-class hotel in Winnipeg says, in answer to the question, How is prohibition affecting the hotels?—"We naturally lose the liquor receipts, and the profits from the sale of liquor, but we are trying to adjust ourselves to meet the new conditions, and we are glad to say that the volume of business is now about equal to what it was under the old condition, even in face of the loss of the bar. This is effected by an increase in our rates and possibly more 'travel' coming to the City of Winnipeg, together with a substantial increase in the amount of local business.

"In my opinion the bar is not essential in the matter of dividend payments," this Winnipeg manager states, "but I certainly believe that we should be allowed to dispose of liquors, particularly light wines and beer, as they do in clubs, either by service in the rooms or in the restaurants. If that were allowed, we would not be so much interested in the return of the bar."

The opinions of a few United States hotel managers may be instructive. A manager in Denver says he never again would have a bar in his hotel, even if the State reverts to the old policy. He would sell in the dining-rooms, however. Another hotel man in the same district is "perfectly satisfied with dry conditions."

In Iowa, a "dry" state, the business of operating a hotel is as prosperous as any hotel in a "wet" state.

It would seem that hotelkeepers have adjusted themselves to the new conditions by various economies, and by extending the scope of the hotel by enlarging dining-rooms, giving more attention to lunch rooms, delicatessen, outside catering, etc.

It is also evident that hotel proprietors in Canada and the United States are endeavoring to secure a modification of the present policy of strict prohibition, and secure in its place special privileges to enable the supply of refreshments to bona fide travelling guests, such as the latter may be accustomed to in their own homes.

The above opinions, gathered from a great many sources, show, however, that from the point of view of capital investments the "dry" hotel may be made as profitable as those who enjoy the privileges of a liquor

HOW TO COMBINE VEGETABLES

Q.—If several vegetables are served at one meal, does it make much difference what combination of vegetables is used, or should only certain kinds of vegetables be used together? E. T.

The attractiveness and palatability of a meal consisting chiefly of vegetables is greatly affected by the selection of vegetables. For example, although rice (natural brown), potatoes, sweet corn and parsnips are excellent foods, the average person would scarcely enjoy a meal consisting of a combination of all of them. Each contains rather large amounts of starch, and, if eaten together, the appetite fails to welcome more than one or two of these foods.

Good results are obtained when one of these is served with legumes (the bean, pea, lentil) and one or two dishes made up of cabbage, onions, or the other green vegetables.

A single meal should never contain more than one of the legumes. It is far better to eat beans one day, peas another and lentils still another. These foods are so much alike that when eaten together they make a topheavy meal. Beans are beef. Peas are pork. Lentils are lamb.

There is much to be gained from the intelligent use of legumes. They render the use of meat wholly unnecessary and give zest to the diet.

The green vegetables, such as lettuce, onions, celery, etc., can be mixed in any variety in making vegetable salad. Such salads moderately flavored appear too seldom on the table. To consume these vegetables to the exclusion of the legumes, whole grains and cereals, would be absurd.

Few realize to what extent a diet composed mostly of vegetables is improved by the addition of nuts. By contributing generous amounts of rich, wholesome oils and fat such nuts as pecans, California walnuts and filberts impart to vegetable dishes a delicacy of flavor which would otherwise never be obtained. The cocoanut, together with its milk, is of inestimable value in the vegetable diet.

The peanut can be made into so many tasty dishes that its importance in the diet should never be overlooked. It possesses all the virtues of the nuts as well as the legumes, to which class, strictly speaking, it belongs.

The effective combining of vegetables is an art which anyone can acquire by the application of simple intelligence.

Fruits and Acid Mouth.

Q.—Do not such sour vegetables and fruits as rhubarb, sorrel, lemons etc., cause acid mouth? T. H.

No. All fruits and sour vegetables stimulate the secretion of saliva, which is of an alkaline character. The effect of this action is first to neutralize the acid which induces a copious flow of alkaline saliva, and, second, to alkalize the mouth.

This property of fruits can be used as a good argument by those who are in favor of eating fruit before instead of after a meal.

The lemon will cure torpid liver and sore throat, and is used in many ways in culinary products and for medical purposes. The juice from half a lemon in half a glass of water before breakfast will correct the most torpid liver and prevent billious troubles. For hoarseness, lemon and sugar will prove helpful and pleasant to take and will cure sore throat when used as a gargle.

The fireless cooker has come to stay. Its usefulness is no longer a question, but a fact. It is one of the modern conveniences and, unlike many of them, it does not keep running up bills after it is installed. Buy it and the cost is ended. It does not get out of repair unless greatly abused.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from discolored teacups.

Vinegar added to blacklead gives a more lasting polish to the grate.

A cut lemon rubbed over fishy knives will entirely remove the unpleasant odour of fish that invariably clings to them.

To cool jellies or blancmange in a short time, take a handful of salt and the same of soda; put it in a bowl of water and stand the jelly-mould in it.

When making short-crust pasty try adding to the water with which you mix it just a little lemon-juice; it makes it lighter, and also improves the flavour.

To destroy moths in carpets wring a thick towel out of water, lay it on the carpet, and iron over it with a very hot iron. This causes steam to go through the carpet, which destroys the grubs.

If parsnips are being served with a roast joint they can be cooked underneath the meat-trivet. This not only gives this vegetable a delicious flavour but saves gas. Potatoes can be done in the same way.

Lima Bean and Celery Salad

Take two cups of cold boiled lima beans, one cup of chopped celery and four hard-boiled eggs, also chopped. Toss in mayonnaise, add the juice of an onion, and lay up the salad on white lettuce leaves. Garnish with strips of red pepper.

Lettuce and Egg Salad

Cut with kitchen scissors white lettuce leaves into crisp ribbons. Place the cold boiled egg, cut in pond lily fashion, in a nest of the lettuce and heap with mayonnaise.

Rice and Salmon Loaf

Line a square baking pan, buttered, with hot cooked rice. Take the salmon from a can; remove any bits of skin and bone that may be present and flake with a silver fork. Season the salmon with salt and pepper; fill the cavity of the dish with this salmon and cover with the remaining rice. Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Remove to a serving dish, garnish with slices of lemon and parsley and serve with mock hollandaise sauce.

Using Whites or Yolks of Eggs

Often when whites or yolks are left over from cooking they can be used the following morning for breakfast. For instance, in making scrambled eggs or an omelette it matters little whether there are a few extra whites or a few extra yolks. Whites of eggs can be dropped into boiling water and cooked hard, drained from the water, chopped and added to soup to add to its nourishing qualities and to give it flavor.

How to Fry

To prevent fat spluttering see that the pan is perfectly clean before putting the fat in. Use plenty of fat to prevent the food from sticking to the pan. Steam or strain it off for use again when finished with. When frying liver, kidneys or anything thick, cook slowly, or the outside will be too brown before it is done right through.

HOW TO CAN VEGETABLES

The following directions are designed to guide the thrifty housewife who is anxious to conserve summer's supplies for winter use.

Can as soon after the corn is gathered as posible. Remove husks and silk. Blanch by placing in boiling water for five minutes. Remove and dip quickly into and out of cold water. Cut the corn from the cob and pack directly into hot jars or cans to within one-fourth inch of the top. Pour in enough boiling water to fill the container. Add one level teaspoonful of salt to each quart. Put rubber rings and caps of jars into position, but do not tighten the wire clamps. Seal tin cans completely.

Place containers on a false bottom of wooden slats or wire mesh in a vessel of water deep enough to cover the containers completely. Keep the water boiling for three hours.

Remove the jars, tighten covers invert jars to test seal, and cool (not in draft, as jars might crack).

Tin cans may be placed in cold water for rapid cooling.

After the containers are cool store in a dark, cool place.

Rapid preparation for canning is especially desirable for corn if a good quality of product is to be obtained. The best results can be secured when one person cuts the corn from the cob and another fills the containers. If it is necessary for one person to work alone she should cut off sufficient corn to fill one jar, pour on boiling water, add salt, place the rubbers and caps in position, and put the jar or container into hot water at once. The extra cooking which will be given to the cans first filled will not be injured, and a better product will be secured than if the cut corn were allowed to stand until all jars were filled.

SAVE SUGAR AND JELLY

Test of Chemists is Here Explained for Housewives

Much waste of sugar and spoilage of jellies can be avoided by using a simple alcohol test recommended by a Bureau of Chemistry. To determine how much sugar should be used with each kind of juice put a spoonful of juice in a glass and add to it one spoonful of ninety-five per cent. grain alcohol, mixed by shaking the glass gently. Pour slowly from the glass, noting how the pectin—the substances in fruits which makes them jelly—is precipitated.

If the pectin is precipitated as one lump, a cup of sugar may be used for each cup of juice; if in several lumps the proportion of sugar must be reduced to approximately three-fourths the amount of the juice. If the pectin is not in lumps but is merely precipitated, the sugar should be one-half or less of the amount of the juice. If the juice shows no precipitation under this test, it is unsuitable for jelly making and must be combined with apples or other juices rich in pectin. The housewife will do well before making the test, to taste the juice, as fruits not as acid as good tart apples probably will not make good jelly unless mixed with other fruits which are acid.

FIRST AID

Take Quick Action in Case of Rusty Nail

Quick action should be taken when a rusty nail or other metallic points cause a wound. These should be treated with frequent applications of peroxide of hydrogen. Failing this, wash the wound with boracic acid. Be sure to extract all the blood that is possible and any foreign substance. Keep the wound open to permit swabbing out. For this purpose use medicated cotton, that is obtained in packages from 5 cents to a dollar in various sizes.

Recipe for Tomato Sauce

Place in a saucepan of porcelain one tablespoon of butter, one sliced onion, one diced carrot, one half can tomatoes, one tablespoon of flour, salt, pepper, bay leaf and parsley. Simmer thirty minutes, stirring often. Strain through coarse sieve and add more salt and pepper if needed.

Scotch Woodcock Salad

One-half teaspoon extract of beef, one cup English walnut meats, one-half cup celery (cut fine), six large olives. Cut up all with knife and turn over the following dressing: One large tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour, one cup hot milk, one cup cheese (cut fine), one-half teaspoon parsley (chopped fine), one-quarter teaspoon salt, dash of paprika. Put butter in dish over hot water; when melted stir in flour; when nicely blended add hot milk, paprika and parsley. After stirring this mixture until it has become smooth, add one cup cheese and beef extract, first dissolving extract in one teaspoon hot water. Serve on lettuce and garnish with radish rosettes.

Pickled Green Walnuts

Wipe the green walnuts with a dry cloth, put them into wide-necked bottles or jars, and cover them with cold vinegar. Cover the jars closely and let them stand in a cool, dry place for four months, then drain off the vinegar. Boil as much fresh vinegar as will cover them, allowing one ounce of salt and one-half ounce each of allspice, peppercorns, cloves, and whole ginger to three pints of vinegar. Pour this mixture, boiling hot, over the walnuts, cover tightly and store for three weeks in a cool, dry place, when the walnuts will be ready for use.

Fruit Juices as Drink

The juice of all fruits makes a delicious drink iced in summer. [illegible] currant juice, added to raspberry or strawberry shrub, makes these beverages more delectable. [illegible] the currants until the juices flow, then strain and heat again with [illegible] as much sugar added as [illegible] juice. Bottle and seal in sterilized containers.

ALLIED VICTORY AT ALL POINTS

ALL OBJECTIVES ARE GAINED BY BRITISH IN TWO MILE ADVANCE

Westhoek and Ridge of Same Name Now Completely in Their Possession---Heavy Losses Inflicted on Germans and 240 Prisoners Taken---Airplanes Again Active

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 11.—The official report says: "Our attack this morning east of Ypres was delivered on a front of nearly two miles south of the Ypres-Roulers railway. On the right wing of attack heavy fighting occurred for the high ground astride the Ypres-Menin Road. Some progress was made by our troops in this area.

The fighting continued in the centre and on the left. Our attack after a violent enemy's resistance resulted in our gaining the whole of our objectives in addition to Westhoek and the Westhoek ridge which are now completely in our hands. Our troops established themselves in the Glencourse wood.

In fierce fighting that occurred heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. We took 240 prisoners. In addition to the foregoing number of prisoners we captured in successful raids last night east of Monchy Le Preux eighty-six of the enemy. The enemy raided one of our posts southeast of Guinaphe and two of our men are missing. Another hostile raiding party was repulsed northeast of Gouzeaucourt.

There was great activity in the air yesterday but strong westerly winds and thick clouds made it difficult for our aeroplanes to engage the enemy's machines. We successfully carried out bombing and artillery observation work during the day.

In the air fighting five German machines were brought down and five others driven down out of control. In addition two German observation balloons were brought down in flames and four others were driven down badly damaged.

GAINED GROUND EAST OF YPRES

GEN. HAIG REPORTS FAILURE OF MORE GERMAN ASSAULTS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 11. — Six German assaults were made on the British positions to the east of Ypres during the night, according to a British official statement issued today. They all broke down after fierce fighting. Sir Douglas Haig reports that he British maintained their positions to the east of Ypres and gained ground near the Ypres-Menin road.

CAPT. ROLLINS GOES TO FRANCE AS A CHAPLAIN

Pastor of St. Andrews Church Unable to Get Into Active Service Even by Reverting on Account of Being Over Age.

Capt. (Rev.) James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's, when he went overseas as Quartermaster of the 93rd Battalion, was resolved to get into active service before his return. When the 93rd was broken up he offered to revert in rank or to go to the trenches as a private. Like so many others he was turned down on account of being over age. He then offered his services as a stretcher-bearer but this also was denied him and he was kept on duty in England as Quartermaster. It is now announced that he goes to France as chaplain, having received a captain's commission in that branch of the service.

Capt. Rollins is eminently fitted for his new duties. There is no officer in the service who is more in sympathy with the private soldiers or who understands them better. When Rev. T. H. Mitchell, who for over a year filled Capt. Rollins' pulpit in St. Andrew's, went to Toronto it was thought that the latter would return to Peterborough but he decided to remain in Europe until the end of the war, saying that there was work for all and that more men were needed.

A proposal is under consideration to appoint an assistant director of chaplain services for Canada. Colonel Almond probably would return to Canada for a short time to institute such an office, chaplains being returned monthly to Canada for disposal by the adjutant-general at Ottawa. It is urged somebody ought to act in an advisory capacity to the adjutant-general concerning these men's capabilities, and also be prepared to secure efficient candidates for the service here and in France.

AMERICA MUST SAVE WHEAT TO FEED THE ALLIED ARMIES

Canada and the United States must cut down their normal wheat consumption by 160,000,000 bushels to meet the needs of Great Britain and the Allies. Hon. W. J. Hanna, Canadian Food Controller, estimates that to feed Great Britain, France and the other Allies and the men at the front, will require 1,105,000,000 bushels of wheat. This means at least 460,000,000 bushels will have to be imported from Canada and the United States. There will be under normal consumption in these two countries only 300,000,000 bushels surplus for export, and so by special efforts of food conservation the people of the United States and Canada will have to make up a shortage of 160,000,000 bushels.

The Waste in Garbage.

Mr. Hanna calculates that food wasted in the garbage pails of Canada each year through carelessness and lack of kitchen economy amounts to $56,000,000 per year, or about $7 per head of population.

Britain and her Allies need 160,000,000 bushels of wheat more than there is available for export from the two countries to whom they look for supplies—Canada and the United States—according to a statement by the Food Controller, and this is calculated on the decreased scale of consumption already practised in Great Britain. To make up this shortage, the people of Canada and United States are organising to substitue other foods and reduce consumption of flour foods by one-sixth. Household scientists say it can be done without loss of health or comfort.

ALLIES WIN OUT IN ROUMANIA

GERMANS REPULSED IN FIVE ATTACKS—FLEE IN DISORDER.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Aug. 11.—Russian and Roumanian troops repulsed enemy attacks in the Trotus Valley and then launched vigorous counter-attacks which gained them prisoners and captured machine guns, according to the official statement issued yesterday by the Roumanian war office. The statement follows:

"In the Trotus Valley enemy attacks were repulsed, and in counter-attacks, Russian troops, who maintained all their positions, forced the enemy to flee in disorder, after taking prisoners and machine guns.

"Between the Trotus and the Putna Valleys the Roumanian troops gallantly withstood violent artillery bombardment, with attacks accompanied by asphyxiating gas. They completely repulsed the enemy in five assaults, except at a single point in the Oituz Valley. On the Putna and Sereth Rivers the Russo-Roumanian troops, attacked many times by superior numbers of the enemy, inflicted heavy losses and maintained all their positions."

Russ Regiments Fight Each Other

Troops on the Way to the Front Open Fire on Home Guards.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Petrograd, Aug. 11.—The portion of a new Ukraine regiment which passed through Kiev yesterday in the train on the way to the front opened fire on the cuirassiers guarding the station. The latter fired back and several on both sides were killed and wounded. When the train reached Novgrad Volynsk a regiment of cuirassiers with machine guns compelled the Kranians to surrender after 14 had been killed and about 50 wounded.

ARE TRAITORS TO THE COUNTRY

WAR VETERANS DENOUNCE RESOLUTION PASSED AT WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg, August 11.—Characterizing the win-the-war resolution passed by the Liberal convention as "cunningly twisted" to appear like a conscription resolution, and denouncing the endorsement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier as leader, the executive council of the Great War Veterans unanimously adopted a resolution, in part as follows:

"That we read with amazement and scorn the resolutions passed; that the so-called win-the-war resolution as adopted by the convention is a mockery and an insult to the Canadians at the front, cunningly twisted words deliberately intended to simulate a conscription resolution without in any way binding the Liberal party; that the endorsement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the acknowledged leader of a part of the Dominion which is solidly against conscription, is an insult to Western Canadians, and the nomination of such a man as leader is totally incompatible with the win-the-war resolution; that we denounce the majority of the delegates to the convention as party politicians, as men who made no attempt to avoid a general election at the most critical time in the Empire's history. In short, we denounce these men as traitors to the country."

Liberals in East Plan Convention

A prominent local Liberal stated to The Review this morning that there was already talk of holding a convention of Eastern Liberals to follow up the gathering of the faithful in the West who have just completed their deliberations at Winnipeg. Whether the platform of the western section of the party will be endorsed or rejected he did not say.

The action taken by the delegates to the gathering at Winnipeg has aroused so much indignation throughout the prairie provinces that the conscription Liberals are already talking of another convention to register a protest.

Steamer Waffle is Safe in Harbor

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Kingston, Aug. 11.—The steamer A. J. Waffle, for whose safety there were grave fears, is safe at Duck Island. She left for Fair Haven Tuesday night and was caught in the storm Wednesday morning, but made the harbor at Duck's, and has been lying there since.

WATCHING OPERATIONS WITH ANXIOUS INTEREST.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Aug. 11.—Military critics here are watching the German attack in Roumania with anxious interest. The enemy's passage of the Suchitza, reported yesterday, is regarded as placing in immediate jeopardy the immensely important Maria Besti junction railroad.

KERENSKY ABLE TO STAND WORK

RUSSIAN PREMIER IS NOT ILL AS REPORTED IN DESPATCHES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Aug. 11. — Premier Kerensky is not ill, as press despatches have reported, although he has been physically weakened by his arduous duties, according to advices to the Russian embassy from the Petrograd foreign office. Kerensky, it was said, is physically equal to his responsibilities, and it was regretted that newspaper despatches might have created the impression that there was a crisis in his health.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

SUBMARINE WAS SUNK BY VESSEL ON WAY TO CANADA

FORTUNE OF WAR ON FRENCH LINE

DRIVE OUT GERMANS AT ONE POINT, LOSE AT ANOTHER.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Aug. 11. — North of St. Quentin last night French troops made important progress in the region of Fayet, says the official statement given out today by the French war department. The French ejected the Germans from a large part of the terrain which they had captured the night of Aug. 9.

In the Champagne the Germans launched several attacks over a front of nearly two miles in the region of Carnillet, and at one point succeeded in penetrating the French advanced trenches. In an energetic counter-attack, the French statement says, the French regained the lost ground with the exception of about fifty feet which Germans still occupy.

Gunner Opened Fire as Soon as Hun Craft Was Sighted.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

A Canadian Port, Aug. 11. — Officials on board a steamer which arrived here today tell of an encounter with a submarine on the trip across the Atlantic in which the undersea boat was sunk.

The meeting took place near the Irish coast. The lookout notified the captain that a small sailing vessel was acting suspiciously. It was carefully watched, and a submarine was seen to emerge from behind it. The gunner on the steamer had his weapon prepared, and directly the submarine showed itself he fired.

He hit the submarine with his first shot. The second struck the conning tower, and the third turned the submarine over and it began to dive. Its crew clambered out and waved white handkerchiefs, but the steamer wasted no time in the vicinity, but left the saving of the Germans to patrol boats that came up.

TIME OF RECKONING HAS COME FOR FOOD GAMBLERS

Controller Hoover Is Warning to Those Who Refuse to Help Reduce Prices.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Aug. 11.—Herbert C. Hoover, who was named formally as food administrator today by President Wilson, under authority vested in him by Congress, immediately served notice on speculators and profiteers that a time of reckoning for those who would not co-operate in the efforts of the government to obtain lower prices for the consumer and help to supply the allies of America in the war against Germany had come. With the full approval of the President, obtained after a long conference at the White House last night, Mr. Hoover announced that the food administration would not hesitate to apply to the full the drastic and coercive powers that Congress had granted.

It was at the same time a warning to those who had engaged in gambling with the food supply and in extortion that the U. S. Government, through its food administrator, was the only agency which could hope to successfully corner the food market.

FRENCH RETAKE TRENCHES AND LINE IS FULLY RE-ESTABLISHED

Slight Gain Made by Germans Recently Has Been Overcome---Bloody Defeat of Special Storming Party Has Quieted the Huns ---Attack Carefully Planned.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Aug. 11.—Last night's official communication says:

"To the north of St. Quentin both artilleries displayed continued activity. In the region of Fayett at 3 o'clock this afternoon two enemy attacks between Menechet Hill and Cepy Farm were stopped by our fire.

"Violent artillery fighting took place on the front of Pantheon and Epine de Chevregny. The enemy, after his bloody defeat this morning, made no new attempt. Prisoners declare the attack had been prepared most carefully with the object of retaking trenches captured by us on July 30. Besides the three battalions already mentioned, the troops used by the enemy included nine detachments of special storming troops and two detachments of flame throwers. We made, in the course of this action, more than one hundred prisoners.

"In the Champagne the Germans attacked our trenches to the east of Maisons de Champagne. On two wings all attacks broke down under our fire. In the centre, where the assailants had been able to gain a footing, very spirited fighting took place, which ended to our advantage. Our line is re-established in its entirety.

"On both banks of the Meuse violent artillery actions took place in the region of Hill 304, Le Mort Homme, and on Bezonvaux sector."

A TRIP UP THE LINE WITH THE BOYS IN TRENCHES

Signaller Harry Hastie Writes an Interesting Account of Life at Front to Parents at Lang.

A personally conducted trip through the trenches is provided by Signaller Harry Hastie, son of Mr. David Hastie, of Lang, Otonabee, in the following interesting letter to his parents. He went overseas with the 87th Battalion early in 1916 and has seen much service. His detailed narrative of conditions at the front has proved illuminating to the residents of Lang who heard it read at a public meeting. The story entitled "A trip up the line with the boys" is as follows:

How often you hear the expression "a trip up the line" used today. How many of you stop to think what a trip up the line means, in reality. Oh, yes, you say, it means trenches fighting, outposts and, and the other things the papers speak of. Quite right; but what do all these, and others combined mean. To understand it rightly you must experience it. Why not accommmpany the boys in one of their too numerous trips.

The —th battalion is to relieve the —th battalion tonight in the forward area. We go over to where the boys are in camp, while out of the line. Everything is in a hustle and to the untrained eye seems like as if everyone were in everyone's way. Soon you see that there is some order to the way things are being done and your interest grows at the realization of the thousand and one details connected with a trip like this. It is late in the afternoon and soon the supper bugle goes. Like magic everyone secures his mess tin and hikes it to the field kitchen. Here a line stretches away from each kitchen like the line up for tickets for a ball game. As soon as a man is served he picks out a dry or shady spot and sits down on the ground with his mess tin in front of him and eats for he knows what is ahead of him before he gets another meal. As soon as he is through he gets his equipment in shape for "fall in" goes in half an hour. Here and there some new draft fellow is scribbling a few lines home but those who have been up the line a few times have done this long ago. Others are cleaning their rifles, turning in their packs and doing their small jobs. The N.C.O.'s are moving around seeing that everyone is ready and the camp tidy for the next bunch that will occupy the camp.

Off They Go.

"Fall in." At last a move is made, the men fall in by platoons, the roll is called, platoons are numbered and proved and are then ready to move off. The officers fall in and away they go, marching in column of fours, by companies. The band accompanied one company as far as the danger line then turn back to stay at the transport lines until the boys come out again.

After three quarters of an hour's march a rest of ten minutes by the side of the road, then on again. Another three quarters of an hour and the foot of a ridge is reached, another halt. This time until it is dark enough to go over the ridge without danger of enemy observation. Soon it is dark and another start is made, single file now as the path is very crooked and narrow, winding in and out among the shell holes, destroyed trenches and mine craters. By the time the top of the ridge is reached it is quite dark. To dark to see aught, but the flare lights and the flash of the guns ahead. Down down, until the plain below is reached. Through a mass of ruins which was once a village nestling close to the foot of the ridge; scarcely two bricks left together, the streets almost obliterated. Now a sharp crack is heard overhead and the whine of shrapnel. At last you are under fire. No notice is taken of the shell except for a slight quickening of the pace. On up a road gapping with shell holes every few yards. Your eyes are accustomed to the darkness by now and you easily skirt the edges instead of stumbling into them as before. The flare lights are getting closer. There has been some artillery activity on our side earlier in the evening and Fritz is nervous, sending up all kinds of flares. The night rivals have many exhibitions of fireworks, seen in pre-war days. Occasionally the scream of shells, passing overhead and an occasional crunch as a heavy shell explodes. Somewhere ahead the rattle of a machine gun breaks out for a few seconds, then is quiet again. At irregular intervals the crack of a rifle is heard. Now we meet a party going towards the rear. Ration party going out to meet the pack mules with the rations. The rations done up in sand bags. Five men's rations for 24 hours in each sand bag. This is to facilitate distribution in the trenches. Another party with petrol tins, this is a water party.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY, AUG. 11, 1917

WIN THE WAR.

Conservatives and Conscription Liberals could not do better than unite in the nomination of W. T. Gregory as a "win-the-war" candidate in the coming federal election. His name has been proposed by the Leamington Post and News, and has been well received. Mr. Gregory could run as a Tory and win. He could run as a Grit and win. He could run as an independent and win. Cut out the old game of party politics and make it unanimous for Gregory.—Windsor Record (Liberal).

SENDING MONEY OVERSEAS.

THE MEMBERS of the Peterborough Progressive Club, who have done such an admirable work in sending socks and other comforts to the men overseas, have been notified by the officials in charge of the branch in England that if money is sent instead of parcels, goods can be purchased there cheaper than in Canada. These goods will be sent to any man designated by a friend at home.

The plan has a good deal to commend it. Money can be saved in this way, and the shipping space, an important consideration these days, that is now given over to parcels packed in this country, can be used for some other purpose.

REPORT STILL STANDS.

IN A TONE evidently designed for light raillery, a contemporary speaking of the O'Conner report on the packing house industry, says that when Commissioner O'Connor saw the sensation that was created all over the country by the publication of that document in a garbled form he saw his duty and he did it. He virtually retracted his report, it adds. "it would never do to contradict a brand new baronet and a strong friend of the Government, a man who has so much influence that he managed to get his denial of the immense profits of his company spread on the pages of Hansard by a little juggling with the rules of the House."

Commissioner O'Connor did nothing of the kind. He went no further than to explain that when his report was published in full it would be found that there was nothing in it to reflect on the companies mentioned. The misapprehension in the public mind was not created by anything he said in his finding, but by the way in which the case was presented by sensation loving newspapers. The O'Connor report still stands as originally prepared, and it is that report which will be officially investigated.

DOING THEIR DUTY.

THE CALGARY Albertan (Liberal) thus speaks editorially of W. A. Buchanan, a former member of The Review staff and the famous Dr. (Red Michael) Clark:

"Brave young heroes who talk loudly in public meetings are telling what they are going to do to Dr. Clark in the next election in Red Deer, and hint that something also is likely to happen to W. A. Buchanan in Lethbridge. And newspapers leaning towards Bourassaism are repeating these babblings in very great seriousness, and it is all being used in an effort to frighten these men and influence them in their actions in the House.

"But it will not have that effect. Doubtless Mr. Buchanan and Dr. Clark and all the other Western Liberals who have placed principle before party, fully anticipated what has occurred. They realized very fully that they would lose the support of many strong party workers. However, they placed their country [illegible] ing to abide by the result.

"The Albertan does not believe that there is a riding in Alberta in which Dr. Clark could not be elected if he chose to run. It does not believe that Lethbridge will disgrace itself by defeating Mr. Buchanan.

"However, whatever may come or go, however the ultra-partisans may declaim, these gentlemen are going to do their duty as they see it, regardless of what their fate at the polls may be."

MORE ROYAL MENDACITY.

THAT IS A MOST interesting despatch from Wilhelm II. to President Wilson made public by Ambassador Gerard. It was of date of August 14, 1914. The German troops were well into Belgium and the smoke of burning villages and the cries of tortured Belgians had begun to attract the attention of the world. The Kaiser evidently thought the adventure needed some explanation, and so addressed to the President a more or less exculpatory despatch, says the New York Sun.

It seems that he sent his brother, Prince Henry—the same prince who a few years earlier had been deputed to fire the German heart in the United States—to see his cousin, George V., in England. War was threatening. It had, in fact, been determined upon at the famous Potsdam conference, though of that the Kaiser had no hint. On the surface he was all for peace — at least with England. His emissary returned from London with the report that George V. had said distinctly that "England would remain neutral if war broke out on the Continent involving Germany and France, Austria and Russia."

That is the story as it comes from the Kaiser. But, as usual, he is away from the truth. He fails to report his fellow sovereign with fidelity; in short, he appears to have invented the whole tale. The matter was brought up in the House of Commons in London the other day and was promptly challenged. "There has been no change in the constitutional practice, and the Sovereign takes no independent action in foreign affairs," Andrew Bonar Law, leader in the House and Chancellor of the Exchequer, stated in reply to a question.

The statement was made in reference to the Kaiser's telegram to President Wilson, published by former Ambassador Gerard, declaring that King George had assured the Kaiser, through Prince Henry, that England would not enter the war.

Of course, nothing came of the correspondence which was extended by Cousin Wilhelm to take in the Czar of Russia. The British Government, without troubling itself with royal orders, and probably largely ignorant of the royal correspondence, took up the diplomacy of the situation. Lord Grey held out an olive branch in the form of a proposition for mediation, which, it is said, the Kaiser favored accepting. How he could have done so, in view of the decision of the Potsdam conference to which he was a party, is difficult to see. However, the immediate proffer by Von Tirpitz, Falkenhayn and Von Moltke of their resignations, and the clatter of their swords, as they flung them at his feet, forced him to abandon his pacific weakness.

The letter made public by Ambassador Gerard is an interesting story of royal dabbling in secret diplomacy.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

THE VETERANS of the war and the soldiers in the trenches will never stand for Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

• • •

ALL MAY STILL be fair in love, but Germany has ruined forever the part of that maxim that applies to war.

• • •

SOME OF the delegates to the Winnipeg convention were right men, but unfortunately in the wrong place.

• • •

THE AMERICAN soldiers object to being called "Sammies." Well, let them alone and they will no doubt make a name for themselves.

• • •

A SCIENTIST says that the world wil crumble away in 1500 years. One comfort is that such partyism as was demonstrated at the Winnipeg convention will perish with it.

• • •

"THE SPORTSMAN is not expected to have any sense when he goes out on a fishing expedition," says the Bobcaygeon Independent. Not if he goes anywhere but to the Kawartha Lakes, where there is fishing worth while.

• • •

"CAN WE EXPECT a government, which, in the enactment of conscription fails to place a part of the burden upon the broad back of wealth, to enforce it without fear, favor or affection?" asks an exchange. We cant; we don't. And, besides, we cannot hope that some papers will ever be truthful or fair.

FIGURES THAT ARE NOT FACTS

Will the war come to an end this year, 1917? Not if the preparations now being hurried forward in the United States and in Europe afford any criteria for forming an estimate, for their scale is so vast, and their inventions so manifold, that one is inclined to think that the nations at war intend to carry on the war forever.

But there is another factor as to the duration of the war. "He" or "It" is sometimes called the Prophetic, the Psychist, and the Astrologer, and by a large multitude of perfectly sane people, it is oftener called the superstitious. A brilliant juggler in facts and figures has produced a table giving historic events with their dates in nine countries now at war, in this fashion:—

A Striking Division.

It will be observed that the manipulator brings his sum in addition always to 3,234. The wonder is heightened, however, when we are told that this sum must be divided because two hemispheres are represented by the rulers, and that half of 3,834 is 1917!

Hence the prediction that the war will come to an end this year, and it must be admitted that some of the prophecies of this war that appear to have been fulfilled were based on less suggestive data.

As "evidence" as to what can be done with figures, Mr. A. J. E. Fish of Los Angeles very cleverly juggles with the date of the Kaiser's birth, and by combining it with some Scriptural prophecies which he thinks are applicable to the case of the Emperor—and he undoubtedly will find many of his view—he arrives at the date of the end of the war a little more definitely as January 27, 1918. Here is the way Mr. Fish works it out:—

Most people are more or less familiar with Bible prophecies, many of which seem to be coming true at this time. In Revelation we find:

> Revelation xiii: 4: "And they worshipped the Beast, saying: 'Who is like unto the Beast? Who is able to make war with him?'"
>
> Revelation xiii: 5: "And power was given unto him to make war forty and two months."
>
> Revelation xiii: 18: "Here is wisdom, Let him that hath understanding count the number of the Beast; for it is the number of a man; and his number is six hundred three score and six."

Our Old Friend "666"!

Now the number 666 has been regarded as that of the reincarnated Nero, who is said to reappear on earth at intervals.

One student of Biblical prophecies has said that "Six hundred three score and six years is not the age of a man, but that six hundred three score and six months are," and "equal to fifty-five and a half years."

Emperor William was born January 27, 1859.	1—27—1859
Add his age in July, 1914.	6— 0— 55
Beginning of war	7—27—1914

And "Power was given him to continue forty and two months."

If this refers to the present war, it indicates that the war will end January 27, 1918 (Kaiser's birthday), and forty-two months from the beginning of the war.

As we do not profess to be a "Daniel come to judgment" as to the significance of these figures, we simply point to the obvious—the reader can have his choice. If his predilections are in favor of the war going into 1918, then there figures will be interesting. If he thinks that the signs point to the Kaiser regaining his sanity—if ever he was endowed with that quality of mind—before the end of 1917, again a galaxy of figures may be relied upon to give a show of suggestiveness that that choice may be the correct one.

Wit and Wisdom

No Hurry.

Pat's grinning face looked out from the bedclothes, and he hailed his visitor with delight.

"Hallo, man!" cried his friend. "So you've been pipped! I've just heard you've got a bullet in you and won't have it taken out. How's that?"

"Well, ye see," said Pat, "it's so unnecessary. Ye see; I'll be going back ter th' front in two shakes, an' when I come back I thought I'd just have 'em all out together!"

On the Wrong Side.

Old Crabton is particularly severe upon his wife in argument. During a recent passage at arms between the two his wife managed to interpose so very positive about everything. Re-with: member, there are always two sides "My dear, I wish you wouldn't be to every question."

Whereupon old Crabton roared back at her: "Well, that's no reason why you should always be on the wrong side!"

At Eventide.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men," said the man who habitually quotes Shakespeare, "which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

"Yes," replied the man who had married an heiress, "I remember the tide that led to my fortune well."

"What tide was that?"

"It was an eventide and we were sitting in the garden."

Useless.

"This seems to be a very dangerous precipice," remarked the tourist. "I wonder that they have not put up a warning board."

"Yes," answered the guide, "it is dangerous. They kept a warning board up for two years, but no one fell over, so it was taken down."

THE BRAVE AT HOME.

The maid who binds her warrior's sash
With smile that well her pain dissembles,
The while beneath her drooping lash
One starry tear-drop hangs and trembles,
Though Heaven alone records the tear,
And fame shall never know her story,
Her heart has shed a drop as dear
As e'er bedewed the field of glory

The wife who girds her husband's sword
'Mid little ones who weep or wonder,
And bravely speaks the cheering word.
What though her heart be rent asunder,
Doomed nightly in her dreams to hear
The bolts of death around him rattle,
Has shed as sacred blood as e'er
Was poured upon the field of battle.

The mother who conceals her grief
While to her breast her son she presses,
Then breathes a few brave words and brief,
Kissing the patriot brow she blesses,
With no one but her secret God
To know the pain that weighs upon her,
Sheds holy blood as e'er the sod
Received on freedom's field of honor.

Revelation of the fact that Germany had possession of Austria's ultimatum to Serbia fourteen hours before it was delivered is interesting as showing that Germany knew fourteen hours earlier than she has hitherto admitted that the war was to be forced upon her.

Some Excuses.
(Winnipeg Telegram.)

The baseball player who begged to be excused from going to war on the ground that it might spoil his arm for pitching and ruin his curve, simply did not think the war of as great importance to him as the avocation by which he earns a living. There are numbers of people like him. There is only one volunteer sergeant, however, who was a noted Bisley shot; and declined active service on the ground that he might receive an injury to his eyes which would spoil his shooting in future. The only thing more remarkable than this excuse is the fact that a number of people utterly fail to see its grotesque and excruciating irony.

ODDS AND ENDS FROM THE AMERICAN PRESS

A Cautious Justice
(Case and Comment.)

In a New England town a local celebrity was brought up before the justice for stealing chickens. The prisoner was noted for never telling the truth when he could help it and consequently there was general surprise when he pleaded guilty. It evidently staggered the justice. He rubbed his glasses and then scratched his head. "I guess—I'm afraid—well, Hiram," said he, after a thoughtful pause, "I guess I'll have to have more evidence before I sentence you."

Before 1915 a letter was as safe in the Chinese mails as it was anywhere in the world, and only the older resident who knows China can appreciate what it means to have had nearly seven hundred million pieces of mail matter carried by the Chinese post that year against one-sixth that amount eight years before. This year postal employees are stealing letters for the stamps and throwing the contents into the waste basket.

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review:—The great Liberal convention at Winnipeg, worked up by Hon. G. P. Graham and E. M. Macdonald when they went West a year ago, has materialized. It has endorsed Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who headed a solid French-Canadian vote in the House against conscription who says he is against prohibition and who has come out as the champion of the French-Canadians against Rule 17. Picture to yourself what this means if Sir Wilfrid wins at the forthcoming election. If you wonder at the Winnipeg convention read the following:

"You cannot hope for anything from the Liberal party in the West. They have nominated delegates to the convention in Winnipeg from Yorkton. One is a Pole, another is a Ruthenian—and I understand he cannot write his own name—and one is a Dane with little or no education. The fourth is a woman, wife of an engineer on the C.N.R., who has been about six months in the Yorkton district. I understand they are all pledged to support a resolution of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

The above is an extract from a letter which The Ottawa Journal has received from Yorkton, Sask., and it would indicate that if the method of choice of delegates at Yorkton was carried out to any extent the views of the Winnipeg convention will not be representative of the British and American settlers in the western provinces.

MARRYING FOR MONEY

Neither Justifiable Nor Dignified if Wealth Alone Considered

No woman is justified in marrying a man solely for wealth. Even if a man is infatuated enough to consent to such a union, still she is not justified. Such a wife would be as a hired servant, for her services would be given for a money consideration. If business troubles came and wealth was lost, the sustaining element to the marriage would perish. The wife would not be capable of being the strength and support to her husband that a husband in trouble usually receives at such times. Her heart could not be susceptible to so fine a sense of sympathy, and though she would weep at the financial trouble, the tears would be characteristic of a dull sense of personal loss. Furthermore, a woman who is cold-blooded enough to enter into a mercenary marriage is dangerously ambitious, and must be possessed of exceedingly low ideals.

WESTERN HORSE INDUSTRY

E. W. McLean, of Winnipeg, gave a practical talk on the present and future outlook of the horse market in the West. After sketching the history of horses in Manitoba as conditions were 15 years ago, Mr. McLean said that the three types of horse that he found most saleable were the draft, agricultural and delivery horse. The first should have good feet and legs, weight 1,650 to 2,000 pounds and stand 15.3 to 17 hands high. Agricultural horses were good sellers in the spring; they should range from 15.2 to 16.2 hands and weigh from 1,400 to 1,600 pounds. There was also a demand for farm chunks weighing 1,200 to 1,400 pounds. Delivery horses had to have good feet and legs to stand city pavements, and also plenty of style and action. Light delivery horses should weigh 1,100 to 1,300 pounds. Heavy delivery or express horses from 1,300 to 1,400 pounds."

Tricks of Hun Lie Factory

"A Neutral" says this and "A Neutral" says that. This is one of the Hun tricks in disseminating lies. The latest of these is that the Kaiser disapproves of the Zeppelin raids on Great Britain. If so, why has he decorated some members of the crews with his beastly Iron Cross?—Kingston Standard.

The Bloody Cemetery

Three hundred yards east of Ablaincourt, on the road to the hamlet of Gomiecourt, the enemy had organized outside and inside a cemetery communicating with the serpentine trench a series of defences. Among the tombs the Germans and French fought with ferocity, and when the struggle was over 500 prisoners had been taken by the allies. The cemetery with its shattered gravestones and monuments was a sad and pitiable sight.

FIGHTING FOR HAPPINESS

When you get into a frame of mind that makes life seem one tiresome duty after another, with no pleasure in it; when ill-health seems to take all the joy out of life and you worry over things that are really not worth worrying about, then your nervous system is becoming exhausted, and you are on the way to a general breakdown in health. In this condition your health and happiness is worth fighting for and good, rich, red blood is what your system needs. It is a hopeless task to try to restore your health while your blood is deficient either in quantity or quality. And remember that no medicine can be of any use to you that does not build up your weak, watery blood.

To build up the blood and strengthen the nerves there is one remedy that has been a household word for more than a generation—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. It is the actual mission of these pills to make new, rich, red blood, which strengthens the nerves and tones the entire system. They give you a new appetite, make sleep refreshing, put color in the lips and cheeks, and drive away that unnatural tired feeling that oppresses so many people. If you want to experience new health and happiness give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LEARN DANCES AT FRONT

Officers of Highland Regiments Complete Their Education

A young officer in one of the Scottish battalions at the front tells that his men, during their time in the rest billets, are learning to dance the Scottish reel. "It is quite good fun," he says, "though it seems strange to be out here to fight, and yet being taught to dance. You would have laughed if you had seen the subs. in our room hanging on to the back of a chair, trying to do the correct steps, and then being hauled before the C.O.—who was teaching us—so that he could see how we were progressing." Many of these young officers, though possessing Scottish associations, have never been in the Highlands, and by the fortune of war they have gone to France to learn the Scottish reel.

INFANT CAN OPERATE GREATEST HOWITZER

Weapon That With Four Shots Won Fort Vaux For France—Nothing Can Withstand

One of the greatest achievements of the French engineers is a 400mm. (16-in.) howitzer. It was this gun which set fire to Douaumont Fort, and four shells, representing considerably over a hundredweight of melinite, made Fort Vaux so uncomfortable that the Germans quickly evacuated it. It took the French more than a year to perfect the 400mm., but the time was well spent. Every artillery man who has seen it is enthusiastic about its marvellous power, grace, and lightness. An infant could operate it.

When the first lot of these gigantic howitzers were ready it was decided to test them in the presence of the President of the Republic and a distinguished company of high artillery experts. Special melinite shells were prepared capable of scooping out holes bigger than volcano craters. In a military camp very strictly guarded a test fortress was erected, formed of reinforced concrete strengthened with steel rails, armor plates, and oak sleepers as hard as stone.

The Supreme Test

It seemed as if it was intended to last forever. To make it more secure the fort was buttressed with bags of sand. Subterranean chambers were hollowed out in the rock and protected by special steel plates.

In a word, the stronghold against which the demon howitzer was to match its force was the latest thing in defensive art. If this super fort could not stand up against the new weapon, declared the experts, nothing could. All inhabitants within the concussion area were warned to leave open their windows within certain hours, otherwise there would be a big bill for broken glass. After M. Poincare and his suite had arrived the signal to fire was given.

Fortress Vanished!

With a roar like that of an express train passing through a tunnel at full speed the gigantic shell flew on its mission of destruction. There was a tremendous report as the missile struck the specially constructed target, and then the President and his guests got into motor cars and went off to see the fort, which those who had built it declared would resist all the shells of the world. They were wrong.

When the official cortege reached the spot the fort had vanished. Where it stood was a profound and immense excavation strewn with pulverized and twisted debris. Sandbags had been projected hundreds of yards away, and the rails used to strengthen the cement were picked up almost as far away.

TANK "SHAMMING DEAD"

Waking Up When Surrounded by the Germans

The British tanks in Picardy are a subject of intense interest for the French people. They read with utmost satisfaction in the Paris newspapers that at the battle on the Ancre, when confronted by an intricate maze of eleven rows of barbed wire, the "Devil's Delight" ambled up to them with a shambling gait, lowered its head, and went through them as if they had been so much maccaroni.

Another tank whose gear went wrong at a critical moment was assailed by the Huns with rifles, bombs, and mortars. Its crew closed the port holes and the tank sat back on its "hunkers," while the enemy host swarmed round it and placed bombs underneath its ugly frame. Not a sound came from the interior of the disdainful monster. The enemy sappers, convinced that everybody inside was dead, brought up jacks and levers and attempted to overturn the mastodon.

A Prussian colonel, beside himself with rage at the ineffectual efforts of his men, discharged eight harmless shots from his revolver at the tank. When the enemy were thickly crowded round it, the brute unmasked its machine guns on every side and did terrible havoc. When reinforcements of our men arrived the ground all round the tank was strewed with German dead.

BRITISH "DASH" LAUDED

Swift Victories Through Water to Men's Waists

Describing a British advance the special correspondent of the Matin of Paris on the British front says: At the moment of assault the men cross the marshy ground. At some places the water is up to their waist, but they go on all the same. Their dash is magnificent. Five lines of trenches to be carried first, then the heights and villages overlooking the river to be taken by sheer force and to be held—such is the objective.

In an hour five lines of trenches taken; a division carries one of them—the four line—in eighteen minutes. In the centre and on the right, especially, everything yields before the formidable push of the Tommies.

The enemy, surprised, defends himself badly. In the ravine, however, a nest of machine guns and mortars offers the assailant a desperate resistance. British grenades soon get the better of them. Saint Pierre taken at eight o'clock; at nine o'clock Beaumont Hamel falls.

AUTOINTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

The Dangerous Condition Which Produces Many Well Known Diseases.

HOW TO GUARD AGAINST THIS TROUBLE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" — The Wonderful Fruit Medicine — will Protect You

Autointoxication means self-poisoning, caused by continuous or partial constipation, or insufficient action of the bowels.

Instead of the refuse matter passing daily from the body, it is absorbed by the blood. As a result, the Kidneys and Skin are overworked, in their efforts to rid the blood of this poisoning.

Poisoning of the blood in this way often causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Disturbed Stomach. It may produce Headaches and Sleeplessness. It may irritate the Kidneys and bring on Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Gout, and Rheumatic Pains. It is the chief cause of Eczema — and keeps the whole system unhealthy by the constant absorption into the blood of this refuse matter.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure Autointoxication or self-poisoning — as "Fruit-a-tives" acts gently on bowels, kidneys and skin, strengthens the bowels and tones up the nervous system.

Poisoned Candies

The Bucharest Press published articles denouncing the German and Bulgarian airmen who, with their bombs, dropped candy containing poison and infectious germs. The authorities took the necessary measures.

"Our Day" collection in Cuba for the British Red Cross amounted to more than $15,000.

SASKATCHEWAN LIGNITE

Many Valuable By-products From the Brown Coal of the West

The sole sources of fuel in Southern Saskatchewan are the brown deposits of coal, which, in quantity, is estimated in billions of tons lying east and west of the Souris River. It is of marked woody structure, but its character throughout practically all the deposits is a true lignite of cretaceous age.

This lignite, as it is found in Saskatchewan, requires drying to eliminate 30 per cent. content of water. It is then crushed to about 1 inch in size, the larger sized lumps of dried fuel being then suitable for burning on automatic stokers. The smaller sized lumps pass on to the carbonizing oven for treatment before being briquetted.

The most profitable way to utilize the lignite is to carbonize it; that is, to distil off all volatile matter.

The gas makes a good "town gas," for use in stoves and ranges; it is serviceable principally for fuel and power.

The oils and tars extracted from the lignite can be put to many uses—fuel oil, creosoting oil, leather preservative, water proofing, tar paper, roofing, pitch, etc. The pitch makes an excellent binder for briquettes and will go far towards reducing the cost of this item. Almost all our coal tar dyes and other coal tar products have heretofore come from Europe, principally from Germany. Several million gallons of creosoting oils for preserving timber have been imported annually. That supply is now cut off and the value of these materials on this continent greatly enhanced.

From the ammonia compounds is derived a substantial quantity of valuable fertilizer.

Lump carbonized lignite is the ideal gas producer fuel. The amount of gas is equal to that from anthracite pound for pound, but the gas is richer, has less tar and less clinker and burns more freely.

PTE. SAM SAUNDERS WRITES TO FRIENDS IN PETERBOROUGH

Mrs. R. J. Saunders has received the following letter from her son, Pte. Sam. Saunders, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion and is now "Somewhere in France":

Dear Father, Mother, Brother and Sister,—I received your ever welcome letter and was glad to learn you were all well, as this leaves me at present. I really do not understand what is the trouble with the letters. There seems to be the same trouble on this end. I get a letter only about every two or three weeks. Maybe it is on account of the shipping.

I also received your box, and I thank you all for it. I enjoyed a good feed. The horse-radish got here in good condition and it was fine. The smokes were just what I was looking for.

Well, we have been at it again. I guess you will know by the papers that I am back on the gun again, and it works fine. It can more than mow the Fritzes down and there have been a few of them go under. We are out resting just now, and we need it, too.

I told you before that I would write Miss Cathcart and thank her for the socks. I don't understand why Amy is not getting any mail. I received her parcel and wrote her a letter. Russel must have had a very good sleep. Every man slept the clock around. I would like to try that and see how it goes, and I think I could beat his record. Will try it when I get to Paris. I know how to say sleep, anyway.

Will close for this time, hoping you are all well. I remain as ever,

Your son and brother,

— SAM.

Well, I am going to try again to secure a pass and go to Paris, as we are allowed to go there now instead of going to England, and I think it will suit me just as well, as I would like to see Paris. I do not know how I came to be seen in England. I wish I had been. Must have been there in one of my dreams.

Yes, I met Sid. Armstrong and we had a pretty good time together, but have lost track of him since the advance, but will likely run into him some time again. I also met Harry Carr.

Misunderstood.

For the first three years of their married life the wife's mother had lived with the young couple. Then, one morn, without even stopping to pack, hubby fled.

The young wife rushed upstairs and told the news to her mother. "I suppose some nasty low woman is responsible for his leaving you," said the latter.

"Ye, mother," said the sorrowing wife, "there was a woman in it."

"Her name?" demanded the good lady, palpitating like an enraged motor-omnibus.

"You, mother," came the whispered reply.

"Me? Well, I'm sure I never gave him any encouragement."

Wild of eye, a man burst into a barber's shop.

"You remember selling me some patent hair-restorer last week, you hoary-headed old swindler?" he roared angrily. "Swore it would restore my head to its original state, didn't you?"

"And didn't it?" asked the barber, as he went on calmly shaving another customer.

"Didn't it?" snorted the enraged man. "You obtained my money under false pretences. Why, it even removed the little hair I had left, and now I'm as bald as the pavement."

"Then there's no false pretence about it," said the barber. "I said it would restore your head to its original state, and you know, sir, most of us are born bald!"

HUCKELBERRIES IN DEMAND.

Two loads of huckelberries from the back country sold like hot cakes on the market this morning. The price realized was $1.50 per pail or 15 cents per quart. There were quite a lot of wild raspberries on sale at 20c quart.

A FINE MASKINONGE.

Mr. Alf. Crowe caught a very fine Maskinonge at Hiawatha yesterday that weighed over 22 lbs. When the fish came near enough to the canoe the first time to receive the death blow the club slipped out of Alf's hand and the battle lasted over two hours before the maski finally gave up.

SOUTH AFRICA'S STAND

Ninety-nine Out of Every Hundred Boers Are Loyal

There were little more than half a dozen leaders, and perhaps less than 5,000 rebels amongst Afrikanders, not counting the Marits affair, which is really not the same thing. There was done an enormous "underground" work by Germans and their sympathizers. And yet the Boers stood staunch in the overwhelming majority of more than 99 per cent. of the population of the conquered country of 1902. The terms of the peace at Vereeniging have been faithfully observed on both sides. And the Boers have learned to look upon British rule as the only means to neutralise the sometimes clashing provincial and parochial views of politics, that former curse of South Africa! Under British rule the various Provinces have been happily united, their economic, political, and moral needs more and more unified, amplified, and made homogeneous, to the very best interests of the country. Kruger's particularism is very fast disappearing, and a broad spirit of universal citizenship is being cultivated in every corner of the extensive Union. The people in South Africa have many more complicated problems of races, native affairs, language, political economy, than most of the older members of the British Empire. But in loyalty they have shown themselves in the very forefront—and it is really doing them a grievous injustice to look upon the past year's history of South Africa as anything else but a proof of complete and sterling loyalty to Britain and British ideals of these erstwhile so fierce and dauntless enemies.

RE-BORN BELGIAN ARMY

German Guns Abandoned in Floods Now in Use

Thanks in part to the help extended by the allies and in part to the indomitable spirit and industry of the Belgian people, King Albert's army, still valiantly defending all that remains unconquered of its national territory, is not obliged to suffer all the hardships and privations that fell to its lot during the first two years of the war. The army has been completely re-equipped with much the same outfit as the French have, including the steel helmets, heavy waterproof shoes, warm overcoats blanket, and winter clothing generally. A portion of this equipment has been furnished by the Belgians themselves. They have established factories not only on the Belgian soil they hold but also in France, where they are now manufacturing much clothing and other supplies. This gives employment to thousands of Belgian refugees.

The Belgian system of inundation defences creates an even more impassable barrier than the wire entanglements on the rest of the front. On its entire front the Belgian army is separated from the Germans by over a mile of water, including the River Yser and the Yser Canal. This renders close contact quite impossible, obviating the danger of infantry attacks and leaving the Belgians subject only to artillery bombardments, to which they are now able to reply effectively.

The artillery branch has been rearmed. No small contribution was made by the Germans themselves when in the early fighting of 1914 the Belgians inundated great portions of their soil then occupied by the Germans; the latter were unable in the hasty retreat to take with them their heavy and even much of their lighter field artillery. This was all caught in the inundation and abandoned. To their original artillery the Belgians were able to add a number of batteries secured from Portuguese factories, and to these France has added types of all her heavy guns and England of all hers. It has been possible for the Belgians to draw off enough water to recover the German guns caught in the floods. These have all been repaired and many are now being used.

Airmen's Night Guides

Perhaps the greatest difficulty which an aviator has to face is landing safely by night. The difficulty has been overcome by what are known as the Honig circles, after the name of the inventor. These are two huge upright circles, lighted by electric lamps, of different sizes, one behind the other, the bigger being almost thirty feet in height. When the aviator is flying high he sees the circles as ovals.

As he begins to descend the rings appear to cut one another unless he is coming down in the proper direction, when the rings will appear inside one another. If the circles appear not to have the same centre, it tells the aviator that he is descending too much to the right, and must steer to the left if he wants to land on smooth ground. When he lands properly, the circles appear to him to have the same centre.

A halt for a moment, to get a guide as we go the rest of the way by torch. Now we are in a communication trench. A long, winding wearysome trench which seems unending. About this we go in single file, and before long the whistle of bullets are passing overhead and is heard. We are getting closer now, for when a flare goes up we can distinguish the fellows ahead. Here and there we pass trenches branching off to the right and left. These are support lines. Another halt. The platoon commanders take their different platoons off to their different positions. We accompany one going to the front line. In a few minutes the trench we are in strikes one running in the opposite direction and we turn to the right. Single file we worm our way past the men who are manning the trench until we reach the platoon we are to relieve. The relief is made and the relieved men file past with a last word of good luck to us. We are here at last and you look at your watch. Almost midnight; you have been five hours coming in. Some hike, you say. Yes, and count yourself lucky that you don't have to go away back, past where those parties were met, for rations and water immediately.

When Night Becomes Day

Guards are arranged and take their posts, the remainder get into the funk holes and rest, if possible. The platoon commander has gone to report relief complete and another tour in the line has started. Tours last anywhere from two days to twenty-eight or thirty days. The average tour is from eight to sixteen days. The days are taken up mostly by sleeping as there must be little movement in the trench or shelling will be the result. The nights are a continual round of working parties, carrying rations, ammunition, water, etc. Digging trenches, putting up wire entanglements, etc. All this must be done at night, under cover of darkness. There is a "stand to" an hour before daybreak, also at sundown. In a morning we will take a walk along the trench and see what it is like. Now we will try and get a couple of hours' rest. Equipment must not be taken off and loaded rifle with fixed bayonet must be within instant reach. Here are two unoccupied funk holes, dug in the front of the trench, just wide enough to lie on and about the same height. You wonder how anyone could sleep in such a hole. Well, after you have had a few such trips as this you will be able to sleep in the bottom of a trench where anyone passing along will walk over you. Little things like that soon become so insignificant you scarcely notice them. You lie there looking at the stars (if there are any), listening to the whistle of the bullets passing, the crunch of an exploding shell and wonder if one will land near you. Makes you nervous probably, but you soon get used to the realization that death lurks everywhere around the forward area. Soon a pale light begins to be noticed, and word is passed along for to "stand to." Everyone rolls out and stands up in the trench (if it is deep enough to allow) and with rifle close to hand, wait for daybreak and breakfast. Before long the sky in the east brightens and you gaze up on the sunrise. An hour passes, then the order to "stand down" passes along from mouth to mouth. The sergeant comes along with the rations. One sandbag to every five men and a tin of water to ten (two gallons). You get four other chaps around and open your bag, divide the contents, and start to eat your breakfast. Hard tack and beans (2 tins to five), washed down with water from your water bottle. By the time you are finished, the sun is up and a nice bright day is started. A glance at your watch shows it to be four o'clock. You crawl back into the funk hole and try to sleep.

Trip Through Trench

Ten o'clock. Why, you have been asleep for six hours and feel quite fresh. Well, now for a walk along the trench to see what it is like. You turn a double corner, about every thirty or forty feet. This is to localize the effect of shell fire. Along the front side of the trench is a fire step where one stands to fire with head and shoulders only exposed. Many of the men are lying or sitting on this asleep. Another stretch and a square opening gapes at you. A flight of stairs leads down into darkness as one has to stoop low to get down at all. You notice a number of insulated wires running down the wall. Telephone wires used by the signallers on their field telephone. You noticed these before running along at the back of the trench, held there by steeples shoved into the earth. Down you go. Never saw such a long stairs before without a landing, did you? At last bottom is reached, and pushing aside the curtains, made from an army blanket, and serves for a door, you enter a small room with several bunks, a small table and a couple of seats. This is company headquarters where the officers stay. A side door attracts your attention and you look in. A signaller sits at a small table on which is a field telephone and several message forms. Behind him is a couple of bunks in which two other "sigs" are asleep. One "sig" is constantly on duty, so they take it in shifts. In front of the table on the wall is a board with several empty cartridges sticking out. They are in pairs and a wire runs to each. Four pairs of wires and four pairs of cartridges. Another pair of wires lead from the phone to the switchcard. These are attached to two bullets, and the bullets reversed and shoved into the first pair of cartridges. These cartridges form the plugs of a crude swithchboard. Each pair of lines are connected with a battalion headquarters and each pair run there by a different route, so that if one pair is broken the other will be O.K. Thus constant communication is kept up between battalion headquarters and company headquarters. A much more complicated signal office if found at battalion headquarters.

A Sniper's Shot.

Up into the sunlight more and you feel glad of a breath of fresh air. Along the trench again. Here and there you will notice boxes let into the wall with lids close. You lift the lid and see a dozen bombs ready, oiled and detonated. Other boxes of different shapes contain rifle grenades and rifle ammunition. A rubber sheet hanging over an opening in the trench attracts your eye. Lifting it up, a space large enough to stand alone in is seen. Shoulder high is a steel plate with a small hinged door. As you step in the curtain drops behind you and it is quite dark. Opening the little door in the plate one sees a view of No Man's Land, our wire just in front, a space, Fritz's wire, and behind it his front line. The door is just large enough to sight and fire a rifle through, and the place is a sniper's post. Closing the door you back out, quite pleased with your safe survey of that dreaded place of ground between the two lines.

Night Work Again.

Back along the trench to where we started and you find the men awake and having dinner. Then another sleep and supper. After supper the sergeant comes around detailing the men off to their different duties that night. Some go for rations, some for water, and the rest divide up in shifts for sentry go posts. The sun goes down and once more "stand to" for an hour. Darkness falls and the flares begin. Behind is heard the click of pick and shovel as a party deepen a shallow piece of trench or build a strong point. A strong party with heavy mitts and several reels of barbed wire and some stakes come along and quietly steal out over the top to repair several gaps made in our wire by enemy shells during the day. Scouts go out and patrol No Man's Land against a possible surprise raid by the enemy; also to discover how the enemy are working on their trenches. Thus the night passes away. About midnight a drizzling rain starts and soon everything is in a very unpleasant condition. Mud, mud, nothing but mud. You crawl into the funk hole and draw your rubber sheet over you, and wonder why you ever left home to come to this place. Men passing to and fro pass you, splashing mud and water every way. You thank heaven you have a rubber sheet to cover you and you try and forget the horrors of war. Suddenly the field artillery behind open up and start a barrage on the enemy line some distance to the right. The noise swells until there is only a continuous boom of shells bursting. A raid is being pulled off and you want to see it. Out into the trench you go, not heeding the mud now, upon the fire step and look over, only to duck down again as a bullet goes by so close you feel the wind of it. No longer is there a desire to put your head up and see what is going on. You are quite content to stay down and listen to the din. It is almost daylight and "stand to" passes along. An hour later all is quiet once more and you wonder if you demand the whole thing. Eight days of this drag along and word comes we are being relieved tonight. About eleven thirty in comes a platoon of the umptieth battalion and you file out. Back the communication onto the old road and over the ridge. Day breaks as you descend the far side and you espy a tent, closed you expect, but no smoke issues from the tin chimney, and a hot drink of tea is there for those wishing it. A hot drink puts a lot of pep into you and you begin to cheer up once more. Then on again until camp is reached. Here the kitchens have a hot meal ready and you enjoy it twice over. While you are eating the band starts playing and you pick up your ears at the sound of music again. After breakfast a good, carefree sleep, then up and scrape off the accumulated mud from your uniform and equipment shine buttons and boots and look a respectable soldier once again. After a good supper we go over to the Y.M.C.A. hut where a concert party are giving an entertainment. It is really good, for, outclassing many comic shows seen in theatres at home. After the show a little informal meeting, led by the .M.C.A. representatives, and you are ready for a good night's sleep.

Thus a tour up the line is experienced. There are hundreds of details not touched on but neither time nor space will allow of this.

Mail is Waiting.

One important point I omitted was mail. Quite frequently the mail does not go up the line so when you come out there is quite a pile for you. You sit down and first open a parcel and enjoy some of the contents, while reading the letter and papers. It depends on how good a correspondent you are; whether you have many letters or not. No matter which you have the letters from home and loved ones anyway. Now comes the tedious job of answering them. Very little of this life makes a man forget the knack of writing leters. At first there seems endless things to tell about, but the monotony soon grasps you and you cease to wonder at the sights, so naturally cease writing anything but common-place stuff.

Now I have given you a description of a tour in the trenches, but even yet you cannot realize the strain on a man's nerves while in there. Only actual experience can give you that realization. Nor do you realize what an attack is like. It's beyond description. I have read many different descriptions, but have yet to read one that brings out one's feeling while in the attack itself. Only by actual experience can the noise, the scenes, the shells bullets and strain be heard and felt. I have given you a faint idea of trench life, but will have to ask you to draw on your imagination for the feelings, such surroundings and conditions would give to your particular nature. The effect is different in everyone, so by telling you my own feelings would not say that yours would be similar.

Yours sincerely,
HARRY N. HASTIE.

Economy Is Another Reason for Studebaker Leadership

Studebaker cars are economical to buy because their first cost is comparatively low.

They are economical to operate because their splendid quality reduces maintenance costs to a minimum.

In ratio to power they are, perhaps, the most economical cars on the Canadian market in their consumption of gasoline.

They are not only light in weight, but so perfectly balanced that Studebaker owners frequently get from 8,000 to 10,000 miles on a single set of tires.

They are economical to own because in ratio to first cost, a Studebaker has an unusually high second hand value.

That is why Studebakers are the foremost Made-in-Canada cars—the largest selling and most popular fine cars in the Dominion.

If economy is a consideration with you, follow the example of thousands of other motor-wise Canadians—buy a Studebaker.

Let us demonstrate to you the quality and economy of a Studebaker car. Let us show you its splendid power and easy riding comfort.

Call today for a Studebaker demonstration.

Ennismore Tax Rate 26-5 Mills

Ennismore council met in the town hall August 6th for the purpose of levying a tax on all ratable property in the said township for the year 1917. Reeve Young presided.

Special school rates were varied, but when all levies were added it reached the average maximum of 26.5 mills on the dollar, with the township tax $200 lower than last year.

The above rates were levied under Bylaw No. 378, with three readings.

The following accounts were then drawn on the treasury:

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Harrington, that Eugene Moloney be paid the sum of $8 for work done on road.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded Mr. Harrington, that Thos. Flood be paid the sum of $10 for work done on the boundary line.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Crowley, that Wm. J. Clark be paid the sum of $10 for work on boundary line.

Moved by Mr. Harrington, seconded by Mr. Crowley, that Clayton Telford be paid the sum of $4 for tile and putting in culvert.

Moved by Mr. Telford, seconded by Mr. Crowley, that John Young be paid the sum of $5 for expense on government grant for road.

THE POOR PREACHER.

Do What He Will, People Are Sure to Find Fault.

The preacher has a hard time. If his hair is gray he is old. If he is a young man he hasn't had experience. If he has eight or ten children, he has too many. If he has none, he should have, and isn't setting a good example. If his wife sings in the choir she is presuming. If she doesn't, she isn't interested in her husband's work. If a preacher reads from notes he is a bore: if he speaks extemporaneously he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home in his study, he doesn't mix enough with the people. If he is seen around the streets he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls on some very poor family he is playing to the grandstand. If he calls at the home of the rich he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does, someone could have told him how to do better.

LIBERAL PAPERS SCORE DELEGATES

SAY WINNIPEG CONVENTION WAS NATIONAL DISGRACE.

The Manitoba Free Press, which is the most influential Opposition newspaper west of Toronto, openly condemns the Winnipeg convention for calling upon the West to support Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his opposition to conscription. The Free Press concludes a scathing article with the words:

The Liberals of Western Canada who have given their blood and treasure to this great cause, whose homes are desolate by the sacrifices of the war, are to do this in order that ambitious gentlemen in Edmonton and Vancouver may recover or secure certain jobs that are attractive to them. The Western Liberals will regard the proposition as an unspeakable infamy. They will reject it with scorn, with contempt, with blazing and wrathful indignation.

The Winnipeg Tribune, independent Liberal, is equally vitriolic in its editorial review of the convention. It emphasizes the enormous and unprecedented difficulties which the Borden Government has had to overcome in presence of the war. It condemns the delegates as a crowd of party politicians bent on the achievement of office.

Couldn't Have Done Greater Kindness

Mrs. Wellington Will Always Thank Friend Who Told Her About Tanlac.

"My friend, who persuaded me to take Tanlac, couldn't have done me a greater kindness, for now I'm feeling like a different woman, and sincerely hope my statement will be the cause of others finding relief," said Mrs. Alice Wellington, who resides at 142 James street, Hamilton, a few days ago.

"I was in a general rundown condition, nervous, weak and dizzy," continued Mrs. Wellington, "I suffered with something like gastric indigestion, and frightful pains in my stomach, and what I would eat seemed to do me no good. My head ached terribly and I had such awful pains through my temples and forehead I thought I would go distracted. My blood became so thick that my skin was all covered with some kind of rash that tormented me day and night. I was as nervous as a cat, couldn't stand any kind of noise, and even if I heard a dog bark it would upset me so I would almost have to go to bed. I would roll and toss all night, never getting much rest, and would get up in the morning all tired out. I never felt like doing my work, and every time I stooped over I would turn so blind and dizzy I would almost fall. I had a drowsy, sluggish feeling, and yet I could hardly sleep at night at all.

"I suffered this way so long and tried so many different kinds of medicine without getting any relief that I was getting discouraged and out of heart. I took twelve bottles of one kind of medicine, and it did me no more good than that much water. A lady friend told me one day about Tanlac doing her so much good that I decided to try it, and there's where the long lane turned. I bought me a bottle of Tanlac, and have been on the road to recovery ever since. I wake up in the mornings now feeling rested and refreshed, and it's a pleasure for me to do my housework. I sleep better than I have in a long time, and all that tired, lazy feeling is gone. My appetite and stomach have improved until I can eat hearty of anything I want without the least trouble afterwards. No kind of noise disturbs me now because my nerves are strong and steady and all my pains and headaches have disappeared. The rash that worried me so is so nearly gone that I hardly notice it any more. I have gained several pounds in weight, and, as I said before, I'm feeling like a different woman. A medicine that will do so much for suffering people is worth recommending to the public, and it's a pleasure for me to make this statement."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by The Warne Drug Co., Limited.

LOTS OF RAIN, NO FIRES FIRE RANGER'S REPORT

"No fires and lots of rain," was the cheerful message received by the Department of Lands, Forests and Mines from the Chief Fire Ranger in Northern Ontario. "Providence and our system of rangers are working hand in hand this year," stated an official. In some districts there has not been a fire this summer, while no outbreaks of a serious nature have a yet been reported.

HAVELOCK WILL PAY A 5 MILL TAX RATE

Havelock's tax rate for 1917 is 35 mills on the dollar. The increase is due largely to the fact that some $1500 of so called "assets" consisting of back uncollected taxes, have been wiped off. The school rate too is higher this year owing to the fact that the Board is asking for more money for that purpose. The details of the rate are given in the report of the town council meeting.

HOW TO CAN VEGETABLES

The following directions for canning vegetables has been supplied by the Department of Agriculture:

ROOT AND TUBER VEGETABLES

Carrots, Parsnips, Beets, and Sweet Potatoes

Wash thoroughly. Scald in boiling water sufficiently to loosen skin. Plunge quickly into cold water. Scrape or pare to remove skin. Pack into jars whole or cut in sections or cubes. Add boiling water and one level teaspoonful of salt to the quart. Place rubbers on tops in position. Partially seal, but not tight (Cap and tip tin cans).

Sterilize 90 minutes in hot water bath.

Remove jars. Tighten covers. Invert to cool and test joints. Wrap jars in paper to prevent bleaching and store.

Note.—In canning beets, if vinegar is added to the water in the proportion of one part vinegar to four of water, the natural bright color will be preserved.

Hot Water Bath Canning Outfit

These are manufactured commercially, but may be adapted from a new wash boiler with a frame for holding the jars. A deep pail, a kettle, or any other container which is at least six inches deeper than a quart jar and which has a close fitting cover, makes an excellent home canner when equipped with some means of preventing the jars from resting directly on the bottom. Wire frames with bail handles can be obtained. After placing the jars in the canner, surround them with warm water reaching to within one inch from the tops of the jars. Do not have the water hot enough to break the jars.

Let water come to boiling point. Let boil for 90 minutes. Take cover off boiler, lift jars out when steam has escaped.

EGGS WILL SOAR.

Owing to the high prices of feed there has been a wholesale shortening up in poultry flocks the continent over. The effect of this reduction is seen in the fact that supplies of eggs in cold storage in the United States were less by 25 per cent. on May 1 than on the corresponding date last year. The reduction in flocks on this continent is still going on, and in England there will be a greater corresponding reduction as a result of the British Government's request that no domestic fowls be kept which cannot be fed on table scraps, garden waste, etc. The prediction seems to be justified that even cold storage eggs will sell at no less than 50 cents per dozen next fall and winter. —Lindsay Post.

The Family Car
Choose it Wisely and Carefully

FIRST, and most important, is the question of SAFETY. You cannot afford to overlook this feature of the BRISCOE, B "4-24." This car is flexible, responsive, and stays on the road at any speed.

Next comes EASE OF CONTROL. The car is a universal favorite with women, because they can change the gears with their finger tips, and the slightest pressure operates the clutch and brake pedals.

And finally—PRICE. The BRISCOE B "4-24" is not a high priced car. It brings the joy of motoring within reach of all.

Price—Touring Car or 4 Passenger Roadster f.o.b. Brockville, Ont.

THE LAKE OF BAYS.

There never was a region better designed for vacation purposes than the "Lake of Bays." The whole territory is one great mass of lakes, streams and forests. The lakes are a veritable maze, the haunt of novel illusions and evasions, and against the steep woodlands nestle charming hotels and summer villas. One thousand feet above sea level with the health giving pine breezes assures one of the purest air. Handsomely illustrated descriptive literature sent free on application to C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Grand Trunk Railway System, Union Station, Toronto.

LIVE BEEF, 20c PER LB.

Chicago Packers Expect That Price Before Christmas.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—High prices for corn and the consequent scarcity of corn-fed cattle have sent up the price of choice beef, a new high record being established at the stock yards, when two loads of what the live stock trade characterized "New York Kosher" sold for $14.35 per 100 pounds, and the steers averaged 1,560 pounds. This price is $3.85 above the previous maximum figure.

Hotel men are mainly responsible, as they declare they are willing to meet any advance. By Christmas time a figure around $20 is expected.

Calves are even scarcer than steers. Fourteen dollars was paid for corn-fed yearlings in the open market today, which is an advance of $4 per 100 pounds over previous high record prices.

Economy.

"Abe," cried Mrs. Schnitz from the kitchen, "Abraham, watch der baby once, so he don't git his head in der fire grate alreaty."

"Don't vurry abud der chilt, mamma," said the fond sire, "if he gets his head in der grate it vill save a hair cut yet."

There is more than one kind of smokeless powder that is fatal to mankind.

As the result of lectures administered to him by both his father and the young woman of his choice, a certain young man decided to turn over a new leaf and show some interest in business.

"Well, Molly," said he to the girl one evening, "I am really going into business in earnest. Made a beginning already today."

"Good!" exclaimed Molly. "And what was the nature of your start?"

"I ordered my tailor to make me a business suit."

All things come to him who waits—bad luck included.

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Two generations of healthy, vigorous people have done this by taking one pill at bedtime, regularly—a larger dose when nature gives the warning.

— SPORT PARAGRAPHS —

Why does a man in summer time
Seek comfort in a foreign clime?
To seashore, woodland, where it's cool.
That man goes forth. He is no fool.

But oh, the country hotel bed!
It breaks his back and twists his head.
And treats his bones in manner cruel.
Believe me, Bo, he is no fool.

Kid Gleason does enough kicking for the whole White Sox team. You'd almost think he was manager by the way he cavorts and snorts around. It is time for Manager Rowland to step down and say a few words of friendly advice to his scrappy assistant.

Agnew, of the Red Sox, is carrying some load on his back. He's got to do all the work, it seems, because Cady is as slow as a park cop on night duty, and if Thomas gains another pound he'll be fit to travel as the fat boy with a sideshow. For that reason President Frazee is looking around for another catcher. If you are speedy and slim you might apply for the job.

There is certainly nothing rum about Rumler, star pinch hitter of the St. Louis Browns. He isn't called upon to perform very often, but when he is—gee, how he do do it!

Grouchy Gus says: "If all the mascots carted around by ball clubs did the work they are supposed to perform, all the teams in all the leagues would be tied for first place."

Jim Barry, King of the Ring

You don't hear much of Jim Barry these days, but just a few years ago every fight fan looked upon Jim as one of the gamiest of the game, and if persistence had been worth anything to his he would have been the champion of champions. Barry is thirty-six years old, having been born at St. Vincent, Minn., August [illegible]. Jim started out to earn his living as a chef, and they say he was a good one, too. St. Vincent wasn't a very broad field for his culinary activities, so he got a job cheffing in a lumber camp. Lumberjacks are very finicky persons about their food, and many a time Jim was hawled out when the biscuits were burned or the hors d'oeuvres weren't just so. He stood that for a while, but one day he got sore, and licked the man who kicked about his food. He did it so well that he decided to lick the next one who came around kicking. Then suddenly it dawned upon Jim that he might make a good boxer as well as a good chef, and the lumber jonnies encouraged him in this idea—not because they wanted a less bellicose cook, but because they saw a big future for Barry in the ring. So he took up fighting as a profession. He began his ring career and whipped most of the good men in the middle-west. In the fall of 1907 he made his first trip east, and it was here that a strange idea took possession of him, i.e., he got it into his head, and you couldn't get it out of him, that he could lick Sam Langford, the big murk. So he started in the first bout with the cullul pusson being staged in New York. It went six rounds and Sam got the decision. A little later they fought at Chelsea, Mass., and Jim was again outpointed. Two months later he fought the Tar Baby in Los Angeles, and got licked again. However, "Try, try again," was Jim's motto, so early in 1908 they met for a fourth time in Los Angeles, with the same old result. In April of the same year he fought Sam once more, at Boston, and lasted two rounds. The sixth of the series was staged in New York, in June, and Barry lasted three rounds. In 1909 he stayed six rounds with Langford at Philadelphia, and later in the same year went to ten rounds at Albany. This must have encouraged the belief in Barry that if he only lived long enough and kept his health he would eventually lick Langford, so a year later the pair met for the ninth time, the bout occurring at Vernon, Cal., and Jim was dropped for the count in the sixteenth. This outcome engendered a suspicion of doubt in Jim's mind, apparently, and he avoided Langford until February, 1912, when the smoke won the decision in twenty rounds, at Sydney, Australia. In May of the same year he was stopped by Sam in the eleventh round at Melbourne, and in March, 1913, the twelfth between the two was pulled off, at Brisbane, when Barry was knocked out in the first round. In spite of the fact that there was several countries left in which Langfor had not had the opportunity of knocking him out, and notwithstanding the experience Jim must have inevitably gained of the dusky warrior's mode of attack, the one-round victory seems to have disheartened Mr. Barry, and Sam hasn't had to rock him to sleep lately. It may be mentioned in closing that during their long and striking business connection the two learned to know and love each other well.

Baseball in the Good Old Days

Professional ball players of to-day may not be he-angels, but they would be considered hopeless mollycoddles by many of the old-timers of the 70's and 80's. The diamond artists of that time were as a general rule, and with the proper number of exceptions, a hard drinking, hard swearing high-living bunch of roughnecks. Perhaps the most noteworthy aggregation of this type of players was that got together in '86 by Dan O'Leary to represent Scranton. The Pennsylvania city was baseball mad, and the O'Learys fairly reveled in luxury. Wilkesbarre and Williamsport were Scranton's principal rivals, and by beating the clubs of these cities the O'Leary gang made themselves so popular that they owned the town. The most notable contest of that memorable year was with Williamsport, which had a club that had licked big league teams, and was considered invincible. O'Leary and his players wagered nearly $5,000, every cent they had in the world, on themselves, and they won by a wide margin. Needles to say, after that, you simply couldn't hold that bunch.

"I studied painting abroad," said the artist with conscious pride.

"That explains it," said his farmer critic. "I knew I had never seen a cow like that in this country."

"See, here; I'm told you called me a 'blithering idiot.'"

"I did not."

"Umph!"

"'Blithering' is an adjective I never use."

He—Didn't some idiot propose to you before our marriage?

She—Certainly!

He—Then you ought to have married him.

She—I did.

"Are you sure he is crazy, doctor?"

"You are his wife; you should know."

"But I have been married twice before, and I thought he acted about the same as the others."

Officer—That's a pretty awkward lot you've got now, Sergeant.

Sorely Tried-Sergeant-Instructor—They are that, sir. It's the like o' them, sir, as brings 'ome to us what a horribel thing this war is, sir!

Time to Thicken.

"Now, this is where the plot begins to thicken," remarked the budding dramatist as he started to read his second act.

"I sincerely hope so," said the manager. "It couldn't very well be any thinner than it has been so far."

The druggist danced and chortled till the bottles danced on the shelves.

"What's up?" asked the soda clerk. "Have you been taking something?"

"No. But do you remember when our water-pipes were frozen last winter?"

"Yes, but what—"

"Well, the plumber who fixed them has just come in to have a prescription filled."

McFAYDEN—LIVINGSTONE.

At Old St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, on Wednesday afternoon, a quiet wedding was solemnized, when Elizabeth, daughter of Mrs. William Livingstone, Aylmer, Ont., was united in marriage to Mr. Duncan McFayden, principal of Victoria Industrial School, Mimico, and formerly of Lindsay. NEW GENERAL APPEAL FOR PEACE

CANADIANS PUSH FORWARD TO 800 YARDS FROM THE CENTRE OF LENS

Little Resistance Was Experienced and Only One Prisoner Captured---Artillery Duel on This Front Rages With Unabated Violence---Good Work of Canuck Gunners

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters, Aug. 14.--Posts were pushed out on a front of about six hundred yards into ruined houses from which enemy snipers have been annoying our men in their advanced line in region to north of the Lens-Lievin road, early last night. But little resistance was experienced, and only one prisoner was captured. The posts put out by us last night are only 800 yards west of centre of the city, but a belt of razed houses lies between our men and Lens. Over the open space thus secured the enemy is able to direct heavy machine gun fire from strongly fortified positions on either side. An artillery duel rages with strongly unabated violence. In counter battery actions, yesterday, Canadian gunners caused eight explosions in enemy gun positions, and destroyed their gun pits entirely.

City Will Soon Fall.

The Canadian lines have been gradually tightening about this important mining centre, and the Canadians now hold strong positions in the western environs. This apparently has been disturbing to the Germans, who have placed a high value on the retention of Lens because of its enviable position in the Pas de Calais coal fields.

Yesterday was another big day for the British air service. A large number of battles were fought over this front with the honors decidedly in favor of the British. At least six enemy planes were destroyed and nine other machines were brought down out of control.

In the course of last week's air fighting one brilliant young Britisher accounted for his fortieth machine.

Enter Hun Lines.

London, Aug. 14.—Our raiding parties entered the German lines last night northeast of Gouzeaucourt, and at two points east of Vermelles, securing a few prisoners, says today's official announcement. A number of the enemy were killed and his dugouts bombed.

CITIZENS SPENT HOLIDAY AT STONEY LAKE REGATTA

The Usual Excellent Arrangements Made by Capt. Young to Take Care of Traffic---List of Prize Winners.

Peterborough citizens yesterday followed their usual program on civic holiday and migrated to the lake region, ample accommodation for the purpose being provided by the Stoney Lake Navigation Company. All the tours by water were personally conducted by Capt. Young and the arrangements went off without a hitch from beginning to end.

The steamer Stoney Lake left the George street wharf at 8 a.m. and long before that hour the boat was filled to capacity. Over one hundred and fifty disappointed ticket holders were turned away but the majority of these made their way to the Grand Trunk depot, and took the train for Lakefield. From that point they were carried by the steamers Empress and Manita to the scene of the day's regular annual entertainment at Juniper Island, the regatta put on by the Stoney Lake Cottagers Association. The different events were called off on schedule time and all were interesting. There was just breeze enough and sufficient ripple on the water to make the races, especially the sailing events, exciting.

The Prize List.

There were only two entries for the dinghy sailing race, H. Hill and T. Wainwright and this contest was postponed.

Sanoe Sailing—1, C. Harstone; 2, E. Stubbs. Mr. Brownscombe, who started, was put out of the running by the breaking of a mast.

Ladies single canoe—1, Miss Vera Stock; 2, Miss Griffith.

While on their way from Viamede to the regatta the canoe of T. Wainwright and S. Sheerin upset and the latter was saved from drowning by his companion.

The judges were George Douglas and Hugh B. Taibox, L. H. Grahame, chairman of the committee. H. B. Taibox, secretary-treasurer. The other members of the committee were Fred Addison, H. G. Fitzgerald, Tom Brack, F. H. Lingwood and W. F. Willoughby. J. R. Dodsworth was official starter.

Visitors were unable to wait over for the usual dance and presentation of prizes as it was impossible to secure a train to meet the late boats at Lakefield

The following donated the prizes and made other donations to the Red Cross:

Petrograd, Aug. 14.—The General Allied Council of Cossack troops has addressed a memorandum to Premier Kerensky uring him to defer the elections for the Constituent assembly until January. POPE BENEDICT HAS MADE PEACE PROPOSALS TO ALL BELLIGERENTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Rome, Aug. 14.—Peace proposals made by Pope Benedict have been delivered to all belligerent governments. According to reports received from Vatican sources the Pope suggests the restoration of Belgium, Serbia and Roumania, and a peaceful solution of the problems of Alsace Lorraine, Trent, Trieste, and Poland. It is expected that these proposals will be published today by the Vatican.

Washington Has Notice.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The State department already had unofficial knowledge of the Pope's peace proposals before today's news despatches reached here.

Diplomatic Activity.

London, Aug. 4.—There has been great diplomatic activity recently at Papal Secretariat, numerous diplomats having long interviews with Cardinal Casparri. The Papal Secretary of State, says a Rome correspondent Exchange Telegraph Co., I am able to announce that the Holy See has addressed a note to belligerents and neutrals. The note makes new and formal appeals for peace. It invites belligerents to state their conditions in concert terms, so as to facilitate preliminary understanding. This important document has been communicated to the Italian Government through Spanish ambassador.

(By John H Hearley, U. P. Staff Correspondent.)

Rome, Aug. 14.—Specific and concrete conditions, which his Holiness Pope Benedict believes may form a basis of world peace, have been forwarded to the rulers of all nations. The Pope, in outlining these conditions, makes a new and general appeal for restoration of peace. The appeal is addressed to all neutrals, as well as to the belligerents. The desire of His Holiness in presenting the general conditions is understood to be to furnish some common ground for dicussion through a preliminary understanding.

Return of Territory Sufficient.

Washington, Aug. 14.—The Pope's proposal declares that injuries to all belligerents are so great that there should be no thought of reparation, except for return of territory.

Foundation Stones.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Reduction of armaments, settlement of all international disputes by arbitration, freedom of seas, and no retaliatery after the war, nor economic struggle for supremacy, are foundation stones for Pope Benedict's peace proposals.

ARMY NURSES TO VOTE IN NEXT FEDERAL ELECTION

Soldiers of Any Age to Have the Franchise ---Minister of Justice Doherty Brings Down Special Bill.

Ottawa, Aug. 14.—Hon. C. G. Doherty, Minister of Justice yesterday afternoon introduced a bill entitled "The Military Voters Act of 1917" Mr. Doherty declared that the purpose of the bill was to make more complete provision for the taking of the soldiers' vote during the present war than exists under the Act of 1915.

He declared that conditions had changed materially since that Act was passed. The number of men was five times as great. Transportation facilities were not nearly as good. It was therefore proposed to modify that Act completely rather than to amend its provision. A change was to be made in the qualification for military voting. It was proposed to extend the vote not only to men of age, but to men under 21 who were overseas.

It was also proposed that not only should men in the Canadian forces vote, but men who had enrolled in Canada and who were now in the Imperial units. This applied particularly to the aviation corps and naval units.

Army Nurses, Too.

It was also proposed to do away with any distinction of sex among those engaged in active service; nurses would be included. The fact that a soldier might be an Indian, moreover, would not prevent him from voting.

To Take Vote Overseas.

The Bill, said Mr. Doherty, provided for complete machinery overseas to take the vote. As though an election were actually being conducted there. The results would be sent to Canada and would then be considered in conjunction with the results in Canada. The combined results would determine the election.

BEEFLESS--BACONLESS DAY IN EATING HOUSES

This is the Latest Canadian Order-in-Council---But Hotel-Keepers Deny They Are Subject to Imprisonment for Infringement of the Act.

Toronto, Aug. 14.—According to an order-in-council this is beefless and baconless day in all eating houses in Canada. But all of them here, hotels included, are doing business as usual. In both these succulent foodstuffs proprietors spoken to denied that they were subject to arrest and imprisonment, as no official notification, they sad, had been given them. Food Controller Hanna, when seen here, said the order was in force from the moment it was signed as order-in-council. He declined to say, however, what would be done with the thousands of proprietors all over Canada who were not observing the same.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH TUESDAY, AUG. 14, 1917

WHAT AN ELECTION MEANS.

"I venture to think that a gen- [illegible] right hon. friend (Sir Wilfrid Laurier) along the lines that he has taken will not only divide Canada, but will paralyze Canada; it will put Canada out of the war and mark her as a degenerate and inferior portion of the British Empire."—Dr. Michael Clark, Liberal.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

The Toronto Star may yet in its own peculiar way neutralize this by criticism and denunciation, out this is what it said on August 2nd of the Governments railway programme:

"As an advocate of public ownership. The Star welcomes the announcement that the Canadian Northern is to be taken over by the country, and congratulates the Government upon its courage. The details will, of course, require consideration, and the Government's scheme may require to be modified. But it is on the right track and it is going a long way. The country acquires nearly ten thousand miles of railway, steamships, express company and a telegraph company. In all these there are great possibilities of public service. The nature of the service will depend upon the energy of the Government or whatever instrument it may create. But advocates of public ownership, even if they would have preferred to see the whole railway system taken into the scheme, must rejoice that a very substantial measure is introduced, substantial progress made, and a reasonable hope of further development of a sound policy. It is a good beginning.

THE SOLDIER'S PAY.

(Orillia Packet.)

Some opponents of conscription in Canada ask, "Why does not the country pay great big wages to soldiers, such wages as will attract men by thousands, and strip the moneyed men of their wealth to pay them?" One excuse for lack of patriotism is about as good as another. None of them are honest, none of the plans they propose are feasible, though some are specious. The man who will not enlist for $1.10 a day is most unlikely to be induced to do by double pay. Already Canadas soldiers are the best paid in the world, and the dependants of Canadian soldiers are the most liberally provided for. The men already enlisted make no complaint. They are well satisfied, as they have every reason to be. France is fighting practically to the last man, and there is no evidence of unwillingness or dissatisfaction; yet the French soldier gets only five cents a day. Robbing the rich, as Canada would find to her cost, would mean impoverishing the country, Capital will neither seek nor stay in a country where it is liable to confiscation on the demand of the idle or the thriftless, and no country on the face of the earth needs capital for its development more than this Dominion.

While the contentions of the Packet may be right in the main the fact remains that the dependents of the soldiers, deprived of their support find a vast difference between the purchasing power of the dollar from what it was three years ago when [illegible] separation and patriotic allowances were fixed. The soldier who is provided with food, clothing and medical attendance, does not feel the increased cost of living as his wife and family do at home. It is the latter who are in need of more remuneration. The problem of compensating the soldier further will arise when he returns from the front and requires time to readopt himself to civil life. Any increase in his pay should take the form of a grant when his work is done, in a more liberal pension allowance if he has been disabled in the service.

Everything possible has been done to make the lot of the fighting [illegible] When he is injured he receives the best medical attention that modern science has developed. His dependents must not be called upon to share in the sacrifices that to a soldier are inevitable. Let not this country forget what it owes its defenders or show indifference to his welfare when he returns from his arduous duty.

THE EXAMINER'S STAND.

We are certainly sorry if we erred in sizing up The Examiner's stand on conscription. Perhaps we were led astray by its usual involved style of argument and its paregorical reasoning, its brave attempts to arouse the animosity of no faction no matter what the issue.

A close perusal of the editorial columns of that paper, however, have convinced us that it is opposed to the Borden Government, and that it is in favor of penny banks although so far as the latter is concerned it has not yet attempted to make the question of their establishment a federal issue. We still maintain that its action on conscription justified no other conclusion than the one we arrived at.

Our contemporary need not imagine that we are seeking free advertising by its courtesy or lack of that quality. We receive so much gratifying notice from our outside fellow journalists, that we can afford to dispense with the same favors from our neighbors.

So as far as the outside world is concerned it would be in ignorance of the fact that such a place as Peterborough is on the map or that there is a paper published here were it not for the creditable press notices that are given the political and other opinions of The Review.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Canadian housewife who cans a jar of fruit or vegetables is helping to can the Kaiser.

* * *

Is Canada to drop asleep at the switch or at any other part of the road to final victory?

* * *

Germany may not be quite clear as to what it wants now but it certainly was when the war broke out.

* * *

Ald. King Coal may have been a merry and care free old soul, but that was in the days before the war.

* * *

The Senate vote on conscription has demonstrated that reform has already begun in the upper branch of the legislature.

* * *

There is no time to discuss the golf championship or even the solemn question as to whether marriage is a failure while the result of the war is hanging in the balance.

* * *

It was practically a union Government that made the Military Service Act effective. Otherwise that large majority would have been impossible. There should, there must, be a union government to enforce it

* * *

Down at Harwood it is clear that they are no further advanced in some things than we are in Peterborough if that is any comfort. There, too, the weeds and bushes are the only dressing rooms for the bathers.

* * *

The cackling of geese may have saved Rome but those Liberals at Winnipeg will yet learn that something more strenuous is demanded to bring about the temporal salvation of the British Empire. This is no time to take fables or legends as precidents.

* * *

Any kind of an excuse serves the man or woman who is not anxious to go to church. What would the indifferent think if the pulpit were vacant some Sunday morning, and the excuse given that the minister felt the heat, and did not feel like coming?—Orillia Packet. Or made a wet day an excuse or was out with an automobile picnic or a fishing party?

* * *

"Under different conditions," says the Peterborough Review regretfully, "Peterborough too might have had a Senator." And how much better off would Peterborough be if the town had a dozen Senators? asks the Orillia Packet. Well, for one thing Peterborough would not produce the usual type of senators those who render their constituents valuable service only by remaining inconspicuous.

Lost German Colonies Are Rich in Resources Taken Over by the Allies

THE first step toward an apportionment between France and England of the territory of former German colonies in West Africa is described in a report to the Royal Geographical Society of London. Under the arrangement now existing by far the greater area is under French administration, but the most important ports are under British control.

The maps printed by the society indicate that England has jurisdiction at present over about 40,000 of the 190,000 square miles of Cameroon, and over about 10,000 of the [illegible] Lome, the principal port and town of Togoland, becomes British, temporarily at least. Buea, Victoria, and Rio del Rey in the Cameroon are governed by the English, but Duala, the largest town, is in the French section.

The conquered German territory is placed under the government of the English and French provinces adjoining it. The Cameroon is situated on the Gulf of Guinea, with the British province of Nigeria just north of it and French Equatorial Africa south and east of it, so that it is divided for administrative purposes between the Colonial Governments of Nigeria and French Equatorial Africa.

Togoland, which is west of Cameroon on the Gulf of Guinea, will be ruled by the governors of the Gold Coast, the British province, and Dahomey, the French.

Both of the conquered provinces are rich in agricultural resources, with more or less mineral wealth, only slightly explored. The Cameroon has a native population of 3,500,000, and a white population before the war of about 2,000. Since their acquisition of the country, in 1884, the Germans had developed it. Before that time it was for white men nothing more than a geographical term and a spot on the map of Africa. The Germans instituted the production of palm oil, cocoa, rubber, cotton, indigo, fine woods, and other natural products, and built up Duala, Buea, Victoria, and other stations into reproductions of small German towns. They had built three railroads and were carrying forward large plans for the development of the colony with the purpose of establishing a model colony. A member of the West African expeditionary force into the Cameroon wrote in a report to the Royal Geographical Society:

"These railroads were built at enormous expense, the bridge being excellent. On the Mittellandbahn at Edes, crossing the Sanaga River, is an iron bridge, the largest single span in Africa. On the Eisenbahn there are several long iron bridges, the biggest being at Bepele and Kake.

"The wealth of the country under the Germans was entirely agricultural. It would seem probable that there are minerals, in the north at any rate, to the same extent as in Northern Nigeria, but it is believed that no mineral survey has been made by the Government, as the policy was to develop the agricultural side first. The richest centre of agriculture is that around Victoria and Buea. Here there are huge and splendid plantations of cocoa and rubber. Each plantation has very good European quarters; they are traversed by broad ways mostly with light trolley lines down them.

"The inhabitants' extreme fear of remaining in a place in German hands was only too clearly shown at the evacuation of the Kribi by the Allies. A huge refuge camp had been formed at the Kribi, when it was decided that the place could be of no value in future military operations, whereupon all the natives begged to be taken away and remain under British protection. As far as the shipping allowed, this was done, but necessarily many were left. The scene on the departure of the last steamer from the Kribi was tragic, as many people, making frantic efforts to board the ship, were drowned by the swamping of their canoes.

"That their fear of the Germans was justified has been amply proved by the official reports since drawn up, detailing atrocities of every sort practiced by the enemy upon the helpless native inhabitants in all parts of the Cameroon during the campaign."

The writer gave an account of one skirmish in which the patrols engaged on both sides were put to flight by a large herd of elephants which wandered into the fighting and became stampeded.

AN AIRMAN'S DANGERS.

Machines Fail to Remain Level in the Clouds.

Dangers of flying in heavy clouds when it is impossible to keep the airplane on even keel and the aviator has only his compass to depend upon were described by Capt. B. C. Hucks, of the Royal Flying Corps, in an address on "Modern Airmanship" which he recently delivered before the London Aeronautical Society. Describing an experience of his own he said his airplane "tumbled about" in the cloud and that he emerged from it flying nearly upside down. Captain Hucks was emphasizing the need of an instrument that would show an airman in the clouds whether he was flying horizontally or not. He said:

"I set out on a very cloudy, windy day to do a test climb to 10,000 feet on a late type two-seater. On reaching 1,200 feet, we got into a dense rain cloud, but carried on beyond 5,000 feet, still in the cloud, when the compass apparently began to [illegible] chine that begins to swing, not the compass. Efforts to check the compass had the effect of causing it to swing more violently in the other direction. The air speed then rushed up far beyond normal flying speed. All efforts to pull her up checked her only slightly. Then the rudder was tried. Back went the air speed to zero. There was an unusual uncanny feeling of being detached from the machine, and I knew her to be literally tumbling about in the clouds. All efforts to settle down again to straight flying seemed to be unavailing, until we emerged from the cloud very nearly upside down.

"A few days ago a squadron commander told me that on one occasion when in France everything loose in his machine fell out while in a cloud. A week or so ago, on the south coast, a machine disintegrated itself in a cloud and the main planes landed half a mile from the fuselage. In a cloud you can see nothing whatever but your machine. There is no fixed point visible.

"The only means by which you can tell if you are flying in a straight course is by your compass and your air speed. The compass should give you your direction horizontally, your air speed your direction vertically.

"Before your compass starts to move your machine has already started to turn. You rudder the opposite way to check it, over-correct it, and turn sharper the other way on a bank turn; then the nose drops and speed goes up. Pulling back your elevator lever has little or no effect, for if you are banked above an angle of 45 degrees the elevator becomes the rudder. All this occurs without the pilot being in the least aware of the position his machine is taking relative to the ground."

Captain Hucks said the rate of improvement in aircraft was so alarmingly rapid that manufacturers could scarcely keep pace. Comparing the average performance of five different types of machines used at the beginning of the war with others of late patterns he said that maximum speed for level flying had nearly doubled. Horsepower was more than doubled.

Airmanship had advanced more than it would have done in eight or ten years of peace conditions and the advance seemed to have been along what might be called conventional lines—that is, improvement on standard designs, and no good results had been obtained from any departure from that standard. To his mind improvements in engines were responsible for present-day performances to a far greater extent than improvement in machines.

He said the most marked development in the modern machine is its capacity for climbing. At the beginning of the war, he said, the average height flown on active service was 4,000 to 5,000 feet. To-day a height of 20,000 feet is reached, and if progress continues heights a great deal beyond this figure will be reached as a usual thing.

Water-walking Insects.

Insects that walk on the water by means of pneumatic floats are the familiar water-spider and the pond-skater. The pond-skater really walks on pneumatic floats. There are tiny hairs on the feet of this insect—so fine that they cannot be seen—that are arranged to collect air. The amount collected in and about these hairs is sufficient to allow the insects to walk or float upon the surface of the water. As each foot is put down it forms a cuplike depression or tiny pit in the water. The foot does not sink because the air bubble that has been formed is too light to let it. A fine covering of hair protects the water-spider too, and even if it is submerged in the water it is never really wet. The hair keeps a layer of air between its body and the water. It looks like a white pearl when below the surface. The scientific name of this curious insect is the velia currens.

PRIME MINISTER'S MESSAGE TO THE BOYS OF ONTARIO WHO ARE WORKING ON FARMS.

You are now rendering to your country, to the Allies, and to the cause of civilization, the greatest service which you can possibly render. At this time when the production of more food is absolutely essential to the winning of the war, you are helping the Province of Ontario to take the place which it ought to take.

As Prime Minister of Ontario I wish to convey to you the thanks of the people of this Province for the manful part that you are playing. But the need for your services is even greater now than it was in the springtime, when you answered the call to help in food production. Harvest will be upon us in a few days, and the country needs your help to garner the bountiful harvest which you have, in a large measure, made possible. Therefore, I appeal to you to continue your patriotic service until the harvest is over.

GATHERING ON CORNERS.

Editor Review: On Sunday night a number of the followers of a local religious organization gathered on Charlotte street right near the corner of George street and as everyone knows that this is the most important turning point for autos and other vehicles. It was a wonder that some of the crowd were not injured by autos that wanted to go west. The police or other authorities ought not to allow such gatherings on important corners like this. There are others where the danger is less and no inconvenience would be caused.

GROCERS MAY COMBINE

Want Federal Government Start An Inland Trade Department

The creation of an inland trade department of the Federal Government, which will have control of all mercantile trade in the Dominion, was the request of a delegation of wholesalers and retailers which waited on Premier Borden. Mr. Hugh Blain addressed the Government during the conference with wholesalers, arguing the unfairness of legislation prohibiting a producer or manufacturer from stipulating the price at which his products shall be placed on sale by the wholesale trade, when compared with the treatment meted out to other trades and professions. Mr. Blain denied the existence of combinations in the grocery trade, and declared that there is nothing to conceal or suppress. Financially, it is claimed, the wholesalers carry a large percentage of the retail merchants, who, in turn, carry their reliable customers through sickness or unemployment. The proposal to prohibit the setting of prices was characterized as illogical and insane, as to disturb conditions which are essential to the welfare of the country would be a blunder.

INDIAN SEEKS FAME

Young Redskin From Brantford Reserve Possesses Fine Voice

Oskenonton, a husky young Iroquois brave with the big base voice, is going to show his paleface brothers how to become a great singer.

The Six Nations Reservation near Brantford gave Longboat to the world as a great athlete, and Oskenonton, who hails from the same part of the country, hopes to bring even bigger fame to the place he calls home. His name in English is Lewis Deer. In the winter time he makes his living by posing for the art class at the Normal School, Toronto. Twice a week he takes his singing lesson, and in his spare time he practices.

In the summer Oskenonton acts as guide for parties of summer tourists in Muskoka and New Ontario, with a select line of baskets, bead work and Indian relics as a side line. There he was "discovered" as a singer with a future last summer. More for fun than anything else he was singing at a big hotel.

A small party of the guests listened to his sonorous narrative, in the Iroquois tongue, of the hapless young buck whom the Great Spirit has bidden his father to cast off and leave in the wilderness because he brought bad luck and spoiled the hunting.

Among the little crowd which listened was a well known Canadian tenor, who after the impromptu recital sought the Indian lad and advised him to have his voice trained.

Accordingly at the end of the season in the north, Oskenonton resolved to satisfy himself as to his prospects, so he went to New York and consulted a critic and teacher of note, who is supervisor of music in the public schools of Gotham. The gentleman was quite impressed with him and gave him a letter to the conductor of the largest choral society in New York. Acting upon their advice he resolved to devote himself to a musical career.

Lewis Deer says he has sung ever since he was a child, at home, in the woods, or anywhere he felt like it. He is quite a handsome, deep-chested specimen of his race.

LITTLE CHAP, BIG NAME

He Lives on Ants and Eats a Lot Despite His Small Size

The "Australian insectiverous marsupial of the genus myrmecobius" is the very shortest name the naturalists have found for the inoffensive little creature the Australians call the "banded-ant-eater." Although he lives on ants and destroys more ant hills than the most industrious ant colonies can build, the squirrel-like creature of the antipodes is not really an ant-eater, as the animal is known in South America. But he has the long, pointed head and the long, slender tongue of the ant-eater and, like the Australian animal, uses it to tear open ant-hills. The Australian ant-eater is no bigger than an ordinary squirrel.

SANCTITY OF BALLOT

One of the first duties of the newer Canadian citizenship is instruction in the meaning and sanctity of the franchise—not so much its extension as a better appreciation of what it means on the part of those already possessing it. But this, after all, depends in a large measure upon the independence and intelligence of the individual voter, which again depends upon native character and public opinion. Up until quite recently, we citizens generally have never heartily approved of either the independent candidate or vote. Quite frequently we talked of independence, that is, when there was no election in sight, and probably boast of our own independence, but when the elections came along, or any measure came up for public discussion, we scurried away to our several party camps and awaited orders. Independence! Bah! We were so thoroughly wedded to our own particular party that nothing else would do, and we liked to know that when we died the editor of our particular party journal would note in our obituary that we had been a life long Conservative or Liberal—rather than to simply state we had been good citizens (though both statements might be said with truth). The fact is, that our party affiliations stood for citizenship. But party loyalty, as we have had it, has too often degenerated into something totally hostile to the true purpose of the secret ballot and its purpose will never be achieved until we recognize the necessity for an intelligent, independent electorate, and have a really consecrated discharge of this greatest of all privileges of citizenship—marking our ballots.—E. K. Marshall, B.A.

WOODEN PACIFIC FLEET

Vancouver and Seattle See Strange New Craft

In view of the considerable number of wooden ships which have been and are being constructed at the Pacific coast, the question has arisen regarding the sailing vessel as a permanent factor in the business of ocean shipping. Before the war the construction of sailing vessels had ceased almost entirely; even in France, Norway and the United States, which were the principal countries retaining any great volume of sailing tonnage. One of the results of the war was a renewed activity in the building of auxiliary craft. The Pacific Coast-Australian lumber trade in particular has interested itself in constructing wooden sailing vessels installed with auxiliary motors. It is predicted now by shipping interests that these new wooden craft, equipped with crude oil engines, will soon displace the old four-masted barkentines and schooners, and may offer effective competition to the modern cargo steamer, used almost exclusively before the war.

TAUGHT BOYS TO STEAL

Old Woman Who Created Gang of Young Thieves

An extraordinary story of an organized gang of boy thieves, who made daily raids on grocers' shops and sold the proceeds of their thefts to a tradeswoman, was told at Marylebone. Before the court was Mary O'Neill, an invalid woman of 60, who kept a general store at Princes St., Edgeware Road, and was charged with aiding and abetting several boys to steal. She was a portly woman, suffering from chronic rheumatism, and it was stated that the only time she had left her shop during 17 years was when she was arrested on the present charge and brought to court.

A number of boys were concerned in the case, but only one—a lad of 13, named John Hodges, gave evidence. He said he made the acquaintance of the woman about a month previously when he went to her shop to buy candy. In the course of conversation she suggested that he should steal things from shops, and nearly every day since then, up to the time when he was arrested for stealing a piece of ham, he had sold to her articles which he and several other boys had stolen from shops in the Edgeware Road. These articles included tins of salmon, milk, cocoa, treacle, and sardines, pots of jam and marmalade, and packets of candles. She paid him 6d. a pot for the jam, 4d. a tin for the salmon and sardines, 3d. a tin for the milk, 2d. for the cocoa, and 9d. a packet for the candles, and all the money he received he shared with the other boys.

Mr. Paul Taylor remarked that prisoner had actually been creating young criminals wholesale, and in spite of her infirmity and her age he sentenced her to six weeks, in the second division, in the hope that the effect would be to warn others, and put an end to the existence of this gang of young thieves.

LONDON'S UNDERGROUND

Women as "Gatekeepers" Prove Very Capable—Draw Man's Pay

As a result of the increased army requirements the gatewoman, in her smart, neat uniform of navy blue, can be seen at work on most of the London trains where the gates are closed from the train platform between the coaches. And very capable she is proving, too, though the early hours (the first shift starts at about five o'clock) are a sore trial to the novice; but "early rising's a habit you soon drop into," as one gatewoman cheerfully remarked, and staff trains are run a few minutes before the time for the various services to begin. Upon this work, as upon all others, the women are proving themselves wonderfully capable, earnest, and very conscientious. Timekeeping, I am told, is the only fault—if fault it can be named—that can be scored against her complete success, and after all that is a woman's privilege that is almost her right. The hours are either from five to three or three to twelve-forty-five, with good rests between. The pay is the same as the men's, varying according to age and the class of work. "They don't shout loud enough," was the only criticism a male rival could make when I asked his opinion of the gatewomen. And I am not inclined to regard that failing as a serious disadvantage, for we are only too familiar with the ex-gateman, whose voice, though lacking nothing in volume, in quality, and enunciation, leaves very much to be desired. It is typical of the woman worker to be cheerful, and the gatewoman keeps up that reputation.

WOMEN OF FOREIGN BIRTH

Must be Made Free, Happy and Prosperous

While something can be done with the men of foreign birth by the men of the farm organizations, the best and most efficient work can be done with the women and children and they can best be reached by women. "It is a great task, and in our minds most of us shrink from it as an almost intolerable burden, but if our men are willing to lay down their lives by the thousand for the British ideal of justice and the right of the weak against the strong, the women of Canada are assuredly ready and willing to live and work for that ideal. After all what is life but work and sacrifice and only they who are willing to lead the way of sacrifice may hope to enter in at the door of love, that love of our foreign population that will in the end make them one with us, a free, happy and prosperous people, worthy of the ideal of freedom for which so much has been poured out in blood and tears."—E. Pigs For "Wiltshire"

To produce the lean mild-cured side known as "Wiltshire," we require a long, deep, smooth pig, possessing a light head and shoulder, an even back, not too wide, but well covered with flesh, yet not fat. The sides from back of shoulder to ham must be deep and long, the rib short and sprung out boldly and dropping almost at right angles, the underline straight and free from flabbiness, the ham smooth and tapering with the maximum amount of flesh on the outside.

HONEY AS FOOD

Good For Children and a Substitute For Candy

"Honey is a food, not a luxury," says Mr. Todd. "It was the natural sweet of the human race, sugar only coming into general use after Columbus discovered America. Honey is predigested and enters into the circulation at once. In addition it contains in delightful form many mineral substances necessary for the human body, especially iron and manganese. One of the professors at Ames Agricultural College, Iowa, recently worked out the food values of honey in calorics (which is heat value standard of foods) as compared with more common foods in use such as eggs, cheese, fish, etc., and on comparing the cost in British Columbia I found that honey was cheaper as a food than all other foods in common use excepting milk, and even then the difference in cost is very slight."

Honey is good for the youngsters, says Mr. Todd, and he speaks from experience of a family of five children where the winter consumption, when all were home, was 200 pounds. There was no limit to the honey the children were allowed to use, with the result that they never asked for candy, being fed up with sugar which is a great source of heat. "The skin surface of a child—the radiating surface—is very much larger in proportion than in the case of the adult and that is why children need so much sugar," said Mr. Todd. "In view of this sugar is thus supplied to the child in the most digestible and cheapest form in honey and it was my experience that while my family was using large quantities of honey they had a clean bill of health."

ENGINEER BOB WALLACE

Saved Farmer's Horses And Receives His reward

Engineer "Bob" Wallace, of Lindsay, was a very much surprised man the other day when a farmer living near Cresswell approached him and handed over a crisp $10 bill. It appears that a few mornings earlier as Engineer Wallace was rounding a curve near Manilla station, on his way to Whitby, he noticed a number of horses on the track, and although the rails were wet and slipery he managed to bring the train to a halt without doing bodily damage to any of the animals. In giving the popular engineer the ten spot the farmer stated that he had saved him several hundred dollars, as the horses were all registered and of the best stock. They had managed to break out of a field and wandered on to the track.

LADY NEARLY DROWNED RESCUED BY TWO MEN

A drowning fatality was narrowly averted at Bobcaygeon, on Sunday, when a lady tourist fell into the canal. Two young men who happened along at the time attempted to rescue her, but were unable to get her out of the water. Assistance was summoned, however, and she was taken out in an unconscious condition. Prompt measures were at once taken to resuscitate her, but considerable time had elapsed before the young lady was revived.

SHREWD SAMMIS.

The Elevator Boy Worsts a Disciple of Blackstone.

HE SCORNS HONEYED WORDS

Feels That a Working Agreement Should Yield Something More Substantial and is Quick to Have Revenge When the Opportunity Arises.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, by Associated Literary Press.]

WHEN Mr. Skidmore moved into room 140 he called me up to his office and began:

"Sammis, I wanted to make your acquaintance and find out what sort of a boy you were."

"I am a good boy," I replied, "and my mother is a widow."

"Ah, she is! Well, there must be widows as well as wives."

"And I am trying to pay off the mortgage on our little home."

"That's right, Sammis. I like to see a boy have some aim in life."

Mr. Skidmore chewed at the end of a penholder for awhile and then said:

"Sammis, an elevator boy and a tenant should work in harmony. As you go up and down you will hear people asking for a lawyer."

REACHED HIS DOOR IN A BODY.

"Yes, sir."

"I make collections, secure divorces, smooth over family quarrels and hunt up the next of kin. In return for what you do for me I shall be delighted to give you fatherly advice and counsel."

I got up to go, wondering if he thought I was a soft mark, when he patted me on the back.

"Remember the name, Sammis—Skidmore. And it would be well to intimate that I have been here for years instead of two or three weeks."

One afternoon I sent a man to him who wanted a bill of sale made out, and an hour later I called at his office to see if he wouldn't offer me 10 cents. He simply laid his hands on my head and said:

"Sammis, you sent me a client, and in return I'll give you some fatherly advice. How much is that mortgage?"

"Seven hundred dollars, sir."

"Well, my fatherly advice to you is to stop buying peanuts and popcorn and pay it up."

It was only a day or two later when a woman came in and asked if there was a tenant in the building named Higgins. She was followed by a man who asked the same question, and during the day about six people came looking after Higgins. Next day the crowd increased, and finally along came a tall woman with two front teeth gone, who said:

"It's Higgins I'm after, but he might have changed his name. I'll tell you what sort of a looking man he is."

She described Skidmore to the dot. I told everybody to come at a certain hour two days later, and when the hour arrived there were fourteen of 'em. There were landladies, tailors, shoemakers, hatters, grocers and land knows who else, and all of 'em had their fists doubled up. I got 'em all in the car at once and scooted 'em up to No. 140. It was a race between 'em down the hall to see who should get into Skidmore's room first. They reached his door in a body and banged it open.

For ten seconds there was a silence that smelled like a kerosene lamp dying out, and then fifteen yells arose on the air. Mr. Higgins might have jumped out of the window if they hadn't laid hold of him. But they piled on to him like so many tons of brick. Then they went to scrapping among themselves, and when I got a policeman the whole building was in an uproar. When quiet had been restored a doctor felt of Mr. Skidmore's head and arms and legs and body and said he was not fatally injured, though he wouldn't be able to play golf for six months. Mr. Rusher, the agent, gave him notice to quit at once, and by and by he rang for me to come up. He looked at me in a reproachful way and, heaving a long sigh, he said:

"Sammis, this is your work, but I cannot blame you. I gave you a cold bluff."

"You should have whacked up," I said.

"I know. I see when it is too late."

I was a bit sorry for Mr. Skidmore, but yet he was a man of years, and he ought to have known better than to try and paint me with molasses.

SAMMIS,
The Elevator Boy.

WARFARE'S ACTIVITIES

RAILROAD MEN WORKING ON THE BELGIAN FRONT.

A Correspondent Tells of How the Soldiers Who Put Down Lines of Track Contribute to the Chances of Victory—A Visit to the Messines Area.

THE Canadians played a worthy part in the great events occurring on the Belgian front, where in the early stages of the war the men from the Dominion made history that will never be forgotten. The ground that is now in process of redemption represents for them the unattainable. They contested every foot of the St. Eloi area at the northern end of the battlefield with the utmost tenacity and valor, but by the superior German artillery on Messines-Wytschaete Ridge all their efforts were made fruitless, and thousands of Canadians died in opposing a further German advance. Their sacrifice was not made in vain. The ridge and a daily increasing part of the plain of Flanders beyond it are again in the possession of the Belgian people, while the enemy, brutal and sullen, as always in defeat, shells with long-range guns the villages in the area from which he has been driven, in the hope of preventing the reoccupation of what, in most cases, are mounds of shapeless ruin, like those of the Somme and Arras regions.

In driving out the invader, the Canadians have done notable work, not on the fighting front, but in the engineering, road-building, and railway construction department. Some of the mines which have so utterly changed the outline of the ridge were completed before the Canadians left for the Somme last fall. For months thousands of Canadians, manned and officered by former railway contractors and engineers, have been adding to the mileage of the light railways in the Ypres salient. Recently, during a brief visit to the Belgian front, a correspondent watched a railway construction battalion, which was recruited in Northern Ontario, pushing forward a light railway to a town on the new British front. The work of grading and track-laying was proceeding under fire from the enemy's heavy artillery. Casualties were inevitable, but the men worked with a will, knowing that by their labors the feeding of the guns is made possible.

There are now over one hundred miles of light railway in the second army area, some of it double-tracked. The Colonel in charge of the work of extending the line to the new front was formerly a contractor for the construction of part of the National Transcontinental, and is accustomed to handling men in thousands, as he has to do on the rush job now in hand. With little military training, his men work like veterans. Until lately, building railways in a salient was most perilous. Now the track, when put down, has a fair chance of staying where it is put.

The Canadian surgeons and nurses in the Canadian casualties clearing station in the salient were as effective in caring for the wounded from the battlefield of Messines as the railway builders were in providing facilities for feeding the guns. Over one-fourth of all the wounded were cleared from the Canadian stations. That meant great exertion for a long stretch of hours on the part of the staff, but this was borne gladly. By far the greater number of the wounded had been hit by shell splinters. There were few bullet wounds from machine guns or rifles, and scarcely any inflicted by bayonets, save in the case of Germans treated. This proves that the last-minute plans for the defence of the ridge failed to work.

On another visit to the salient, during a period of preparatory bombardment, it was learned that the enemy trench system on the western slope had been practically abandoned and that the Germans were improvising a new system of defence on the crest. In this wire entanglement, stretching from tree to tree across a road which ran along the top of the ridge, were machine guns and rifle pits behind the wire, which had chief place. If ever they completed their defence it was blown to fragments by the tremendous mine explosions which preceded our assault.

The hospital records indicate that artillery was the only real obstacle to the conquest of the ridge. In the Belgian operations the Canadian clearing stations are so situated as to be of great value. They are finely appointed, with excellent facilities for performing necessary operations before the transfer of the wounded to the base hospitals. One of them is fortunate in the possession of ample grounds, gay with blossoms and foliage. Seeing it, a visitor can appreciate the spirit in which the manager of a British house in a neighboring village, which is also fortunately in possession of a green spot, has hung out a big sign in golden letters: "Come into the garden and forget about the blinking war."

All those weary, wounded soldiers who are awaiting the hospital trains will have their thoughts brightened by looking out on the flowers, garden plots and lawns of this Canadian clearing station.

Of the battle-scarred area much has already been written. Amid a countryside dotted with hop gardens and rapidly-growing cereals, the ridge rises gaunt and bare, its brown shell-pitted flanks and serrated crest suggesting some gigantic beast of prey dominating the low country round about. The verdure in future years will hide its present hideousness, but large portions will never again be used by man. The craters will remain as memorials more imperishable than brass.

Too often we mistake companions for friends.

Fireman Never Misses a Run Now

St. Thomas Man Often Had to Lay off From Work on Account of Condition.

"Before I began taking this Tanlac I was constantly losing time from my work but now I'm on the job every day," said Henry A. Osborn, 32 Maple street, St. Thomas, a few days ago. Mr. Osborn has been railroading for the past ten years or more. He is now firing on the Michigan Central, from Windsor to Buffalo, which has been his run for the past three and a half years.

"For several years," he continued, "I have suffered from stomach and liver trouble. I always had a fairly good appetite but my food just seemed to stay in my stomach and form a knot that felt as heavy as lead. Gas would form soon after my meals and keep me miserable for hours. I would swell up terribly, my heart would flutter, and I would often get in such a bad fix I would have to call for help. I had awful pains in my left side, and several times I was unable to go out on my run. I was under treatment four different times and tried any number of different kinds of medicines but nothing helped me except just to patch me up a little, and things had begun to look gloomy for me.

"But Tanlac is changing things right about, and while I have taken only a little more than one bottle so far my relief has been nothing short of wonderful. I hardly feel the pains in my side any more and that lumpy condition has left my stomach entirely. Gas has stopped forming on my stomach and since my food digests like it should I'm not troubled with palpitation of the heart. My food seems to nourish me like it did when I was a boy and I simply feel stronger and better in every way. Tanlac certainly is great. I haven't missed a run since I began taking it and it's a pleasure to recommend it, especially to people suffering like I did."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

CHILD'S SEVERE STOMACH TROUBLE

Harriston, Ont., Father says Dr. Cassell's Tablets Saved his Child's Life.

Mr. Corby, Harriston P.O., Ont., writes: "Our little girl was weak from birth, and though we tried doctors' medicine and other things she got no better. She just lay in her cot and cried, and neighbors all said we could not save her. The doctors said she had stomach trouble, and that her chances were small, yet Dr. Cassell's Tablets cured her. They have been worth their weight in gold to us, for we were just giving up hope of saving our little daughter. I don't think there is any other medicine for children like Dr. Cassell's Tablets. Publish this letter if you like; it may help others as the Tablets helped us."

SUNDAY STORY OF WAR

Saturday night's official statement says The enemy again attacked our new positions on the Ypres-Menin road and after heavy fighting pressed back our line slightly in the Glencoree wood. We gained ground in the neighborhood of Steenbeek and took 124 prisoners. Air craft were very busy all day, many encounters taking place. Twelve of our machines are missing.

GULL LAKE FISH STORY FINDS HIS LOST HOOK

A good fish story comes from Gull Lake. Mr. Humphries, of Toronto, was out fishing a short time ago, when he hooked what he thought to be a log. What was his astonishment on pulling his line to find a very large fish, but before it was landed it made a big leap, taking his hooks. Some days afterwards he had some Toronto visitors at his cottage and took them out to fish, and they had only ben out a short time when they made a strike, and on pulling in the line found an eighteen pound salmon trout witht Mr. Humphries' hooks firmly embeddied in its mouth. Mr. Humphries' stories of the fish in the northern waters makes one wish they could participate in the sport.

THE PETERBORO RED CROSS SEND TWENTY THREE CASES

Prisoners of War Are Sent Special Donations and Attention is Drawn to the Illegal Use of the Society's Name.

At the monthly executive meeting Mrs. T. F. Matthews presiding, Miss Flora Davidson, convenor of the packing committee, reported the forwarding of 23 cases for July, containing the following articles: 33 dressing gowns, 142 day shirts, 154 pair of pyjamas, 18 bed jackets, 702 pairs of socks (126 pairs for C.W.C.A., trenches), 60 sheets, 875 towels.

The following societies sent goods in during July:

Ashburnham Patriotic League,
Berean Bible Class,
St. John's W. Guild,
Lakehurst Red Cross Auxiliary,
St. Paul's Red Cross Auxiliary,
Murray Street Baptist,
Progressive Club,
Trinity Methodist,
St. Peter's Patriotic Society,
Y. M. C. A. Mothers' Club,
Hall's Bridge Patriotic Society.

It is very gratifying to the executive to receive acknowledgments from Col. Hodgett's Commissioner's office, London, England, intimating the arrival of all goods sent by the Peterborough Red Cross Society up to six weks ago. Owing to the local society's supplies being accepted as perfect, we are able to ship direct to Montreal, thus avoiding delay in transportation, and it is most satisfactory to know that all our supplies are arriving safely and promptly.

Fruit Picking.

If there is any fruit in the surrounding districts going to waste for want of pickers, the Red Cross executive would be glad to organize parties to gather it in, if they are allowed to make it into jam for the sick and convalescent soldiers. Any who have fruit and would be willing to allow the society to do this might communicate with the secretary, Miss Laura Davidson, phone 67.

Use of Red Cross Name

The executive desires to draw attention to the frequent misuse of the name "Red Cross." The Red Cross Society is under royal charter, and it s a criminal offence, involving a fine of $500, to use the society's name unlawfully.

It is only an affiliated society or auxiliary which can term itself a

Many entertainments of various kinds are advertised as being for the Red Cross, of which we have no knowledge and from which we get no returns.

The executive appreciates greatly the generosity and aid extended to it by many societies and many private citizens, and it endeavors to prove a faithful steward and expender of all gifts given into its hands, but it asks all societies and individuals to communicate with the secretary (phone 67) before any advertising is done, so that official authority may be given to use the name of the Red Cross. Where this permission is not obtained the society is entitled to claim all receipts if advertised as being for the Red Cross.

Prisoners of War.

Henry P. Laing is added to the list of Peterborough prisoners of war, and six parcels a month will be forwarded to him by the C. R. C. S., London, England, in the name of the local society.

Change of Address.

No. 113204 Pte. F. H. Evans, 4th C. M. R., is now at Merseburg, Germany, until further notice (Co. 5, No. 7909).

No Private Parcels.

The regulations pertaining to private parcels remain the same. No food, clothing, tobacco or cigarettes may be sent, so that there is practically nothing that private individuals may send. Sir Edward Kemp's statement in the House relating to parcels for prisoners of war is apt to make their friends think there has been a change in the regulations.

The local society is notified directly by headquarters in London, England, of any change in the laws governing the sending of parcels to prisoners in Germany. We will be grateful if any friends or relatives of the prisoners can see their way to contribute something to the funds of the local society. It costs $15 a month for food for each prisoner, and only a few can contribute such an amount as that regularly. But we feel there are many who would like to help by giving something, no matter how small. The food is absolutely free to the prisoners, no deduction of pay or charge of any kind being made.

The parcels are now arriving far more regularly than formerly, for which we all feel so thankful, though it was owing to no fault or neglect on the part of the C. R. C. S. that they did not always do so.

The local society forwarded $585 for parcels this month.

Acknowledgments for Parcels.

Acknowledgments from the following men have been received during July: Privates H. B. Rogers, H. Martin, C. M. Drummond, F. H. Evans, J. Jackson, F. Pearce, G. Hutchinson, A. Parrington, E. Crofts, G. Butcher, A. Bartley, Lance-Corporal Armour, Corporal A. Dickson, Sergt. F. A. Field, Privates B. F. Casson, C. F. Davidson, W. H. Larkman, T. Casey, H. Godfrey, J. G. Haddon, A. Benzil, W. Footit, Cornelius Orford, Fred LeBar.

Pte. A. Bartley acknowledges five parcels. Pte. LeBar, four parcels Pte. Orford, two parcels.

Corporal A. Dickson says: "I regret very much indeed that it has not been my privilege to acknowledge every parcel direct to you and the junior chapter of the I. O. D. E. I take this opportunity to express to you all my heartfelt thanks for the very kind manner in which you are assisting me in my present unfortunate position. I should be delighted to write oftener, but, unhappily, circumstances do not always permit of it. Again I offer my sincerest thanks."

Pte. A. Parrington says: "I send these few lines to acknowledge three parcels of food which, I am very pleased to say, arrived in good condition, the contents being intact. I have great pleasure in thanking you for same."

Pte. Fred. Casson says: "Just a few lines to let you know I have been receiving parcels from you through the Red Cross, and I wish to express my heartfelt thanks for what you are doing for me and the other Peterborough boys also. We are glad to know the people at home have not forgotten us. I will try to acknowledge the parcels as regularly as I can, but it is rather hard at times to do so."

These acknowledgments will reassure their friends that, though we may not always get prompt and frequent cards from the boys, still they are being sustained and comforted by the arrival of these parcels from their "ain folk."

Generous Gift.

The executive tenders its most hearty thanks to Alderman Edgar Worth for his kindly and thoughtful gift of two knitting machines. We appreciate it for two reasons: firstly, because we cannot possibly get too many socks, and every machine adds to our output of those greatly needed articles. Secondly, because Ald. Worth is one of the prominent business men of our city, and a capable business man does not make a gift of this kind to a society unless it is doing a good work and doing it in a capable and efficient manner.

It has given great pleasure to the executive to know that their policy has been commended so heartily by its advisory board and other prominent business men.

The man who ridicules honesty, virtue and truth may not be insane but he might just as well be.

HE CELEBRATED FIRST HIGH MASS IN HOME CHURCH

REV. DR. KINGSLEY RECENTLY ORDAINED IN ROME HOLDS SERVICE IN LINDSAY.

On Sunday morning at 10.30 o'clock Rev. Basil T. Kingsley, who was recently ordained to the priesthood in Rome, celebrated his first solemn High Mass. The occasion had been looked forward to with pleasurable anticipation by his relatives as well as the entire parish and as a result a large congregation assisted in the mass. The relatives of the newly ordained priest occupied the centre isle, and were the first to receive his blessing at the conclusion of the mass.

Rev. Dr. Kingsley was assisted by Rev. Father Joseph Kennedy, of Assumption College, Sandwich, as assistant priest, Rev. Fr. Brennan, of St. Catharines, as deacon, Rev. Michael O'Brien, of Peterboro, sub-deacon Rev. Fr. Power, Master of Ceremonies and Messrs. Vincent Gillogly, of Lindsay, and Gerrard Maher, of Peterboro, Censor Bearers. During the mass Monsignor Casey preached a scholarly sermon on "The Priesthood," taking for his text the fifth chapter of the epistle of St. Paul to the Hebrews: "For every high priest taken from among men is ordained for men in things pertaininig to God, that he may offer both sacrifices and gifts for sins," etc. He prefaced his remarks by referring to the brilliant scholastic record of the celebrant and the joy and happiness which filled the hearts of his relatives and members of the congregation at being privileged to assist at his first solemn high mass. Proceeding, the Monsignor placidly and eloquently traced the origin of the priesthood of Jesus Christ and defined the duties of those called by God to his holy office.

At the conclusion of the mass, Rev. Dr. Kingsley imparted the Papal Benediction, having been granted this important privilege by His Holiness the Pope. He also gave his blessing to the individual members of the congregation who advanced to the altar rail to receive the same.—Lindsay Post.

BOYS AT FRONT SEND THANKS

FOR SOCKS SUPPLIED BY MEMBERS OF CANADIAN KITCHENER LEAGUE

The members of the Canadian Kitchener League have the satisfaction of knowing that their work in behalf of the soldiers overseas is appreciated. The two letters here given, written by former members of the 93rd Battalion, explain themselves:

Mrs. Clemence,
395 Walton Street,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Friend,—

Received your parcel of socks today. The boys were so glad to get them. We were nearly all out of socks.

We often knew that the ladys of Canada only knew what good that the socks do.

I gave them as near as possible to the 93rd boys, but there is a lot of the lads that I couldn't see, so I gave them to some of the other lads who are with the battalion.

The boys of this battalion send their many thanks to the ladies of Peterborough for their kindness in trying to give them comforts which is not very pleasant at times.

I remain, yours truly,
PTE. G. E. SEENEY,
18th Batt., France.

P.S.—Please excuse writing as a table is a thing of the past.

France, June 22, 1917.

Dear Friend,—

Received your most welcome parcel of socks. We are out for a rest at present and when the boys saw them they were all my best friends until I told them that they were for the Peterborough boys only. There are quite a number in our battalion from the old 93rd Battalion. Perhaps you will remember Kenneth Brown, who lived on Weller street, he is in the same company as I am and we are together most of the time. My address is Pte. Max Paterson, 195180, D. Company, 20th Bn. Canadians, France.

Please express our gratitude to the Kitchener League for their thoughtfulness in remembering us and the work they had to prepare such a useful parcel for us.

Yours thankfully,
MAX PATERSON.

DRUNK ON INVALID PORT FINED $10 FOR EXCESS

Peterboro police business was very light over the holiday. One well-known man got slightly twisted in his dates on invalid port, and he was fined $10 as a warning not to play the invalid game too long.

A. Moffat, who had been a inmate of the House of Refuge, and had appeared before the magistrate before, denied that he was a vagrant. He refused to give up the rooms that he was occupying and otherfise made himself a nuisance. He was sent up to Castle Nesbitt for a week, and the police will inquire now he has got liberty from the home.

Fair weather friends are plentiful while few people are willing to hold an umbrella over you during the storm of adversity.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalised and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

JAM SHORTAGE NOW PREDICTED SUGAR ADVANCE

CONFLICTING REPORTS ON THE CROP SITUATION IN CANADA.

Canners advise that there is likely to be a short pack on jams of all kinds and that prices will probably be higher. A big shortage of strawberry jam is stated to be probable. Sardines and extracts are among the lines in which advances have been recorded. Metal polish is one of the lines to show an easier tendency. Butter is in firm market owing to the higher prices being paid in Great Britain. Manitoba eggs of good quality are in the Eastern markets and have caused slightly lower prices during the week. New honey arrived during the week and is reported of good quality. There is a variety of opinions as to whether or not the crop will be as good as last year, the weight of opinion, however, inclines to an equally good crop with last year. In poultry lines live ducks are now coming to the market in good quantities. Chickens are not plentiful, but the quality is reported better.

Much interest has been connected with the sugar market during the week, one refiner having advanced 45c per hundred and three others 25c. There is a very firm situation in the primary market due to the eager competition for existing stocks of raw sugars. Stocks of latter are comparatively light to see the trade through until such time as the beet root sugar comes on the market.

Flour prices held steady during the week. There is an exceptionally good demand for flour from the United States. There is also an active demand for mill feeds of all kinds from the United States, demand being so heavy that some of the Ontario mills have put their prices up in order to keep it within bounds. Business still continues somewhat light, which is natural for this season of the year.—Canadian Grocer.

THE CROP OUTLOOK.

Areas Sown in Dominion Smaller Than Last Year.

The Census and Statistics Office has issued a preliminary estimate of the areas sown to grain crops this spring, with a report of their condition on May 31 as compiled from the returns of crop correspondents. The reports from the Prairie Provinces state that the spring there is very backward, and seeding is consequently late. At the end of May severe frosts cut down the growing wheat plant, but rapid recovery was anticipated. Rain was needed for the germination of the later sown crops and of wheat sown on stubble.

It is estimated from the reports of correspondents that the total area sown to wheat for 1917 is 13,450,250 acres, as compared with 14,897,000 acres, the area sown, and with 12,900,600, the area harvested in 1916. Thus the area sown this year, whilst nearly ten per cent. less than the area sown for 1916, is about four per cent. more than the area harvested for 1916. In arriving at these figures revised returns of the census of 1916 have been included for Manitoba; for Saskatchewan and Alberta similar provisions have not yet been completed. As compared with the areas sown for 1916, the returns this year indicate small increases under wheat in each of the Atlantic Provinces and in British Columbia, and an increase of 25,000 acres in Quebec; but for each of the remaining Provinces decreases are reported to the extent of 154,000 acres in Ontario, 254,000 acres in Manitoba, 927,000 acres in Saskatchewan, and 158,000 acres in Alberta.

The average condition on May 31 in percentage of the standard representing a full crop is for all wheat for Canada, 84 per cent., as compared with 90 per cent. on May 31 last year, and with 91 per cent. the average condition on the corresponding date for the seven years ending 1916.

The decrease in the area sown to wheat this year is partly due to the curtailment of the seeding season by the lateness of the spring, and efforts were therefore apparently directed towards an increase in the areas sown to other crops. For oats, the acreage is 11,781,900 acres as compared with 11,373,346 acres, the area sown, and 9,875,346 acres, the area harvested last year. Barley is sown on 1,954,000 acres, as against 1,827,780 acres, the area sown, and 1,681,180 acres, the area harvested in 1916. Rye has a sown area of 159,470 acres, as compared with 147,170 acres in 1916; peas, 152,465 acres, compared with 159,680 acres; mixed grains, 558,250 acres, as compared with 410,725 acres; hay and clover, 7,661,800 acres, against 7,892,932 acres; and alfalfa, 84,900 acres, against 89,472 acres.

Athletes Abroad.

That Toronto's athletes now serving their country overseas are still able to hold their own with the best cracks in the world has once more was demonstrated when an all-Toronto relay team composed of Jack Tressider, the Central half-mile Canadian champion runner; Charlie Kelly, walker and sprinter of Central Y.; Captain Harold Campbell, the 'Varsity mile champion, and Hec Phillips, of West End Y., whipped the cream of the allied army athletes in a mile relay race at a monster military athletic tournament held at Stamford Bridge, London, England. Toronto khaki athletes beat champions drawn from the Italian, French, Belgium, Russian, Australian, and New Zealand armies fighting on the western front. The Canadians' victory was a smashing one. There were ten teams in the race. The Toronto champions won their heat handily in the fastest time, and then cleaned up the final by forty yards, racing the distance in three minutes and thirty-five seconds, each man doing a quarter mile.

In the first relay Jack Tressider handed J. Donaldson, the professional champion sprinter of Australia and world's record holder of 130 and 150 yards' records, a beating. Tressider raced with the Anzacs' champion at a dizzy pace for the whole quarter; then he came through with his well-known whirlwind finish, and nosed out the Australian giant by inches at the tape in one of the most gruelling finishes ever staged at Stamford Bridge. Charlie Kelly, the second man, held his opponent, and beat him on end by five yards. Then Captain Campbell, with Kelly's lead, ran his quarter in 54 3-5. Campbell added ten yards, and gave Heck Phillips a fifteen-yard lead, and the big Scotchman romped away, and won eased up. It was a great victory for the Toronto boys, and they received a tremendous ovation from the 15,000 spectators that attended the carnival.

Tressider, Kelly, Campbell, and Phillips are deserving of much praise. They climbed out of their uniforms, and hastily trained to meet the pick of the allied armies. They ran in a strong wind blowing down the back stretch. The performance of Tressider is very notable, for to beat a man of Donaldson's ability and reputation is a wonderful feat.

This gathering of Toronto athletes reminds one of the olden days back in 1908 when track athletics were at the height of popularity in Toronto. It must have brought to them memories of the Olympic games of 1908 held in England, and at the Olympic games of 1912 held in Stockholm, Sweden. It would have been a great race if it had been over the Medley distance with Jack Tait and Mc Brock on the team; it would have sounded like an all-Toronto relay team that could beat anything alive when they were in condition.

Potash in Tobacco.

It has been discovered by a student of chemistry that tobacco ash contains twenty per cent. of potash. He estimates that the ash of a cigar contains 6.5 grains of potash; that of a cigarette, 1.75 grains; and that of an ordinary pipe of tobacco, 1. grains.

To the New York fans who think the Giants have the pennant sewed up: Don't get too flossy. Remember the Giants have fifteen more games to play than the Cincinnati Reds before the season ends. And a lot of things can happen in fifteen games.

Some of the infielders and clean up hitters recently operating with the leagues that have busted can get jobs if they measure up the standard with Barney Dreyfuss' outfit Barney could use a couple of good men in the above mentioned positions.

What's the matter with old Bert Shotton, of the Browns? The jinx seems to be after him relentlessly this year, after so many successful seasons. Bert has been one of the best all-round players in the American league; but he's slumped considerably this year. Let's hope the echo doesn't repeat "Has-been."

Tim Keefe's Great Record

Twenty-one years ago Tim Keefe, star twirler for the New York Giants, won his nineteenth consecutive game, and thus set up a record for the major leagues which has endured ever since, and is likely to stand for years to come. Rube Marquard equalled the Keefe record in 1912, and Walter Johnson and Joe Wood got sixteen straight in the same year. Keefe's winning streak began on June 28th and ended on August 10th, 1888, covering a period of forty-eight days, while Marquard in equaling the record worked much less frequently, takingfi eighty-three days to win his nineteen straight victories. The great Tim pitched as many as four games in a week during this period, and once he pitched two games in two days. In most of the contests the Giants won by big margins, and in only four of the nineteen games did they lead by only a run. This record, however, has been surpassed in the minor leagues, and the world's record was hung up in 1904 by Baxter Sparks, of the Yazoo City (Miss.) club, of the Delta League, who got twenty-one in a row. He worked in three double-headers and included a no-hit game in his string of victories.

English Supreme At Skulling

Since the first skulling match was held in England, eighty-six years ago, Englishmen have excelled at that sport. Of course, since the outbreak of the war, the great annual matches have been abandoned. Earnest Barry of London, who, a few years ago, defended his title as world's professional sculling champion by defeating Harry Pearce, of Australia, over the famous course from Putney to Mortlake, was considered one of the greatest scullers who ever lived.

From the first sculling match, in 1831, until 1876, the championship was held continuously in England. In that year E. Trickett carried off the honors to Australia. A championship of England cup was then instituted and was held by Boyd, Higgins and Elliott. In 1879 the latter was defeated by Ned Hanlan, of Toronto, and the Canadian claimed the world's title the following year by defeating Trickett. After defending his title numerous times, Hanlan lost in 1884 to Beach, an Australian. Beach defended his honors against Jake Gaudaur, of Orillia, Ont. Wallace Ross, of St. John, N. B., and twice defeated Hanlan. Another Australian, Kemp, then assumed the leadership, and twice beat Hanlan before he lost the title to Searle, Australian. Searle died soon after defeating O'Connor, a Canadian, and Stanbury, an Australian, became his successor. In 1896 the supremacy was lost to the British empire for a brief period, when Jake Gaudaur, then of St. Louis, won over Stanbury. Gaudaur lost the title to Towns in a match at Rat Portage, Canada, in 1901. Stanbury recovered the title for a short time, but Towns soon won it back. Webb was his successor, and in 1908 Richard Arnst, a New Zealander, captured the coveted honor. In 1910 Arnst successfully defended his championship against Pearce, the South African champion, but lost to Barry shortly afterward. After a long wandering, the championship went back to England, and is likely to stay there for many years to come.

GREAT IRISH CITIES.

Queenstown and Cork and the Charm of Their Surroundings.

When any passenger vessel steams into Queenstown Harbor, after a trip across the Atlantic, those on board are immediately attracted by what one writer has aptly described as "a harbor of delights." Queenstown is, indeed, a pleasant place, and, to those who know Ireland, strangely typical, in its surroundings, in the soft outline of cliff and hill, in its winding river, lost in wooded slopes, and in the beautiful expanse of its great harbor, of that graciousness of landscape for which the South is justly famous. The town itself, which lies on the south side of Great Island, on the slope of a hill rising abruptly above the harbor, was, in the early days of the last century, little more than a fishing village known as the Cove of Cork. Gradually, however, as its value as a point of embarkation for America came to be better recognized, it gained rapidly in importance, and when Queen Victoria landed there on her first visit to Ireland, in 1849, it was quite a considerable place, and was renamed Queenstown in her honor. The harbor, which is defended by Carlisle and Camden forts at its entrance and by Fort Westmoreland on Spike Island, can shelter a large fleet, and all around its picturesque shores country houses and little villages, such as Crosshaven and Church Bay, nestle in amongst the trees.

Before the war Queenstown was, of course, a port of call for American mail steamers, and the great mass of travelers who have passed that way know no more of the beauties of its surrounding lands and waters than may be seen from the sea. To know the beauties of Queenstown, however, one must climb the hill behind the town, on a fine day, and look out across the harbor towards the open sea. "I lay for an hour high up on the hill slope over Queenstown," says Stephen Gwynn in his "Famous Cities of Ireland," "and watched little steamers circling and wheeling, with white trails behind them on the shining floor of blue; a ship heading out between the points, and up and outwards under the land, seemed to beckon towards America." Or, if the visitor knew the story of the Cove of Cork, of how the harbor spread out at his feet is really Cork Harbor, and of how the Lord Mayor of Cork is Admiral of it, he would be interested to make the climb on that day when the Lord Mayor, in historic fashion, asserts his authority. For, once in three years, does my Lord Mayor of Cork take boat in state from Queenstown to a point midway between the two great headlands, which form the entrance to the harbor, and thence, standing on the deck, does he cast a dart from him as far as he can to the sea. That marks the limit of his jurisdiction.

The history and activities of Queenstown are, of course, bound up with those of Cork, and Cork has always, somehow or other, had a life of its own, curiously distinct and apart from the rest of Ireland. It always, too, had views of its own, as it has to-day on the Home Rule question, and was never afraid to express them; whilst, in the first half of the Nineteenth Century, it had a vigorous intellectual and literary life which has been compared to that existing in Edinburgh at about the same time. As to the Cork of to-day, it is, to quote Stephen Gwynn again, easily the most beautiful of all the cities of Ireland. The valley in which the Lee divides to make an island is ranged about with steep hills, and up them the roads have climbed, lined with dwellings of prosperous business people. The river itself is beautiful with shipping, and the quays are all through the heart of the town.—Christian Science Monitor.

Wooing in Bulgaria.

Bulgarian youth of the two sexes meet frequently, and their courting customs are at the same time modern and primitive. The popular meeting place in a Bulgarian village is the spring, to which every household must send for water. Hither come the peasant girls in brilliant costumes with pails carried over their shoulders on yokes. And where the girls go thither flock the youths—stalwart fellows in short breeches, embroidered jackets and round caps. Here is enacted the ancient story of Jacob and Rebecca, and here a modern youth has plenty of chance to court a girl. He may fill and carry her pails for her, he may beg the flower from her hair and put it behind his ear, or he may invite her to meet him at the husking bee that night. The husking parties are gatherings where boys and girls chaperoned by an old woman husk the corn for some neighbor, then join in singing folksongs or dancing their circular dances, and finally sup on some of the corn, which has been boiled for them in a great pot. What better chance could there be for encircling Olga's waist or stealing a kiss from Tinka or whispering in Blagoya's ear?

Not unseldom the party is broken up by the sudden rush of one of the young men, who, seizing a girl in his arms, carries her off to his home. Ordinarily the girl is entirely satisfied with this proceeding; indeed openly or indirectly she may have excited it by her fascinations. The Bulgarian girl knows well the art of flirting and pleasing, although she is frank and friendly, lacking the mysterious charm lent by veil and seclusion. This marriage by capture, such as was practiced by our tribal ancestors, is consecrated the next day by the orthodox religious service, when the tall-hatted, long-robed village priest unites the two lovers in legal wedlock.—Hester Donaldson Jenkins, in World Outlook.

Electric Power Exported.

The richness of Sweden in water power, and Denmark's natural poverty in any sources of power, has led to Sweden exporting electric power across the Sound.

A Dire Threat.

At a county fair in a small inland city several hundred men were engaged in holding down a large balloon which was rapidly being inflated with hot air. The smallest man of the lot looked about him nervously and then yelled at the top of his voice:

"Hey, come and take my place, somebody! I've got to go!"

No one paid any attention to him. A few moments later the little man bawled:

"If somebody don't come and take my place right away I'm going to let the old thing go up!"—Judge.

Nearly Spoiled.

"Well," said the editor, "how about that high life scandal story? Is it true?"

"No, sir," said the reporter.

"No facts at all?"

"Not a chance."

"Everything denied?"

"Absolutely."

"Good heavens, cut it down to half a page then!"—Yale Record.

A Grateful Parent.

"How do you like your new son-in-law?"

"I'm reconciled to him," replied Mr. Cumrox, "even if he is a duke. I'm thankful Gladys Ann didn't marry somebody that 'ud compel me to make a bow to my own daughter an' call her 'your majesty.'"—Washington Star.

ONTARIO BOYS TO CONTINUE ON FARMS.

Last spring the Organization of Resources Committee of Ontario appealed to the boys in the high schools to assist in national service by devoting some part of their school vacation to farm work. This appeal was based on the increased production movement, and some 5,000 boys responded. In the weeks that have passed they have done well, and now that the harvest is upon us, one more effort is required of them. The boys who are now at work on farms are asked to remain until the harvest is over. There is a great shortage of labor, and every pair of hands is so much help. The following letters are written by those who believe that the boys of Ontario will maintain the British tradition to "stick" until the job is through.

SAYING HER LESSON.

But Conscience Smote Her Hard When a Visitor Arrived.

MRS. TROTTER, being a conscientious woman, wanted a conscientious maid. It took a long search through employment agencies to find one sufficiently well grounded in the rudiments of religion. The maid finally secured was a new arrival and Irish. Among her first instructions was the art of saying her mistress was not at home when she was. One visitor who called under those conditions is responsible for this story:

"Is Mrs. Blake in?" she said when the door was opened in response to her ring.

"No," replied Bridget stoutly, "she's not at home, and may God forgive me for the lie I'm tellin' ye." Whereupon she slammed the door in the visitor's face, and that was the end of it.—New York Times.

AN IDEAL TRIP TO RICE LAKE

PRINTERS' ANNUAL EXCURSION ON SATURDAY, A PLEASING EVENT.

The annual half-day excursion of the local printers was held on Saturday afternoon, per the commodious steamer Stoney Lake to Harwood, Rice Lake. The weather was ideal and the trip could not possibly be excelled by any event of a similar character, either for comfort and convenience on passage or for pure unalloyed outing pleasure.

The boat left George street wharf at one-thirty and reached Harwood at about four-thirty. Returning, she left Harwood at five forty-five and landed home again at eighty-forty.

The attendance was a long way short of what the occasion warranted, due perhaps to the fact that no effort had been made to "boost" the event, and that Saturday was the week-end preceding a holiday Monday.

Tucker's three piece orchestra—piano and two violins—furnished very acceptable music for lovers of the terpsecharean art, and quite a few toed the light fantastic both up and down the river, although masculine partners were scarce. Light refreshments, ice cream, fruit, cigars, etc., were to hand in abundance and a very good supper was served on board.

The excursion was run under the auspices of Typographical Union No. 248, and, as on all previous occasions of the kind undertaken by this organization, nothing was left undone to assure its fullest measure of comfort and pleasure for all participants. The committee in charge were Messrs. A. J. Bolwell, G. L. Myland, E. H. Bartlett, E. S. Smith, J. A. Maynard, to whom considerable credit is due for the success of Saturday's very enjoyable trip to Harwood.

CANADIANS MAKE BIGGEST CAPTURE IN MILITARY OPERATIONS OF THE YEAR

FRENCH REPULSE ATTACKS; ARTILLERY ACTIVE AS EVER

Considerable Progress Reported on Belgian Front---Huns Win Over Russians in Moldavia---Conferences to Remake Map of Europe Will be Held.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris. Aug. 15.—In Belgium our troops made considerable progress west of the Dixmudé road. Between Hurtebise and Craonne our first lines were bombarded heavily. A surprise attack against one of our small posts on Vaucleric Plateau was repulsed completely. Artillery fighting continued with great activity all night on both banks of the Meuse. To the left of the river we repulsed enemy attack west of Hill 304. Everywhere else night passed in quiet.

Germans Win Height.

Petrograd, Aug. 15.—A height west of the Roumanian town of Ocna in south-western Moldavia has been occupied by Teutonic forces, the war office announces.

To Rebuild Europe.

Washington, Aug. 15.—A semi-official despatch from Rome today says:

The recent Paris and London conferences were only two of a cycle of inter-allied conferences which will be held for the purpose of establishing the plans for the rebuilding of the new Europe.

"A statement of the results of these meetings will be made public soon. The nations associated in the war will then see the importance of the deliberations entered into by their Ministers at these conferences."

Consider Every Phase.

It was learned today that the inter allied conferences will consider every phase of the war, political as well as military, and will collaborate with the various war boards of the respective allied countries. Although the United States will not participate in them for the present, at least, it will be kept fully informed of all developments and decisions, inasmuch as the allies' reilance is put in the United States for assistance of every kind, and their concluions will be affected, and in some instances controlled by what they expect from America.

The entrance of Greece into the war necessitated the holding of the Paris and London conferences in order to eliminate the antagonisms that existed between the point of view of the allies and those of Greece under former King Constantine.

WILLIAM BROWN WAS NEGLIGENT IS THE FINDING

Of Coroners' Jury at Final Session to Investigate Dominion Arsenal Accident.

At the adjourned inquest held yesterday afternoon at the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, after hearing the evidence of Mr. Gordon Stinson, the following verdict was returned:

We, the jurors empanneled to enquire into the death of Wm. Brown, of Keene, who was fatally injured at the Dominion Arsenal, Lindsay, on July 23rd last, find that he came to his death through an explosion due to negligence on the part of himself and disobedience of orders as issued by his foreman; and we recommend that the foreman of that department in future abides by the orders that he issues to those subordinate to him.

AMERICANS ARE FORCED BY HUNS

THOSE OF LONG RESIDENCE IN GERMANY PRESSED INTO MILITARY SERVICE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, Aug. 15.—An American of German birth, permitted to leave Germany recently, says the military authorities there are commencing to take American citizens, long resident in Germany, for military service, on the ground that they have forfeited their American citizenship, and that Americans have little hope of evading service.

America's first national army draft is almost complete. At least 75 per cent of the 687,000 men who are to be drawn for the first force have been listed.

MORE COMPLAINTS MADE OF GARBAGE COLLECTION

Contractor Graham, it is Charged Goes Over Route Before Receptacles Have Been Put Out---Inspector May Make Collections.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton reported to the Board of Health last night the very unsatisfactory manner in which the garbage of the city was being collected and this time he was not a bit backward in placing the blame entirely on Contractor Graham who, he said, was putting one over on the people. The list of complaints that had been received from different sections of the city were shown to be due entirely to the collectors and not to the people. It was shown that the collection of garbage had been started earlier, without notice to the people along residential streets particularly. The garbage wagon would make the trip and no garbage was out and when the collector was spoken to the answer would come, "The garbage was not out when we went along." The collector was through with his collections now before noon and was neglecting the service to the city.

The chairman stated that the garbage collection was in the hands of the Property Committee of which Ald. Saunders was chairman and he advised that the Sanitary Inspector get a private rig and remove any garbage that had been passed up by the collector and send the bills into the city.

Ald. Saunders agreed to see that any bills so contracted were paid and held out of the contractor's monthly check. He also remarked that the contractor was not trying to earn his $500 bonus promised for satisfactory work.

Inspector Stapleton also pointed out the great necessity for more collections in the center of the city during the preserving season.

It seemed to be the general opinion that Contractor Graham was just doing as he liked and was not giving the slightest consideration to the Council or the citizens.

CANADIANS CAPTURE POSITION WHICH DOMINATES LENS CITY

British Advance Fifteen Hundred Yards on a Front of Nearly Four Miles and Are Closing in on Coal City---All Counter-Attacks Are Successfully Repulsed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 15.—The text of the British official statement says:—"We attacked early this morning on a wide front from the north-western outskirts of Lens to the Bois Hugo, north-east of Loos. Our troops have carried the German first line of defence at all points and are making satisfactory progress."

A hostile counter-attack east of Cite St. Emilie was completely crushed. Our allies gained further ground during the night north-west of Bixschoote. Hostile raiding parties attacked our new positions last night east of Klein Zillebeke, but they were completely repulsed, leaving fourteen prisoners in our hands. Stormy weather continues. Heavy rain again has fallen.

Closing In On Lens

The British pushed their lines into north-western environs of Lens in a semi-circle around the eastern side of Hill 70. The British attack was made on a four thousand yard front which had an extreme depth of fifteen hundred yards. Beginning at a point just above the Hugo Wood the new British positions now run south-east and beyond Hill 70 towards Lens. Line then bends south-west and encircles the suburbs of St. Laurent and St. Emilie. Hill 70 itself which dominates Lens and the Loos salient was captured by the Canadians.

Biggest Capture Of Year

The British guns had been pounding for days Hill 70 which the Germans considered impregnable. The infantry attack began at 4.25 this morning. The capture of Hill 70 ranks in importance with the biggest military operations of this year. It was the last dominating position in this section which remained in the hands of the Germans and from it wide territory can be controlled.

Montreal Cellars Flooded by Deluge

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Montreal, Aug. 15.—Between 3 and 9 o'clock this morning an inch and a half of rain fell and cellars were flooded. Already this season six hundred claims for damage by floods have been made against the city.

General Election for Great Britain?

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Aug. 15.—The Daily Telegraph says: If the Labor Conference adhers to its resolution to send delegates to the Stockholm Conference, the Prime Minister will immediately advise a general election.

Harvey Man Kept Liquor in Barn

Roland Windover Pleads Guilty and Pays Fine of $200

Roland Windover, a resident of Harvey, was fined $200.00 in the County Magistrate Langley's Court at Lakefield this morning on a charge of keeping liquor in a place other than his dwelling.

Inspector Stewart who laid the information found the liquor in question in the barn of the farm, and took possession of it. The defendant pleaded "guilty" to the charge.

Matthew Windover, father of the other defendant, on a similar charge entered a plea of "Not guilty," and the case was enlarged for a week. It concerns the same wet goods, but it is alleged that this plaintiff drunk it in the barn, which is illegal under the act.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant, and Crown Attorney Hatton prosecuted.

SERGT. MARTIN PAYS THE PRICE

FORMER MEMBER OF 93rd. NOW REPORTED KILLED IN ACTION.

Mrs. Elizabeth Martin, 215 Bethune Street, received word this morning that her son, Sergt. Peter Thomas Martin had been killed in action on July 2th. This young soldier only a short time ago won the D.C.M., and was promoted on the battlefield. He enlisted with the 93rd, but had seen previous service with one of the earlier contingents. A peculiar incident was that his brother John, whom the family had not heard from in nine years, was found to be in the same battalion in France, and wrote home as soon as he had seen his brother.

American Troops Parade in London

London, Aug. 15. — American troops were paced through London today by bands of the Guards and were everywhere received by enthusiastic crowds. They were reviewed by King Gorge at Buckingham Palace.

CITY OF MADRID AN ARMED CAMP

Strikers clash With Soldiers and Six are Killed.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 15.—Six persons were killed and nine wounded when strikers clashed yesterday with soldiers at Barcelona, according to a statement issued by the Spanish Captain General and received here by the Petit Parisien. Madrid is without cabs. Most of the stores are closed and the city is like an armed camp. Premier Dato says: "We are confronted with an anarchist movement inspired by no definite object, not even that of effecting a change in the ministry.

MANUFACTURERS LODGE PROTEST AGAINST BILL

OBJECT TO THE NEW CONDITIONS REGARDING SERVICE OF BILLS OF LADING.

The Canadian Freight Association is making application to the Board of Railway Commissioners for the insertion of a new clause in railway bills of lading covering conditions of notice to consignees as to the arrival of shipments at their destination.

This clause, which the Canadian Manufacturers' Association will lodge a protest against, mainly on the ground that it will relieve the railway companies to a considerable extent from the responsibility of giving adequate notice to consignees, provides that "such notice shall be held to have been fully given if deposited in the post office, postage prepaid, addressed to the persons to be notified or the consignee if no such person be named at the addreses stated hereon."

The section of the bill of lading to which it is proposed to add this condition stipulates that goods "after written notice has been sent or given" may be liable to a reasonable charge for storage or after written notice of the carriers' intention to do so, be removed and put in storage at the cost of the owner.

The question recently formed the subject of litigation, when Mr. Justice Greenshields held that the burden of proof as to giving the notice rested upon the carrier — in other words, the carrier must prove that the notice of arrival of goods promptly reached the consignee or employes.

It is claimed that the application is an effort on the part of the railways to get away from this obligation.

Camp Borden Has Another Fatality

MECHANIC CRANE KILLED IN CRASH OF AIRSHIP IN WHICH HE RODE.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Camp Borden, Aug. 15.—B. E. Crane, an English aviation mechanic attached to the 79th squadron, was killed last night in the crash of an airplane in which he was a passenger. Cadet Philips, who piloted the machine, escaped with minor injuries.

WAR WORN VETERANS CHARGE WITH MEN IN FIRST ACTION

Canadians From all Parts of Dominion Swept Forward in Irresistible Wave Over Difficult Ground Toward Lens—What They so Bravely Won They Will Hold

(By Stewart Lyon)

British Headquarters in France, Aug. 15.—Hill 70 was carried by storm. The assaulting waves included men from all parts of the Dominion. War worn veterans, among them those who answered the first call in 1914 were mingled with recent drafts from the base and whose first action it was. All alike went forward with irresistible ardor over the most difficult ground, driving the enemy back before them.

Among the objectives was Hill 70 east of Loos where a fiercely contested battle was fought in September, 1915, and the Cite St. Laurent, the northern suburb of Lens.

News has come in from the troops who followed up and passed through the waves of attack that they have reached a point east of Hill 70 almost a mile from their jumping off trench.

The enemy put up a strong resistance and will probably counter attack in force as soon as his reserves can be brought up, but what Canadian valor has won Canadian tenacity can be trusted to hold. Hill 70 is regarded by artillery experts as the key to Lens and enemy will not surrender city except under unendurable pressure.

No particulars as to our losses or number of prisoners taken are yet available but the artillery preparation was most thorough and it is hoped that in the masses of churned up and shell pitted chalk on Hill 70 and in half square mile of wrecked miners house in St. Laurent few shelters remained for the enemy machine guns, his most effective means of defence.

WITNESSES TELL HOW J. F. AIKEN MET DEATH

Inquest Resumed at Police Court Today—Deceased Missed Footing Attempting to Board Moving Train.

The inquest into the death of J. Forrester Aiken, who died here on Tuesday, 7th inst. from injuries received by falling off train at Burketon Junction, was reopened at the police court this afternoon. Coroner Greer presided and the jury were called as empanelled at the opening inquiry, Tuesday, a week ago.

Frank Wright, a friend of the deceased, told of the trip to Bobcaygeon for the week-end and of the journey towards Toronto. He remembered that one of the train crew had told Aiken that a stop of 15 minutes would be made at Burketon Jct. He had got off with the deceased at the Junction and went to the refreshment room where they had only time to partially drink a bottle of ginger beer before the signal was given to start the train. He did not see the accident and had been under the impression that Aiken had missed the train until the next day at noon when his death was reported. Asked if he could identify the man who told Aiken how long the train would stop, Wright pointed out Adam Sharpe.

Adam Sharpe was called and stated that he was not in the employ of the C.P.R. and was a farmer near Burketon. He had seen the deceased running to catch the train and seen him miss the second last car and fall. He was run over. He had helped to carry the deceased into the waiting room and heard Aiken remark that "train was to stop 15 minutes and it did not stop 5."

Evidence was also taken from Wilfred Sanderson, J. P. Byers, James Currin, a section man, Lemuel Hubbel, the conductor of the Bobcaygeon train, Arthur Brown, Dr. Bell, A. W. Walker and Station Agent Douglas as to the accident.

The inquest is in progress as we go to press.

Crown Attorney Hatton is conducting the inquiry while Mr. Thornton is taking notes for the C.P.R.

Lieut. Stratton is Seriously Wounded

Ald. A. H. Stratton has received additional news from the war office in reference to the wounding of his son, Lieut. J. R. (Reggie) Stratton. The message stated that he was admitted to No. 3 General Hospital, Letreport, on Aug. 14, with gunshot wounds in the face, right hand, and right thigh.

MILK TESTS FOR JULY

The result of the milk tests for the past month were submitted and ordered to be published by resolution at the meeting of the Board of Health last night. It will be seen that all of the milk dealers are not listed. That is caused by the Sanitary Inspector not being able to get samples of the milk from the wagon during the past month. As he receives the different tests they will be published from this time on.

For the information of the citizens, the present bylaw requires that all milk sold in the city must test not less than 3.00 per cent of butter fat. The difference in some of the tests are remarkable.

The report is for the milk tested for the month of July and the tests are as follows:

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY, AUG. 15, 1917

PLAYING POLITICS.

The Peterborough Examiner, a Liberal paper, is accused by its contemporary, the Review, of being still a mere party hack and a blind follower of the lead of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the man who, on the gravest question that has ever come before the people of Canada, has deserted his followers for the sake of his own province. The Examiner even opposes conscription, in spite of all the evidence from the front that compulsion is needed to keep the Canadian forces up to a mark that will not mean recession. The Review says the Examiner in past months has repeatedly called attention to the disparity between enlistments and casualties, and it has frequently called upon the Government to do something. Yet now that the Government has done all that was left it to do, the Examiner is not satisfied.

This activity of the Liberal political machine affords another example of how the game of politics is being played in Canada "on the edge of hell," as the Montreal Star so vividly expressed it. — St. Thomas Times.

A CERTAIN RICH MAN.

A certain rich man in the city whose dividends yield abundantly has been offered the nomination on the Liberal ticket for the coming election. He has declined the honor for two reasons, not the least of which is the fact of his wealth. The condition in which the party finds itself, too, does not escape his notice and he realizes that the man who takes the position that has been offered him will find himself the leader of a hopehelpless and forlorn, a man engaged in a cause that has little more to justify itself than have the aims of the Kaiser himself.

The day is past when wealth alone is the deciding factor in a contest in any electorate. No man can longer hope to buy his way into power. The man who offers his vote for sale is no longer regarded as worthy of consideration. There is a prejudice against excessive wealth in the present temper of the public. The rich man finds a needle's eye in his way to power just as the same obstruction bars his way to heaven. Of the two the latter is the easier to overcome. The camel can make the passage of the needle's eye by getting to its knees. The rich man has the same alternative. But in politics these days even that chance is denied him. Nothing that he may do will overcome that popular distrust of the man with a million.

TO MAKE ONTARIO BONE DRY.

Ontario and other prohibition Provinces get the right, through their Legislatures, to put the ban upon liquor advertising. The mails are denied to circulars and letters soliciting orders for liquors. The publication of liquor advertisements within those Provinces may be made a punishable offence; moreover—which is the most radical provision—any prohibition Province may prohibit the entrance of any newspaper, published outside its territory, which contains liquor advertising.

The new "temperance bill" making these provisions went through committee and received its third reading in the House on Saturday. It contains a number of important changes to the "Doherty act" of last session.

The Ontario Legislature may declare it illegal for any newspaper in the province to publish a liquor ad. It has however no authority to keep out a newspaper from Quebec or any other outside point. It is here that the Federal powers step in and say that the mails shall be denied any paper that carries such advertisements. A paper printed in Montreal could circulate in Ontario only if the liquor advertisements are taken from the edition sent to this province, that is, of course, if Ontario avails itself of its full powers in this matter.

Any province in Canada can make itself perfectly bone dry. Any authority which it lacks under the constitution to accomplish this is provided by Parliament.

Prohibition thus becomes a provincial question, pure and simple and the temperance issue cannot be dragged into the coming Federal election for party purposes.

RENOUNCES SIR WILFRID.

"If the Turriff amendment had been accepted and passed by the Winnipeg Convention," says the Toronto Star, "there would have been some hope that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would have risked something in Quebec to win Western approval, but as that amendment was introduced and flatly rejected, he is afforded no excuse in the sight of Quebec for modifying his attitude by an inch. He will have a solid Quebec behind him, if returned to power, and the policy of Quebec in regard to the war will become his policy and Canada's. And the people of this country as a whole cannot be satisfied with a war policy that satisfies Quebec. The fathers of sons and the mothers of men fighting in the war cannot be satisfied with any policy or any leader acceptable to those who shirk and shun their duty to the country and civilization."

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The United States figures on a $350,000,000 harvest from this year's home gardens. Is this margin or profit?

• • •

Why should Canada spend millions and sacrifice lives fighting a Kaiser in Europe and then quietly tolerate one right at home?

• • •

The day is coming when the German masses will rise up and call the Allies blessed for breaking the yoke they have worn for ages.

• • •

The West proposes to use more fish for food than ever before. That diet being good for the brain there is still hope for those Laurier Liberals.

• • •

The military Service Act will soon be a law of the land and to talk against it will be treason. There is only one cure for treason and it is generally fatal.

• • •

The paragrapher who attempts to make a pun on Lens should remember that unfortunately for his plans it is not pronounced according to its general appearance.

• • •

It is incredible that Belgian sailors should smuggle rubber and platinum to Germany. But not more so than that some Canadians find it possible to take the political side they do.

Carrying your own bundle home may be all right so far as the stores are concerned but let the licensed carrier fetch that package from the express office if you would avoid trouble.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Kingdon Gould
(Buffalo Express)

It is reported that Kingdon Gould (found to be in perfect physical condition by the medical examiners) claimed exemption on the ground that his wife is dependent on him. Didn't he make a mistake? Shouldn't he have said that she was dependent on his grandfather, the late Jay Gould.

(Toronto Mail and Empire)

The fact that the British House of Lords should discuss the sale of honors is a hopeful sign, even if it results in the passing of no law to make public the reason for their bestowal. Honors for which reasons can be given are not the sort that Canadians are best acquainted with.

Not Agreed on Sir Clifford
(Windsor Record, Lib.)

The London Advertiser reprints an article from the Financial Post and gives it double-column leader prominence, suggesting Sir Clifford Sifton as Prime Minister. Nothing doing. The exploiter of national resources has got more now than he's entitled to.

Wit and Wisdom

He was an artist and the humdrum life in the butcher's shop vexed his noble spirit. Somehow selling scrag or mutton and the best end of the neck was not appreciated by his artistic temperament, and so he went to New York where talent is recognized and paid for—sometimes.

For a time he wrote glowing lette s home. Then there came silence.

"Success," reflected his sorrowing parents, "has been too much for him. He has forgotten us. Alas! alas!"

But he hadn't, for one evening, just as his father was sitting down for supper and preparing to enjoy his humble chop, a small boy brought a note.

"Dear dad," it read, "please meet me by the old bridge at midnight, and bring with you a shirt, a waistcoat and a jacket. I have a hat."

He was big and fat and vulgar and aggressive. He was abominally rich and wished everyone to know it. He treated the servants at the hotel as if they were beings from an inferior planet, and particularly did he assert himself with the porter.

On the last morning of his stay he summoned the porter.

"Get me two corner seats—first class—and meet me at the station with the tickets. I want one seat to sit in and one to put my feet on."

The fat man kept the porter waiting until the last minute, and just had time to snatch the tickets and jump into the train before it moved out. Then he discovered that the seat he'd booked for his feet was in the carriage next door.

A professor was one day nearing the close of a history lecture, and was indulging in one of those rhetorical climaxes in which he delighted, when the hour struck. The students immediately began to slam down the moveable arms of their lecture chairs and to prepare to leave.

The professor, annoyed at the interruption of his flow of eloquence, held up his hand.

"Wait just one minute, gentlemen. I have a few more pearls to cast."

A lady of intellectual tastes found it difficult to collect all the facts she wished to remember. She therefore secured the services of a professor of one of the best memory systems.

Scarcely had the professor taken his departure after a successful first lesson when a loud double knock was heard at the front door.

"Who was that, Mary," the lady inquired of the servant.

"Oh, if you please, ma'am," said Mary, "it was the memory man; he forgot his umbrella."

While one thing essential to a lawyer is a good knowledge of Latin, it is not necessary that he should parade his classical learning, for he might be "taken down a peg," as was the young lawyer who displayed his erudition before a downstate jury. His opponent replied:

"Gentlemen of the jury, the young lawyer who has just addressed you has roamed with Romulus, canted with Cantharides, ripped with Euripides, socked with Socrates; but what does he know about the law as to assault and battery?"

WOMEN WILL WEAR TROUSERS

Yes, they're here. Trousers for women and not for working women, either. Formal functions this fall and winter will witness the advent of trouser evening gowns. The heralding of the feminine "breeches" came with the semiannual style show of the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' association opens in the Auditorium.

The show was not a mere parade of beautiful damsels in exquisite garments, but a tinge of musical comedies and vaudeville, "Awake, America," a patriotic spectacle, was the vehicle for the exhibition of the coming mode. The proceeds of the show were turned over to the Navy Relief society for use in the Great Lakes auxiliary, of which Mrs. W. A. Moffett, wife of the commandant of the station, is president. Sousa's jacky band furnished the music at each of the performances.

Old Basque to Be Revived.

One costume exhibited should do mother's heart good, for she can get her old close fitting basque that she wore back in 1887 out of the attic trunk and put it on with the feeling that she is wholly in accord with the times.

Light colors will predominate during the next six months, according to the edict of the garment manufacturers. Several new cloths and colors are to be seen. A silverton cloth, a dual colored cloth with a cast of silver, will be popular for coats next winter, the style men predict.

Furs—muskrat, skunk, rabbit, Hudson seal and real ermine—according to taste and pocket book, will beautify milady's coat. At first appearance some of the winter coats looked as if a small boy with a propensity for mud slinging had victimized the garment, but closer examination disclosed the fact that little bunches of fur had been attached, regardless of symmetry and propriety. Most of the coats will be lined with brocaded silks and satins, which are too fine to be called gaudy, for they are truly gorgeous.

Green, Red and Orange Run Riot.

Sport skirts looking like young awnings and the clothing of women, seen nowhere but in summer girl advertisements, are to be worn during the early months of the fall. Green, red and orange run riot in these recreation costumes.

Out of town merchants visited Chicago to attend the show. Chicago manufacturers are quite gleeful over the visit of a buyer from a fifth avenue, New York, concern, who came to buy Chicago made clothes instead of New York or foreign manufactured garments.

THE HUMAN SIDE OF THINGS

INSANE OR CRIMINAL?

Mrs. Trevor was a woman of gentle breeding. She had lived for years in Germantown Pa. Her son, Hermann, who had been making a success of ranching in Montana, finally sent for her to come and spend the last years of her life there. When Mrs. Trevor arrived in Chicago she was overcome with the vastness of the city, its roaring, rushing overpowering ways It was all so different from quiet little Germantown. Moreover, her motions had been considerably strained at the prospects of seeing her good son who had been away for so long. In short she became mentally upset. She forgot her son's name and where he lived. She had suffered a touch of aphasia. She couldn't remember important, though simple, facts about herself.

In this plight Mrs. Trevor was taken to one of Chicago's police stations and placed in a cell. In the cell next to her were two women of low repute. They had been taken in a raid. Besotted with drink they were smoking cigarettes and uttering the vilest, filthiest of language. Though her memory had temporarily tricked her, Mrs. Trevor was fully conscious of her surroundings, as is usually the case with persons in her plight. One can readily imagine the shock of this gentle, little old woman's sensibilities. Her situation, mentally and otherwise, was not greatly improved when she was offered a towel that had been used by the painted woman with which to dry her face after using the scant supply of water permitted her for washing purposes.

Yes, Chicago is still treating people who go insane as if they were criminals. Chicago has evidently not learned that such treatment is contrary to the best usage among alienists, that it partakes of medieval mummery that has been discarded almost everywhere but there. And pondering the judicious, delicate and diplomatic treatment regarded as necessary if persons in the first stages of insanity are not to become permanently deranged, one recalls the shocking condition in which Miss Henrichsen, a state inspector of jails, found Chicago's police stations and particularly their cellrooms not many months ago.

Mrs. Trevor's case was not an unusual one. Often persons are put in cells and have to stay in those forbidden surroundings for hours before the machinery of the city slowly grinds its way to their relief, to their release from this little hades. It may be hours before "the wagon," the official police conveyance, is found available to send this suffering person to the psychopathic hospital, where he may have a clean bed and a sort of attention that should have been vouchsafed from the start.

Dr. Clare Seippel, one of Chicago's physician's assistants, to whom such cases are referred by the police and who examines them as soon as he can get to them, agrees with other alienists that the early periods of insanity are most critical so far as turning the tide one way or the other is concerned. "In most of these cases," Dr. Seippel says, "the patient suffers from hallucinations of persecution. Put him in a cell and he imagines that the electric light wires are being rigged up for his electrocution, that the drinking water is poisoned or something of that sort. Surroundings in police station cells almost certainly aggravate that mental condition. They often become violent as a result."

The police do not know how to treat them. They are not equipped for such treatment. The treatment they are prone to use is likely in many instances to further the mental illness. It is the city physician's province to examine the patient in his police cell, fill out a blank certificate to that effect and arrange thus with the county judge to have the patient transferred to the psychopathic hospital, pending recovery or commitment to a state or private institution.

The Chicago psychopathic hospital, it is to be remembered in order to get the point of the story, is a Cook county institution. It is an institution in which the city may take a certain pride, because it makes a long step in advance of the treatment and handling of insane persons. It is only within recent years that psychopathic hospitals, equipped with every modern device for such treatment, and manned by skilled alienists, neurologists and attendants, have become vogue in large cities.

The question which asks itself is: "Why when a person who is obviously unbalanced mentally is found wandering about the city streets must be be taken in the city police station; why is he not taken direct to the psychopathic hospital, thus avoiding the treatment of him as a criminal when he is really ill?"

Put half a package of gelatine to steep in a cupful of tepid water for ten minutes. Then add a cupful of boiling water, stir until dissolved and put it aside until it begins to thicken. Then add half a cupful of preserved ginger sliced very thin, half a cupful of the syrup, half a cupful of chopped almonds, two bananas split and cut across thin, and two cupsful of pitted cherries. Pour into a mold previously rinsed out with water and put near the ice to chill and get firm. When ready to serve turn it out on a very cold platter and send it to the table.

MANY HORSES IN WAR

The wastage of horses in war is enormous, and the problem of renewing that wastage is not easy to solve. The Russians prior to the war owned 30,000,000 horses, or about one-half of the world's supply. In parts of Western Siberia there is a horse to every human being, while in some of the Russian provinces the people rear herds of horses in place of cattle, and mare's milk takes the place of cow's milk. In other provinces there are large stud farms owned by the Crown, as well as others privately owned.

Countries which can muster a horse to every inhabitant are exceedingly rare. Some years ago the Germans collected statistics which showed that for the whole of Europe the average was about ten horses to every hundred inhabitants. Russia owned twenty-three horses to every hundred inhabitants; Austria came next with ten to the hundred, while France and Great Britain had each eight to the hundred. The United States had about twenty-eight horses to the hundred inhabitants, and Australia fifty-six. In the Argentine there were 204 horses to be set against every hundred of its people, and in Uruguay the proportion reached the extraordinary number of 370 to a hundred.

Police Very Busy

Complaints about the conduct of the wives of German soldiers who are in the field have compelled the authorities in different cities to take drastic steps in the interest of public morals. In Leipzig, Cologne, Essen and other places the police have been instructed to arrest all married women who are known to be unfaithful to their absent husbands and frequent public resorts in company of other men. All such offenders are punished severely.

Through the Overseas Club sixty eight biplanes have been presented to the Royal Flying Corps. EVERY GERMAN KNOWS BRITAIN BLOCKADES

Neutral's Sad Experience Convinced Him That the British Navy Was Very Watchful

Mr. Curtin, fresh from Germany, was particularly interesting in his explanation in a lecture on the domestic side of German life in war time. He had a neutral friend in Berlin who accepted the official view of conditions and whom he desired to convince that the growing pressure of the British blockade was not without its effect. So he arranged that his friend should share for a time the everyday life of a middle class German family living in an elegant apartment in Charlottenburg. When his friend joined the household he discovered that it was necessary to take his share of the daily task of obtaining the domestic supplies. Anna, the maid, he was told, was away in the country. She came from a rural district where food was more plentiful than in Berlin and had been sent home to forage for anything she could procure.

Bread But No Butter

In the meantime the family were doing their own foraging, and of this the neutral had to bear his part. Before the breakfast could be served bread and butter and coffee had to be hunted. He was sent out with the bread ticket and discovered how little bread could be procured and how long he must wait in the queue to procure it. There was no butter on the bread, for the allowance for the entire household was only an ounce. The coffee was bitter.

He was sent to the butcher's to ascertain whether the household's registered number was displayed in the list of those to whom any meat allowance at all could be given that day. He found that the number was displayed, but when the allowance was obtained it amounted to only half a pound and that was to last for a whole week. The household dined so often on sardines that the neutral visitor complained that he could not get the taste of the sardines out of his mouth, even on the days when there was meat for dinner.

Sardines Everywhere

He discovered that the reason was that the housewife, having too little meat to roast or boil, and having no butter or fat in which to fry it, had cooked it in what remained of the sardine oil of the day before. He went to buy eggs and found that he must bring his own paper bag to carry them home in. That was another effect of the quiet pressure of the British navy which his experiences soon enabled the neutral to realize.

INDUSTRY IN TRENCHES

Making of Amateur Jewelry a Passion With Soldiers

The monotony of life in the French, as in the British, trenches is varied by a number of small industries, turning to account bits of stone or wood or enemy cartridge cases and spent bullets in ingenious trifles for use or for mementoes. Quite the most popular manufacture is that of finger rings from the aluminum used in Greman shells—"les bagues boches" they are called. These are of many kinds, from roughly hollowed out circlets to highly polished rings decorated with delicately shaped fern leaves and hearts or inlaid with pieces of polished French copper on the top of the German metal.

The French soldiers carry this passion for making amateur jewelry into hospitals. The British nurses at L'Abbaye Royaumont tell us that most of their patients who can use their hands are busy making "les bagues boches" at every available moment after the surgeon's morning visit. They all have their little stores of German aluminium in their musettes or pockets and many have brought with them a complete outfit of files, vise, emery paper and finger blocks cut from bits of sticks. When the time comes for the "sortants" to bid good-bye to comrades and staff there is an interchange of souvenirs. Then it is that "les bagues boches" fulfil a pleasant destiny of further strengthening the entente cordiale as gifts for the fingers of British ward sisters and nurses.

Free Passages to Australia

An extraordinary case of philanthropy occurred recently in Trafalgar Square, London. A woman called together a number of boys and formed them up in ranks in the square. She gave them each a shilling and asked if any of them would like to go to Australia. Two of them volunteered to go, and she then called a policeman. She hand him some bank notes and gold, and asked him to buy clothes for the boys, so that they could start in the morning.

She arranged to meet them later in the day and then went away.

SERBIANS AS COOKS ARE WAR'S FINEST

Wonderful Pastry and Soups on Cliff Sides Facing Bulgars—Correspondent Amazed at Skill

G. Ward Price writes from the Balkan front: There are not many things that the armies of our four allies in the Balkans can teach the English, but—in my experience, at least—cooking is a matter in which we have to give them best. Our actual rations, of course, are the envy of all others. French officers covet as a luxury even the plum and apple jam which is the traditional object of the British soldier's "grouse." But when it comes to the preparation of food for the officers' mess the average of both French and Serbians leaves our own behind.

Need No Kitchens

The Serbians have two strong points in their war cuisine—their soups and their pastries. They can produce these of excellent quality in the most improbable situations. I spent a good deal of time in artillery observation posts on the Cerna. You are on a steep mountain with huge outcrops and monoliths of rock all round. Not an unruined village within miles. Hardly a tree that could be used for firewood. Three or four batteries hudding away close at hand; infantry clambering up the slopes opposite under fire; and Bulgarian soldiers visible among the rocks above.

Just as you are bringing out the inevitable sardines, and the hunk of bread from your haversack, and settling down under the lee of a rock to eat them, a Serbian officer comes along and leads you to a little sheltered cranny somewhere, and there is a tablecloth laid on a couple of planks, and a tureen of rich meat soup, followed by a sort of stew which is a national dish, and after that this wonderful pastry. Flaky, delicate, with a luscious cream inside—the sort of thing that is technically known as mille feuilles; or sometimes you have marzipan cakes or jam sandwiches with colored ornamental icing, just as if you were in Bond street instead of on a Serbian mountain in the middle of a battle.

Frowsy, But Unbeatable

"This is a flapper's tea in the firing line," I said, greedily eating a second helping. And they have pastry of this kind right up in the trenches even. There is a pastry cook to almost every battalion. They are rough looking, weather beaten fellows as a rule, with grizzly moustaches, who look as if they had spent their life curing biltong instead of making dainty sugar sweetmeats. How they achieve the effects they do on a fire made of chance scraps of wood I cannot tell, but after the war I am thinking of collecting a few of them and establishing a "Serbsky Cafe" in London. If they can do half as well in a proper kitchen as in a muddy trench we shall cut out every tea shop in town.

LYING THROUGH FILMS

No Picture of Sad, Heavy German Women Navvies Wanted

A neutral visiting London from Berlin, says: A contrast between Britain and Germany is the amount of heavy work that is being done by the women of Berlin. Here in London I notice women conductors of street cars and omnibuses; I saw a woman scavanger in a provincial town the other day; you have women ticket collectors, women operating elevators, clerking in banks. I read that women are becoming railroad porters. All these things happened in Berlin as far back as September, 1914. It is the boast of the Germans that their building constructions are going on as usual. The construction of the Nord-Süd Bahn of the underground railway, for linking up the north and south sections of Berlin, has proceeded right along, the women doing the heavy work of navvies.

The German Government is not too proud of this fact. An American kinemotograph operator, Mr. Edwards of Mr. Hearst's papers, was desirous of taking a film of these women navvies—heavy, sad looking creatures they are. The Government stepped in and suggested that while they had no objection to a personally conducted and posed picture, in which the women would no doubt smile to order, they could not permit the realities of this unwomanly task to be shown in the form of truth-telling moving pictures.

HAIG LIKED SCOTCH FOG

Conditions on Famous Rivers When British Advanced Surprise

"It is a triumph for the sons of the mist," said a Staff Officer, describing a British advance. "I know the Somme, with its bogs, forests, hills and valleys. The Ancre cuts in two the battlefield, and on each side the river the ground rises abruptly to ridges, forming veritable cliffs, beyond which the landscape undulates as far as the eye can reach.

"The day is preceded by thick mist, which lifts for a few hours and falls again in the early afternoon. Haig being Scotch, mists have no secrets for him. That, I daresay, is one reason why he chose the foggy hours of early morning for the attack. He took advantage of the early haze to creep up to the German positions and surprise the enemy. Our big guns and gas ejectors had been at work for forty-eight hours on end when our men at the break of day crawled forward under cover of the morning vapors and rushed the enemy's lines.

Big Dam in Egypt

The Assouan dam and other irrigation works in Egypt have cost about $23,000,000, but the increase in the value of land in middle and lower Egypt and the Fayoum provinces has been from $955,000,000 to $2,440,000,000. The total rent of this land has risen from $82,000,000 to $190,000,000.

The "fetch your own loaf and save a halfpenny" system was adopted by many South London bakers.

SOLDIER-MARINES ON BELGIAN FRONT

Exciting Type of Warfare by Night Near North Sea—Keeping Huns Worried

There are some thousands of soldiers in the gallant little Belgium army holding that corner of their unhappy kingdom still untrod by German foot who answer Kipling's description of the marine, they are soldiers and sailors too. How these Belgian infantrymen fight in boats at night is one of many strange stories of the war, wrote an appreciative Englishman. For two years most of the Belgian front was under water, the barrier the Belgian flung across the German path in the first year of war by opening the dikes. On one side of the water are the Belgian trenches, on the other side the German. There are miles and miles of flooded, sodden country with here and there a village shelled to rubble, one of the most desolate regions of the whole desolate western front.

By day all is quiet on those lowlands except for the occasional crack of the sniper's rifle or the rumble of the usual bombardment. But when night falls there begins exciting, touch and go work in the dark between the trenches on No Man's Sea. For considerable stretches the water is nearly a mile wide. Just at its edge little boats lie hidden under the Belgian trenches. In the darkness the Belgian infantrymen steal down to them and now become marines, set forth on patrol.

With Bombs or Knives

It needs not only daring and coolness, but some special training to do this hazardous work. The men use padded or muffled oars, sometimes punt poles; sometimes they lie flat in the bottom of the boat and paddle with their hands. They are armed with bombs, sometimes with long knives. Creeping silently close to the German shore, to see what the enemy is up to over there, is a risky undertaking. Any moment a star shell may flood the water with light and reveal the little boat and its crew to watching marksmen, and through the night machine guns sporadically spray the water near the German trenches on the chance of hitting something unseen. Sometimes there are mines.

Patrol Meets Patrol

The risk of all these things is nothing to the thrill of meeting a German patrol boat. Hearing the strokes of a punt pole the Belgians crouch tensely, the safety pins removed from their bombs, until the German craft is almost upon them. Then the bombs are hurled, and in the racking roar that follows the Belgians slip away as silently as they came.

The strangest part of this strange warfare is that getting back to their own shore after such fights is comparatively without danger if there are no star shells. The Germans in their trenches are afraid of hitting their own boat if they fire, and so are the Belgians, for neither side knows which boat threw the bomb, which boat was hit.

Rolled Sandwiches

Use only fresh, warm bread, cut with a thin, sharp knife and spread with a silver knife, using butter that has been creamed. Any sweet or savory may serve for filling, the crustless slices being rolled and tied at once.

Defying Moths

When putting away woollen clothes it is a good idea to pin each suit or dress carefully in a separate newspaper. If moths should get into the closet or trunk where the clothes are put away the papers will protect the garments from being eaten.

Cream of Beef

Cook a cup of dried beef in two cups of milk. When boiling add a heaping tablespoon of flour dissolved in a little water. Just before serving add a little butter, pepper and salt.

BEES GOOD FOR FRUIT

Proved By An Exhaustive Investigation in Italy

A committee appointed in Italy to study if bees are injurious to fruit has reported that bees, from their instincts, the conformation, function and movements of their mandibles, as well as from the shape and consistency of the other mouthparts, cannot perforate the skin of fruit, and it is only incidentally that they lick and suck the juice exuding from fruits which have been injured by other natural causes. The injuries to orchards and vineyards sometimes attributed to bees are due to poultry, wild birds, wind and hail, and most frequently to hornets, wasps, vine-moths, and other insects. The destruction of hornets and wasps is recommended; it is easily effected, because their nests can be found without difficulty.

Bees do not injure grapes or other fruit even indirectly; on the contrary, they are beneficial to them, either by bringing about the cross-pollination of the flowers, and hence the setting of the fruit, or any promoting the desiccation of damaged fruits from which they absorb the juice and pulp, thus preventing fermentation and rot extending to sound individuals (this is especially the case with grapes).

The orchards and vineyards frequented by bees give the most constant crops; the hive is a very useful, and sometimes a necessary addition to the orchard. In the interests of public economy, agriculturists are strongly advised no longer to entertain any suspicion as to the harmful nature of bees, and, wherever possible, to associate apiculture and agricultural enterprise.

HANDLING YOUNG TREES

Summer Pruning Good, But Not For Mature Bearers

An expert horticulturist writes: With young trees we should do very little winter pruning, and that we should direct the growth largely by summer pruning. The work to be most effective should be done a little each year, and at just about the time the tree completes its annual growth, which in this section is about the first week in July. If done too early it will defeat its aim and produce a strong growth of shoots. If done too late it forces out a soft growth which is likely to be winter killed.

The object of the work at first should be to direct the growth and later to induce fruitfulness. Only strong growing trees should be pruned during the growing season, remembering that it is a devitalizing operation and may easily be overdone. With regard to bearing apple trees the necessity for summer pruning is less pronounced if not entirely eliminated. Since our mature trees tend to overbear, there is no necessity for inducing fruitfulness, and winter pruning would therefore be the most logical practice.

Printers' Errors

Newspaper compositors and men who edit copy, no matter how eagle-eyed they may be, sometimes allow errors to get by that are either laughable or humiliating. A big daily in reporting a political meeting, said that the vast audience rent the air with their snouts. Another paper reported that the propeller Alaska was leaving port with a cargo of 40,000 bushels of cats. A Buffalo paper, in describing the scene when Roosevelt took the oath of office as President, said it was a spectacle never to be forgotten when Roosevelt, before the Chief Justice of Supreme Court, and a few witnesses took his simple bath.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

MAKE THE BEST OF IT

A wise man never grumbles. No amount of grumbling will ever turn a rainy day into a sunny one, and the grumbler is simply wasting much needed energy. None of us escape disagreeable situations, and even the most prudent man must be prepared to have his plans miscarry, his allies fail him, his calculations be turned upside down. What shall we do in such cases? The good man, if a wise man, will make the best of it. Whether we are to blame or not, whether we recognize the hand of an enemy or the blundering of a friend, it is foolish to make the bad worse by our complaints, or to refuse to see the visible bit of blue sky simply because it is very small. Whenever we face a difficult situation we should make the best of it. Even that may not be very good, but it is a great deal better than the worst, and it sometimes happens that in the most unlovely places we find the most beautiful flowers.—Christian Guardian.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, Aug. 15.—The continued dry weather is materially affecting the late crops, and the farmers make the statement that unless rain soon comes, the root crop will be a failure.

Mr. George Buchanan of Havelock died as the result of an operation following a severe bruise of the spine caused by falling from a scaffold a few weeks ago. Deceased was taken to a Toronto hospital last week and in spite of all that medical skill could do passed away on Saturday evening. The funeral was held from his late residence on Tuesday afternoon and was well attended. There remains to mourn his loss, besides his widow, several sons and daughters who have the sympathy of a large circle of friends in their sad bereavement. Mr. Buchanan was a son-in-law of Mrs. J. Carter, Hastings.

An accident which might have had serious results occurred here on Friday last when the scaffold which supported a large water tank belonging to Mr. Charles Plant, gave way and crumbled to the ground. Fortunately no one was near at the time, and nothing of a serious nature followed. However, Mr. Plant will be at considerable expense for repairs.

The regular monthly meeting of the I.O.D.E. was held on Friday afternoon when important business matters were discussed and disposed of.

A large party of excursionists passed through here, per steamer Stoney Lake, on Wednesday last and proceeded to Healy Falls. A merry crowd was on board.

A slight blaze discovered in the bridge here recently, caused considerable alarm, but was extinguished before much damage was done. It was supposed to have originated from a burning match let fall by some one smoking.

The steamer Geneva carried a large crowd to Healy Falls on Thursday last when a pleasant day was spent by those who took advantage of the trip.

One evening during the week, an exciting runaway took place when a horse, driven by Mr. J. Warner, took fright and bolted to the side of the road, upsetting the buggy and throwing the occupants out with great force. Master Wilbert Simpson was picked up in an unconscious condition and carried to the doctor's office where he was treated for an ugly gash over the eye. He is, however, around again, apparently none the worse. The buggy, a new one, was completely destroyed.

A very successful lawn social was held at Bethel on Thursday evening and although the weather was rather unfavorable quite a crowd gathered and a good sum realized.

Deceased, who had reached her 87th year, was in her usual health on retiring on Saturday night, but about 3 o'clock roused the inmates by saying she was not well. The doctor was called but she only lasted a few hours. She is survived by several sons and daughters who mourn the loss of a most unselfish and loving mother and to whom universal sympathy is extended.

NURSERY NOTES.

Small Points About Proper Care of the Baby.

Try laying the baby on a bed or table while you wash him. It is easier for you and better for the baby, too, as he feels the unsteadiness of your lap and wriggles accordingly.

Did you know that all white walls and woodwork are bad for the nursery? It is declared by scientists that white reflects too much light for the baby's eyes. Try gray or light tan.

A baby basket can be made from a medium sized laundry basket. Give it two coats of enamel on the outside and wad it inside with cotton batting. Cover with a blue or white satin and dotted swiss or point d'esprit.

A pretty way to quilt the baby's wee comforter is to tie it with baby ribbons through the points to be tacked, using the bow of the ribbon for the center of an embroidered wild rose or forget me not.

It is a good plan to remember that when making any of the small garments out of white flannel future shrinking can be avoided by pressing the flannel with a wet cloth before making it up and lining it.

Laundering of wee clothes is an important detail of nursery regime. Nothing but pure white soaps should be used. Everything pertaining to a baby's clothes should be thoroughly rinsed, especially diapers. Boiling, sunshine and fresh air are all sterilizers.

A Call to Can.

In sending out instructions to the conservation chairman of each state in the Union Mrs. J. D. Sherman, chairman of the conservation department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in her call to organize said:

"It is inexcusable negligence at this time for women not to inform themselves concerning the various phases of food conservation as it affects the individual, the community, the nation and our allies.

"One of the greatest present needs is scientific direction in food nutrition and food economy. Thousands of women are eager to be thrifty, to use their resources wisely, but they do not know how. Sane, practical home economics instruction is greatly needed." —National Emergency Food Garden Commission.

POWER OF THE PRESS.

Must Help to Bind the British Empire More Closely Together.

The views expressed by the Ministers from the various British Dominions on the duties and responsibilities of the press, at a luncheon given in their honor in London, by the Empire Press Union during the War Conference may not have contained any new or striking statements. They were, however, noteworthy for the importance the speakers manifestly attached to the part which the press is capable of playing in bringing about the realization of those ideals at which the Empire is aiming. This was particularly noticeable in the speech made by one of the Indian delegates, Sir James Meston, Lieutenant-Governor of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh. He earnestly hoped, he said, that, when peace had been re-established, measures would be adopted to enlighten the other parts of the Empire as to what India was really like, and what she was capable of in the future. He would like to see a joint delegation consisting of British statesmen, representatives of all the Dominions, and delegates from the Empire Press Union, visiting India for this purpose.

The same desire to co-operate with the press, as fully as possible, was noticeable in the other speeches, as was also a welcome degree of understanding of just what was needed. Thus, Sir Robert Borden declared that, speaking for Canada, he could say that she was ready to do her utmost, by means of improved transport and intercommunication, to draw closer together the bonds of union between the Mother Country and the Dominions, and between the Dominions themselves; whilst Mr. Massey, speaking for New Zealand, dwelt upon the need for better communication between the Mother Country and the Dominions in the transportation, mail, and cable service.

Perhaps the most important points brought out were those which dealt with the need for a fuller intercommunion between the Dominions themselves, and for a greater effort on the part of the Dominions to understand and appreciate India. India has deserved well of the Empire. She has given freely of all she had in the present struggle, and that without even a hint at terms. Indians have fought side by side with men from Australia, Canada, and South Africa, and it is impossible that this comradeship has not done something to lessen the prejudices which these Dominions entertained for the Indian before the war. It may not be possible for such improved views to take the form of an immediate change in policy in regard to such matters as immigration; but it probably will secure, at once, that more considerate treatment for Indians to which India, not unnaturally, attaches great importance. As Sir James Meston fully recognized, in bringing about this very desirable change of heart, the press can do much by being at pains, as he put it, "to enlighten the other parts of the Empire as to what India is really like."

An Historic Dinner.

Had the times been less serious, the jubilee of Canadian Confederation would have been marked by the great celebrations in London, England. The Dominion Day dinner used to be one of the most interesting functions of the early London season. It was first held in 1888, when there was a galaxy of Canadian legal talent in England in connection with the famous appeal of the Privy Council over the extent of the radius of Ontario Province. The idea occurred to Donald MacMaster, that Canada's coming of age should be observed with a dinner. Those present included McLeod Stewart, Mayor of Ottawa, in the chair; Lord Knutsford, Lord Lansdowne, Sir Charles Tupper, Hon. Oliver Mowat, Sir Adam Wilson, Hon. W. E. Sandford, A. Staveley Hill, Dalton McCarthy, George Attwood, Peter Redpath, J. C. Colmer, and A. Dickson Patterson. In the course of his speech, Dalton McCarthy said he would claim that the colony from which he came was no longer to be classed merely as a colony, but declared that it was growing into a great nation. They desired to be admitted to a fair share of the responsibilities of the Empire. Lord Knutsford, the Colonial Secretary, replied that with reference to Imperial Federation, any proposals must come from the Dominions themselves.

Canadian Casualties.

On June 22 there were 7,271 invalided members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force under the care of the Military Hospitals Commission in Canada, according to figures received from the Commission's headquarters in Ottawa. The latest returns from the Old Country show a decrease of 415 between June 1 and June 8. Of the 7,271 in Canada, 5,949 are convalescents; 884 are in sanatoria for tuberculosis, and the remainder are in other institutions, chiefly general hospitals. The Canadians invalided in the United Kingdom on June 8 numbered 22,067. Of these 10,941 were in Canadian hospitals, as against 10,881 on June 1. In the same period the number of Canadians in "British," or non-Canadian hospitals fell from 11,525 to 11,050. The number in sanatoria for tuberculosis, 76, was unchanged.

Light Craft.

The Canadian canoe, which for lightness, carrying - power, seaworthiness, and ease of propulsion has no rival, was an invention of the North American Indians, whose birch-bark craft was for a long period the swiftest boat propelled by man's muscles; just as the native catamaran is the only vessel that can slide over the terrible surf that dashes on the coasts of Madras and Brazil.

BOWSER CONSENTS TO SHOW WHAT HE CAN DO ON ROLLER SKATES

Doesn't Want the Prize But He'll Tear off a Few Pigeon Wings and Things to Prove Who's Who at the Rink---It Looked Easy Until Time Came to Make Good.

As a rule Mr. Bowser sits down after dinner to his newspaper and cigar for an hour or so, but the other evening he made ready to go out.

"Is it the club?" queried Mrs. Bowser.

"I may go around to the club," he answered evasively.

"Perhaps there's a ward caucus or something?"

"Yes, mebbe."

Mrs. Bowser didn't press the subject, and after an interval of five minutes Mr. Bowser turned to her.

"I'll tell you where I'm going. I'm going up to Roller hall with Barnes. He's been at me for a month to go with him some night, and I've finally consented. He wants me to show him a trick or two."

"A trick or two about what?"

"In roller skating. He's got it bad, you know. He's been out every night since the hall was opened."

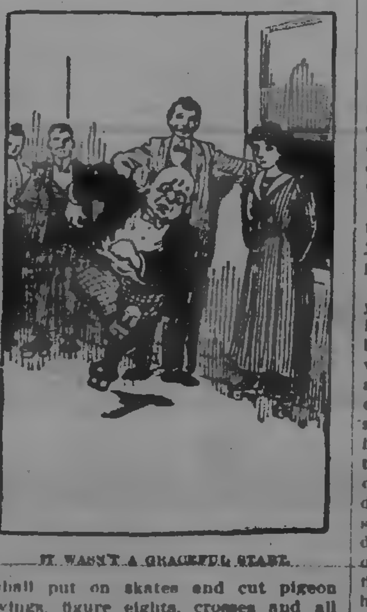
"But you—you don't know anything about skating," protested Mrs. Bowser.

Won't Argue the Question.

"Excuse me, madam," replied Mr. Bowser as he drew himself up, "but I beg to dispute with you. I don't say that I have had any great practice, but I've looked into the theory carefully, and I think I can show Barnes and all the rest of 'em a few wrinkles."

"Are you going to take an ambulance and a surgeon along?"

"That will do, Mrs. Bowser. You'd oppose me, of course, but don't try to be funny. I am going to the hall. I shall put on skates and cut pigeon wings, figure eights, crosses and all sorts of scrolls. It will not only be an outing for me, but will take the stiffness out of that left knee. You needn't sit up for me."



IT WASN'T A GRACEFUL START.

"If you are badly injured I suppose they will take you to the hospital and notify me?" observed Mrs. Bowser as Barnes rang the doorbell.

Mr. Bowser choked back a hot reply and passed out. Mrs. Bowser got out a roll of plaster and placed it in the hall.

"Watch Me!" Says Mr. Bowser.

As a boy Mr. Bowser had "shot the ice skate" to some extent, and he had confidence that the lapse of thirty years would make no difference in his curlycuing about. That confidence grew larger and more liberal every minute as he journeyed along with Barnes, and he was not yet halfway to the park when he gleefully and confidentially observed:

"I'm not after a prize for fancy skating, but I think I'll open the eyes of the crowd a little before I'm through. I'll play off at first, but you watch my zigzags when I get down to business. I'm pretty heavy for a swan or a gazelle, but I think I can cut a few dodges. Just a few."

It was a fine night, and the rink was crowded. It was not until Mr. Bowser saw the jam that he felt any loss of confidence. Most of the skaters were young people, and it suddenly occurred to him that he might have grown a little heavy. He was wondering if he couldn't work that left knee off on Barnes as an excuse when a bad faced young man who was looking on as a spectator turned and said:

"Don't yer put 'em on, old man."

"What do you mean, sir?" demanded Mr. Bowser.

"Don't put on dem skates. Yer too fat and loggy. Yer might roll downhill in a bar'l, but yer can't cut no pigeon wings on dis floor!"

Warning Only Spurs Him On.

Mr. Bowser got mad all over, and from that minute his determination was fixed. He would skim that floor as the gull skims the sea, only with a good deal more grace, and after the skimming act was over he would make that bad faced young man beg his pardon for the insulting words.

"How are you going to work it?" asked Barnes as his skates were adjusted and all was ready.

"He'll work it with a flipflop and a dumdum," put in the bad faced young man. "Say, cully, when old Uncle Josh gits out dere on skates dere's goin' to be a time to beat der band. Look at the heft on him. Look at der curves on his hind legs. I wouldn't miss de sight for a hatful of coin."

Mr. Bowser was reaching out for the young man with the firm intention of wrecking his life when a policeman interfered. There were fifty people about when a start was made from the edge of the floor. It wasn't a graceful start. It was a start with a hipho and a hobble, with the left leg dragging behind. The crowd decided that it was a bluff by a professional skater, and the policeman called out:

"Our Uncle Eli has got a trick up his sleeve!"

The Cynosure of All Eyes.

"Give in, old man, and cut de pigeon wing!" yelled a third.

Mr. Bowser would have given a million dollars in cash, a brick house and a yoke of oxen to have been toasting his toes at his own fireside just then, but he was in for it and must carry it through. As he wobbled around on the floor he tried to remember how he used to start in to cut a Roman scroll, but memory failed him. The shouting continued, but there was nothing encouraging. He finally determined to get his feet together and make a circle of the room to drive the weakness out of his knees, and then the end came. At his first move his heels shot forward, his body dangled in space for an instant, and then he came down with a crash and a concussion. The concussion took place when the back of his head hit the floor, and it was just as well for his peace of mind that he lost consciousness for the next sixty seconds and didn't hear what was said. When he came to he had been dragged to the door, the skates were removed, and the policeman was saying:

"Now, old man, if you've any home to go to you'd better git! Your line is jumping over eight horses and an elephant, and you should stick to it."

"It was dis way," said the bad faced young man, who had cautioned old Mr. Bowser in the beginning. "We was a happy crowd here and all was going well, when dis old rooster comes along and begins his brag as how he kin crisscross and flipflop and razzle-dazzle. He blows so much dat we give him a show. De fust ting he does is to bump into Jimmy de Kid. Den he caroms against Foxy Doles, knocks de heels from under two females and skeers de life out'n four innocent children. We t'ought he was only hilarious, but when he tried de grand flipflop and lost his legs and got up with his ears flappin' we seen dat he was only a hill on wheels. As many of dis crowd as favors giving him de grand chuck will hold up de right hand."

Wants to Know How It Happened.

Most of the hands went up, but the policeman interfered and again advised Mr. Bowser to cultivate the acquaintance of his fireside without unnecessary delay.

Mr. Barnes said he'd go home with him, but Mr. Bowser glared at him and made threatening gestures. Then Mr. Bowser said he was sorry about the crash and the collision and asked how it happened, but Mr. Barnes waved him aside and left the hall alone. There were fourteen different aches in his back, and his head seemed to be four times too large and full of wheels but he wouldn't take a hack. It was an hour before he reached home. Mrs. Bowser was still up, and she met him at the door. One look at him told the story.

"Woman"— he began as he held on to a peg of the hall tree with one hand, but she stopped him with a gesture. Then she gently deposited him on the lounge and said:

"You evidently fell out of a tree. Just lie quiet and I will do all I can. It may take years to reduce this bump on your head, and I notice that you are lop shouldered and have one leg twisted out of shape, but don't worry. It's all in the pigeon wings, you know."

It Helps a Lot.

Eve, for the first time in their married life, was telling Adam just what she thought of him.

Give each of Your Children a War Savings Certificate.

LET them feel that they are Canada's partners — that they have each a definite share in the stern struggle—the certain victory—and the free and glorious future.

Encourage them to save and buy Certificates themselves! You'll be developing their patriotism, their thrift and their business sense—for Canadian War Savings Certificates offer absolute security and excellent interest return. More important still, you will be guaranteeing their future, for every dollar lent to Canada helps win the war.

For each $21.50, $43 or $86 lent now, the Government issues a Certificate, payable in three years, for $25, $50 or $100. This means that interest is added at over 5% per annum. Certificates may be purchased at any Bank or Money Order Post Office.

For the sake of Canada and your children, save and invest in War Savings Certificates.

Board of Health Call Attention to Risk of Contagion From This Source---More Salary for Matron and Nurse at the Isolation Hospital.

Garbage collection, milk tests, and arranging for a new labratory for the Sanitary Inspector and Medical Health Officer were the chief subjects discussed at the meeting of the Peterborough Board of Health last night. The members present were Ald. Duncan (chairman), Ald. Saunders, A. Murty, Dr. Amys and Inspector Stapleton.

After the usual routine of reading and approving of the mminutes had been attended to the communications were read.

The following statement of the expenditures of Queen Mary Hospital was received from the City Treasurer:

No Delegation.

The Canadian Health Association of the Dominion will hold a convention in Ottawa next month and they asked that the city be represented at the conference.

In accordance with the views of the city council in other matters Ald Duncan was opposed to sending delegations to conventions at this time. The letter was placed on the received file for reference in years to come.

Salaries Raised.

At the June meeting of the Board Miss Reid, the acting matron of the Queen Mary Hospital, made application for an increase in salary for herself and for Nurse Spears.

Ald. Saunders was of the opinion that both of the ladies were entitled to an increase as the nurses at other places had been all granted greater remuneration. He moved that Miss Reid be given an increase of $100.00 per year and that Miss Spears be granted an increase of $5.00 per month, both increases to date from July 1st.

Mr. Murty agreed with the idea of the South Ward Alderman and seconded the motion which carried unanimously.

Bad Wrapping.

Sanitary Inspector Stapleton stated that complaints had been made to him regarding grocers wrapping bread in old newspapers.

Dr. Amys stated that the practise was a dangerous one and should be stopped. The papers came from dwelling houses and were not sanitary. If the papers were all from the one house that was known to be free from disease of any kind it would not be so bad but newspaper wrapping should be discouraged and the people warned of the danger.

Several of the members thought that it would be apt to raise the price of bread to the poorer people.

The matter was left with the M. O. H. and the Sanitary Inspector.

New Labratory.

The attention of the Board was drawn to the fact that the Utilities Commission were not using the room formerly used for water tests and a resolution asking the City Trust to give it over to the Board was passed as well as a resolution that a list of the necessary apparatus to equip the room be sent in.

Keeping Pigs.

Several applications for permission to keep pigs in the city limits were received but the matter was left in the hands of the Sanitary Inspector and the M.O.H. to deal with as they saw fit.

Ald. Saunders and the Chairman thought that in view of the very high price of meats that a little leniency should be shown to persons who had a good place to raise a pig or two so long as no objection was offered by neighbors or nuisance caused.

Dr. Amys pointed out the great danger from flies. A pig pen was a great breeding place for flies.

TRIAL ORDER SOLICITED

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

COMPANY NAMED MARKEY FOR CONCILIATION BOARD

The G.N.W. Telegraphers are waiting patiently for developments when, if satisfactory progress is not made towards the board of conciliation, they have threatened to "walk."

Mr. G. E. Perry states that the company have now nominated their representative on the board of conciliation, and this will be submitted to the government. Their choice is Fred H. Markey, of Montreal, who served on the G.N.W. telegraphers' board in 1911.

WILL RELEASE PRISONERS

Ottawa, Aug. 15.—In response to requests from various parts of the country as to whether men serving terms in jail for minor offences would be released on parole to go to work in the harvest fields of the west, officials of the Department of Justice announced that sympathetic consideration would be given to applications for parole in such cases.

WILL INVESTIGATE

Assistant Fire Marshal Geo. F. Lewis, of Toronto, will go to Strathroy to investigate the fire at the Dominion Canners, where the damage is said to have exceeded $175,000. He will also investigate the fire at the Woodburn Mining Company, where the damage amounted to $42,500.

Another Danger Threatens Potatoes

One Resident Reports That New Potatoes In Hills Are Sprouting.

A resident in the South Ward who has a large plot of land planted with potatoes reports that the new tubers in the hills are sprouting, sending up shoots which develop leaves just as the seed did. He has furnished The Review with a sample of the phenomenon, a fine specimen of the Irish Cobbler with a sprout over eight inches long.

This is the same amateur gardener who a few weeks ago was the first to notice and report a blight in the growing potatoes, his discovery resulting in prompt preventative es on the part of the Depart- Agriculture.

HARVESTERS! LOOK!

36,000 farm laborers are wanted in the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, for the harvesting of the crop.

The Canadian Northern Railway will operate the first excursion trains for the West, leaving Toronto Union Depot at 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. August 21st and 10 p.m. August 30th, and running through solid to Winnipeg.

The equipment will consist of electric lighted colonist cars, lunch counter cars, and in addition, the Railway will continue their last year's innovation of keeping a special car for the accommodation of single women and families, and of placing it in the train where the occupants will be separated from the other passengers.

The territory served by the Canadian Northern lines offers the widest choice of employment with high wages, but regardless of where you locate, remember we give you the best service to Winnipeg, where you will repurchase to final destination, no matter on what line it may be.

For leaflet showing special train service, with dates, number of men required at various points and other information, apply to Thos. Mark, Town Agent, or General Passenger Department, Canadian Northern Railway, Toronto.

MAJOR-GENERAL LIPSETT.

Able Officer Commands Third Division of C. E. F.

Louis James Lipsett was a major when the war started; he is now a major-general in command of the Third Canadian Division, which includes the Princess Patricias, the Royal Canadian Regiment, several battalions of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, the 42nd Royal Highlanders of Canada, the 49th (Edmonton) Battalion, and other Canadian units which fought so gallantly at St. Eloi and Sanctuary Wood.

Major-General Lipsett's rapid promotion on the battlefield testifies to his ability. In peace times it took him from 1901 to 1913, twelve years, to rise from the rank of captain to the rank of major, one step. In two years of wartime he won his way up from major to major-general, several steps. When Canada sent her first contingent to the front he was given charge of a thousand men; he now commands over twenty thousand of the best fighters in the Canadian army. He is an Irishman, which accounts for much.

Born on the 15th June, 1874, he entered the regular British army at the age of twenty, when he was granted a commission in the Royal Irish Regiment. He must have been a born soldier, for while his promotions came slowly at first, his career has been meteoric since he got in the real test—the big war. He got a thorough grounding in military matters at the various schools in Britain, and practical experience on active service in India also. He is a graduate of the Staff College, and among his other achievements he qualified as an interpreter in modern languages. He saw fighting in the operations on the north-west frontier of India in 1897-98, and in the operations on the Samana. In South Africa he was for some years deputy assistant adjutant and quartermaster-general. Upon returning to England he became A.D.C. to the major-general of the Second Division, Aldershot Army Corps, and later filled the same position with the army command at Aldershot, England's great military centre.

General Lipsett came to Canada on July 27, 1911, as general staff officer of the Canadian Militia in the Prairie Provinces, and when war broke out he was given command at Valcartier of the 90th Winnipeg Rifles (the "Little Black Devils") and a company of soldiers from the Port Arthur-Fort William district. At Valcartier he soon won the confidence not only of his superior officers but also of the men under him. Even then he was considered one of the most brilliant officers in the Canadian army, and the opinions formed of him by others at that time were soon confirmed after he reached the war zone with his battalion. Promotions and honors came rapidly. For his distinguished services in the second battle of Ypres the King conferred upon him the V.M.G., and he was promoted to the rank of Brigadier-General in command of four battalions. It is officially recorded that at St. Julien, when the Canadians saved the day, his battalion, the 8th, held the extreme left of the brigade position "at the most critical moment." They stood their ground against German hordes and German gas from Thursday afternoon until Sunday afternoon, and the Winnipeg men, for their bravery, were singled out for special mention by the Canadian Eyewitness. One of the men in the ranks won the Victoria Cross in that battle. On the Friday morning the battalion was expelled from the trenches by an emission of poisonous gas, but recovered in three-quarters of an hour, and in a counter-attack retook the trenches and bayonetted the enemy. After the Third (Highland) Brigade had been compelled to retire, Colonel Lipsett held his position, though his left was "in the air," until two British regiments, the Durhams and Hampshires, filled the gap.

Colonel Lipsett was one of the Canadian officers who later in 1916 introduced something new on the western front, namely, the trench raid, which was later adopted by the British, French, and other armies. He played a big part in the Canadian victory at Observatory Ridge and Sanctuary Wood in June of 1916, and when Major-General M. S. Mercer of Toronto was killed in action during the progress of that fierce battle he succeeded to the position of general officer commanding the Third Division.

Canadians in United States.

The American census shows that there are 1,195,000 Canadians living in the United States, many of whom are, of course, naturalised sons of Uncle Sam. It will be seen that the Canadian-born population of the Republic is to a great extent centred in three States, namely, New York, Massachusetts, and Michigan. In Southern States the foreign population is so small that it does not figure in the table:

Massachusetts	300,000
Michigan	190,000
New York	125,000
Maine	75,000
New Hampshire	55,000
Illinois	50,000
California	50,000
Rhode Island	40,000
Minnesota	40,000
Washington	37,000
Connecticut	25,000
Vermont	26,000
Wisconsin	25,000
Ohio	25,000
North Dakota	25,000
Pennsylvania	20,000
Montana	20,000
Oregon	15,000
Iowa	10,000
Colorado	10,000
New Jersey	10,000
Missouri	5,000
Nebraska	5,000
Kansas	5,000
South Dakota	3,000
Indiana	2,000

Total	1,195,000

A Straight Line.

TO THE BOYS OF ONTARIO WHO ARE WORKING ON FARMS.

In Washington the other day, Hoover, of Belgium, now the Food Controller of the United States, asked me to carry a challenge to the boys of Canada.

There are about as many boys in the United States and Canada as in the Central Empires. German boys are required to spend nine months of the year in productive labor in a national effort to win the war for Germany.

Here is the challenge:—

> "Every Canadian boy by voluntarily producing food for the Allies is matching some German boy."

You have already been rendering faithful service as a food producer in the "Hoeing line behind the firing line," and the nation appreciates fully your unselfish patriotic service. You might have had a pleasanter, easier summer, or made more money elsewhere. By your action, however, you have dignified boy life and ability in the eyes of the people of Canada, and they are looking to you to stay in the game to the finish.

Harvest will be upon us in a few days. All previous farm work has been to make harvest possible. If ever the country needed your help it is now at harvest time, and, although realising to the full the value of the service you have already rendered, I am joining in this appeal, because of my conviction that you are still needed, to ask you to continue your splendid service, at least until after harvest.

Yours for the Empire,
TAYLOR STATTEN.

OMAR, JUNIOR.

I sometimes think that never shines the sun
So bright as when my work is far from done;
I worry and I fret to get it through,
But by the time I do, Old Sol is gone.

The moral of this tale is this, I say:
Don't ever let your work disturb your play;
Just grasp each pleasure as it comes along,
And put your work off for some other day.

There is going to be an explosion in several teams before long, and when the dust settles you will see several heads lying around loose. The eruption is due among the Braves, Cubs, Phillies and Robins, whose owners, not unnaturally, want action for their money.

Here we had almost forgotten Red Ames, the veteran flinger of the Cardinals, who is putting them across with a vim. Years don't seem to sit very heavily on Red's broad shoulders.

Suspected witches in the Middle Ages were never watched more closely than Cicotte is being watched because of his famous shine ball. The trouble is that, even when he puts it over you can't tell it, because it comes so fast. It's certainly got the fans puzzled.

One of the most prominent members of the Worry club these days is Pat Moran. His Phillies are lower on the ladder than they have been for years, and his pitching staff is all shot to pieces, with the sole exception of Grover Cleveland Alexander, and even he can't do the work of the whole pitching section.

Grouchy Gus Says:

"There is one great field open to baseball umpires after they have ended their careers on the diamond. They are all qualified to become professors of philosophy at our leading universities.

One of the most sensational players developed this season is Shortstop Risberg of the White Sox. If that team makes the world's series it will be largely due to his excellent playing, and Charley Comiskey admits it. Risberg was picked up on the coast last year, and came to the White Sox as a gamble. At first he was unsteady and couldn't hit, but Comiskey didn't let that bother him. He just kept him on the team and developed him. He has turned out to be one of the best throwers, and the way he covers ground is a marvel.

Tom King, Classic Figure of the Ring.

One of the classic figures of the latter period of the prize ring was Tom King, the champion of England in the early 60's, and the hero of that immortal international battle with John C. Heenan, the Irish-American giant, half a century ago. King was born in London eighty-two years ago today, August 11, 1836, and in his youth he was a sailor and dock laborer. King was a quiet, handsome, intelligent lad, and spent his evenings in study. He took to the fighting game in self-defence, as the bullies among the dock laborers imagined that he was what we would today call a mollycoddle. King quickly proved that he was no such thing, and his skill with his fists attracted the attention of old Jem Ward, the ex-champion, who took King under his wing. Prior to 1860, when Tom Sayers retired from the ring, after his unsatisfactory battle with John C. Heenan, King had fought and won a number of bouts, and with the championship left vacant, he challenged Jem Mace to fight for the belt. Mace was the victor in their first engagement, but in a return match King had the best of the argument and was hailed as champion. A little later he retired from the game and returned the belt, but when in 1863 Heenan issued a shallenge to fight any man for the world's title and $5000, Tom accepted the defi of the big American. The encounter between Heenan and King was the last great prize-fight, properly so called, pulled off on English soil. A special train with thirty coaches and two engines carried the great crowd of fans to a field beyond Tunbridge Wells, where the ring was pitched. Many nobles and aristocrats were among the spectators. Both Heenan and King were giants, each standing over six feet, and they were trained to the minute. The tide of battle flowed back and forth, but in the fourteenth round King was thrown so violently that he was rendered insensible. By all the rules the American was the victor, but a dispute gave King much more than the legal time to recover his shattered senses. Even so, he seemed unable to get to his feet, until one of his seconds shouted in his ear, "Remember your mother! The winner's money will save her from want." That reminder galvanized King into new life, and he tottered toward his opponent. Swaying like drunken men, and barely able to stand, they fought on until at length Heenan was stretched on the turf dead to the world. It was charged by the American that Heenan had been drugged, and in the latter rounds, by all accounts, he did appear dazed and muddled. Neither King nor Heenan ever fought again. King became a bookmaker, acquired wealth, and died a rich man.

An agreement has been reached between American seamen and shipowners fixing the wage scale for sailors and firemen at $60 a month. The agreement will remain in force for one year after the war.

Although the Weekly Bulletin of the Department of Health estimates that 955 deaths were caused in New York City by the heat during the week ended August 4, it points out that the situation was worse sixteen years ago.

LOSSES TO CANADIAN ART.

A Sculptor and Poet Whose Names Will Live.

Canadian art, which ever struggles against the distractions of a workaday world, suffered two notable losses recently. Louis Philippe Hebert, the eminent French-Canadian sculptor, died at Westmount Montreal, and Arthur S. Bourinot, a poet of promise, was reported missing from his battalion at the front. Hebert's work was all but completed. Bourinot was on the threshold of a life of achievement in letters, a career which was adorned by the historical writings of his father, the late Sir John Bourinot, the distinguished Clerk of the House of Commons from 1880 until his death in 1902.

Hebert was a true child of Quebec, with the culture and garnishing that came from years of study and observation in Paris and Rome. His father was a farmer, while he himself worked for a time on a Massachusetts farm, and later sold fruit trees. His artistic talent early found outlet in wood carving, and he made many religious images for Roman Catholic churches of his Province. When he took to the clay, his fondness for Canadian history was expressed in the leading monuments erected in Canada for a generation. First came the monument to General De Salaberry erected at Chambly, Quebec, to be followed by a statue of Sir George E. Cartier, on Parliament Hill, Ottawa. Across the square was later erected the memorial for Sir John A. Macdonald, also by Hebert, while near by is one for Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. Hebert is also represented by monuments to Bishop Laval in Quebec, Joseph Howe in Halifax, Sir Leonard Tilley in St. John; Madeleine de Vercheres at Vercheres, Que.; the explorer Alexander Fraser, in New Westminster; a South African memorial in Calgary, and many others. Probably his most popular work is the monument to Maisonneuve, the founder of Montreal, in the Place d'Armes, in that city. Here Hebert's imagination and abandon are seen in their highest development. He was fond of the use of subordinate figures, and in this instance the groups of Indians and pioneers give depth and sentiment to the dashing Maisonneuve above. This is a magnificent advance upon the stilted figure of De Salaberry in the sleepy village by the Richelieu, and is the crowning illustration of the industry and temperament of the sculptor.

Arthur Bourinot was a late pupil in the Ottawa School of Canadian poetry. His slender volume of "Laurentian Lyrics" was a new flower in the garden cultivated by Archibald Lampman, Wilfred Campbell, and Duncan Campbell Scott, a garden that thrived under the shadow of the Laurentians across the valley from the capital. It is too much to expect maturity at twenty-four, but Arthur Bourinot, before he was touched by the Great Adventure, was a poet of nature and of life who promised worthy achievement. Observe the delicate fancy which marks the opening lines of the sonnet "Returning":

I came once more 'midst the Laurentian Hills,
Where love and I with laughter used to stray,
And wandered o'er green uplands where life stills
And fauns and fairies dance at dying day.
The pallid trilliums nodded fast asleep,
With pale, white faces peering through the gloom;
A sweet and subtle incense seemed to creep
Across the silence of the world's broad room.

Such a writer has a sense for the ideal and the unseen, the things of the spirit, and hosts of admirers will join in the hope that he has braved the recent peril and will yet return to his native land.—The Globe.

Smallness of Palestine.

When one thinks of the great events that have taken place in the Holy Land, the multitude of cities, villages and towns, the countless millions who have been born there and whose bones now lie in its rock-ribbed hills, the small dimensions of Palestine are almost startling. West of the Jordan, where most of the historic events took place, there are only 3,800 square miles, including all the geographical divisions now called Palestine. Including the land both east and west of the Jordan, the total area is 9,840 square miles. The length of Palestine from north to south is about 159 miles. It varies in breadth from twenty-three to eighty miles.

WHILE ASLEEP LOST FRIEND ALSO HIS ROLL

ITALIAN LABORER LOSES $195 WHEN WALTER WHITE DEPARTS.

Joe Lafave, an Italian laborer in the employ of the Standard Paving Co. at Lindsay is mourning the loss of $195, taken, it is said, by his best friend, who decamped for parts unknown Monday night. Joe and Walter White roomed across the hall from each other at the same place. They have been fast friends ever since they met some time ago and were always seen togther. The Italian managed to save up about one hundred and ninety-five dollars which he left in one of his pockets. Monday afternoon while he slept, he alleges that White came to his room and took the money from his pocket. White then hired an automobile and motored to Peterborough, leaving Lindsay about five o'clock in the afternoon. He failed to say goodbye to Joe, who claims that the parting was too sudden and unpremeditated to be healthy.

From Peterborough it is surmised that White took the train to Montreal. He is a larrigan maker by trade and lives at Fredericton, New Brunswick so may be striking back home or to some of the big factories in the eastern provinces.

Nine men, including six seamen from a Belgian Relief ship, have been arrested in New York, charged with smuggling rubber into Germany.

The Upward Trend.

A certain widow, unable to be so un modern as not to spare the rod, was wont to hire her boy to be good.

For awhile the boy was content to be good for 10 cents. The widow's resources were such that she could afford 10 cents.

Then the boy demanded a quarter.

"But, my son, 10 cents has always been enough!" the widow protested.

"Nevertheless the cost of being good has steadily gone up," the boy insisted. "Every time I am good for 10 cents I lose money."—Puck.

The Best Place.

The illustrated Bible had a strong fascination for small Geraldine. With the book open on her lap, she looked up and said:

"Mother, do folks marry in heaven?"

"The good book says they do not, Geraldine."

"Well, do they marry in—in—the other place?"

"I suppose not, my dear."

Geraldine shut the Bible.

"Then I'm going to stay right here," she said.—New York Times.

Mean Brute.

"My, my!" exclaimed Mrs. Gabb as she looked up from the newspaper. "It says here that a girl wrote her name and address on an egg and secured a husband. What do you think of that?"

"Rats!" growled Mr. Gabb. "Marriage always was a shell game."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

PARK ST. CHURCH CHOIR PICNIC

ENJOYABLE OUTING HELD TO KAWATHA ON CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Monday, Aug. 13, 1917, will be remembered by the choir as one of the most enjoyable holidays ever spent togethr. Hiawatha was the place selected for the picnic. At 9 a.m., two bus loads, about 30 people, left the church on the outward journey.

The panoramic view of the wonderful bounty, in a continuous chain of fields of wheat, oats, etc., ripe unto harvest, and the farmers, wives and helpers on the various homesteads busily garnering the golden grain was indeed alone well worth the outing. Perhaps to city eyes, unaccustomed to such views, the scenery was more noticeable, but Nature seemed to be at its zenith of loveliness.

Precisely at 12 noon the party arrived at the village and after such an invigorating journey first thoughts were of "eats." Luncheon was prepared whilst the horses were having attention after their faithful services. After the repast and general rest during which time ice cream was served, walking, boating and games were enjoyed.

The "Chief" very willingly gave permission to use the driving sheds of the church in which to rest the horses and also the use of the park for games. The delightfully cool breeze from the lake moderated the temperature of an otherwise hot day.

Special interest was taken in visiting "the store," of which Mrs. Lukes is the genial proprietress and everyone was pleased with her smiling face and courteous manner. Soon after 4 o'clock an early supper was enjoyed and at 5 p.m. prompt the return journey was started. All arrived safely back at the church at 8 p.m., everyone being enthusiastic over the splendid success of the day.

The whole programme was carried through faithfully and reflected credit on all concerned.

The Doxology and God Save the King fittingly closed the day's proceedings.

POPE'S PEACE PLAN NOT FAVORED

London, Aug. 16, (C.P.)--Premier Lloyd George announced in Parliament this afternoon that the British have captured Langemarck. Sir Douglas Haig had telegraphed twelve hundred prisoners and 5 guns were captured up to noon to-day.

"BE LOYAL TO THE SOLDIER BOYS"

THE WIN-THE-WAR COMMITTEE HAS RECEIVED THE FOLLOWING CABLE MESSAGE:

"Canadians have one common enemy—the renegade Hun. Surely Canadian ideals are high enough to unite us against him and help win the war. Be loyal and true to those dear comrades who have upheld Canada's honor in the field.

"GENERAL TURNER."

"In common with all Canadian soldiers, am most pleased with purpose and good work of the Win-the-War Convention. Strong practical support at home is great incentive to troops to continue doing well in the field and proving Canada's greatest nation builders, and convention has their hearty support.

NO DANGER OF FAMINE IN ENGLAND PREMIER TELLS PARLIAMENT

Supply of Wheat and Other Grains Far in Excess of That on Hand a Year Ago.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 16.—Lloyd George, speaking in the Commons this afternoon said this time last year the wheat in this country amounted to 51,840,000 bushels and that now it is 68,000,000 bushels. The stock of oats and barley, he declared, also was higher.

There was a full attendance of the House attracted by the promise of important speech by the Premier. There had been considerable saving in bread consumption, the Premier said, and owing to closer milling and food economy there had been an addition to wheat stock of 70,000 quarters per week. The Premier said the acreage under cultivation showed an increase of one million acres. If harvest weather was good condition of food supply would be satisfactory.

The Premier said the Government has come to the conclusion that with reasonable economy there is no chance of starving England out. In April 560,000 tons of shipping were sunk by submarines. In July 320,000, and this month there is a substantial improvement over July. The net losses since the commencement of Germany's unrestricted submarine campaign is less than 250,000 tons per month. The Admiralty plans for dealing with the submarines are increasingly successful, he said.

Artillery Fighting on Italian Front

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Rome, Aug. 16.—An official statement issued today by the Italian war department says military activity on the entire Austro-Italian front was limited to artillery fighting. Nothing important took place.

Austrian Planes Drop Explosives

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Vienna, Aug. 16.—Four tons of explosives were dropped Tuesday on the Maritime arsenal at Venice, causing a number of conflagrations, according to an official statement of the Austrian war office. Three Austrian planes are missing.

NO LOCAL CELEBRATION ON LABOR DAY THIS YEAR

Trades Council Finally Gives up Idea as Workingmen Are Putting in All Their Spare Time in Gardens.

The Trades and Labor Council delegates at their regular meeting last night finally decided to give up the idea of holding a celebration on Labor Day. The committee on arrangements that was appointed some time ago has been unable to arouse enthusiasm among the wage earners for the reason that so many of them are interested in the Greater Production Campaign and are putting in all their spare time mornings and evenings, working in their gardens. The Celebration Committee of the Greater Peterborough Association offered to cooperate but even with this assistance it was felt that the time was too short to make arrangements for a successful celebration.

It was decided to send $5 to the Labor Council of St. John, N.B., this to be devoted to a fund to defend three striking plumbers who are charged with the murder of a strike breaker and with burning the house of a master plumber. The men have already been tried twice, the jury in each case failing to agree, and are still in jail. Bail is denied them. Several of the local unions have contributed to the defense fund, the street car men making a donation of $5.

It was decided in the interests of economy to send no delegate to the next meeting of the Dominion Trades Congress at Ottawa. It seems that this matter was not clearly understood by the delegates last night and it is likely that it will be brought up again at the next meeting and that the city will be represented at labor's annual Parliament.

There was a difference of opinion as to how labor should vote on the bylaw which is to be submitted to the ratepayers on September 6 to grant the Ackerman Company a fixed assessment for ten years as an inducement to their operating a shoe factory. Some of the delegates opposed fixed assessments and bonuses on principle while others favored the bylaw. These took the stand that such a factory will give employment to a large number of skilled workmen who can be organized and so add to the local strength of union labor. No definite action followed the discussion.

ALLIES TAKE ON TROOPS OF CROWN PRINCE IN NEW DRIVE

Have Advanced Along Wide Front and French Army Surged Across River---Canadians Are Pushing Closer on Lens.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

British Front in France, Aug. 16—Forces of Entente Allies at daybreak to-day began another drive against troops of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria along a wide front from a point opposite Polygon Wood, east of Ypres to the left of the French positions on the northward. In the first onslaught the right flank of the French surged across the Steenbeke River and at the same time the left wing pushed forward correspondingly.

These meagre facts represent the total news at this hour (ten o'clock) from the zone of the new offensive with the exception that the French already have counted one hundred prisoners.

Making Progress

London, Aug. 16.—The Entente troops in Flanders attacked the German positions to-day on a wide front east and north of Ypres in Belgium. The official report says progress is being made.

Huns Counter In Vain

On the Lens front, where Canadians yesterday captured Hill 70 and made further progress in the environs of the French mining centre, all German counter attacks, the official statement adds, were repulsed.

The Paris Report

Paris, Aug. 16.—French troops in Belgium attacking early to-day in conjunction with the British on both sides of the road between Steenstraete and Dixmude, captured all their objectives and crossed the Steenbeke River, the War Office announced to-day. Further progress is being made along the river. The French made an attack on the Aisne and captured German trenches on front of one kilometre. Four German counter-attacks were repulsed.

On the Aisne front the French captured about 150 prisoners. In the attacks on this front French aviators flew very close to the ground as the infantry moved forward searching the German shelters with gunfire.

U.S. TAKES OVER GRAIN SUPPLY

MILLING INTERESTS OFFER TO SURRENDER CONTROL OF THEIR PLANTS.

Washington, Aug. 16.—With the approval of President Wilson the Food Administration announces the formation of a corporation to take over control of the country's grain supply.

Milling interests named a committee to co-operate with the Food Administration in negotiating voluntary regulations of the milling industry.

The Grain Corporation will have a capital of $50,000,000, and will be organized along the lines of the Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation. It will be managed by the grain division of the Food Administration.

BIG DECREASE IN SUB LOSSES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, Aug. 16.—A falling off in British tonnage sunk last week by mines or submarines is indicated in the weekly Admiralty statement just made public. Fourteen vessels of 1,600 tons and over were sent to the bottom, as against 21 the previous week. Two vessels of less than 1,600 tons were sunk last week, the same number reported the previous week. Three fishing boats met with disaster last week.

The Admiralty statement follows:

"Arrivals of all nationalities, 2,776.

"Sailings, 2,666.

"British merchantment sunk by mines or submarines over 1,600 tons, including one previously, 14; under 1,600 tons, including one previously, two.

"British merchantmen unsuccessfully attacked, including five previously, thirteen.

"British fishermen sunk, three."

U.S. TO FOLLOW CANADA'S LEAD

MUST RAISE FIVE MILLION MEN COL. ROOSEVELT SAYS.

New York, Aug. 16.—"Until the United States has placed five million men in the fighting line we will have no right to consider ourselves as standing level with Canada in this fight for democracy," was the declaration of Col. Roosevelt at a reception given by the Chamber of Commerce to Elihu Root, Special Commissioner to Russia. "Let us pull up abreast of our valiant cousins of the Dominion by placing American soldiers in masses on what ever front they are most needed" Col. Roosevelt continued, "and let there be no slackening of our efforts until the cause for which our allies have been fighting for three years is won beyond peradventure."

ITALIANS DROP TONS OF BOMBS

Difficult Operations Are Carried out Safely in Savar Valley.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Rome, Aug. 16.—A large squadron of Italian airplanes dropped six and a half tons of bombs Tuesday on the steel works, railway terminals and other important sites at Assling in the Savar valley, scoring numerous hits and starting several fires. All our airplanes, says the official statement, returned safely after this most daring operation which was most difficult on account of the distance covered.

VETERANS WILL BE HEARD FROM

DECIDE TO TAKE ACTIVE PART IN COMING FEDERAL ELECTION.

Winnipeg, Aug. 16.—The Army and Navy veterans of Winnipeg have taken the initiative in a move to bring about the unity of the various political factions. At a well-atended meeting last night they passed the following resolutions:

"That the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada appoint a strong committee for the purpose of waiting upon the various political parties in Manitoba, with a view to bringing about cooperation among all classes parties and creeds in order that they may unite in nominating and electing win-the-war conscriptionist candidates in the next Federal election, and that other influential bodies be requested to add their representatives to this committee."

The Veterans are determined to push this movement with all haste.

Paris, Aug. 16.—In the week ending Sunday night one French steamer over sixteen hundred tons and three of smaller size were sunk and five French vessels were unsuccessfully attacked.

POPE'S PEACE PLAN FAVORS FOE

London, Aug. 16.—The foreign office last night gave out the French text of the letter from Pope Benedict to King George, enclosing a copy of his appeal to the heads of the belligerent nations. The pontiff asks King George to hand copies of the appeal to the King of Italy, the President of France and the Presidents of the United States and twelve other countries with which the Vatican has no diplomatic relations. It has been sent direct to Russia, Belgium and Brazil.

The text of the papal peace note does not remove the adverse impression produced here by the previous publication of its summary. On the contrary it strengthens the conviction that the note is inspired by the Central Powers and the opinion is that its proposals are impossible. Editorials express much respect for the Pope and his profession of perfect impartiality but consider him unable to appreciate the matter at issue. The Times says the Allies are bound to reject this plan of settlement which proves more pro-German and more anti-Ally than the summary.

GERMANY'S BEST TROOPS FAIL IN ATTACKS ON CANADIANS

Prussian Guard Fight as They Never Fought Before to Retake Hill 70—Their Loss is Frightful.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, Aug. 16.—The taking of Hill 70 stirred the German higher command as nothing else has done on this front this year. Prince Ruprecht has made frantic efforts to recapture the lost positions and a grim battle was waged throughout the day, particularly on and around Hill 70. Ten times the enemy came on, but they seldom got close enough for fighting with the bayonet or bomb. Hour after hour these attacking troops, including the Fourth Prussian Guards, one of the elite divisions of the German Army, were subjected to a frightful concentrated fire from our artillery and machine guns. Their losses were frightful. A veteran machine gun officer tells of having had as a target for an hour and a quarter enemy reinforcements coming up in columns of fours for use in counter attacks. He said his men killed more Germans yesterday than they had seen altogether at any previous time.

A prisoner said that the ground over which his battalion had advanced was thickly strewn with dead. The seventh positions divisions which was in line when we attacked no longer exists. Their losses during the several days prior to the assault were very serious. Our guns so steadily swept their positions that ration parties refused to go up, and men in the trenches remained unfed.

The total number of prisoners is now considerably over 400. The counter-attacks ceased shortly after dark and our men slept on the ground they had won and maintained during 18 hours of constant struggle against the best of Germany's. The losses can still be spoken of as moderate, though the driving off of the counter-attacks is often more costly than the original action.

As an illustration of the confusing nature of the struggle along this part of the battle front I may refer to the experience of a colonel of an Ontario

C.P.R. IS NOT TO BLAME FOR FATALITY AT BURKETON

The Late J. F. Aiken of Toronto Had Sufficent Warning That the Train Was About to Start.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and its employees were exonerated from all blame in connection with the death of J. Forrester Aiken at Burketon. The Coroner's jury yesterday afternoon brought in a verdict to Coroner Greer a very short time after the evidence had been submitted to them for their consideration.

It will be remembered that the deceased was brought to Peterboro on Monday night, Aug. 6th, suffering from injuries received from falling off a train at Burketon. He had been up to Bobcaygeon with a few friends and was returning to Toronto. At Burketon he, with several others, went into the lunch room for a little refreshment, and while in there the train started, and in running to get aboard he fell, and the two rear cars passed over him cutting off his left arm and part of his right hand and foot. The injured man died at the hospital early the following morning, and in the afternoon a jury was empanelled and after a formal opening the inquest was adjourned until yesterday when a great mass of evidence was taken as to the facts attending the accident.

It was shown conclusively that ample warning had been given that the train was about to start not only from the employees of the railway, but from farmers and others who were on business at the station.

It appeared from the evidence that Aiken had slipped while coming out of the door of the lunch room and could not get on the step of the third car and fell while trying to get on the second last car on the train. A suggestion that was made that the employees of the company had stated that a stop of fifteen minutes would be made at the station was not borne out by the evidence, and it was further shown that the train never on any occasion stopped over six minutes there. The stop that evening was exactly six minutes according to the records of the station agent, Mr. Douglas.

Conductor Hubbel stated that he had called all aboard three times before he had handed the engineer his orders, and called "All aboard" once after that and before the train started.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY, AUG. 16, 1917

A FLAT CONTRADICTION.

The declaration of the Liberal convention to maintain "in unimpaired strength at the front the fighting forces of Canada" and at the same time endorsement of a party leader who is opposed to the only present practical means at hand of maintaining the strength of our army at the front, is contradiction which cannot be explained by any body of men in their sane senses.—Winnipeg Tribune (Liberal).

THE UNEQUAL BURDEN.

Mr. Lewis Le Barr, who was conducting a paying business in the city, enlisted with the 93rd Battalion, his son, barely 18 years old, entering the service at the same time. The father was past the military age but was employed as a tailor. When the battalion was broken up in Europe Mr. Le Barr expected to be mustered out of the service and sent home on account of his age but instead he was sent into the construction corps and has been engaged in building railroads in France ever since. Now his friends here have received word that he has been sent to Belgium presumably for trench duty. His son has been in the trenches for over a year and came through the battle of Vimy Ridge and other engagements so far unhurt.

Mr. Le Barr is 48 years old. He is working for $1.10 a day and if at home could easily earn six times that amount. In the meantime all the support his family receive from his services is about $50 a month. There are plenty of single men of military age left in Peterborough without dependents.

Under the voluntary system the burden is not evenly distributed. The willing horse bears more than his share of the load and a premium is put on a disinclination for duty. It is little wonder that the strongest advocates of conscription are to be found among the soldiers themselves and their friends at home. There are too many of the latter called to share in the sacrifices of their husbands and other relatives.

MORE SAFETY FIRST.

"The Ontario legislature got considerable criticism for passing prohibition itself, subject to popular approval in 1916, and the doubt of this popular approval will be increased if the power to pass intensive sumptuary legislation, granted by act of parliament, is used," remarks The Examiner with refreshing artlessness. Yes, the temperance question is likely to make enemies for the party that espouses it. The Examiner's party realized this always and never could get beyond a compromise with the issue. Ontario has the power to make the province bone dry. But why, reasons The Examiner, ask the Legislature to assume this responsibility? Shift it upon the broader back of Parliament even if by doing so provincial rights are ignored. There is an election in sight and if the anti-temperance faction can be aroused against the party in power that will be one point scored. Every little helps.

The Examiner is too naive to conceal its little scheme. It makes it more apparent than ever that it is interested in the temperance issue solely as a political factor.

THAT INTERNAL STRIFE.

When a Liberal newspaper feels more than usually sanctimonious or when it finds itself at a loss for an argument it bewails the fact that there is internal discord, inter-provincial strife in Canada, and sets out to fasten responsibility for this state of affairs upon the Conservative party and press.

That there is internal discord the Government press recognizes and deplores. It is not in any sense accountable for it, however. The dispute has been forced upon it by the other side. It has come, just as the war has, without seeking. To ignore the activity of the disturbing element in the nation or to temporize with the mischief makers would be as unwarranted as to submit without a murmur or an effort by way of self defense to all that the foreign enemies of the Empire are doing to undermine national peace and safety.

A QUESTION OF CIVIC PRIDE.

Kingston is not without a fare degree of civic pride. It had sufficient enterprise to put up a $15,000 fire hall and then furnish it with a motor apparatus that cost $9000. The citizens have an eye open for material advantages but when it comes to matters of culture it seems to be a different proposition.

The other day a deputation of the Four Hundred of Kingston, bristling with indignation, waited on the board of works and protested against the plan to build a small plot of ground along the side of the walk along one of the main residential thoroughfares. That is what, in advanced communities such as Peterborough, is called a boulevard.

Kingston is resolved to be up to date, it seems; and it is the intention of the City Engineer, acting on instructions, of course, to form a narrow strip of earth from the edge of the sidewalk and the deputation were very indignant about the matter as they will be required to look after the growing of grass on this boulevard.

The protest of the residents was without avail. The work as planned will be carried out and the residents will be expected to do their share. It is just possible that they are magnifying the task that lies ahead of them. Once the grass is started the rest will be easy. Keeping it trimmed will be a small matter if the experience of Peterborough householders is any criterion. There will always be an obliging owner of horses ready to pasture his animals on the boulevard and keep the grass down without cost to the man whose premises it is supposed to adorn. The small boy may make trouble—by treading on the grass but that is only one of life's trials.

This calls up the question of the care of boulevards in Peterborough. There are some who maintain that this work should be done by the city. The majority, however, are willing to accept the responsibility and are as careful of the boulevard as of their lawns. It is all a matter of taste. However some allowance must be made for the tenant who on moving into a house finds the boulevard has been neglected by his predecessor. It is no more just to ask him to make good this neglect than to repair any damage that the man before him may have wrought in the house itself. Here is a problem that must be settled by the owner and his new tenant and the city should not be required to lend a hand any more than it should be called upon to mend a hole in the kitchen roof or to fix up the plumbing.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

In the meantime the local nomination goes a-begging.

The poor old temperance issue deserves sympathy. Our contemporary is playing football with it again.

• • •

It is almost incredible that a country the size of Canada could produce such soldiers and at the same time such slackers.

• • •

Every time a Toronto man spends a day in Peterborough he goes back wondering why every city cannot purge itself of slums.

• • •

Canada has every reason to be thankful that despite the western Lauriarites there are still patriots on both sides of politics.

Pope Benedict would have the Allies turn the other cheek but the trouble is they haven't among them a cheek left unsmitten.

If a man loses his money on a horse race that ends it. If he drops it in a defunct company he never knows when the leak will stop.

Food Controller Hanna may be able to discourse bravely on general topics but we doubt that he has screwed his courage up to the point of firing the cook.

If the aldermen generously allow the keeping of pigs within the city limits the residents are not entirely without hope. Gas masks have been invented and are comparatively cheap.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Problem in Geography.

(Detroit News.)

A, representing a large force of armed men, set out from Berlin in August, 1914, for Paris. The distance was to be negotiated in three weeks. During the course of the journey, B, another force of armed men, was encountered by A. If, at the end of three years, the route which was to have been traversed in three weeks has not yet been covered, what is the distance, approximately, from Berlin to Paris?

Not a Good Guess Even.

It is often a difficult matter to distinguish proper names over the phone. An illustration in point was the personal in last week's News which read that Mr. and Mrs. Sprattin would be the guests of Mrs. A. A. Arms. The item should have read: "Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Stratton will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Bacon Owens."

LEAVING TRACTORS OUTSIDE TO WASTE

Western Farmers Let Exposure Run Costly Machinery—Say Winter Does No Harm

An eastern newspaperman wrote from Regina: A "tractor" is better known in Ontario by its original name a traction engine. Here in the West its use is not confined to the business of hauling a threshing outfit. It is hitched to a six or eight-share plough and set to work on the Summer fallow. It is hitched to a couple of dozen harrows, to a few wagon loads of grain, to anything that requires horse-power, live or mechanical. Therefore every farmer with money enough has a tractor. It may be a steam or a gasoline engine. Its price ranges from, perhaps, $1,500 to [illegible]

One of these engines standing idle in a field started a conversation in the passing train. The visitor was sitting beside a civil engineer in Government employ. He began it. "You see that tractor?" It is three years old. The owner bought it to do his ploughing. The first year he worked it about two weeks and when he had finished, blew out the water in the boiler and left the machine standing. It remained there all winter without a covering and without an ounce of grease on the piston or governors. Last year he fired up in spring, worked the tractor as before and left it out again. This spring he did likewise and it will stand there at the end of the furrow until he feels like using it."

"Custom Of The Country"

"Is he crazy?" asked the visitor.

"No. He is merely following the custom of the country. If the machine jams next season he will make a vigorous kick to the manufacturer. He will build a shed to house his Ford car, but the tractor, which costs 4 times as much will get no more care than an old horseshoe."

"What is the life of the engine under such circumstances?" inquired the visitor.

"About 6 or 8 years. It ought to last a lifetime." The same careless extravagance is shown in the treatment of a self-binder or of any other sort of farm machinery. Where the wheel stops let it lie, is the motto which has made millions for the manufacturers of harvesters.

Farmers Defend It

The odd thing about this habit is that the farmers angrily defend it. A North Dakota farmer said, "A binder here will cut as much in one season as one in Ontario will do in five. In two or three years it has done its bit. Anyway the weather does not do it any harm."

PREVENTING FLOODS

Man Can Control Several Important Factors In Curbing Freshets

In many districts in Canada excessive floods are feared, but fortunately, are largely prevented by favorable weather conditions. These conditions will not always obtain, and the greatest fears may be realized in the near future. The least we can do is to prevent the repetition of causes which are known to have greatly increased floods on the streams of our older districts. Five general agencies affect floods: climate, comprising precipitation and temperature, topography, geology, artificial storage and drainage, and finally, and possibly most important, surface vegetation, including forest cover and cultivated land.

The fourth and fifth agencies enumerated are within human control and steps should be taken either to improve natural conditions or at least to prevent making them worse. When the physical conditions on the drainage areas of rivers, where floods have increased, are summed up, the one great change in the vegetative conditions is the reduction of forest area. On some watersheds it has occurred by slow progression and on others more rapidly. It is certain that in some areas forest cutting has caused barren conditions, because the land was of such a character that, after it was deprived of forest protection, it eroded easily and its productive portion was swept into water-courses.

The great value of storage reservoirs need no comment. The question of cost alone prevents their more general use. Their construction, however, is becoming indispensable in connection with regulating the flow for water-power purposes and when their utility in this connection is being considered, the benefits arising from their additional importance in preventing excessive floods should be borne in mind.

NITROGEN THE FOOD

The most important problem in agriculture to-day, is that of putting nitrogen into growing plants. The man who solves it holds the key to success in farming, that is in producing food for humanity. An acre contains over six million square inches, the air presses upon this earth, at the rate of 16 lbs. to the square inch, 77 per cent of this air is free nitrogen. If you take your pencil, and figure out what this means, you will be overwhelmed at the inexhaustible amount of nitrogen that covers this earth, free to every animal and free to every plant. Wheat, oats, barley, etc., are able to take up the nitrogen that they require only through the roots, in the form of dissolved nitrates.

Bicycle Thieves

The bicycle purloiner is ubiquitous and clever, and he has "receivers," so that, once clear away, machines are rendered unrecognizable very speedily. Generally speaking, cycle owners are extraordinarily careless, as may be seen every day in passing along a busy street where shopping is done, but another warning may save some of them from loss and disappointment, and the fact that the thieves are numerous and daring will keep riders on the look-out.

Wit and Wisdom

He was a lion tamer, but the man who ruled the king of the forest was in turn ruled by his wife. One night he was entertained by his friends, who refused to allow him to depart until the small hours of the morning. As a result, on his homeward way, thinking that his wife would not receive him as cordially as he deserved, he spent the night elsewhere. In the morning he tried to slip into the house unobserved, but, alas! a voice from the top of the stairs greeted him coldly: "Where have you been all night, John?" "Well, my dear, I was afraid to disturb you, so I slept in the lion's cage." There was a moment's pause, a gritting of teeth then down stairs floated one word: "Coward!"

The man stammered painfully as he stood in the dock at the police court. His name was Sissons, and it was very difficult for him to pronounce.

He had had the misfortune to stay out late and make an uproar the previous night, so that he had to account for it before the magistrate next morning.

"What is your name?" asked the magistrate.

Sissons began to reply.

"Sss-ss-ssss-sss,"—

"Stop that noise and tell me your name," said the magistrate testily.

"Sss-ss-ssss-sss,"—

"That will do," growled the magistrate severely.

"Constable, what is this man charged with?"

"Yer worship, I think he's charged with sodywather," replied the policeman earnestly.—

Poultry Raiser—"Yes ma'am."

Angry Purchaser—"Then why is it that I'm never able to get more than two eggs from them and sometimes not so many in one day?"

Poultry Raiser—"I don't know, ma'am, unless it's because you look for eggs too often. Now, if you look for them only once a week I feel quite positive that you will get just as many eggs in one day as I did.

The train was held up by robbers, and all the passengers were told to come out, line up together, and hold their hands above their heads. Moses and Ikey stood together with their hands up when one of the robbers came to search them with a loaded revolver in his hand. Said Moses to the Robber: "May I put my hand in my waistcoat pocket von moment?"

"Yes, and look sharp," was the reply. Moses put his hand into his pocket, pulled out $50, and turning to Ikey said:

"Here's the $50 I owe you."

HISTORIC FIGHT FOR LIFE BY "L" BATTERY

One of War's Masterpieces of Disciplined Heroism and British Doggedness

Here is Conan Doyle's account of the famous fight of "L" Battery at Le Cateau in the retreat from Mons. It was a misty morning, and, peering through the haze, an officer perceived that from the top of a low hill about seven hundred yards away three mounted men were looking down upon them. They were the observation officers of three four-gun German batteries. Before the British could realize the situation the guns dashed up and came into action with shrapnel at point-blank range.

The whole twelve poured their fire into the disordered bivouac before them. The slaughter and confusion were horrible. Numbers of the horses and men were killed and wounded, and three of the guns were dismounted. It was a most complete surprise, and promised to be an absolute disaster. A body of German cavalry had escorted the guns and their rifles added to the volume of fire.

Trapped, But Unbeaten

It is at such moments that the grand power of disciplined valor comes to bring order out of chaos. Everything combined to make defence difficult—the chilling hour of the morning, the suddenness of the attack, its appalling severity, and the immediate loss of guns and men. A similar road ran behind the British position, and from the edge of this the dismounted cavalrymen brought their rifles and their machine gun into action.

They suffered heavily from the pelting gusts of shrapnel. Young Captain de Crespigny and many other good men were beaten down by it. The sole hope lay in the guns. Three were utterly disabled. There was a rush of officers and men to bring the other three into action. Sclater-Booth, the major of the battery, and one lieutenant were already down. Captain Bradbury took command and cheered up the men. Two of the guns were at once put out of action, so all united to work the one that remained.

Homeric Valor

What follows is Homeric. Lieutenant Gifford in rushing forward was hit in four places. Bradbury's leg was shattered, but he lay beside the trail encouraging the others. Lieutenant Mundy, standing wide as observation officer, was mortally wounded. The limber could not be got alongside and the shell had to be manhandled. In bringing it up Lieutenant Campbell was shot. Immediately afterwards another shell burst over the gun, killed the heroic Bradbury, and wounded Sergeant Darell, Driver Osborne, and Gunners Nelson and Derbyshire, the only remaining men. But the fight went on. The bleeding men served the gun so long as they could move, Osborne and Derbyshire crawling over with the shells, while Nelson loaded and Darell laid. Osborne and Derbyshire fainted from loss of blood and lay between limber and gun. Two Victoria Crosses and commissions came to the battery which was later rescued.

RUSSIA'S RESOLVE

To Hold Bulgaria Responsible For Her Unprecedented Crime

The following semi-official statement was issued in Petrograd: The Bulgarian newspaper Narodni Prava stated that the Russo-Roumanian troops massacred the peaceable Bulgarian population in the Dobrudja. This calumny by the Bulgarian journal would not be worthy of attention if it did not emphasize once again the unworthy conduct of Bulgaria in the present war.

"Russia is firmly resolved to punish the personages of the Bulgarian Government who treacherously allied their country with the enemies of her inviolable protector, who gave her her political existence and suffered so many sacrifices for her. Moreover, Russia does not demean herself to wreak vengeance for her past mutilation on the defenceless Bulgarian population.

"Bulgaria as a sovereign unit will be held responsible for her unprecedented crime. By disseminating [illegible] calumnies Bulgaria will not force Russia to turn aside from her fixed purpose, nor will she gain fresh laurels for her black treachery towards Russia and Slavism, and the just cause for which the Entente is fighting."

GREAT FATHER JOFFRE

French General as Seen by English Pen-Journalist

Lord Northcliffe gave the following description of the victor of the Marne: "Joffre wears a pale blue vareuse or tunic of very simple proportions, no decorations, save three gold stars on his sleeve and on the cuffs, and the red trousers with the black stripes. As that great, grey head rose from the writing table the impression of the man upon me was that of massiveness. The great head of Joffre, the iron chin, the kind, rather sad eyes, are quite unlike the photographs and equally unlike our stupid notion of what we call the average Frenchman." Père Joffre is from Rivesaltes, in the Pyrénées-Orientales, and he speaks slowly, and with no more gesture than a Scotsman, in the rich accent of the Midi.

Trade With Russia

The trade between Vladivostok and Vancouver is enormous. It is of course largely war material, but there seems to be no good reason why in Canada this trade should not continue and increase after the war. Canada has two trade commissioners in Russia.

Lambeth Guardians decided to get goat milk for their children.

Women shipwrights worked in Bristol Channel yards during the war.

REPULPING PAPER

How White Paper Can be Reproduced Again by Invention

An inventor in the United States has discovered a means of utilizing a waste digester liquor for removing ink and color from waste news and without discoloring the fibre, so that the paper may be repulped. "I have discovered," he says, "that by subjecting waste print paper, either in a pulped state or in the whole, to the action of spent digester liquors, under any temperature, for the space of one hours or more, then washing the pulp with fresh water, all ink or coloring matter that may be in the paper will be entirely removed, and without discoloring the fibres of the mechanical wood pulp, leaving the same fit to be re-made into white apper. If the waste paper be first pulped, it may be charged into a beater vat filled with either of these spent digester liquors, and by the action of the beating engine all ink or coloring matter will be entirely freed from the pulp. The solvent may then be drained off and the pulp washed in fresh water, leaving the same in a state to be remade into white paper."

Schools That Differ

On this continent the idea of absolute uniformity in schools over a large area and amid many diverse interests has had its day. The school in a grazing district must have different work from the school among orchardists or market gardeners or fishermen. They cannot be as "like as two peas," much less can they afford to become just city schools on a small scale. The needs of their communities are different.

The rural school that is merely a preparatory school for the high school of the town and the university of the city may become a factor in rural depopulation.

Experiments with cooling buildings by forcing air through hollow walls with electric fans are being tried in India.

JOYOUS BOB WHITE A BIRD OF VALUE

Lives Almost Entirely on Weed Seeds and Insects—A Plea For its Protection

There is a bird which is of much interest to the farmer and the sportsman, and which is growing scarcer and scarcer in Canada. I refer to the Bob-white or, as it is often erroneously termed, quail. At one time the Bob white was fairly common in southwestern Ontario, and ranged as far east as Port Hope, but it has long since disappeared from a large part of this territory, says A. B. Klugh, M.A., writing in the Farmer's Advocate.

The name Bob-white has been given to this species because of the resemblance which its call bears to these words. It has been called Quail in the north and west, and Partridge in the southern states, but the name Quail properly belongs to a smaller migratory bird found in the Old World and the term Partridge also belongs to an Old World bird. This species ranges from southern Maine and Ontario south to Florida and Texas and west to South Dakota and eastern Colorado. The Bob-white is of economic importance in three ways—as a destroyer of noxious insects and weeds, as a delicate and nutritious article of diet, and as an object of sport. These are the economic reasons, the dollars and cents reasons why the Bob-white should be given protection. The delight which many people derive from the presence of this wild bird near their homes and from its mellow whistle cannot be expressed in terms of coin of the realm, but is none the less real.

In food habits the Bob-white is practically omnivorous, consuming large quantities of weed-seed and destroying many of the worst insect pests with which the farmer has to contend. At the same time it does not injure grain, fruit or any other crop. The examination of stomach contents of this species shows that of its food for the whole year seeds constitute fifty and three-quarters per cent., and include those of many different plants. The bulk of this seed diet consists of the seeds of weeds. Sixty different species of weeds are represented, and constitute more than a third of the food for the year. Some idea of the value of this bird as a weed-destroyer may be gathered from the number of seeds taken at a meal. Thirty buttonwood seeds, three hundred smartweed seeds, five hundred seeds of Sheep Sorrel, and seven hundred seeds of the Three-seeded Mercury have been taken at one feeding. Crops and stomachs are frequently crammed with nothing but the seeds of Ragweed, and one stomach contained a thousand seeds of this weed. Another stomach contained ten thousand seeds of the Pigweed.

From May to August, when insects are abundant, they make up thirty-one per cent. of the food of the Bob-white. The variety of insect food taken is wide, and the large proportion of injurious insects eaten by this species makes its services as a destroyer of insects more valuable than those of many birds whose percentage of insect food is greater but contains a smaller proportion of injurious forms. Conspicuous among the pests which are eaten by the Bob-white are the Potato Beetle, Cucumber Beetle, the Bean Leaf Beetle, Wire-worms, May-beetles, Cutworms, the Red-legged Locust, and the Rocky Mountain Locust.

Keep Young and Old Birds Separate

A good many people who might otherwise be very successful with poultry have their profit decreased because they allow the young and the old stock to remain undivided in the same house, or yard, or both. During the growing period the young stock needs a great deal of food and needs to be protected from the old ones, which, if allowed to do so, will abuse them more or less. If free range is impossible, provide separate yards and always keep the young in a separate building, if possible, or in a separate room at least. Pullets getting ready to lay need more feed as a rule than hens which have moulted out well, because the pullets need to finish their growth and maturity as well as make eggs. This is another reason why the young and the old should be kept separate.

Racket or Raquette

When you use the racket in playing tennis you do not stop to think what it means. Some thought that it was so called because of the noise made by the ball striking it, but this is impossible. The real origin is from the French raquette, the palm of the hand, which was originally used in the game before the racket was invented. It's all very simple when you know.

THE LENGTH OF LIFE

Scientists Say Men Live to Greater Ages Now Than Ever Before

We often hear of people of former times having lived to a great age, and we have been led to believe that it was a common thing in days gone by to live longer than we do now. There are early historical records of individuals who lived hundreds of years. The more we advance in scientific knowledge of past conditions the more reason there appears to doubt the literal truth of these statements.

We must take into consideration that these stories of long ages come down to us from a time when man had no such accurate understanding of the actual passage of long periods as we have to-day. They did not have our calendar as a basis for reckoning.

Men who have made a study of the subject tell us that the people who are said to have lived to such great ages in the past probably did not live as long as we know is possible to-day, as the period then recorded as a year was probably much shorter.

Scientific investigation has given us reason to believe that the average duration of life has steadily increased. More attention is given now to the care of our bodies. We have improved living conditions, made them more sanitary and have learned to fight, check and eradicate diseases which formerly were regarded as necessarily fatal.

Records show that people live longer to-day than only a few years ago, and it is concluded that the average length of life is greater now than at any time in the world's history.

IF YOU LIVE RIGHT

You will not bolt your food and expect your "digestion" to masticate it. If nature had wanted your teeth in your stomach she would have put them there.

You will not gormandize. If nature had intended you to eat enough to sustain a giant you would have been built accordingly.

You will get plenty of sunlight and pure air. Nature designed you for out-of-doors, and not for an "air tight" or "canned" existence.

You will take regular and normal exercise. Your body is not made to function properly without it. Your limbs and joints are designed for action, not to be kinked up and stiffened by the sitting habit.

You will avoid excessive nervous and physical strain, and the loss of rest and sleep. So far, no one has been able to successfully defy nature on this point.

You will avoid over-indulgence in fats, sweets, tobacco, alcohol, and other drugs. Nature will not stand for this. It was not in the contract.

You will also abjure peevishness and worry. This drag upon health and happiness has no place in nature's scheme.

You will have periodical health examinations to detect disease before it is too late to head it off.

You will shun these and other easily-avoided follies of wrong living which are causing so much needless suffering and untimely death.

In short, if you live right you will enjoy an orderly, peaceful and sane existence, using the instinctive intelligence which nature has given you to conserve your health.

If you live right you will have learned that you can get more joy out of life by conserving it than by jeopardizing it.

Nothing Need be Wasted

Scientifically speaking, there is no such thing as a waste product, and the word waste has become current because of the lack of knowledge of how to transform residual matter into a marketable commodity. In the study of fuels, for instance, the enormous quantities of carbonaceous substances which exist in different forms, and which have not been utilized or treated in order to extract from them the valuable products they contain, are now being brought into the sphere of commerce by the introduction of new processes. A study of the history of these processes is exceedingly interesting, and indicates very clearly how the theorists have been groping towards the end which appears now to be susceptible to early attainment.

Cradle of the Potato

It is interesting to recall, in connection with the announcement of a big shipment of Irish potatoes from Youghal, County Cork, to Glasgow, that it was in Youghal the "murphy" was first introduced into Ireland by Sir Walter Raleigh. Myrtle Grove, where Sir Walter lived, smoked, and set his potatoes, is now the residence of Sir Henry Blake, late Governor of Jamaica.

There are men who can't even tell the truth without exaggerating.

HUGE WAR CONTRACT

Miles of Ribbon For Medals—Russia's Big Totals

Russia is never niggardly in the way of Government orders. During her war with Japan she gave one Chicago firm a contract for six million pounds of beef. On another occasion, when there was a coal strike in England, and Russia could not get her accustomed supplies of steam coal for her navy, she cabled to a firm in the United States an order for three million tons. This was the largest export order ever received.

Compared with such mammoth demands as these, the Australian order of 1912 for three hundred and seven miles of cloth for military uniforms seems a small matter. Yet, considering the comparative populations of the two countries, it was not so bad.

After the South African War the British Government contracted for forty miles of ribbon for South African war medals. These were issued to about 200,000 men, each getting a nine-inch strip. One wonders how many hundred miles will be required for the Empire troops at the end of the present appalling struggle.

INDIAN OFFICIALDOM

Blame for Mesopotamian Troubles Laid at Its Door

Commander Wedgwood's separate report on Mesopotamia was mainly criticism of the Indian bureaucracy. He says: "Throughout Lord Hardinge's tenure of office the Government of India showed little desire to help and some desire actually to obstruct the successful prosecution of the war." There is also brought out the unsympathetic Indian official attitude to Territorials, whom they regarded as "unfit to cope with Pathans," their slowness in developing munitions work in India, and their long tolerance of Germans in their midst.

Light is thrown on the "economies" under the regime of Sir William Meyer, the finance member of the Council of India, who boasted during the war of an actual reduction of military expenditure. One of these "economies" was the refusal to build a railway in Mesopotamia as it would not be "at all so remunerative as is at present represented."

The Commissioners point out the amazing growth in the system by which communications between London and India have become more and more "Private" telegrams and not official. All the copies of these private telegrams the officials, including the Secretary for India, have the right apparently to destroy or take away with them as they leave office. In one specific instance a certain message went as a private telegram to India, and in this way, as it was not recorded officially, never reached an official who, if he had known, could have taken remedial steps.

100 YEARS IN VILLAGE

Centenarian's War Work and Hope of Victory

When Mr. Thomas Weekes, of Ticehurst, a village on the borders of Kent and Sussex, celebrated his 100th birthday in 1917, a newspaper said: He is straight and strong, and strides across the village square daily to his ten-rod allotment, where he requires no help. "I am doing my bit for the food supply," he boasts. He has lived in the village all his life, and in his present cottage 57 years. He worked 50 years for the Standen family at Wedds Farm, and 18 years for Mr. Powell at Quedley Farm, both on the Pashley estate. Starting work at seven years old, he was never at school, and can neither read nor write. When he was bringing up his family he earned only $4.35 a week, but the children went gleaning and he thrashed the corn they got and took it to the miller.

"Every night my last thought is of our brave boys at the front," he tells everybody, and he hopes he will see the end of the war, and as grand a victory as Waterloo, for the celebration of which he was born too late, though he remembers many friends who fought in that battle.

DEEP BREATHING

It Means Health and Cheerfulness to Those Who Practise It

The most popular fad is for deep breathing exercises. Deep breathing, the experts say, purifies the blood, and promotes its circulation through the brain, and nourishes the nerve cells with its quickening stream. Insufficient breathing is related to the "blues," and all shallow-chested people are said to be shallow thinkers as well. "All victims of despondency, all downcast and crestfallen individuals, are found to be shallow breathers," to quote one well-known student of medical science. If you are reading in a close and unventilated room, and find it difficult to concentrate your attention, and you feel inclined to sleep, try the influence on your brain by going outside into the open air and taking twenty-five deep breaths, expanding the lungs each time, and you will feel a wonderful mental change at once; your thoughts will become more active and under better control, and sleepiness will vanish.

New Resistance Alloy

A new alloy for use in making electric resistance was put on the market shortly before the war and is said to be of great use in case the resistance wires or strips need to be worked at a high heat; for the new alloy of chromium and nickel can be run at even a bright red heat without suffering damage, and such heating does not make the metal brittle upon long use.

"G.I." IS A JUGGLER HIS GREATEST FEAT

An English gunner writes as follows of experiences under the eye of the G.I. or Gas Instructor: "During the time it pleased Providence and the Army Council to keep me in the Royal Garrison Artillery I saw and endured many drills, but I have not experienced any drilling like the drilling of the G.I. He doesn't drill, he juggles. He juggles with gas-masks and box respirators, and when he is tired of juggling he conjures. He produces helmets from different parts of his person, snatches respirators from the air, dangles them, folds them, and makes them disappear with the speed of light. He holds a helmet in his hand, a turn of the wrist and 'hey presto!' it is a respirator with tubes and eye-pieces complete.

His piece de resistance is the disappearing trick, when at the word of command his voice is lost inside the folds of a flannelette helmet. Only those who have heard his voice can appreciate the wonderful, almost miraculous nature of the feat. Personally I would have laid a heavy wager that nothing short of a ship's boiler would have contained that voice, but lo, I myself have heard it muffled behind a porous, impregnated fabric. The voice articulate had gone, but the soul of the voice remained, and was evident in the mighty gusts and volcanic rumblings that came through the rubber valve.

FRANCO-CANADIAN EPIC

A letter was received by Mr. Jusitce Greenshields of Montreal from Clyde Scott, one of his nephews at the front, in which the writer sets down the dying words of Maurice Christophe Dreterien, second lieutenant of the 29th Alpine Infantry, born at Epinal, August 30th, 1885, mortally wounded by a shell at the battle front in the Champagne, and died in the arms of Scott. These were his dying words: " . . . . I see the most beautiful moment of my life. I regret nothing, and I am happy as a King. I am happy to die that my country may be delivered. Say to my friends that I go to victory, a smile on my lips more joyous than that of all the martyrs of all times. We are men of a France eternal. France must live. France must conquer.

"Get ready your gay apparel; prepare to celebrate the return of the conquering heroes of the great war. It will not be long now. We may not be there, but others will. Weep not for us, nor mourn us, for we die with a smile on our lips, with a superhuman joy in our hearts. Vive la France! Vive la France! Victory is ours! Have confidence and stumble not. Patience. Be gay. Have confiednece."

"WE CREATE OPINION"

Admission of Hun Diplomatist—Germans Trust Deceptive Press

A neutral, lecturing in London, said that the German papers were very carefully composed in wartime. He really believed that most of the papers contained truthful information. But on many topics they did not contain all the truth, and some topics were omitted altogether. Headlines were carefully selected. When the British made an important gain it was admitted, but the news was tucked away in an unimportant place, and the headlines called attention to terrible Russian losses.

The modern German newspaper was regarded by its readers with as much reverence as the Puritan of old looked upon his Bible, and through the papers the Government possessed a wonderful power. He remembered a German diplomatist being asked how public opinion would regard a certain matter. The diplomatist was puzzled for a moment, and then his answer came, "Public opinion? Why, we create it."

Grant of Prize Money

GUARD AGAINST FIRES BY OBSERVATION POSTS

So far no bush fires have been reported from the north country to the Ontario Government's Department of Lands, Forests and Mines. Every precaution has been taken to reduce to a minimum the chances of a repetition of last summer's disastrous fires.

Throughout the forest regions nearly fifty observation towers have been erected to keep a close look out for fires. The towers, which are steel erections similar to the towers which support the Hydro high tension power lines from Niagara to Toronto, are of an average height of sixty feet, and are all built on high elevations of land.

MY FUNK-HOLE.

I've stood in many bedrooms
  In a dozen different lands,
And I've slept in many bedsteads
  Of as many different brands.
I've snuggled deep in feathers
  Stuffed by dear old Grandmama.
I've enjoyed some solid comfort
  On a "Palley" built of straw.
But the queerest bed I've ever had—
  So help me, General French
Is a ground-sheet in a funk-hole
  At the bottom of a trench.

It's a tiny little funk-hole,
  Just a foot above the ground,
And so narrow in proportions
  I can scarcely turn around.
It's not built on plans elaborate,
  And the best that can be said
Is it shelters from the elements:
  My little funk-hole bed.
And when Fritzie, with his "wind up,"
  Starts to raise a blooming stench,
Oh! I crawl into my funk-hole
  At the bottom of the trench.

Some chambers have their vistas,
  Mine also has its view:
I can see a "Swaddie" struggle
  With a "Dixie" full of stew;
While the trench rats swim sedately
  For a feed that is in sight,
As a flare-light splits the darkness
  With its all-revealing light.
Though my edifice 'domestique"
  Wouldn't suit a chamber wench,
Still I'm happy in my funk-hole
  At the bottom of the trench.

When I'm tired of working parties
  And of wielding pick and spade,
And I'm weary of the struggle
  That Great Britain has essayed;
When imagination morbid
  Makes my very skin to creep,
  And I think a grave in No-man's land
  Will harbor my last sleep;
When I'm mud from top to bottom
  And my clothes are all adrench,
Then I crawl into my funk-hole
  At the bottom of the trench.

MIGHT HAVE BEEN A RAJAH.

Canadian Refused to Leave Country to Secure Honor.

A romance as remarkable as was ever invented by a novelist will be recalled to many readers by the recent announcement of the death of Sir Charles Brooke, Rajah of Sarawak. Those who know Kipling's story, "The Man Who Would be King," have a general outline of what happened in Sarawak before the first English rajah was recognized. It is true that disaster did not descend upon the rajah through a native woman; and that whatever disasters he encountered he survived, but the task of the character in Kipling was no more difficult than the task of the first rajah, Brooke, and his successor, who has just passed away. He found one of the loveliest countries in the world unknown to white men, and inhabited by one of the most savage races upon the face of the earth. With a mere handful of whites he captured the country and made himself its ruler. Incidentally he suppressed lawlessness, and by treaties increased the extent of his domain from 7,000 square miles to 55,000 square miles. When he died he was able to nominate his successor, the late Sir Charles Brooke, who in turn has handed over the realm to his son.

There was a further romance of the Brooke family which centres in Canada. The first Rajah was a bachelor. He had a brother and sister. The sister married a Mr. Johnston, an Englishman. The brother was an officer in the English army. He married a Portuguese lady and had two sons. At his death the family came to Canada and settled in the Eastern Townships, Quebec. The eldest son, Wm. Brooke, studied law and practised in Richmond, Quebec. He was the favorite nephew of the first Rajah, and they were in close correspondence with each other during life. When the first Rajah was established in power at Sarawak, he asked his nephew, Wm. Brooke, to go out and join him in Borneo, offering to make him his heir and successor. William Brooke's wife would not consent to his leaving Canada, so he declined. The Rajah then made the same offer to his sister's son, Charles Johnston, on condition that he change his name to Brooke, which he did, joining his uncle in Borneo. He became the second Rajah, and is the man who died lately.

Wm. Brooke, of Richmond, Que., left two sons, Charles and George, both lawyers. Charles, the eldest, was County Crown-Attorney at Hull, Que., for a number of years, dying there about four years ago, and leaving a family. His son enlisted in the first Canadian Expeditionary Force and was killed in France last year. If his grandfather had accepted the first Rajah's offer, this lad might now have been Rajah of Borneo, instead of a dead hero in France.

The Jubilee Prayer.

A prayer that will take a place in history was that of the Dean of Westminster Abbey read at the Confederation Jubilee service of July 1: "O, Eternal Father, we draw nigh to Thee in this church where our kings and queens are crowned amidst memorials of Great Britain's most illustrious dead. We humbly commemorate before Thee the fiftieth anniversary of the Dominion of Canada, and all Thy many mercies multiplied upon its people we dedicate to Thy great glory and the memory of our dear brothers departed. Crown, we beseech Thee, with Thy loving mercy the offering of their brave lives. Grant unto them Thy eternal peace, and unto all that mourn the blessing of Thy comfort."

Our Army as It Stands.

F. B. McCurdy, Parliamentary Under-Secretary of the Militia Department, speaking in the Commons, gave these figures:

Infantry at front..........	52,000
Wastage (15 p.c. month)..	7,800

The troops in England on June 1, divided:

Ready for service..........	14,720
Needing more training....	22,460
Ready in six months......	9,486

These total 46,666, and in Canada or en route overseas were 10,500 more, a grand total of 57,166, or reinforcements for the firing line sufficient for about 7¼ months. Infantry enlistments in Canada since Jan. have been practically negligible.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Mighty Battle of Long Ago.

HOW VICTOR WAS REWARDED

Wonderful Feats That a Lad of Ancient Greece Accomplished—Possessed Remarkable Strength and Cleverness—Hated by Wicked King.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about the LION IN THE SKY.

I told you before that every month the sun rolls through a group of stars that has an odd name. In July it is in the group of stars known as the Lion.

Once there grew up in Greece a lad of great strength and cleverness named Hercules. One of the wonderful things he did was to choke to death with his infant hands two serpents that tried to kill him in his cradle. As he grew older he became stronger, and he was so good natured that he was always trying to help those about him.

But after awhile Hercules came into the power of a wicked king, who set him all sorts of hard tasks.

The first of these was to kill a fierce lion which had been frightening and killing the people in a valley called Nemea.

Hercules took the big club, which was so heavy that no one else could handle it, and his big bow that no one else could bend.

When he came to the wild, lonely valley of Nemea the lion, which happened to be very hungry, came out to meet Hercules. All the people had moved out of that part of the country because they were so afraid of the lion, so it was hard for the animal to get a meal.

Hercules stepped briskly up and, fitting an arrow to his bow, sent it straight at the lion's head, but the brute's skin was so thick that the sharp point could not pierce it. Hercules tried arrow after arrow, hoping that at last he might find a tender spot.

When the last arrow was gone he picked up his club and as the lion drew near let it fall with a heavy stroke on the creature's head. The club slid off the lion's thick mane and fell to the ground. Hercules had then only his own strong hands with which to fight.

He grasped the snarling lion by the throat and, using all his strength, soon strangled the brute.

Hercules started home with the lion's skin thrown over his shoulder. When he entered the town where he lived the people and the wicked king were frightened. They thought the Nemean lion itself had come to attack them. Instead of praising Hercules for what he had done the king ordered him after that not to enter the city until he had permission.

But the people were so pleased with this wonderful service which Hercules had done them that they named a group of stars the Lion, and so it has been called ever since, and in July the sun enters the space in the sky where the Lion group is found.

AMERICA TO THE IMMIGRANT.

A Former Roumanian on the Heartache of Finding a New Home.

What, I wonder, do they know of America who know only America? The more I think upon the subject the more I become persuaded that the relation of the teacher and the taught as between those who were born and those who came here must be reversed. It is the free American who needs to be instructed by the benighted races in the uplifting word that America speaks to all the world. Only from the humble immigrant, it appears to me, can he learn just what America stands for in the family of nations.

The alien must know this, for he alone seems ready to pay the heavy price for his share of America. He, unlike the older inhabitant, does not come into its inheritance by the accident of birth. Before he can become an American he must first be an immigrant. More than that, back of immigration lies emigration. And to him alone is it given to know the bitter sacrifice and the deep upheaval of the soul that are implied in those two words.

Oh, if I could show you America as we of the oppressed peoples see it! If I could bring home to you even the smallest fraction of this sacrifice and this upheaval, the dreaming and the strife, the agony and the heartache, the endless disappointments, the yearning and the despair—all of which must be ours before we can make a home for our battered spirits in this land of yours.

Perhaps, if we be young, we dream of riches and adventure, and if we be grown men we may merely seek a haven for our outraged human souls and a safe retreat for our hungry wives and children. Yet, however aggrieved we may feel toward our native home, we cannot but regard our leaving it as a violent severing of the ties of our life and look beyond toward our new home as a sort of glorified exile. So, whether we be young or old, something of ourselves we always leave behind in our hapless, cherished birthplaces.

And the heaviest share of our burden inevitably falls on the loved ones that remain when we are gone. We make no illusions for ourselves. Though we may expect wealth, we have no thought of returning. It is farewell forever. We are not setting out on a trip; we are emigrating. Yes, we are emigrating, and there is our experience, our ordeal, in a nutshell. It is the one way passport for us every time. For we have glimpsed a vision of America, and we start out resolved that, whatever the cost, we shall make her our own. In our heavy laden hearts we are already Americans. In our own dumb way we have grasped her message to us.—M. E. Ravage in Harper's Magazine.

Big Noses in Japan.

The nose plays a very important part in Japan, owing, probably, to the fact that a difference in noses constitutes about the only distinction among the Japanese. The nose is the only feature which attracts attention. As there are very few large noses to be found in Japan, a lady with a large nose is regarded as one specially gifted by nature. She is invariably a reigning beauty and the envy of her less favored sisters. In all Japanese pictures in which ladies are portrayed the artists are particularly careful to make the nose of liberal dimensions.—London Telegraph.

Trouble Ends After Twelve Long Years

Is Stronger And Healthier Since Taking Tanlac Than In Years

"I tell you for three weeks before I started on Tanlac I was so played out I couldn't hit a lick of work, and you may believe me or not, but before I finished my first bottle I was back on the job feeling like a new man," said W. E. Fairbrass in an interview a few days ago. Mr. Fairbrass, or "Bill," as he is familiarly known to his co-workers at the shops of McKenzie and Mann, where he is employed, lives at 138 Cawthra Street, Toronto, and his many friends will be glad to learn of his recovery.

"My stomach had been troubling me for twelve years," he continued, "my appetite went back on me, and I had gotten to where I could hardly eat a thing. What little I did eat disagreed with me, and I was miserable nearly all the time with indigestion. I most always had a sickening nauseated feeling right after my meals, and many a time I couldn't retain anything I had eaten. I had a painful gnawing sensation in the pit of my stomach, and felt like my food had lodged there and formed a hard lump. Sometimes the gas would bloat me up until I felt like I would burst, and, in spite of all I could do, I kept getting worse. Many a time I have come home from my work so exhausted and sick that I couldn't eat a bite of supper. I was so nervous and restless I couldn't get any sound sleep and would get up in the morning worn completely out. I never felt like doing anything; in fact, I felt half dead all the time, and what little strength I had was getting away from me rapidly.

"Finally, I just had to surrender to my troubles, and the day I took my first dose of Tanlac I had been away from my work for three solid weeks. All the boys down at the shop had been begging me to try Tanlac, so I got my wife to go down to the drug store and buy me a bottle and I have never gotten more for my money in my life. I believe the very first dose made me feel better, and before I finished my first bottle I started back to work, carrying a little bottle of Tanlac in my dinner pail every day so I wouldn't miss a dose. I kept on working every day and improving rapidly, and since taking my third bottle I'm thankful to say I don't feel a touch of either stomach trouble or indigestion. Never had a better appetite and never got more enjoyment out of eating than I do now. I'm simply feeling a thousand times stronger and better, and my wife says she hasn't seen me looking so well in years. I have taken a good many different kinds of medicines in my life but Tanlac has got them all beat and I can certainly recommend it to everybody."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

One way to bring about a condition of national preparedness is to prepare yourself for the simplest elemental duties of a citizen and a soldier. NEW SCALE FOR STREET CAR MEN

BEGIN AT 20 CENTS AND WORK UP TO 28 CENTS AN HOUR.

The motormen and conductors of the street railway have finally decided to accept the new scale of wages as offered by the Hydro Electric Commission although the rate is short of what was asked for. The old scale was 18 cents an hour for beginners with a maximum of 25 cents. The new schedule is 20 cents for first six months, 22 cents for the second six months, 24 cent for second year, 26 cents for the third year and 28 cents thereafter.

Under the old order the new beginners were required to pay half the cost of their first uniforms after which the clothing was furnished free. As an offset to the recent increase the men are now required to pay half the price of their uniforms no matter how long they have been in the service. This was a condition that the union hesitated to accept and several of the younger members gave up their jobs rather than submit to the change.

Conductors are now advanced $10 in change if they require it.

ENGLISH FEMINIST'S VIEWS ON MARRIAGE

Thinks Young People Should Live in Same House For a Time to Study Each Other

Mrs. Havelock Ellis, one of the foremost feminists of the world, and author of "Kits Woman," "Three Modern Seers" and "The Imperishable Wing," is very incidentally the wife of the famous investigator of "The Psychology of Sex." She has been married to Havelock Ellis for twenty-three years and the union of these celebrated persons is regarded by those who know them as the strongest possible argument for the permanence of romantic love.

An interesting detail of their domestic life is that Mrs. Ellis has a cottage of her own in Cornwall while Mr. Ellis maintains a flat for himself in London, so that the most devoted married couple on earth do not really live together in the sense that most married persons do.

"There are weeks when we do not even see each other," Mrs. Ellis confided to an interviewer. "I cannot imagine that two persons can live together 365 days of the year for a lifetime without becoming horribly bored. If I had never been separated from my husband I feel sure that I could not write him the romantic love letters that I do."

MRS. HAVELOCK ELLIS

"What do you consider the most important demand of the woman movement?" was asked.

"The economic independence of women," she replied. "Until love is freed from the obligation of support no man can know that he is loved for himself, no woman can be sure of the disinterestedness of her affections. I believe, of course, that every man should support his child up to the age of 21.

"But love must be freed from commercialism. And in order to do this we shall have to try many experiments. One of the experiments I propose I call a novitiate of marriage. I don't use the expression novitiate as equivalent to trial marriage. If two people were to inhabit the same house, the man living with the girl's family for only a year, it would be impossible to conceal small habits, peculiarities and moods which sometimes play as great havoc with marriage as vice itself. Such an experiment, a novitiate for marriage, would tend to diminish the magnetic attraction between a man and a woman which hypnotises their reason."

Officers as Waiters

The big feed of a Christmas Day for some Canadian regiments was at the 205th Tiger battalion mess room when 200 of the passless privates sat down to the Christmas dinner of their lives. Col. Moodie, his officers and battalion N.C.O.'s were all waiting in line in the cooks' sanctum, and for one hour waited on the privates most energetically and they enjoyed it.

English Novelist With Our Forces

CONINGSBY DAWSON, English novelist, resident in the United States, was busy trying to follow up the success of his novel, "A Garden Without Walls," when the war came. He realized that, as he was a Briton of military age, it was his duty to put literature behind him and fight for his country. Delaying only long enough to finish some work which he had promised his publishers, he crossed from the United States into Canada and qualified as an officer in the Canadian forces. Shipped across the ocean last summer, he found himself, after only a short stay in England, plunged without further ado into the hell on the Somme.

For months thereafter he dealt and dodged death from morning to night, with scarcely the time to get a really good wash or change of clothes. He saw men killed a few feet from him; saw corpses by the hundred lying in hideously lifelike postures amid the black mud of shell holes; and, faithful to his profession as a writer, he fought with the full strength of his intellect to grasp and visualize and set down on paper the terrific impact of new and horrible impressions which the war brought to him. He could not do it—who can?—but Coningsby Dawson, novelist, has given us something better than a novel in his latest volume, "Carry On," made up of letters from the trenches to members of his family on this side of the Atlantic.

His new book is one of the most interesting productions of the subjective side of war that has yet appeared. He makes you see the reactions to the war of a civilian in uniform, a man accustomed to the ease of life who is abruptly plunged into carnage and barbarism and stench. "This war will be won by tired men who will never again pass an insurance examination," is one of the phrases, one of many, that flash the Somme horror to his readers.

Coningsby Dawson sailed for Europe last July. "I've become a little child again in God's hands," he wrote to his family after months of training in a Canadian camp, "with full confidence in His love and wisdom, and a growing trust that whatever He decides for me will be the best and kindest." A short two months later he was in Northern France.

Admiration for the coolness of the men engaged in the deadly work constantly overcame the young novelist as he grew to know his comrades better. "If unconscious heroism is the virtue most to be desired," he wrote to his father last September, "and heroism spiced with a strong sense of humor at that, then pretty well every man I have met out here has the amazing guts to wear his crown of thorns as though it were a cap-and-bells." And, in the same letter, he gave this description of being under fire:

"I dare say you'll wonder how it feels to be under shell fire. This is how it feels—you don't realize your danger until you come to think about it afterward—at the time it's like playing cocoanut shies at a coon's head—only you're the coon's head. You take too much interest in the sport of dodging to be afraid."

One of the best passages in the entire collection of letters is this description of a battlefield as it is in the Northern France of to-day:

"Well, I've seen my first modern battlefield and am quite disillusioned about the splendor of war. The splendor is all in the souls of the men who creep through the squalor like vermin—it's in nothing external. * * *

"A modern battlefield is the abomination of abominatons. Imagine a vast stretch of dead country, pitted with shell holes as though it had been mutilated with smallpox. There's not a leaf or a blade of grass in sight. Every house has either been leveled or is in ruins. No bird sings. Nothing stirs. The only live sound is at night—the scurry of rats.

"You enter a kind of ditch, called a trench; it leads on to another and another in an unjoyful maze. From the sides feet stick out, and arms and faces—the dead of previous encounters. "One of our chaps," you say casually, recognizing him by his boots or khaki, or "Poor blighter—a Hun!" One can afford to forget enmity in the presence of the dead.

"It is horribly difficult sometimes to distinguish between the living and the slaughtered—they both lie so silently in their little kennels in the earthen bank. You push on, especially if you are doing observation work, till you are past your own front line and out in No Man's Land. You have to crouch and move warily now.

"Zing! A bullet from a German sniper. You laugh and whisper, 'A near one, that.'

"My first trip to the trenches was up to No Man's Land. I went in the early dawn and came to a Mme. Tussaud's show of the dead, frozen into immobility in the most extraordinary attitudes. Some of them were part way out of the ground, one hand pressed to the wound, the other pointing, the head sunken, and the hair plastered over the forehead by repeated rains. I kept on wondering what my companions would look like had they been three weeks dead. My imagination became ingeniously and vividly morbid. When I had to step over them to pass, it seemed as though they must clutch at my trench coat and ask me to help.

"Poor lonely people, so brave and so anonymous in their death! Somewhere there is a woman who loved each one of them and would give her life for my opportunity to touch the poor clay that had been kind to her. It's like walking through the day of resurrection to visit No Man's Land.

"Then the Huns see you and the shrapnel begins to fall—you crouch like a dog and run for it."

Garden Aprons as Gifts.

Apropos of gifts, a farseeing little woman has made up several fascinating garden aprons to give to friends who work in their garden plots. Some are of washable awning stripe, others of a heavy smocked chambray. The most serviceable of the lot are those of rubberized drill in a charming corn color. This material is not at all heavy and may be washed off with a sponge. She also has made several small aprons of the same material to be used as play aprons for children.

Aprons Made of Shirts.

A wonderfully neat kitchen apron can be quickly made by using a man's discarded shirt. Turn it so that the opening will be in the back; cut off the cuffs, making the sleeves as short as you wish, and trim out the neck in a round or square yoke effect. If preferred, the garment can be put on as originally worn by sewing up the front opening and making a new one down the back. This can be fastened with one or two buttons. The shirt is already hemmed, and the side openings can be left as they are.

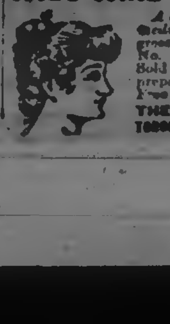
Square Deal For the Shops.

"If women had only the courage to stop shopping when they are tired!" said a young woman the other day. "They buy things then that they do not and never will like, and it is a bother to the women and a needless expense to the shops. The goods are inevitably returned and credited. When shops are so decent about accepting goods and crediting them it is only fair to such establishments to give them a square deal."

Sugar Sirup.

Many prefer homemade sugar sirup for cakes and waffles, but its tendency to "go back to sugar" is annoying. If you will boil a little corn sirup with it two tablespoonfuls to a pint, it will not recrystallize. The corn sirup cannot be tasted.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound.



A safe, reliable regulating medicine. Sold in three degrees of strength—No. 1, $1; No. 2, $3; No. 3, $5 per box. Sold by all druggists, or sent prepaid on receipt of price. Free pamphlet. Address: THE COOK MEDICINE CO. TORONTO, ONT. (Formerly Windsor.)

Sleepy Time Story About a Shrub That Bears Fruit.

LUCK OF A SHEPHERD BOY.

What Happened to Him Because of a Kindly Act Performed—A Dream In the Forest and Its Wonderful Result. The Fairy of the Elder Bush.

Tonight, said Uncle Ben to Little Ned and Polly Ann, I am going to tell you about

THE MAGIC FLUTE.

Possibly you do not know that the elder bush is a fairy plant. It grows in fairyland, and all the elderberry bushes, or elder trees, as they used to be called, are in the care of the elder mother, who watches over them, rewarding those who help and punishing those who harm her children, as she calls her elder bushes.

The fairy horns and all their musical instruments are carved out of elder wood. If you have ever made a whistle from the elder wood you will notice that it has a delightfully mellow tone.

And once there was a little boy who was wonderfully fond of music. At evening, when he took home the sheep he had all day been watching in the forest, he could only talk of the wonderful music that was to be heard there.

One day as he wandered by his favorite brook in the forest he noticed that one of the great bushes by the stream was broken.

"Poor thing! I'll tie it up," said the shepherd boy. He bound up the broken limb, and he thought a rustle passed through the plant.

One day the boy lost one of his sheep and after taking the rest of his flock home started back to the forest to seek it. After searching a long time he found it asleep under the elder bush which he had so carefully tended.

As it was very late and they were far from home, he curled down beside the sheep and went to sleep, and in his sleep he had a strange dream.

In this dream a lovely lady rose from the elder bush.

"I am the elder mother," she said. "You have served me and mine. Now we shall help you. Look well at this."

And she handed him a flute, at which he looked long and carefully.

"When you awaken make one of the same kind of the wood of the elder bush beneath which you sleep," she commanded.

The boy did as he was told, and, though he had never tried to make anything of the kind before, the minute he raised the flute to his lips he found it would play the most delightful music.

Just as he began to play the king went riding by and was so enchanted by the music that he asked the little boy to come with him to court and play for him every day.

And there the boy played all the songs which he had heard in the forest —the songs of the birds, the splashing of the waterfalls, the warble of the brook over the stones and the sighing of the wind through the trees—and the whole court praised him, and the little shepherd boy became rich and famous.

The Ottawa Fire.

There are many Canadians who will always believe, official statements to the contrary notwithstanding, that the Germans had something to do with the burning of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. When Mr. Rathom, the American editor who has exposed so many Teutonic plots, was in Toronto recently he was asked about the matter. He said that he had no positive information, but three weeks before it took place they had information of a plan to destroy the Parliament Buildings about that time, with two munition plants in Canada. The Attorney-General for New York State was not informed of this, because a Mr. Marshall had let it lie over, not believing the information, though he had since said he did not forward the information. Both Parliament Buildings and the munition plants were damaged by fire or bomb within forty-eight hours of the time of which The Providence Journal had information. "That is all I know of the Ottawa fire," said Mr. Rathom, "but I am content to believe that it could not be charged to carelessness nor lack of ordinary precaution at Ottawa, because we know how difficult it is to circumvent these men."

A Canadian in Africa.

That the sun does not set on the fighting Canadians is well illustrated every day. Here is a story of a western Ontario boy, who is doing his bit in German East Africa. He enlisted when less than seventeen, one of the brave ones who went early and before he was of legal age. Pte. W. W. Yeates is the son of C. L. Yeates of Sarnia. He has travelled 14,000 miles to get to his fighting zone, and he has paid the price in African hospitals, suffering from fever and chills incident to life in the jungle.

Writing home, young Yeates, who is not yet twenty, tells of thrilling experiences in and about the Lake Victoria-Nyanza country.

"It is not an uncommon thing," he writes, "for us to lose a man in sending him to the river for water. Crocodiles take their toll in Africa. We have seen many wild animals, from elephants and hippopotami to monkeys. The zebra is especially a beautiful animal—even more so than as we see them in the circus. Monkeys are so plentiful they are a nuisance. Lions and leopards are seldom seen—except by hunters.

"I have been amazed at the richness of the rubber plantations here. The Germans were literally rolling in wealth—and they have lost all in this war.

"We are just winding things up here. I have been driving an auto truck, first on land, then on rails. At one time I had 250 negroes working making roads.

"I wouldn't trade my experience for anything any Canadian has who has not been to the front."

Somewhat Draughty.

Some years ago an Englishman who had never been in the West before was the guest of a Canadian gentleman. They were riding through a Rocky Mountain canon one day, when suddenly a tremendous gust of wind came swooping down upon them and actually carried the Englishman off the wagon-seat. After he had been picked up he combed the sand and gravel out of his whiskers and said: "I say! I think you somewhat overdo ventilation in this country!"

Palaces of Thebes.

The palaces of old Thebes, in Egypt, were probably the largest and most wonderful ever erected by the hand of men. One of them was the container of a central hall 80 feet in height, 325 feet in length and 170 feet in breadth, the roof of which was supported by 134 columns 11 feet in diameter and 76 feet in height. The cornices were of the finest marble, inlaid with ivory work and sheathed with beaten gold. From the point of view of artistic beauty, the Parthenon at Athens, Greece, of course, still holds the palm and is likely always to hold it.

The Wise Old Bird

You Look As YOU FEEL

You know well enough when your liver is loafing.

Constipation is the first warning; then you begin to "feel mean all over."

Your skin soon gets the bad news, it grows dull, yellow, muddy and unsightly.

Violent purgatives are not what you need—just the gentle help of this old-time standard remedy.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

How the mighty do take a tumble when their time comes. There is, for instance, George Davis, once manager of the Giants and White Sox, who is now with the Browns as head coach and scout. But George needn't worry. There is a bigger tumble in store for some of the other pilots.

George Sisler reminds one of Atlas carrying the world on his back. Just now he's the only real live one in the Browns' line-up and he's playing the kind of ball the fans like to read about.

If you don't believe that Hans Wagner is a wonder, try playing his brand of ball for twenty years and see how strong you feel at the end of that time. And, like the famous Johnny in the well-known advertisement, he's still going strong.

This isn't a very good year for the pitchers. Some of the old-timers put it all over them. Which reminds us that Christy Mathewson still holds the world's record for pitched balls in a single game. He scored a victory several years ago with 68 in nine innings. Step up, you youngsters and try to equal that!

Grouchy Gus Says:

"Some of our rich young men will soon find out that the popping of machine guns is very much more exciting than the popping of champagne corks."

When Tom Spring Got a New Name.

On the roll of heavyweight champions of England the name of Tom Spring is written large. The real name of this great fighter was Thomas Winter, and he gained the name of Spring just 100 years ago. The rechristening of the future champion took place at the Fives Court in London, on the occasion of a benefit to the veteran, Josh Hudson. Winter, who was the son of a butcher in Hertfordshire, had just arrived in the metropolis, and was under the wing of Tom Cribb, then champion. Many of the sporting lords of London were present and anxious to see a fight. Jack Stringer, a burly Yorkshireman, offered to oblige, if he could find an opponent, and the youthful Winter stepped forward and took off his coat. It didn't take Winter long to finish Stringer. The crowd was enthusiatsic over the young man's performance, and demanded his name. When they were told that it was Winter, one sport cried out: "He's too fresh and young to be called Winter. Name him Spring." And ever after that he was Tom Spring to the fans. His biographer says that Tom was sober and industrious, and had but one weakness—the ladies. It was, however, not so much his own fault for, to tell the truth, he was as much sought after as seeking. His first battle was fought as a result of a quarrel over a maiden. During the Hereford fair Tom danced with a pretty girl oftener than was pleasing to her escort, and they came to blows. George Cooper and Sam Robinson, professional pugilists were present, and they induced the men to postpone their combat until the next day and fight it out in their boxing booth. Spring won an easy victory, and thus began his pugilistic career.

Art Phelan's Birthday.

Arthur Phelan, former Cub and Red, and also shining star of Danny Shea's Kansas City Blues, is thirty-two years old. Art is a native of Illinois, having been born in Macon county, near Decatur, on August 14, 1887. He got his baseball start in the neighboring town of Taylorville, where Ray Schalk, the great White Sox backstop, also made his first appearance in the game. Phelan played with Taylorville in 1907 and 1908, and in the following year joined the Kewanee club. He was playing like a streak and batting .375 in 1910 when he was sold to the Reds for $800. Art finished the season with Cincinnati, but Clark Griffith, who was then piloting the Reds, decided that he wasn't ripe enough yet for big league ball, and sent him on to Birmingham. He played great ball in the Southern League, and was recalled by Cincinnati in 1912. The Cubs got him in 1913, and he remained with Chicago for three seasons, playing both second and third bases. When the Cubs and Whales were consolidated by Joe Tinker, Art was dropped, and Danny Shea took him on for his reorganized Kansas City club.

Pugilistic Annals.

1903.—Jim Jeffries knocked out Jim Corbett in ten rounds at San Francisco. This was the second time Corbett had faced Jeffries in the ring, in an effort to regain the title and although he fought with all his old-time cunning and generalship, it was soon apparent that he could do nothing with Jeffries. Corbett's hardest blows had no effect on the Big Bear, who bored in until in the tenth he landed a wallop that ended Corbett's career in the ring. In his previous session with Jeff, at Coney Island, over three years before, Corbett had lasted 23 rounds. Two doses of Jeff's sleep medicine were enough for Corbett, and after that the former bank clerk was content to be James J. Corbett, actor. It must be said that at the time of the last bout Corbett was thirty-seven years old, and had long ago seen his best days in the ring. Had the bout taken place ten years earlier, if Jeff had been old enough, there undoubtedly would have been a different story to tell.

1889.—George Dixon and Eddie Santry fought a 20-round draw at New York.

Small Details That Really Make or Mar.

Some of the smart foulards are in very large designs and must be made up very cautiously, but there are plenty of designs less striking, and even where the design is very large the coloring may perhaps be neutral enough to save it from being spectacular.

On the other hand, there are strikingly brilliant colorings as well as striking designs in some of the new foulards and other figured silks, and certain of the French houses, notably Bulloz and Premet, have not hesitated to employ these bold materials, sometimes successfully from a pictorial viewpoint.

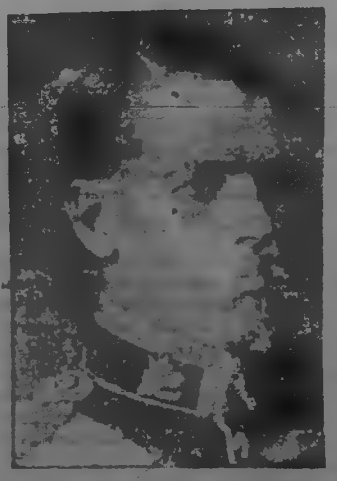
Belts, girdles and sashes are omnipresent and often are the most individual features of the models. Some of them are very wide and very elaborate, others quite narrow and simple, and their position varies from high directoire to dropped medieval, though the latter line has less favor than it has had, and normal or high waist lines are the rule.

Sleeves on day frocks are more often long than not, but many three-quarter sleeves are shown, too, on afternoon models.

For the evening bodice there is often a tiny sleeve, if only an elongation of the shoulder, but the sleeveless shoulder strap corsage has not disappeared. Square and second empire decolletage are most in evidence. Paquin and several others show a liking for the collar effects standing away from the neck on day frocks, and there are quantities of collarless arrangements cut straight across or in a shallow oval or little square, often with some collar adjunct across the back.

Here and there a polonaise of unbroken front line appears, and the flat, comparatively plain front is the generally accepted thing, even where the rest of the skirt is draped or very full. Skirts of tailored costumes are plaited in part or all around or are cut to fall straight and comparatively narrow, though not yet too narrow for comfort. The shirring of the slight fullness at the waistband in the back is still used on the plain models.

Military Cross Hero



CAPT. William Stewart MacTier, who was reported recently to have been awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in the firing line, is the son of Mr. A. D. MacTier, general manager of eastern lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Capt. MacTier went to the front with the first Canadian Contingent and has been twice wounded, the first time at Ypres, and lately at Vimy Ridge. At the outbreak of the war, Capt. MacTier was on the ocean returning from Europe, and immediately on landing joined the Thirteenth Battalion, under Lieut.-Col. (now Brigadier-General) Loomis, D.S.O. He went to the front with that unit and fought with it when it covered itself with glory at Ypres and Festubert. He was then wounded by shrapnel and returned to Montreal to convalesce. On returning to the front he was attached to Brigadier General Loomis' staff, he having taken over the command of a brigade in the mean time. As the serving in this capacity for a short time one of his feet gave out and an operation was necessary. On his return to the front on this occasion he was transferred to a Montreal Highland Battalion and promoted to his captaincy.

THE EXPERT.

He knew the other fellow's work much better than his own,
And what the other chap should do he readily made known.
He had a lot of time to tell his neighbor how to work,
But when he had a task himself he'd very promptly shirk.

He'd tell the plumber how to plumb, the baker how to bake;
He'd give a banker friendly tips on money he could make;
He butted into everything that came across his view
Except the most important things—the tasks he had to do.

He'd tell the lawyer how to try a hard and knotty case;
He made a nuisance of himself where'er he showed his face;
Where'er he went he gave advice in wisdom's lordly tone,
An expert he in every line of work except his own.

QUEEN OF THEM ALL.

PAY FOR GOOD WORK.

Don't Try to Remunerate Your Wash Lady With Castoff Clothes.

Women have sometimes made a reputation for generosity by giving away various things useless to themselves, things they have grown tired of, things always undesired bestowed upon them by one or another of their well meaning friends and relatives.

Whatever may be said of this procedure, it at least puts to shame the person who offers to pay wages with discarded things. For instance, there is the woman who tried to pay part of the $1.50 and car fare of the washerwoman with a half worn winter coat and the one who gave the young schoolgirl who tended her mischievous four-year-old an entire Saturday afternoon a last month's magazine and a soiled ribbon for her services.

To a very great many people money is the most urgent need of their lives. Only money will pay rent, only money will buy food, only money will provide against want in old age.

Payment for service of any kind should be in money. Payment for service should be prompt. Payment for service should be maintained at the prevailing standard. Women should stand by the women who work for them.

Homemade Kitchen Cabinet.

For those who cannot afford the luxury of a real kitchen cabinet a very good substitute can be constructed from the top of an old fashioned buffet. If it has shelves so much the better, it will then hold all kinds of spices and small cans containing articles in daily use. Small hooks about the size used for hanging up tin cups may be driven into the flat surface and will hold many utensils, such as the egg beater, can opener, tea strainer.

Sugar Beet Cultivation In Alberta

Acres of Sugar Beets.

Irrigating Sugar Beets.

IT is perhaps not generally known that the sugar beet is one of the best growing crops in Western Canada. Not only does this crop grow well, but there is no doubt that with the necessary labor and capital one of the most successful industries in Canada can be built upon the cultivation of beets for sugar.

In Southern Alberta alone the area suitable to the growth of the best kind of sugar beets is greater in extent than any two of the largest producing districts in the United States. That more has not been heard of the possibilities of this crop in Alberta is undoubtedly due to the success of the farmer in grain growing and stock raising. But, just as a higher quality of grain, with larger yields, is produced in Western Canada than in the older districts, so sugar beets grown here generally contain a higher percentage of sugar and yield a greater tonnage to the acre than those grown elsewhere. Tests made with beets grown under irrigation from five different kinds of seed at the Dominion Government Experimental Station at Lethbridge showed a yield of [illegible], 16½, 15½ and 9½ tons per acre with a sugar percentage of 15.54, 13.42, 17.85 and 16.25 respectively. In the same district crops without irrigation yielded 9½ to 12½ tons per acre from the same seed. Even better results have been obtained from beets grown under irrigation in the Eastern and Western Sections of the Irrigation Block of the Canadian Pacific Railway, east of Calgary, Alberta. Beets with a sugar content of twenty percent have been grown there in successive years and growers there are confident that this high percentage can be maintained with large crops. It is safe to say that practically any soil capable of producing such grain as is produced in Western Canada will produce satisfactory sugar beets, even though the results may not be so gratifying as those achieved with irrigation.

More than twelve years ago the possibilities of sugar beet production in Alberta have been recognized, and in giving evidence before a committee appointed by the Dominion Government to enquire into the tariff on sugar a representative of the Raymond Sugar Company, Raymond, Alberta, stated that at that time the company had already demonstrated that the beet sugar industry, under proper conditions, could be developed to an enormous extent in Alberta, and that the general conditions, etc., compared very favorably with those existing in the States of Utah and Idaho, which at that date were two of the largest producing districts in the Union.

"Combined with the live stock industry, sugar beet cultivation builds up prosperous districts more quickly and substantially than probably any other mode of commercial development. The feeding value of the beet pulp and tops needs no comment. As a rotation crop for the cultivation of soil values there is none better.

In regard to seed production, it is believed that a superior quality of seed can be produced in Alberta in marketable quantities. The soil in the Eastern Section of the Irrigation Block is admirably adapted for the growth of beets for seed, which will, no doubt, develop into one of the most important branches of industry.

A word as to the markets will be interesting. In 1916, the consumption of sugar in Alberta was approximately 42,000,000 pounds, in British Columbia 33,000,000 pounds, in Saskatchewan [illegible] pounds, and in Manitoba [illegible] pounds, making a total for the Western Provinces alone of [illegible] pounds. The total production of sugar in the whole of the Dominion amounted to 37,000,000 only. A large market is therefore right at the door. Alberta alone has an area sufficiently large to produce sugar for the needs of Western Canada and also to export large quantities. This is undoubtedly one of the future industries of Western Canada, especially in the districts where irrigation is practised.

NO PEACE TALK IN U.S. SENATE

President Believes Present Is Time to Fight not to Debate.

Washington, Aug 16.—Senator J. The Illinois Senator recently had a conference with the President, and among other things peace was touched upon, the President, it is understood, having expressed the opinion that any peace talk now is premature. The resolution which went over for debate, is believed to reflect the sentiment of the President

France.

Dear Friend:

I received the parcel from the Canadian Kitchener Club and was very pleased for the socks which I gave to my friends, as instructed, and I assure you they were greatly appreciated by the boys in the trenchs.

Thanking you one and all for your kindness. I remain, yours truly, 59489 PTE. NORMAN HURL.

To Mrs. Armstrong.

Mrs. Francis Armstrong, 150 George street, has received the following letter of thanks:

Dear Friends:

I received the parcel of socks which you sent me, and they were certainly welcome as I had just come out of the trenches when they arrived. The candy and tobacco were also very welcome. There are quite a few Petrborough boys in our company, and again thanking you on behalf of them and myself. I remain, sincerely yours,

G. G. EASON.

A Call For Help.

Mrs. Armstrong has also reecived the follownig letter from her son Ross:

Dear Mother:

I have received all the boxes, the latest arrived yesterday.

In future do not send any eatables beyond a few candies or gum as it is against regualtions now to reecive anything outside the rations; of course that only holds for those whose people live in England but I think it is better if you don't as things spoil on the way, you know, and besides, we get plenty to eat now.

The last time Keirstead saw me I was just out of hospital, so all the reports you hear about me give them the go by. My health, eyesight, etc., is all to the merry, only I cannot hear in my left ear; that will probably return, in fact it is much better now than it was a few months back.

I saw Tony Morrell in town on Saturday and he was looking very fit and in khaki, just leaving for Dover.

Ask Dad to show you the letter I sent to the Mayor, they are my sentiments and others as well, of the young man who does not enlist in some branch of the service. The average man on the street today does not realize the seriousness of the situation. The freedom of the English speaking race and the democracy of man is in the balance and weight of metal alone will not tip the beam our way. There must be weight of man power as well. Let them wake up before it is too late. It will be a dark blot indeed on the honor of the democratic man, if those brave souls have gone out in vain, while tens of thousands of English speaking civilians look on unmoved.

Your loving son,
ROSS.

POLICE TRACK THE GAY MASHER

YOUNG FELLOWS WHO MOLEST GIRLS LIKELY TO GET INTO TROUBLE

For some time the police have been receiving complaints regarding young men accosting girls on the streets, particularly those who are strangers to the city, and a close watch has been kept with the intention of catchin the offenders.

A young woman who works in the Boston Cafe had complained to the police of her being followed on her way home and P.C. Pratt was detailed to look after her. On Monday night last he arrested Norman Bruce for speaking to her.

At the police court this morning the magistrate dismissed the case for but at the same time he warned the defendant that the evidenece token would be used against him on a future charge and that the police would be instructed to look after his conduct. The court also expressed a very strong opinion as to the young men who wilfully molest or interfere with young girls on the streets.

HARDLY TO BLAME

A prisoner named Montgomery escaped form Barrie goal last week. Fifteen deserters from Camp Borden were in the goal at the time and Montgomery's objection to associating with them is given as the reason of his action. He has not been recaptured.

The influx of American tourists has suddenly increased.

A further drive on the crops of Ontario will be made by an army of men on Monday.

VANDAL HUNS SET FIRE TO CATHEDRAL IN ST. QUENTIN

Nothing is Left of Edifice But Walls---Huns Are Pillaging Town and Sending Stolen Valuables to Germany---French Continue to Make Progress.

Paris, Aup. 17.—Thursday night's official statement says: In Belgium our attack continued with success during the day. Our infantry broke the enemy's resistance west of the Steenbeke, and continuing its progress in conjunction with the British troops, captured the positions of the enemy and more than three hundred prisoners and much material. Artillery was active in the regions of Laffaux and Hurtebis. In the region of Hill 304 our patrols brought in some prisoners. Two German attacks in Alsace completely failed.

The Germans fired cathedral of St. Quentine which has been burning for several hours.

Those Vandal Huns.

French Front in France, Aug. 17—(Associated Press)—Fire in St. Quentin cathedral which was first observed at six o'clock Wednseday evening by the French sentinels in the trench outside the town was certainly not due to French fire. There was little bombardment that night and when the fire was observed the surrounding landscape was singularly peaceful.

Prisoners say the town has lately been pillaged by officers and men who are sending stolen valuables to Germany. Fire lighted up the town and surrounding country till 2 o'clock in the morning. As it died down it was seen the steep roof had fallen. Everything but the walls must be destroyed.

Blame the Allies.

A German official statement from Berlin says:

Near St. Quentin, the French, in the afternoon, developed especial firing activity. They were successful by means of about 3000 shells thrown on the inner town, in setting the presbytery on fire. From there the flames spread to the cathedral, which has been burning since 8.30 o'clock last evening."

The cathedral or Church of St. Quentin, reported burning by the Germans, is one of the finest Gothic buildings in that part of France and was erected between the twelfth and fifteenth centuries. The building has double transepts and the nave is 370 feet long and 130 feet high. It is very finely decorated and contains some handsome bas-reliefs. In the crypt of the church are buried St. Quentin and his fellow martyrs, St. Victorious and St. Gentianius.

"The cathedral dated in some of its parts from the thirteenth century, and contained some remarkably fine stained glass windows. The enemy set fire to two villages close to St. Quentin last night."

BRITISH DRIVE BACK ALL ATTACKS ON NEW POSTS

Slight Gain Made by Germans in Second Assault Was Easily Overcome.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 17.—The official statement says: Early last night the enemy twice counter attacked the new positions gained by us yesterday east of Loos in the direction of Cite Auguste. At the second attempt he succeeded in pressing back our line slightly at some points, but later in the night our troops again attacked and reestablished our position. Further hostile counter attacks were completely repulsed. We secured few prisoners. Artillery has been active on both sides east of Ypres.

The keener the critic the more cutting the criticism.

CONSERVATIVES ARE NOT IN LEAGUE WITH NATIONALISTS

Sir Robert Borden Says He and His Political Friends Will Assist in Defeating That Faction.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 17.—Before the orders of the day were called yesterday afternoon Sir Robert Borden rose and read the following statements:

My attention has been drawn to a statement that the Nationalist party in the Province of Quebec is about to put candidates in the field on its own behalf against Liberal and Conservative candidates, and I am told the suggestion is being made that there is some collusion between the Nationalist Party of the Province of Quebec and my Government or the friends of my Government in regard to the campaign of the Nationalist party. The suggestion is also made that because the friends of the present Government and the Nationalist party both opposed Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the election of 1911 that there is now some connection of collusion and that my supporters and friends are in fact encouraging the Nationalist party of Quebec, in the course which they are adopting.

"I desire," said the Premier, "to make a most emphatic unreserved and comprehensive denial to this statement."

"There is not, and never will be, any collusion whatever between my friends and supporters and those of the Nationalist party of Quebec.

I regard the attitude of the Nationalist party in Quebec in this war as unpatriotic, and I consider that it is the first duty of myself and my friends to assist in defeating that party and to prevent it, so far as we are able from being in a position to exercise any political power in Canada."

TWO AVIATORS KILLED ON DUTY

COLLISIONS OF AIRPLANES IN TRAINING PRACTICES THE CAUSE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Cadet Gallie of Winnipeg was killed at Camp Mohawk, Deseronto, yesterday. Two airplanes were landing and one hundred feet from the ground the other struck Gallie's from behind, depriving it of control. It fell to the earth, killing Gallie in the fall.

Fatality at Toronto.

Toronto, Aug. 17.—Cadet Dorr was killed about seven o'clock this morning in a collision between two aeroplanes near Armour Heights Aviation Camp, North Toronto. The machines collided at a height of one hundred feet, Dorr's catching fire and crashing to the ground. His neck was broken and his body badly burned. The pilot of the other machine had a miraculous escape.

Dorr came from New Jersey and the aviator who collided with him and escaped injury is also an American.

TEUTONS CLAIM RECAPTURE OF LANGEMARCK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, Aug. 17.—German advance post along the Yser Canal near Dreigrachten in Belgium were overrun yesterday by the troops of the Entente Allies, says the German official statement issued to-day. The enemy also captured ground northeast of Bixschoote. At St. Julien and at many points further south to Warneton, the statement adds, the Entente Allied forces penetrated the new German battle zone, but by evening Langemarck and our lost position, the statement says, was again in our hands.

At the time of writing he was well and looking forward to more interesting flights.

BILL TO ACQUIRE C.N.R. IS PASSED BY MAJORITY OF 25

Parliament Divided on Second Reading on Straight Party Lines --- Liberals Raise Usual Cry of Raid on Treasury---Mr- Bennett Changes His Views.

Ottawa, August 17.—The government by a majority of 25 carried the second reading of the Canadian Northern bill in the house of commons, and by the same majority defeated the Graham amendment which proposed to take over the road without any compensation for the common stock. It soon became apparent, how ever, that only one milestone had been passed, for a rancorous opposition from the Liberal side developed as soon as the bill went into committee.

Bennett's Changed Views.

The feature of the debate on the second reading was a speech delivered by R. B. Bennett of Calgary. Three years ago Mr. Bennett made a vitriolic attack upon Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann, and together with Mr. Nickle of Kingston, bolted on the government's bill authorizing a bond guarantee of $45,000,000. Today he was in milder mood, and insisted that it would be an outrage to confiscate the stock of Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann without some enquiry as to its value. He pointed out that the cost of material and labor had so greatly increased that the road could not be reproduced and equipped at present for anything like what it cost, and he insisted that the board of arbitrators should estimate reproduction cost on a pre-war basis. Mr. Bennett also argued that the government might find itself bound to construct a number of lines which were not needed, with money in bank from the sale of C. N. R. bonds. He believed that the bill should be so amended as to leave the government free to accept or refuse to act upon the award of the arbitrators .

Airships Active on Belgian Front

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 17.—The Admiralty announces the successful carrying out yesterday by a series of raids by aviators of the Royal Naval Air Service who dropped many tons of bombs on military objectives in Belgium. The Ostend railway station and the sidings were attacked. The airdrome at Ghistelles was bombed and several fires observed. Attacks from the air were made on the airdromes at Engel and Uytkerke. All the airplanes returned safely.

Hours Have Been Limited To Eight A Day By Ontario Government

On and after September 1 the provincial government will stipulate in all licenses issued to manufacturers permitting them to employ women as munition workers that eight hours will constitute a night shift and no girl or woman will be allowed to work more than 48 hours a week on night labor. Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid, minister of public works who made this announcement yesterday, added tha under the present license a ten-hour night shift, or 60 hours' work a week was permitted.

A move to exempt medical students from the draft is finding favor in Washington.

HOW PETERBOROUGH HOTELS AND HOUSEHOLDS KEPT FAST TODAY

No Meat of Any Kind Was Served at Empress and Other Hotels, Saving Being Carried to the Limit--Penalties for Infraction of New Order.

Today is Canada's third meatless day for all patriotic citizens. It differs from the past two meatless days in that stiff penalties are provided for those proprietors, managers and employes of public eating places who offend against the new regulations.

All such are liable upon summary conviction for the first offence to a penalty not exceeding $100 and not less than $25, and for each subsequent offence, to a penalty not exceeding $500 and not less than $100, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months, or to both fine and imprisonment.

How Peterborough Fasted.

The meatless day was religiously observed in all the restaurants and hotels and in private residences generally. In the hotels the patrons accepted the new bill of fare without a murmur. While the order of Controller Hanna does not prohibit the use of any meat except beef and bacon some of the local hotels went the limit and served no meat of any kind. At the Empress the guests fell in with the new order and no complaints were heard. At that hotel the menu for luncheon was as follows:

Canadian Pea Soup
Mixed Sweet Pickles. Club House Olives.
Steamed Salmon Trout. Egg Sauce.
Italienne Green Peppers. Stuffed, a la Gratin.
Eggs, Spanish style. Indian Curry Sauce.
Rice Carrots with Fruit.
Fried Sea Bass, a la Tartare.
Empress Salad, Mayonnaise.
Clover Leaf Salmon. Shredded Clover Leaf Salmon.
Shredded Lettuce.
Nova Scotia Sardines, Olive Oil.
Steamed New Potatoes. Big Baked Potatoes.
Green Corn on the Cob, Butter Sauce.
Indian Custard Pudding. Maple Syrup.
Green Apple Pie. Blackberry Pie.
Strawberry Jelly. Vanilla Ice Cream.
McLaren's Canadian Cheese.
Oranges, Bananas, Nuts and Raisins.
Tea Coffee Milk

Even the man with the most fastidious gastronomic taste would find little missing from such a repast.

The Householder's Pledge.

To win the war this household is pledged to carry out conscientiously the advice and directions of the Food Controller.

The above is a copy of the card which will be hung in the windows of Canadian homes from coast to coast of the Dominion very shortly.

The food pledge of which every one will receive duplicate copies to sign (one to keep and the other to return to Ottawa) reads as follows:

"Realizing the gravity of the food situation and knowing that Great Britain and our Allies look to Canada to help to shatter Germany's threat of starvation: I pledge myself and my household to carry out conscientiously the advice and directions of the Food Controller that requisite foodstuffs may be released for export to the Canadian divisions, the British forces and people and the Allied armies and nations."

Address ....
Signed by ....
No. in Household ....

A few facts on the back of the window card are the following:

Save wheat. Great Britain and our Allies must have 460,000,000 bushels from Canada and the United States. Normal consumption must be reduced by at least 25 per cent. to meet war needs.

Save Beef and Bacon. Normal consumption must be reduced by at least 25 per cent. to meet war needs.

The demand for these commodities is imperative. The men in the trenches will go hungry if you fail them. Will you let them fight for you and you not fight for them?

You can use substitutes, such as other meats, fish, eggs, milk, oatmeal, barley, etc., with benefit to your health.

You betray your country's cause when you waste food. Over $50,000,000 worth of foodstuffs goes into the garbage waggons of Canada every year. Such waste in wartime is a crime. Your loyalty is mensurable by your saving.

Eat perishable products. Preserve, dry, can and store the garden truck which has been produced so abundantly this year. By doing so you prevent waste and release storable foods for export.

Victory is dependent upon the extent of your food service.

(Signed) W. J. HANNA,
Food Controller.

Germany Will Take Time to Consider

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, Aug. 17.—The German government's attitude on the so important a matter as the peace proposal of Pope Benedict can only be made known after the most careful deliberation, particularly as its decision can only be taken in full accord with Germany's allies. A statement to this effect has been communicated by the German foreign office to the German press.

FRENCH ARMY SHOWS NO SIGNS OF EXHAUSTION

Vigor With Which They Meet German Assaults Indicates Fine Condition of Troops.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Aug. 19.—In Belgium the German attack against our new positions on both sides of the Steenbeke River was repulsed completely. At night fall yesterday, the enemy after an intense bombardment of our positions made a vigorous attack on a front of more than two kilometres between Vauclerc Mill and the Californie plateau. Beaten back by our artillery fire, the German infantry was unable to approach our lines at any point. Violent and repeated attacks against positions we captured recently east of Cerny also met with a sanguinary check.

It has been established that losses of Germans during operations from August thirteenth to fifteenth in vicinity of the Craonne plateau were particularly heavy.

Surprise attacks of the enemy west of Braye-en-Laonneris were easily broke up. In Champagne there was heavy artillery fighting near Mont Blond and Carnhillet. On both banks of the Meuse Verdon front there was spirited artillery engagements.

To the right of the river the Germans after a brief bombardment, made a violent attack last night on a front between the northern corner of Caurieres Wood and Bezonveaux. Our counter attacks and the precision of our fire ejected the enemy from almost all points at which he succeeded in gaining a footing in the advanced elements of our first line.

CANADIANS ARE HOLDING FAST

GERMANS FAIL IN DESPERATE ATTEMPTS TO RETAKE LOST GROUND.

(By Stewart Lyon)

British Front in France, Aug. 17.—German troops last night made a determined attempt to recover a small section of the ground taken by the Canadians yesterday north east of Lens, but their successive counter attacks were driven off with heavy losses to the enemy. The first counter attack on the Canadian centre made in the early evening was an absolute failure. About nine o'clock the Germans again surged forward and succeeded in pushing back a few advanced posts, but the Canadians subsequently moved forward and reoccupied the positions. The sections which had seen such hard fighting were heavily shelled by the Germans throughout the night. The British and French are succeeding satisfactorily with the consolidation of their new positions all along the front.

EVERYTHING BECOMING NORMAL AGAIN IN SPAIN

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY, AUG. 17, 1917

THE PENSION SCALE.

Even if a pension of $480 was sufficient some time ago, the price of butter, potatoes, coal, rent, clothes and every thing else has gone up so rapidly that the pension does not represent anything like $480 now, and this must be taken into consideration. People may say: If you are going to provide against fluctuation, what about when things go down in price? Well, that is really alarming. Would it not be an awful thing if the soldier got a dollar or two too much? They have given their best for us; they have faced the cannon's mouth, and we are so frightened they may get a dollar or two extra in case of a fluctuation downwards that we will not run the risk of providing against a fluctuating upwards. That is really one of the most appalling things I ever heard. That kind of thing won't satisfy the people of this country and it won't satisfy the soldiers.—Capt. Burnham in Parliament.

LAURIER THE NATIONALIST.

(St. Thomas Times.)

"I am in the war to the end," says Sir Wilfrid Laurier. But the trouble is, as the Peterborough Review says, if he had his way he would bring it to an end at once, so far as Canada is concerned."—St. Thomas Times.

Both The Times and The Review know this statement to be untrue. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier says he is for the carrying on of the war, he means it. Such an attitude is in keeping with his whole career. Ontario Tory papers read what their erstwhile friend, Bourassa, has said, and then try to make themselves believe Bourassa and Laurier think alike. Of course, they know better, but they do not care if they only do Laurier harm in Ontario.—Simcoe Reformer.

The only excuse we can think of for the Reformer in its mushy adulation of the Liberal leader is that it is an idol-worshipper and that its idol is Laurier. When Sir Wilfrid says: "I am in the war to the end," his words belie his actions in the past, and his future must be judged by his past.

Bourassa and Lavergne are creations of Laurier. Nationalism existed in Quebec long before Henri Bourassa's appearance as a leader. As far back as 1867 we find Wilfrid Laurier doing his utmost to balk the plan of conscription. He appealed to his compatriots fifty years ago in these words:

"That is not the way we politicians of the Papineau school look at the matter; when any change whatsoever is proposed in our political or social institutions, we do not look to see whether this change will be of any use to the English colonies or to any other neighbor; we think only of Lower Canada and the French race."

The above was uttered when Laurier was on the threshold of his political career. He continued to preach Nationalism and he has done so right down to date, though covertly when the occasion required it. But in 1892, from his place in Parliament, Wilfrid Laurier said:

"Is there a Canadian anywhere who would not hail with joy the day when we would be deprived of the services of British diplomacy? . . . I have again and again repeated that the goal of my aspiration is to see Canada an independent nation."

It was the knowledge of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's anti-British sentiments that caused the Conservative party to hesitate until recently to advocate a Union Government. Laurier himself has been the obstacle to Union Government since August, 1914. Even Liberals see this now, for the Liberal leader has been repudiated by a majority of the Liberals in Parliament outside Quebec and by the leading Liberal newspapers of Canada.

If the Reformer will brush up its political history it will find that the views of The Times and the Peterborough Review are based on occurrences that will lead any student other than a Laurier idolator to no other conclusion.

MR. GORDON IN COURT.

When a man is arrested on a charge of "mashing" on the streets the complaint is made under the bylaw which is designed to prevent disorderly conduct. All such cases are so regarded in the courts the country over as there is no Act on the statute books dealing with such matters. There have been convictions in Peterborough of men who were accused of forcing their attractions upon women on the streets.

The City Attorney is paid to represent the municipality in all cases involving the violation of a bylaw. Yesterday such a case was up before the Police Magistrate and Chief Thompson was obliged to appear in the role of prosecuting attorney. Mr. Gordon, in the words of the celebrated Mr. Jaggers was "over the way," that is he appeared for the defendant. In the meantime his salary as city attorney goes on as usual. By every artifice known to a clever lawyer he pleaded the cause of his client and secured his acquittal.

More and more it becomes apparent that Mr. Gordon holds public office too numerously. No man can reasonably be expected to take on a mutiplicity of duties. In the meantime the interests of the city should not be allowed to suffer. Any legal functionary who is paid to enforce the city bylaws should not object if there is a public demand that he earn his wages. Then again, when the Chief of Police brings a complaint for an infraction of the Ontario Temperance Act the City Attorney is supposed to appear on behalf of the people even though there may be nothing to prevent his appearing for the defence when the charge is made by the License Inspector.

Mr. Gordon in one particular is to be congratulated. He deplores the advertising of liquor by the newspapers. That is to be stopped by Act of Parliament, but there is to be no interference with the right of any thrifty attorney to add to his income by appearing in court as champion of those who may be charged with infraction of the temperance act. Neither is there any legal bar to his drawing pay from the city while representing the other side. It is all a question of professional ethics and individual taste.

Wit and Wisdom

"Ma, won't you let me have some cake now?" "Didn't Oi tell ye Oi wouldn't give it to ye at all if ye didn't kape still?' "Yes, but—" "Well, the longer ye kape still the longer ye'll get it, moind that."

An Englishwoman went into an egg store and asked for fresh eggs. "Yes, mum, plenty," said the shopman; "them with a hen on 'em are fresh." "I don't see any with a hen on them," said the lady, looking around for a nest. "The leter 'hen,' mum, not the bird. 'Hen' stands for noo-laid, mum."

When Mr. Murphy went out on his first joy ride he was instructed on no account to speak to the driver. But it seemed rather necessary a little later to consult the chauffeur, and he said, hesitatingly: "Pardon me, sor, for speakin', but since ye bumped over those stones twenty minutes ago Mrs. Murphy has not been in the car."

An old lady once went up to a sailor and asked him why the ship had stopped.

"Can't get along on account of the fog," said the sailor.

"But can't you go by the stars?"

"We're not going that way unless the boiler busts, mum."

The editor of an Arkansas paper throws himself on the mercy of the court and makes no attempt to defend himself. He says: "The lawyers tell us that ignorance of the law excuses no man. And then we are solemnly informed that the law-making bodies of the country, state and national, in the past five years have passed no less than 62,550. We'll plead guilty to the charge, whatever it is."

An Irishman coming out of ether in the ward after an operation exclaimed audibly: "Thank God!" That is over!" "Don't be so sure," said the man in the next bed, "they left a sponge in me and had to cut me open again." And the patient on the other side said: "Why they had to open me, too, to find one of their instruments." Just then the surgeon who had operated on the Irishman stuck his head in the door and yelled: "Has anybody seen my hat?" Poor Patrick fainted.

The visitor rang his bell furiously three times. After some delay a genial chambermaid appeared. "This towel is disgraceful!" exclaimed the traveller, brandishing the offending article, and then suddenly remembering to dry his hands on his handkerchief. The chambermaid picked up the towel with an air of pained surprise. "Shure, yer honor," she retorted with spirit, "sivinty-five gintlemen have wiped their hands on this towel, and ye are the first to complain."

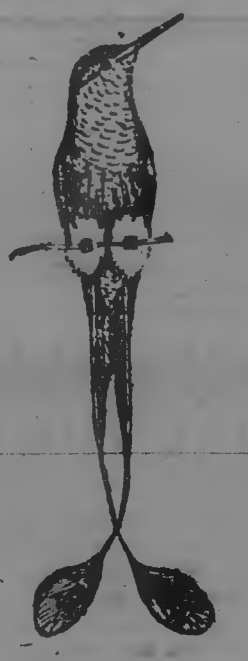
THIS BIRD MOSTLY TAIL

He Is Called the Raquet Bird Because of Curious Appendages

The great sorrow of the racket-tail bird's life is that tennis is an unknown game in the tree tops of Jamaica.

There he is with the finest pair of rackets you ever saw—right with him all the time and not a net in sight and no one to toss a ball to him.

But the racket-tail is a sensible bird so in spite of his great disappointment about the tennis games he's missing he cheerfully turns his rackets to account by using them as a tail. And he has heaps of fun with them; he knows more than 50 ways of crossing and recrossing and twisting those long, feathered prongs, and when he's tired of that game he flits about from rubber plant to lemon tree snapping his tail as a 'bus driver cracks his blacksnake whip.



The Racket-tail Bird

For all his long tail the racket-tail bird is a very tiny creature—plucked of his feathers, and his tail he's no bigger than a bumble bee.

POTATO SEED COUNTS

Advice For Albertans From A Calgary Expert

Seed is one of the most important factors in potato growing. There are certain characteristics in potatoes by which they are easily and clearly identified as distinct varieties. It would seem that many of these varieties have been renamed and also that many of them by change of climate, soil, cultural conditions or other causes have lost a great deal of their original character. Under these circumstances the charactertistics of a variety are really of more importance than the mere name. They may briefly be stated as the: 1. Maturing qualities; 2. Attractive qualities; 3. Utility or cropping qualities.

The Alberta season is decidedly short and as the eating and keeping quality of potatoes depend largely on their ripeness, it is, therefore, desirable that we plant the early maturing varieties. Some varieties are more attractive in appearance than others. The nice oval shaped, smooth, clean-skinned, shallow-eyed, fine grained white flesh varieties are always preferable. The color has also to be considered. The white or pale bluish skinned varieties are generally more acceptable than the deep red varieties which are apt to be tinted in the flesh. There is a great difference in the cropping qualities of certain varieties. Some give a much heavier yield than others, even when planted in the same ground, and under the same treatment.—H. C. Burrows, Calgary.

POPE BENEDICT'S PEACE PROPOSALS

The difficulty of appraising peace proposals couched in general terms—even when inspired by a purpose as noble as that which has impelled Pope Benedict to appeal to the warring Powers—is encountered at the very first contact with the suggested outline.

As to Belgium for instance, what is meant by restoration? Merely restoration to the map or restoration to conditions which existed when the Kaiser informed President Wilson, through Ambassador Gerard, that Germany had found it necessary to violate Belgian neutrality "on strategical grounds?"

Restoration that means no more than the criminal's withdrawal from the scene of his unspeakable crimes, or restoration that means reparation, restitution, indemnity?

It cannot be that the Pope, if his proposal is correctly reported as declaring that injuries to all the belligerents have been so great that there should be no thought of reparation except by the return of territory, had in mind the awful injuries of innocent Belgium.

That disposition of the case, that dismissal of the offender from the court of the World's Opinion with no heavier sentence than that he must evacuate the territory blighted and blasted by his crime, must seem to the Vatican, as it would seem to Cardinal Mercier, a mockery of God's justice.

THE END OF A FAMOUS CASE

An important case which has been before the American public in one form or another for seventeen years, has just reached its end. It is the labor case generally known as that of the Danebury hatters. The proprietors of a modest hat factory in Danebury, Connecticut, conducted their business on the "open shop" principles. Representatives of the United States Hatters of America desired to "unionize" the factory, that is, to require that only members of the Hatters' Union be allowed to work in it. The proprietors refused to consent to this. Some time was spent in efforts to persuade the manufacturers to submit. Fourteen years ago the contest came to head. Union men were ordered out of the shop, non-union men were threatened and the business of the establishment was boycotted by trade union men throughout the country. The proprietors, after suffering heavy loss, took action against the United Hatters for damages, under the Sherman Act respecting combinations in restraint of trade. The defendants entered a plea in demurrer that the Act did not apply to labor unions. This demurrer was sustained by the first court, but was overruled by the Supreme Court which, in 1908, held that the Act did so apply. Then followed trial and appeal from court to court on the merits of the case, the setting aside of a verdict on technical grounds, a new trial with a verdict for the plaintiffs for $252,000 and further appeal. Finally the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States confirmed the verdict. The United Hatters then endeavored to obtain an appropriation from Congress to pay the damage, but this effort was not successful. The homes of a number of defendants were attached to enforce payment of the damages, and these properties were about to be sold a few days ago when the union, which had raised money by assessment for the purpose paid the amount of the verdict and costs thus ending the case. The result of the long years of litigation is that the courts hold labor unions as well as all other bodies under the provisions of the Sherman Act.

WASTE VALUE IN SEWAGE

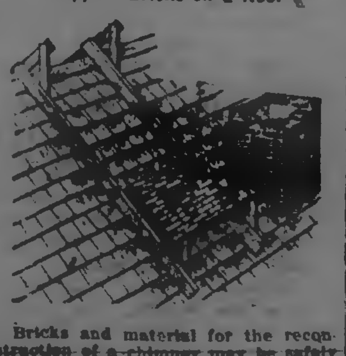
Sewage Must Be Treated Somehow—A Profitable Method

The necessity for proper treatment and disposal of sewage cannot be too strongly emphasized in Canada. Many municipalities have been very active along these lines but unfortunately a greater percentage have been extremely negligent. More than sixty inland water systems of Canada are at present receiving raw sewage, 180 municipalities contributing to this very undesirable condition. The practice of treating sewage is being recognized as imperative throughout the civilised world and would possibly spread more rapidly throughout Canada were some of its economic aspects better known.

Recent experiments have been made in this connection to determine the feasibility of a new process to extract grease and fertilizer base from sewage. Ordinary sewage sludge from settling basins is greasy, offensive and of so little practical value that farmers will not accept it for fertilizer, even as a gift; yet this sludge contains valuable fertilizing elements and considerable grease. The settling of the sludge and the extraction of the grease is facilitated by the addition of certain chemicals and the process is found to possess the following advantages:

1. The chemical treatment practically pays for itself by the sale of the grease and fertilizer recovered. 2. The sewage is disinfected. 3. The chemical acts as a strong deodorizer and prevents the usual nuisance of treatment works. 4. The fly nuisance is also avoided for the same reason. The process has been thoroughly investigated and tested, with results that seem to indicate that it will not only be successful, but profitable.

Support Bricks on a Roof



Bricks and material for the reconstruction of a chimney may be safely and conveniently placed on a roof by using the frame shown in the sketch. It is simple in construction and requires less lumber than a platform. The latter, if rested on the roof gutter, may cause damage, and if the gutter is not in good condition an accident may result.—Popular Mechanics.

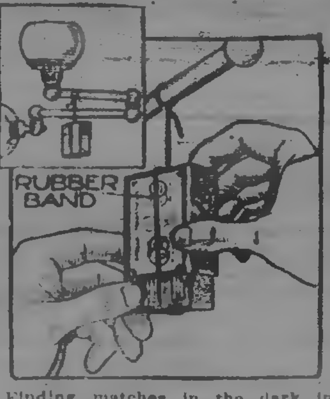
MRS. TOM THUMB STILL ON STAGE

FAMOUS CHARACTER OF A GENERATION AGO COMES OUT OF RETIREMENT.

Fathers and mothers of the present day will recall with delight General Tom Thumb, 31 inches high, and his charming wife, one inch taller. General Tom Thumb died in 1883, but his diminutive wife survived, and some years later married Count Magri. Since then she has been living in retirement, but this season, though she has reached her 76th birthday, yearned for one more season of public life, and chose the World at Home Shows as the medium. She will be seen with this famous carnival company at the Canadian National Exhibition. Mrs. Tom Thumb was a favorite of the late Queen Victoria and a pet of royalty the world over in her early days.

Match Safe on Gas Fixture



Finding matches in the dark in order to light a gas fixture is often a trying experience. Suspending a match safe from the fixture, as shown in the illustration, solves the difficulty. The match box is suspended on a string and a rubber band is placed around it. While the matches are being withdrawn the box is held open, and as soon as it is released the band closes it. This makes it safe to strike the match on the box without danger of igniting other matches.—Popular Mechanics.

Watch Steering Gear

One's life depends upon the stability of the steering mechanism of the automobile. Too great stress cannot be laid upon the necessity for a careful inspection of these parts at frequent intervals. Between the steering control and wheels there are numerous connections, any one of which, if defective, might prove disastrous. It is not an unnecessary hardship to inspect the front wheel bearings also at times when the general inspection is made.

Orange Shortcake

Cream a tablespoon each of lard and butter with four cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder and a little salt. Bake in a round tin and when done cut in half, spread with plenty of butter and oranges sliced and sprinkled with sugar.

Scotch Scones

Four cups of flour, half teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of baking soda, one heaping teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Put dry ingredients through sifter, mix enough buttermilk to make stiff dough, roll out and bake on hot griddle; don't grease griddle.

Renewing Gloves

Old black kid gloves that have become shabby at the finger-tips will look fresh again if sponged with ink and allowed to dry well before they are worn again. If hard, rub with a very little olive oil.

Buckwheat Griddles

Mix two cups of buckwheat flour with two cups of milk, two teaspoons each of sugar and baking powder. bake in small cakes on a well greased griddle.

If you have a small bottle which no cork will fit try boiling any cork which is handy five minutes and when it is soft it can be moulded to fit any bottle.

Meat that is to be grilled should never be salted, as this hardens the fibres and tends to extract the juices.

French Salad

Stew gently in their own liquor a small can of French peas. When they have absorbed all their liquor remove from the fire and let cool. Chop half a pound of English walnuts, mix with the peas, salt to taste, and pour over a cup of mayonnaise dressing.

Darning Hint

By darning diagonally across the weaves, instead of with it, the stitches are not nearly so likely to pull away from the edges of the darned spot.

Baking powder, wet, will remove warts if bandaged on and kept moist.

EAT FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

The relationship between good blood and a plentiful supply of vegetables and fruits is profound. Upon this relationship the integrity of the human constitution is built.

There would be very little anemia, nervous prostration, neuritis, rheumatism, dyspepsia or tuberculosis in the world if men, women and children understood this most significent of the laws nutrition.

Every animal experiment ever performed has demonstrated the truth and importance of this proposition.

The grasses in the field, the green things that grow in Mother Earth, the fruits that hang from vine and tree possess the power to organise the minerals found in clay into those highly complex forms in which they can be utilized by animal and man.

With all his intelligence and all his laboratory apparatus, man is powerless to achieve this miracle, yet in his presumpeion he offers excuses for his work of refining foods, and even justifies the destroying methods which his commercial instincts have developed.

Grasses, the seeds of grasses, and the fruits of the tree, which include vegetables and cereals constitute the ideal food of man. If he wisely provides a sufficient and constant supply of these foods he may add to his diet in moderation and without harm all the other foods craved by his artificial tastes. Such a diet may include the fleshpots of Egypt and the sweets of modern times.

The great nutritional evils of the day can be traced to the topsy-turvy formula which he has established in making meats, refined and exhausted breadstuffs, and sickening sweets the important factors in his dietetic regime. By reversing this order he may still enjoy the animal flavors and the cloying saccharines for which he yearns without burdening his body with the woes which grow out of his fondness for the unbalanced foods which are now depraving the stamina of America.

Individual Lobster Salads

Choose crisp fruit leaves of lettuce, and place in circular shape on plate. Slice small cucumber thinly over centre of lettuce. Take part of contents for each person of small tin of lobster shred fine and sprinkle over cucumber. Next choose small ripe tomatoes. Slice thinly and arrange in circle on outer edge of lettuce leaves. Cover centre with thick mayonnaise and sprinkle with shredded nuts. Garnish with parsley or pepper grass, Very good.

YOU MIGHT TRY

When cream is too thin to whip easily, add the white of an egg to each pint of cream.

To brighten carpets wipe them with warm water to which has been added a few drops of ammonia.

Ground mustard is excellent for cleaning the hands after handling onions and other strong smelling things.

If, when breaking eggs into a bowl, a piece of shell gets into the egg just touch it with the half shell and it can be easily removed.

Doormats can be prevented from fraying and made to last much longer by buttonhole stitching all around the edges with a large packing needle and some medium sized string. The stitches should be about one inch apart and one inch deep.

GOOD IRONING HINTS

Try the Following to Save Time and Trouble

If table cloths are inclined to drop unevenly at the ends, iron them folded in half. Start at the ends and press the linen towards the centre of the cloth. Unnecessary creases can be easily removed later with another iron. A good tip, too, is to bind the edges of your table-linen firmly with wide white tape on the wrong side. This strengthens the corners and keeps them straight. Iron embroidery on the right side first to give a gloss, then on the wrong side, pressing [illegible] to bring out the pattern. [illegible] muslin collars are best [illegible] wet, and the superfluous material which appears in all collars of double material should, after washing, be [illegible] towards the band [illegible] towards the edge of the collar. [illegible] should, as a rule, be ironed when quite damp, though [illegible] from the lat[illegible] material [illegible] likely [illegible]

TO DRIVE OUT FLIES

Carbolic acid is the treatment for flies. Heat a shovel or any iron article used and drop thereon twenty to thirty drops of the acid and wave it about the rooms. The vapor kills the flies. If you prefer you can burn pyrethrum powder or any insect powder prefered.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Drink Coffee in Morning

Q.—I find that if I drink coffee within a few hours before going to bed I am unable to sleep. Why is this?

COFFEE DRINKER.

Caffeine, the alkaloid present in coffee, affects the nerves in such a way that the sensation of fatigue is removed. This does not mean that after the effects of the coffee are gone the body will not feel the need of making up whatever sleep is lost. As a matter of fact, the final effect is to produce greater fatigue than would otherwise be experienced.

Coffee is best consumed in the morning, as its influence during the day is less apt to be felt than when consumed at night.

More About Flour

Q.—What kind of flour is red dog flour?

INQUIRER.

In the production of refined white flour the commercial miller aims to remove as much as the outer layers of the wheat kernel as he possibly can. The part that leaves the mill rollers first yields after sifting, a powdery flour that consists almost entirely of starch. This is considered in the trade as the highest grade flour. It has been robbed of nearly all the mineral matter and oil of the whole wheat berry.

As the flour continues to pass out of the rollers it contains more and more of the bran and germ which make up the outer layers. This is separated into a few more high patent flours, and finally into a few low grades. The lowest of these is red dog flour. It contains so much bran and oil that the commercial miller considers such flour unfit food for man and sells it as cattle food, despite the fact that it furnishes far more nutriment than the human body is able to get out of white flour.

It is only in a commercial sense that first grade patent flour is high grade and red dog flour low grade. As far as actual food value is concerned the reverse is nearer the truth.

EAT LESS MEAT

How often has it been said by expert dietitians that we ought to eat less meat. Particularly in the summer months we load up our systems with too much meat. The office boy knows what is the matter when he says the boss has a bad stomach. To-day the meat problem is becoming serious, and those who are familiar with the situation are seeking the co-operation of the public to make the supply go as far as possible. To stop eating meat one must find a substitute, and Ontario is happily placed with having a substitute that costs nothing to produce, which can, when a good home market is developed, be handled at a price far below what is the present cost. The substitute is fish. The lakes and rivers of this province abound in fish of high food value. Only ten per cent of the annual catch is sold within the province, the remainder being exported. Fish could be sold in Ontario at a much lower price than what obtains on the market at present if people would only learn to use it more frequently and the dealers were able to handle it in sufficiently large quantities to buy more economically. This important consideration is being placed before the people of the province by the Organization of Resources Committee. It has a two-fold object: First, to relieve the drain on other food commodities, and second, to assist in some way to reduce the cost of living. On patriotic grounds, on economic grounds and—particularly during the hot weather—on the ground of health, it is good to eat more fish. Think it over to-morrow when arranging for dinner.

PINEAPPLE MARMALADE

Plunge a pineapple into boiling water and the skin and eyes can be removed easily, the length of time left in the water being dependent on the ripeness of the fruit. Chop very fine. Cook slowly for one hour with threequarters of a pound of sugar to each pound of fruit. This must be watched carefully and stirred well. When it stiffens when cold it is done.

Dressed Tomatoes

Take firm round tomatoes. Dip in boiling water and remove outer skin.

Remove top and pulp. Fill cavity with finely chopped celery, radishes and chopped nuts. Pour over cavity mayonnaise dressing sufficient to penetrate to bottom of filling. Garnish top with parsley and serve on crisp lettuce leaves (individuals).

MONAGHAN ASKS BOARD OF WORKS TO HURRY WORK

ON MONAGHAN ROAD WHICH IS IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

The North Monaghan Council met in the Court House on Monday, Aug. 13. Reeve Rye, Deputy Reeve Bell and Councillors Henry and Williams were present.

The following communications were then read: O'Connell and Corkery, re Elias Arthur Stinson, with a claim for damages to a mare breaking through a culvert on the Monaghan road at the end of McDonnel Street.

Referred to the township's solicitor.

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Williams, that the township of North Monaghan hereby notify the City of Peterboro to proceed with the work on Monaghan road as per agreement June 11th; that whereas some levelling has been done on this road by the city and the road is now in a very dangerous condition on this portion and also at Browntown, where it is full of holes, the township now holds the city liable for any damages which may occur to any person or vehicle on the same road as per agreement made on June 11th from the south side of Charlotte to the C.P.R. on the same road.

Moved by Mr. Willams seconded by Mr. Bell that as per township solicitor's advise that the clerk reply to Gordon and Widdifield re John Armstrong's claim for drainage on the road and state that it is purely surface water and that it is not up to the township to drain Mr. Armstrong's land.

Moved by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Henry that the clerk notify the Leonard Construction Company to properly repair Monaghan road from the C.P.R. to Lansdowne Street.

Desire Crossing Raised

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Williams, that the Clerk notify the Henry Hope Company to remove steel cuttings from the railway crossing on the siding into their factory; also that the railway crossing on the said siding be raised to a proper grade with the road. This crossing is too low, the Council said, and is dangerous, especially in winter.

Bills Presented

The following bills were presented for payment:

H. B. Rye, per the Bell Telephone Co.—$1.60.

A. Comstock re W. Johnston,, indigent—$29.

A. McDonald Estate, lumber—$8.00.

A. McDonald Estate—$25.92.

H. B. Taylor and Sons, coal—$46.05.

Henry Fowler, 28 yards gravel on Smith boundary—$4.80.

Total of all bills—131.43.

Moved by Mr. Henry, seconded by Mr. Williams, that the meeting adjourn, and that the next meeting be held on the second Monday in September in Mr. Bradburn's office.

Women Plead "Not Guilty" And Are Remanded For A Week

At the Police Court this morning Lizzie Kaus and Mrs. Sarah Coombes were charged with being offenders under the Vagrancy Act—not giving a satisfactory account of themselves.

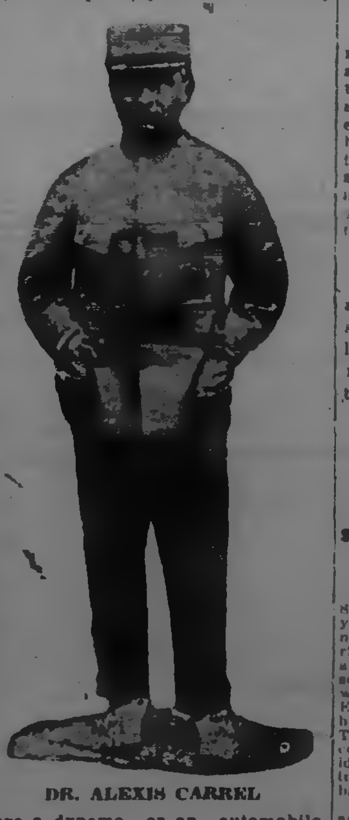
Great French Surgeon Accomplishes Wonders In Military Hospitals

DR. ALEXIS CARREL, the celebrated French surgeon, who has made startling discoveries in connection with tissue grafting and organ replacement, has crossed to the United States from France and will instruct American surgeons about to depart for the war zone. This instruction will consist largely in demonstrating the application of the Dakin solution to wounds. The so-called Carrel-Dakin method is pronounced "the great outstanding feature of relief work in the European war, saving thousands of lives and reducing the necessity for amputation to an astonishing degree."

Dr. Carrel was born at Sainte Foy-les-Lyon, France, in 1873. He received his M.D. degree in 1900, serving afterward as an interne in the hospital at Lyons and being associated with the faculty of medicine of the Lyons University.

While in the hospital at Lyons Dr. Carrel entertained very ambitious projects. Among other things, he held the opinion that parts of the human body which had worn out or got out of order might be replaced with new parts, just as if the body were a dynamo or an automobile. When in 1905, he learned of the opportunities for research work offered in connection with the Rockefeller Institute in the United States, he left France and took up his residence in the United States.



DR. ALEXIS CARREL

Dr. Carrel's special work at the Rockefeller Institute has been experimentation looking to the substitution of new limbs and new vital organs for old and diseased ones. Four years before becoming associated with the Rockefeller Institute he successfully placed a segment of the main artery of one dog in that of another dog, and the animal thus reinforced recovered normal health.

Seven years ago Dr. Carrel conducted experiments at the institute the results of [illegible] tended to show that bodily development might be controlled by transplanting tissue. A few months later he took out the kidney of a dog, washed it and replaced it—thus opening up vast possibilities in connection with the treatment of Bright's disease. In July of 1912 be demonstrated by experiments that the aorta could be successfully joined with a glass or silver tube. Shortly thereafter he cut a tissue from a fragment of a chicken's heart, and by cultivating it in a tube proved that it pulsated with life for more than three months.

In 1913 Dr. Carrel received the $39,000 Nobel prize for medicine. The award was made in recognition of his achievements in the suture of blood vessels and the transplantation of organs.

In 1914, at the outbreak of the war, he offered his services to the French Government and accomplished marvels in surgery in caring for the French and English wounded.

A New Oak.

It is interesting, even to the layman in such matters, to read that a new species of British oak has been discovered in a glade in the Savernake Forest. The dendrologists, moreover, are perfectly within their rights in calling it the Quercus pedunculata, var. cristata; but the plain man will take more interest in it when it receives, as it no doubt will in due course, its popular name. "Screw-leaved holly" and "cockscomb beech" have, of course, their official names; but there is more "general conversation" in the popular titles.

A Plague of Mice.

Mice by the million are over-running a large part of Australia. They are adding mightily to the war-time troubles of the farming community and officials—particularly the farmer. The havoc they are causing in bagged wheat—for Australia has not the grain elevator system as yet—standing in many rural districts awaiting possible shipment to overseas markets is fast becoming a question of grave national import.

The city of St. Louis has leased a coal mine near Belleville, Illinois, saving $100.000 thereby. Previously coal has been purchased at prices ranging from $1.90 to $2.55 per ton.

SEPTEMBER IN ALGONQUIN PARK

September in Algonquin Park, Ontario, is one of the most delightful months of the year. A beneficial holiday can be enjoyed with all the comforts of home at the "Highland Inn," situated in the midst of a charming wilderness on Cache Lake. It is also a good month for the camper and canoeist. Splendid fishing is found in the innumerable lakes (over 1500) that nestle in the forests of pine and balsam. Don't leave it until the last minute to make your reservation at the Inn and write to Miss Jean Lindsay, Manager, Algonquin Park Station, Ontario, for rates, etc., or to any Grand Trunk Railway agent for handsome illustrated booklet telling you all about the district.

On account of the heat, the lawns of New York Parks have been thrown open to the public.

IN THE MIDST OF LIFE

We are in debt. No doubt about it! The man who, after paying his bills, buttons up his coat and says that a just world can demand nothing further from him, is indulging in a very selfish outlook.

There are further claims to be settled — claims which rest upon every man and fall upon each according to his ability to shoulder them. Claims which, compared with the trivial bills of a lifetime, are as a mountain to a molehill. What about the obligations each man owes his family? There is satisfaction in the thought that claims of this kind can, in a measure, be capitalized and provided for by means of life assurance.

Ask to-day — while you are insurable — for particulars of a Sun Life Policy to meet your own particular needs. Your asking will place you under no obligation whatever.

Music in the Home

KNOWN FOR ONE WORK—AND THAT A MASTERPIECE.

Story of "Gray's Elogy in a Country Churchyard."

On that memorable night before the great battle on the Plains of Abraham, it will be recalled, General Wolfe floating silently down the St. Lawrence recited to his men around him Gray's "Elogy in a Country Churchyard." As he finished he said, "Gentlemen, I would rather be the author of that poem, than take Quebec tomorrow." The man who was the author of it, one of the finest writings in the English language, wrote practically nothing else that has survived.

In music we have composers who have to their credit a long string of pieces. Others again especially perhaps among the opera-composers have but one outstanding work that made and retained its popularity. Of the latter class, a well informed writer on topics pertaining to the opera says: "In opera most of the composers who are counted as one-opera composers, are victims to the vagaries of genius rather than lack of effort. This may not have been the case with Rossini, whose William Tell and the Barber of Seville are the sole survivors of about forty works for the stage; but Rossini was lazy. Others have striven seriously to write of permanent interest but have failed. Among these are the following whose masterpiece is given with the date of its first production: Balfe (The Bohemian Girl) 1843; Mascagni (Cavalleria Rusticana) 1890; Leoncavello (I Pagliacci) 1858; Flotow (Martha) 1847; Humperdinck (Hansel and Gretel) 1893; Giordano (Andre Chénier) 1896; and Ricci (Crispino e la Comare) 1865."

But it is not fair to attribute the non-success of any opera to its music. Often a real injustice is done a composer by forgetting that an opera is not entirely dependent on the music for its reception by the public. One writer's comment is that "the combination of music and libretto is rare. Fortunate are the few men like Wagner, Boito, and Wolf-Ferarri, who have had the gifts to build both. Mozart, while unfortunate in some of his libretti, wrote so charmingly that his music has survived despite some very feeble plays. Verdi had the gifted Boito as his librettist for his latter works, and Puccini has been fortunate in having fine books for all his pieces. The gift of turning out melodies is exceedingly rare. Mozart had it, as had Verdi, and some would declare that Sir Arthur Sullivan in his lighter pieces was similarly blessed."

When a musician gives to the world a great opera, he has done a big thing. In the producing of what is termed good drawing-room songs the musical public is served in a different way. A great many of the composers are prolific writers. We think of Arthur Tate, Hermann Lohr, Jack Thompson W. H. Squire, Jack Trelanwy, Liza Lehmann, d'Hardelot, del Riego, Dorothy Forster, the late Noel Johnson and others who each have many successful works to ther credit. And when it comes to lyrics for the songs the same thing applies. One of the most frequently seen names in this connection, whose words are used by various musicians and publishers is that of Ed. Teschamacher.

LIGHT OPERA

Time Is Ripe For a Return To Principles of Comic Opera

A London producer of musical comedy and its degenerate successor called "Revue" declares that the time is ripe for a return to the safe and sane principles of comic opera. He says that theatre goers are becoming soured at a long course of thinkless brainless, unconnected shows, consisting almost entirely of color and fluff. The main difficulty, according to this manager, is that most competent writers of light music are Viennese, and that any true Briton would be shot rather than listen to the best music that Austria could produce. He declares that it is not difficult to procure a suitable libretto, that the cupboards of every manager are full of bright witty pieces, well suited for a musical setting, but that the modern composer is a joke when he tries to tread in the pathway established by Sir Arthur Sullivan.

One would expect a British manager to cry down British composers. That has been the official attitude for generations. Yet there is a school of composition in England to-day that is highly creditable to the country. It is true that the work of these men has been chiefly for chorus and orchestra, but it is doubtful if they are not competent to provide music for an entertaining libretto. New York was swept away from honest music by a torrent of rag-time, and Irving Berlin's watch Your Step, perhaps touched the lowest level of musican insanity. But even there signs of an operatic revival are to be seen.

THE THREE PERIODS

We are so accustomed to the use of harmonious chords that we are inclined to the belief that consonant sounds were early discoveries in music. On the contrary they are as recent as Shakespeare. Musical History divides itself naturally into three great periods. The first, from the dawn of race consciousness to about the year 900 A.D., developed the melody. Sometimes it was sung, sometimes played by rude instruments, but there was no such thing as the instrument playing one note while the singer voiced another. Towards the end of the period octave singing and playing appeared.

Then there was a discovery made. A monk found out that two or more melodies might be played concurrently and that the result was pleasing. Thus began the Mediaeval Period when music became so involved and "scientific" that it was regarded as a branch of mathematics. We have records of composers who were able to provide thirty-two melodies for simultaneous singing. This was the polyphonic period which came to full flower in Palestrina and the ecclesiastical composers. Not until 1600 A.D., did the principles of modern harmony emerge, with a dominant melody and voices or instruments in accompaniment. We call this the Modern Period and Bach was its Prophet.

MUSIC AS SHE IS WROTE

A Turn From Heavy Music To Notes Of A Lighter Vein

To turn from the heavier musical literature to lighter reading is certainly restful recreation. Such restfulness is furnished in a little book, "Music as she is wrote," bearing on the title page no less a name than that of Frederic H. Cowen. This purports to be a glossary of musical terms evidently compiled in an hour of humorous cynicism. These samples of the definitions contained in it would almost look at home under the name of Professor Stephen Leacock:

Concert—A form of musical entertainment in which, usually, the artists get the pleasure, the audience get the free tickets and the agents and the newspapers get the money.

Con Grazia—The manner in which a prima donna smiles and courtseys when she is presented with a bouquet which she herself has paid for.

Signature—The number of sharps or flats placed at the beginning of a piece to indicate the only key not used in the piece.

Harmony—The sentiment that exists between two prima donnas in the same theatre.

Tempo Rubato—Part of a bar or phrase taken either slower or quicker than it ought be to. Literally "robbing time." This is not a punishable offence. If it were most executive artists would be in prison.

Libretto—The book or poetical (?) part of an opera. The profession of librettist is one of so much distinction in this country and requires such great intellectual qualities that it is confined exclusively to men of title and high social position.

Festival—A lying-in hospital for still-born works of British composers.

Ovation—This word is apperently derived from the Latin "ova"—eggs. If this be so musical ovations are seldom bestowed on the artists who really deserve them.

It's easier to play on a hand organ than on some people's sympathy.

Operations of the Canadian army corps in April, May and June are described in an official statement from British Headquarters which was given out at Ottawa.

Johnny Evers is one of those fellows who has come to the point where he has no place to go but home. While his fielding is fairly good, his batting is awfully weak, and he hasn't helped the Phillies. It is not unlikely that he will be the star performer on some minor league next season.

It's a funny world. Here's Joe Cox, who made Jess Willard jump out of the ring, one night several years ago, just accepted in the navy, after having tried to enlist twice before and been rejected. For several days his life had been just one recruiting station after another. He was rejected for the regular navy and for the marine corps because he was too big, but finally wormed his way into the naval reserve. And he gave up a bout with Carl Morris and Fred Fulton to do it, too. There's patriotism for you.

Hughie Jennings must recently have gone through a course of voice culture, without telling his friends anything about it. When he works on the coaching lines, the noise is almost deafening.

That new pitcher, Edward Bacon, recently acquired by Connie Mack, certainly has a fine name. Maybe he will succeed in bringing it home for the Mackmen. The fans will find diversion in thinking up sobriquets for Edward, anyway.

Optimistic Oscar Says:

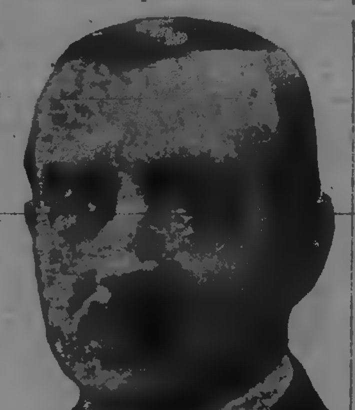
Russia Faces Disaster That May Prove Set-Back To Democratic Progress

A GREAT tragedy is being enacted in the life of the free Russian people, according to Arthur Henderson, member of the British War Council, and representative of Labor, who has just returned to London from an extended visit to Russia. He is convinced that unless the situation is handled with firmness there must be an inevitable disaster.

Mr. Henderson said during the course of an interview that it was nothing less than misfortune that the continuance of the coalition Government proved impossible. The difficulties the Government had to cope with were such as no other Government ever experienced. It was impossible to convey anything like an adequate conception of the extent to which the extremists dominated the life of the capital, demoralizing the army and navy, especially those units in close proximity to Petrograd.

The true extremists, he declared, did not represent more than a small minority of the population, but such had been the spirit of terror exercised, together with their destructive influence over certain sections of the military forces, that they had succeeded in rendering a stable Government difficult, if not almost impossible.



ARTHUR HENDERSON

Mr. Henderson considered that the most disastrous experiment of the revolution was the relaxation of discipline in the army and navy, coupled with the direct association of those services with the political and revolutionary propaganda. The resumption of the offensive caused the extremists considerable annoyance, and, although they had the wisdom to remain quiet while victories were being gained, it was generally recognized that they were waiting for an opportunity for the move recently made with such disastrous consequences.

"If Russia is to rise to the greatness of her possibilities, the forces of disorder must be resolutely dealt with," continued Mr. Henderson. "The future, judging from the recent past, is largely in the hands of the new Workmens' and Soldiers' Council, elected by the all-Russia Congress which represents a large section of the community whose representatives are likely to become the dominant party in the constituent assembly."

The Russians, said Mr. Henderson, were exceedingly anxious concerning the conference of the Allies, including the United States, because they hoped it would enable them to announce that the war treaties had been revised in the direction of renunciation of all intentions 'inconsistent with their own declarations. They said frankly that they were determined keeping Constantinople in mind and having doubts regarding Mesopotamia—not to leave the settlement of the paramount issues of the war to chance decisions of a meeting of diplomats. Until this position was clarified, he doubted whether the whole army or a majority of the moderate Socialists, upon whom so much depended, would give of their best for the successful prosecution of the war.

The Russian Socialists, he said, were strong advocates of an international conference. He discussed the subject with M. Tschetelli, Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, just before leaving Petrograd. M. Tseretelli urged the importance of such a conference and of Great Britain being represented.

Korea Uses a Spoon.

While China and Japan take rice with chopsticks, Korea eats hers with a spoon. Prediction is that the next step will usher in the broad fork. "Whence comes this peculiarity?" asks the Korea Magazine. "One reason is that in the Analects of Confucius a record exists that the Master ate his millet, not with chopsticks, but with a spoon. Every saying that pertains to Confucius is reverently regarded in Korea, and the people of that land would rather follow the Master than present-day custom."

Flowering Almonds.

The name of almond suggests only the nut of that name, but we have flowering almonds, that do not bear edible nuts but make a grand display of blossoms in early spring.

Buying Our Blankets.

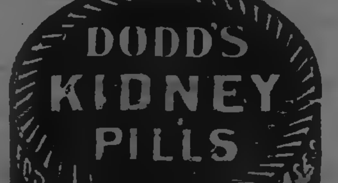
Orders for blankets aggregating one million dollars have been placed among Canadian manufacturers by the United States Government for army purposes, according to the head of one of the largest industrial corporations in Canada. Orders have been distributed with Penmans, Ltd., Toronto Carpet Company, and the Smart-Woods Company has been awarded a huge contract for tents.

The specifications were submitted to Canadian mills with prices fixed by the United States authorities. "These orders are being accepted by Canadian mills in reciprocation for the services rendered Canada by the United States mills when our first contingent was being equipped," said a mill official. "To expedite the securing of supplies, especially of khaki, the Canadian Department of Militia asked United States mills to assist, and to rush goods through. The United States Government during the past month or so has canvassed the Canadian mills, and these orders are the result. More are likely to come."

A Canadian knit goods manufacturer stated that a big order for underwear was expected any day from the Italian Government. About 18 months ago an order for 1,500,000 suits was filled in Canada.

Using Steel Tyres.

Steel tyres for auto-trucks are being utilized in Germany instead of rubber because of the extreme scarcity of the latter. A dozen or more fine steel threads or wires are woven together and fixed over an inner band of rubber. This steel cover will last while the wheel is covering about three thousand five hundred miles; it then has to be replaced.



SUBSIDIES TO SHIPPING.

What the Dominion Gives to Promote Trade and Commerce.

The total amount of mail subsidies and steamship subventions to Canadian shipping asked for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1918, is $2,630,734, according to the report of the Department of Trade and Commerce. In addition to this two payments, aggregating $321,666, for services between Canada and China and Japan and between Canada and France are authorized at statute. Of the amount asked, $1,844,166 is for Atlantic services and $487,142 is for Pacific services, leaving something less than $300,000 to be distributed among companies operating various local services.

The payments, which are on the same basis as those authorized during the fiscal year ended March 31, 1917, are apportioned by trades as follows:

ATLANTIC OCEAN.
Annapolis, London or Hull....	5,000
Canadian Atlantic ports and Australia and New Zealand	140,000
Canada and Great Britain....	1,000,000
Canada and Cuba........	25,000
Canada and Newfoundland....	70,000
Canada, the West Indies, and South America	340,666
Canada and South Africa....	146,000
Halifax, St. John's, Nfld. and Liverpool	20,000
Montreal, Quebec and Manchester (in summer) and St. John, Halifax, and Manchester (in winter)........	35,000
St. John, Dublin, and Belfast (winter)	7,500
St. John and Glasgow (winter)........	15,000
St. John, Halifax, and London........	25,000
PACIFIC OCEAN.
Canada, Australia, or New Zealand, or both (Pacific)..	180,509
Canada, China, and Japan....	253,333
Prince Rupert and Queen Charlotte Islands	16,000
Victoria and San Francisco..	3,000
Victoria, Vancouver, and Skagway	12,500
Victoria and West Coast Vancouver Island........	5,000
Vancouver and Northern ports of British Columbia	16,800

Among the requirements that are common to all contracts under which these subsidies are awarded to shipping companies is the stipulation that two-thirds of the total number of officers, engineers, and all other employees on steamships engaged in the service shall be British subjects, although this clause may be suspended in individual cases by the Government. The companies are also expected to carry mails as required without payment additional to the amount of the subsidies. It is also provided that Government officials be transported free of charge. Other requirements deal with the rates to be charged on freight and passage, a prohibition against carrying dangerous articles, calling at Government wharfs, furnishing proof that the services have been performed and other features arising in connection with the companies' business.

The contracts for the various services are distributed as follows:

From Canadian Atlantic ports to Australia and New Zealand, for which the subsidy asked is $140,000, the service is in the hands of the New Zealand Shipping Company, Ltd. Monthly sailings of steamers of 7,000 tons cargo capacity, carrying mails, are required to earn the full amount of subsidy. Since 1915 the service has been irregularly maintained under orders-in-Council.

The Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Limited, has the contract for the service between Canada and Great Britain, subsidy of $1,000,000. It may be pointed out that the full subsidy has not been earned, and that during the war the amount paid has fallen off considerably.

The contract for mail service between Canada, the West Indies, and South America, subsidy authorized $340,666.66, is held by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, which earned the full amount in 1916.

Between Canada and South Africa the contract for monthly mail steamers is in the hands of Elder Dempster Shipping Company, Ltd. Since the beginning of the war the full amount of subsidy has not been earned, $121,600 being paid last

TEST COWS FOR PROFIT

To-day the prudent farmer hardly dreams of planting seed grain without testing it. He realizes there is on deposit in the bank of nature a huge sum of money, much of which may be his if elementary rules are followed in seeding and cultivating. The average dairyman with twenty cows may reasonably expect as his share of nature's hoard a yearly income of two thousand dollars, if the resultant crops are marketed through suitable cows.

But can the unselected, untested cow be expected to take a prominent part in that annual distribution of nature's wealth? She may be fed and cared for to the best of her owner's ability, but there seems to be a loose end if he does not turn round and test her, determine her ability to turn the vast deposits in nature's bank into a round nine thousand pounds of milk and leave a clear profit if milk fetches one-twenty per hundred.

Just guessing at seed vitality and power to grow is queer work; guessing at a cow's production and profit is risk and unnecessary. It is very risky because many a dairyman is deceived without the use of scales and test, quite unnecessary because the dairy division at Ottawa supplies, free of charge, milk record forms. Write for them, either the three day per month or the daily kind, with a herd record book. Their use gives certainty. Test your cows, there is money in it.

REPENT AT LEISURE

Northern Ontario Warns Against Undue Haste in Clearing

The Cochrane, Ont., Claybelt Weekly says: "Save materials from waste"—"spend money wisely" in these two sentences really lies the ultimate success of our efforts to promote production and to exercise thrift. "Save materials from waste" is an admonition specially adaptable to Northern Ontario. In the abundance of Nature's bountiful gifts, we not only just throw aside what for the moment appears useless to us because we fail to realise its latent values, but we go further and wantonly destroy. For the sake of cleaning a few acres we burn down miles and miles of virgin forests; we rose our pulpwood and simply burn the bark and shavings when not only possibly but very probably, the bark and shavings could be made to yield an abundance of valuable by-products; we grow the grain and then burn the straw, irrespective of feed and other value; we build up the nucleus of prospective prosperous towns along the new railways and allow bush fires to sweep them off the map in a few hours; and so it goes on ad infinitum. In a mad haste to transform the primeval forest into farms in the shortest possible period, we waste considerable more than the farms can produce for years to come. The arguments brought forth in favor of such ruthless destruction are plentiful but they all are fallacious because they are based on and spring from ignorance which makes it so much harder to combat. If you cannot use a thing yourself burn it—is a pitifully crude way of disposal.

Temple Band Was Warmly Welcomed

This village and community were treated to a visit by the Salvation Army Band, of Peterborough, on Sunday and Monday last. The annual appearance of this well known band is looked forward to with pleasure by large numbers of people as is quite evident by the crowds attending, some of whom came quite long distances to do so. They arrived by the nine o'clock train Saturday evening and the streets were lined with motors and people afoot to receive them. While the band is not as strong as in the pre war days, as almost all of the eligibles enlisted they, have been building since, and appeared here about 30 pieces strong. They have some good performers. the drummer is said to be the best in Canada. Their visit proved quite satisfactory financially as their collections amounted to over $106. The people of this community will look forward with pleasure to their return. Come again, boys.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

EXPLOSION IN POWDER MILL CAUSES DEATH OF OVER 20

Plant of Curtis and Harvey Near Montreal Blows up and Building Takes Fire---Forty Houses of Workmen Destroyed---Special Train Carries Doctors and Nurses to Scene

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Passengers on the train which passed near the scene of explosion at Rigaud placed the number of dead from the first explosion at twenty. They said the number missing is large because everybody rushed into the open country after the first explosion. Two farm houses over a mile from the plant were destroyed. At noon the village of Dragon was blazing.

Montreal, Aug. 18.—Curtis and Harvey's powder plant at Rigaud, about twenty-five miles west of here, was the scene of a big explosion this morning and the plant is reported in flames. The buildings and surrounding grounds cover five miles square and five thousand men and women are employed. It is feared there was a great loss of life.

All Wires Down.

Explosion destroyed telephone and telegraph systems, making it extremely difficult to get news from Rigaud, but from points near by it is learned there were three explosions, the first occurring about nine o'clock. The Canadian Pacific Montreal-Ottawa line runs close to the scene and traffic on this route was temporarily suspended.

Houses Blown Down.

Trainmen who got away from the scene stated that forty houses at Dragon, a little village near the powder mills, occupied by workmen in the plant, were blown down. The whole countryside was covered by dense copper colored smoke at 10 o'clock. A special train of doctors and nurses left Montreal at ten thirty. The first reports from the stations near the scene intimate that about 250 persons were killed.

Cause a Mystery.

At local office of the Curtis and Harvey it is stated the cause of the explosion which apparently set fire to a portion of the plant was not known. It is thought that not more than 300 would be working in the section of the factory effected and that probably many of these would have escaped. The fire probably, it was believed, spread to other portions of the factory causing the two other explosions heard. The men and women working in them would have time to get away.

Curtis and Harvey officials were hopeful that the death list was not as many as the 250 estimate given at points near the plant.

Machinery Overheated

The first explosion in the plant was caused by the overheating of the machinery in the nitric acid building. The flames from this cause leaped through the building, and then came the explosion. As many as fifteen explosions were counted after the first. The financial loss is estimated at several million dollars. The number of victims is not yet ascertained, but is expected to be remarkably small, all things considered.

POLICE ROUND UP THE MASHERS

TWO MORE LOTHARIOS APPEAR IN POLICE COURT THIS MORNING.

The police department are bound to rid the city of the "Mashers," or those young men who interefere with young ladies while they walk along the street. During the past few days a watch has been set on for a few of the most noted ones, and as a result of extra surveillance Edgar Alcombrack and Maxwell McClellan found themselves in the cells at the police station, and this morning were remanded to jail until Monday when they will receive their trial.

Chief Thompson questioned McClellan as to where he got $31 that was found on him. The Chief remarked to the magistrate that this defendant had not worked six months in the past few years.

The number of complaints received by the police during the past few weeks has resulted in the round up and more are likely to follow.

London, Aug. 18.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch says the main committee of the German Reichstag will discuss the Pope's peace proposals on Tuesday.

AUTOS COLLIDE.

Two autos were in a collision at the corner of McDonnell and Aylmer streets last night. One was owned by Ald. Langford and the other by Mr. Zack. No one was hurt but the autos were slightly damaged.

INCOME TAX HAS PASSED HOUSE

WIL NOT TAKE PLACE OF TAX PLACED ON WAR PROFITS.

Ottawa, Aug. 18.—Parliament after a brief discussion, passed the income tax bill. Several Liberal members objected that the tax was not sufficiently high upon incomes and complained that it was intended to take the place of the business tax on war profits. Sir Thomas White and Sir Robert Borden, however, both protested that the government intended in the future, as in the past, to levy abnormal taxation upon abnormal profits, and the prime minister practically promised that a larger tax upon incomes would be levied at the next session.

ANOTHER ASSAULT ON LENS POSITION REPULSED AFTER SHARP FIGHT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

British Front in France and Belgium, Aug. 18.—German troops delivered another sharp but futile counter attack against a section of the Canadian positions northwest and west of Lens early this morning. The Germans succeeded in penetrating the British trenches but were driven out immediately as the result of strenuous hand to hand fighting which cost the attackers a considerable number of dead and a few prisoners.

CANADIANS KILLED IN MIMIC BATTLE

London, Aug. 18.—The Daily Mail says six Canadians were killed and twenty-three injured in the accidental explosion of a mine during a mimic battle at the manoeuvres camp in Hampshire, Thursday.

Russ Troops Are Active Once More

Petrograd, Aug. 18.—The Russians have taken the offensive on the Caucasian front and have occupied a series of villages, the war office announces.

GARDEN PARTY A SUCCESS.

Father Meagher's Fete Well Patronized on Thursday.

Father Meagher's garden party held at Riverside Park Grove on Thursday evening, was a decided success in every respect. The rain storm in the afternoon did not dampen the enthusiasm of those who had charge of the affair, and the weather clearing up towards evening a big crowd was in attendance. The ladies had prepared a most appetizing dinner and all thoroughly enjoyed it. A number of booths were on the grounds and a rushing business was done in refreshments, etc. The fish pond was well patronized during the evening. The results of the garden party must be most gratifying to Father Meagher and the committee in charge.

MISS GRACE ARMITAGE WAS NEARLY DROWNED

There was a near drowning accident at Cobourg on Thursday. Grace Hayden, the young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Hayden, and Grace Armitage, young daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Armitage, of Toronto, were in bathing near the crib at the shore end of the east pier, when they walked into a hole over their depths. Both little girls would have been drowned had not two young men belonging to a yacht in the harbour jumped into the lake and rescued them.

RESTOCK BACK LAKES WITH SMALL BLACK BASS

Superintendent J. H. Edwards, of Mohawk, and Warden H. Watson, of the Fishery Department, Toronto were in Lindsay and placed 50,000 fingerling small mouthed black bass in Pigeon Lake, 50,000 in Sturgeon Lake, 25,000 in Buckhorn, 25,000 in Clear Lake and 25,000 in Stoney Lake. Some of the fish measured three inches in length.

LINDSAY POLICE ERR IN JUDGMENT OF MAN

A party whose home is in Peterborough, created a slight sensation yesterday morning in Lindsay when he was discovered endeavoring to realise some cash on a razor which he was offering as security. It was noised abroad that he might be the man wanted in Detroit for which a reward of $1,000 is offered and the police got busy. The fellow was located in short order and on being interrogated said he was a returned soldier and only endeavoring to raise the price to get back to the Electric City, whereupon one of the officers offered to oblige him with the necessary train fare without putting up his shaving outfit.

CANADIANS PUT CRACK GUARD OUT OF FIGHT

Prussia's Pride is Destroyed as Fighting Force by our Troops.

FAIL TO RETAKE HILL

Key to Lens is now in Possession of Men From Canada.

(By Stewart Lyon)

Canadian Headquarters in France, via London, Aug. 18.—In fair, stand-up, hand-to-hand fighting on the eastern slope of Hill 70 last night our men beat off two more counter-attacks in which the last available battalions of the Fourth Prussian Guard division were broken and destroyed as a fighting force. In my despatch of Thursday night the story was told of the impetuous charge by which our line was pushed forward east of the hill. Prisoners state that at the very moment when our assault was launched the Guards Battalion was assembling to attack Hill 70. They came under our bar-their positions in Bois Hugo and Cite rage and suffered severe loss in St. Auguste.

Notwithstanding this punishment they proceeded to the trenches from which their attack was planned to come, and shortly after seven o'clock they advanced with such determination that our forward posts were driven in, and for a time the enemy secured possession of our advanced line. At nine o'clock another and more serious assault was undertaken against our main line in the newly acquired ground, accompanied by very heavy shelling. It failed utterly, and our men once more went forward on the heels of the enemy and re-established their outposts on the former advanced line, which thus remained in our possession after five hours of the most determined fighting experienced by the veteran troops of the original expeditionary force who took part. By midnight affairs had quieted down, and now Hill 70 is an extinct volcano, with our incomparable infantry in undisputed occupation.

FOR UNION GOVERNMENT

No Trifling With National Affairs, Veterans Warn.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—At a general meeting of the Great War Veterans here a resolution was adopted to oppose, with force if necessary, any attempts by either political party to trifle with questions of national importance after the manner of the recent Liberal convention. The Veterans deplored the holding of an election during the war; advocated the formation of a National Government and pledged their support to independent candidates on a conscription platform.

AFTER THE FLITTERS

Men Who Fled To United States Are Listed By Authorities

Detroit, Aug. 18.—The Detroit draft boards are gathering the names of young Canadians who skipped across the border to escape conscription in the Dominion, preparatory to drafting them in the United States army. The names are being turned over to Howard G. Meredith, British Consul. Draft officials were notified Thursday that negotiations were on between the American and Canadian Governments whereby either could draft citizens of the other country.

ANOTHER FREAK.

When Mr. Earl Barrie was pulling carrots in his garden yesterday he was very much surprised to find the neck of a bottle firmly imbeded in the carrot. The seed must have matured in the neck of the bottle which was buried in the ground and developed both up and down. The freak is on exhibition in the window of the Nugent Drug Co.

SIXTEEN ENEMY AIRSHIPS ARE BROUGHT DOWN

One Hundred and Eleven French Air Fighters in the Engagement.

14 TONS OF BOMBS USED

French Recapture all Trenches Lost in Recent Fighting.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, Aug. 18.—French aviators yesterday brought down seven German airplanes and a captive balloon in addition to eight other machines compelled to descend badly damaged behin the enemy lines. Yesterday and last night more than 28,000 pounds of projectiles were dropped in the course of bombing raids in which 111 French machines took part.

French Carry Position

In Belgium our troops continued to make progress north of the road from Bixschoote to Langemarck and carried strong enemy point of support east of the Steenbeke. North of the Aisne we repulsed several attacks, especially east of Proidmont Farm. In Champagne our artillery fire prevented an attack which the enemy was preparing in the sector of Massiges

On the right bank of the Meuse our troops made a brilliant counter-attack at Carrieres Wood and recaptured elements of trenches taken by the enemy on Thursday and Friday. Our line was re-established completely.

Heavy artillery fighting continues in this sector. A German attack near Steinbach, in Alsace, was repulsed by our fire. Elsewhere the night passed quietly.

I.W.W. PREPARING TO BURN CROPS

VIGILANT COMMITTEES FORMED IN TOWNS TO CONTROL DANGER.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 18.—The Industrial Workers of the World who are threatening to strike Monday are reported to be preparing to use phosphorous to burn the grain fields and grain held in storage throughout Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

Vigilance committees are being organized in the principal towns.

Trainmen to Strike for Eight Hour Day

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 18.—Forty thousand members of the Associated Society Locomotive Engineers anr Firemen are threatening to strike for recognition of the principle of the eight hour day, which the government holds to be inadmissible. The National union of railwaymen is opposed to such action and if a strike developes it is expected the Government will take strong measures.

Military Cross for Lieut. Sawers

FORMER RESIDENT OF THIS CITY WINS HONOR IN ACTION.

Lieut. Basil Lindsay Sawers, of Vancouver, with the Royal Engineers at the front, has been awarded the military cross for gallant conduct. He volunteered to lead a party and destroyed two mine shafts, blowing up one.

Lieut. Sawers is a son of Mr. C. W. Sawers, formerly a leading lawyer in this city and who went west a number of years ago. He is a cousin of Rev. F. J. Sawers, formerly of Ashburnham but now of Cobourg.

HUNS FAIL IN NEW ATTACK ON ALLIES

Unable to Regain Ground Lost at Lens ---British Airplanes Have Best of the Fighting

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Aug. 18.—French troops in the Ypres area have progressed in the neighborhood of the River Steenbeke. On the British portion of this front, according to the official report from British Headquarters in France there have been no changes, and the Germans have ceased their counter-attack. The French and British troops have captured 24 German guns.

The British War Office denied the German claim of the recapture of Langemarck.

The number of prisoners taken by the Canadians in the Loos-Lens sector has now reached a total of 1,120. The Canadians have organized and made secure the positions captured yesterday, and have made an advance west of Lens.

The British made a successful raid east of Vermelles Thursday night, reaching the enemy's support line and inflicting many casualties.

The British airplanes had greatly the better of the air fighting Thursday, bringing down fifteen German machines and driving down eleven others and destroying one balloon. Eleven British airplanes are missing. Nearly ten tons of bombs were dropped on the enemy's airdromes, railway stations and billets.

Another Assault Fails.

Today's official statement: Enemy early today delivered another counter attack against our recently captured positions northwest of Lens. His troops were again completely repulsed after sharp fighting in which we secured a few prisoners. There was considerable hostile artillery activity during night in this neighborhood and also northwest of Ypres.

Station Raided.

The Admiralty announces that British airplanes Thursday night dropped many tons of bombs on the railway station and junction at Thourout in West Flanders, southwest of Bruges. Fires were caused. All the machines returned safely.

Hun Craft Damaged.

The Admiralty announced a hostile destroyer and two mine sweepers were severely damaged by British naval forces Thursday. The British warships were not damaged.

C.P.R. Footbridge is Now Completed

The railing on the C.P.R. footbridge was completed yesterday and the pathway will now be open to the public as a thoroughfare. The lights will be placed in position as soon as possible.

Complaints have been received of bicyclists riding across the bridge, and endangering the pedestrians. The police will keep an eye open for the offenders now.

A strike of twenty thousand Alabama coal miners is called for Monday next.

TEN CARS COAL FOR CIVIC YARD NOW ON THE WAY

Fuel Will Cost City $9.54 Without Incidentals and Aim is to Deliver it to Residences for $10 or Less a Ton.

Coal for the Municilap Coal Yard is on the way here. Ald. Dobbin, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee so informed the members of the committee last night. Five of the cars are stove and five are nut and the others are divided between egg and other sizes.

The meeting was called to clear up the necessary formality that the Fire, Water and Light Committee must approve of all payments and orders for coal.

Ald. Worth and Smith fathered a resolution which was based on the idea that the chairman and one member of the committee were given power to order coal and pay for it at a price which will enable the coal to be delivered to city residences at $10 or less per ton. This carried.

The chairman was also authorized to order whatever stationery that will be necessary for the office.

Ald. Dobbin read a letter from the coal company stating that the egg coal had been shipped by D. L. and W. but owing to the embargo on cars delivery had been delayed at Rouse's Point. This has now been raised and an early arrival of the coal is expected. It was also explained to the Aldermen that the coal is costing $6.00 per ton at the mine and the freight to Peterborough is $2.44, making the cost here $8.44. The expense of handling the coal is figured at 80 cents a ton for delivery and 30 cents a ton for bagging and weighing, making a total cost of $9.54 without any incidentals.

The question of ordering more coal was left over until after the arrival of the first lots.

Ald. Saunders was of the opinion that more coal should be ordered as he knew of a lot of people that were anxious to get coal from the city.

Ald. Worth thought that it would be a good idea to let the people know when the coal arrived and also that it was on the way.

A discussion on the price brought out some remarks as to the ability of the city to deliver for less than $10.00. Some of the dealers were said to be delivering for $9.50. This was questioned by several who had got their coal supply already.

Ald. Saunders did not think that the people were expecting a lower price than the dealers were selling coal for.

Ald. Dobbin stated that it would suit the city much better to have the coal taken from the car. There was more anthracite coal coming into Canada than ever before.

Ald. McIntyre had heard that one local dealer was handling independent coal at $9.50.

Ald. Dobbin stated that he and Mayor Duffus contemplated taking a trip early next week to get information on the coal question and would report the latter end of the week. Pocahontas, a soft smokeless coal for furnace use, could be delivered on the cars here for $9.45 per ton.

This ended the coal discussion.

Change a Light.

On a motion of Ald. Smith and McIntyre the Utilities Commission will be asked to remove the arc lamp at Aylmer and Manning Ave. and place incandescent lamps on Aylmer street south of this corner.

Trim the Trees.

The attention of the aldermen having been drawn to the shading of the street lamps by limbs of trees, the Utilities Commission were asked to trim the trees wherever they interfered with the lights.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

PETERBOROUGH SATURDAY, AUG. 18, 1917

THE ANTIS WILL UNITE.

It is quite clear that those in both established parties who would [illegible] Canada's contribution to the war can and will work together in the coming elections.

Unless those, in both parties, who would fight to win the war, to smash the German menace to their homes, and to keep faith with our soldiers overseas—unless these can come to an understanding and clasp hands over the white crosses, this nation may be classed, to its eternal shame, among those who, having placed their hands to the plow, turned back, unfit for democracy.—Montreal Star.

REGULATING PRICES.

A farmer took a load of wool to the Sarnia market and disposed of it at 78 cents a pound, the load bringing $1,320.22 all told. Three years ago the same farmer sold his wool in the same market for 26 cents a pound. Who profits by the increase, who loses from the same change in price?

The farmer receives three times as much for his wool as he did in 1914 it is true, but everything that he has to buy has increased in value in about the same proportion as he will find when he comes to purchase the articles that are manufactured from his wool. It costs him more to produce a pound of wool than it did in 1914. The wages of his hired man, everything entering into the production, have at least doubled in the same time. It costs him more to feed his helpers and his sheep. Get an expert to figure his standing and it will be found that the farmer is really no better off than he was three years ago when wool was 26 cents a pound.

Any Government that embarks on a program of price regulation will soon find itself going around in a circle. If the manufacturer's profit is to be fixed so must that of the producer. Getting down to the source it will be found necessary to lower wages in order to keep down the cost of production. When the price regulator finishes his [illegible] manufacturer and consumer are in the same relative position as they were before.

Cut down the price of pork and beef and it follows that the farmer must accept less for his cattle and hogs. It has yet to be demonstrated that even when price are high that any class or individual is getting an exorbitant share of the margin between the producer and the ultimate consumer. There may be a general impression to the contrary, an impression fostered by alarmist newspapers whose object is political capital rather than the public welfare, but cold facts cannot be overthrown by baseless insinuations.

The citizens of Peterborough have had ample proof that civic or state control does not altogether solve the high cost of living. The city was urged into embarking in the coal business. This has been done and ten cars of coal are now on the way. It has already been made clear that the city competing with the regular dealers cannot furnish coal at a lower price than the latter. The chief advantage of a civic yard lies in assuring a supply.

WHAT CANADA HAS DONE.

An American weekly magazine that probably enjoys the largest circulation of any publication on earth, sent a representative to Canada to enquire into the part taken by this country in the war. That writer could speak in none other than terms of the highest praise. The number of soldiers sent to the front, the provisions made for them and their dependents are held up as so many models worthy of the emulation of the United States. The entire system adopted in Canada, including the resort to the draft when voluntary enlistments fell off, is lauded by the writer who sees conditions as they really exist and who does not regard the situation through partisan goggles.

Col. Roosevelt says that the United States must have at least five million men in action before it can assume to rank itself in the same class as Canada. In all parts of the Empire, in every corner of the civilized world the verdict is the same. Canada, especially for a nation unused to war, has accomplished wonders. Statesmen and military experts alike agree on this point.

It is only at home that the critics abound and criticism is but another name for party bias. The time of Parliament is consumed by petty politicians playing for party advantage. Newspapers assert that the Canadian troops are sent to the front poorly equipped and that they are neglected when injured. Every shot fired by the Canadians, every gallant dash made against the Huns, every letter home from trench, hospital or convalescent camp, gives the lie to these charges. Canada's honor is safe except for the carpers at home.

"The government conscripts manhood, but refuses to make wealth pay its share of sacrifice," remarks a local contemporary in its daily knock aimed at the administration. A fair sample this of the crtiicism that is conceived in malice and based on falsehood. The truth is that a levy was made on wealth long before it was decided to conscript manhood, a move which the paper in question cannot yet find it in its heart to endorse.

UNCLE SAM IN ACTION.

The American soldiers are at last in the battle line and American blood is flowing in the common stream in the trenches. Members of Uncle Sam's infantry are now in hospital in France. As fast as troops can be got ready they are being sent from the United States and these should help turn the tide of battle.

Another division is being raised across the border and in its selection some regard is paid to sentiment. Twenty-five states and the District of Columbia are to be represented in the little army, one regiment from each and the crack military unit is to be given the honor of selection. In New York State the gallant Sixty Ninth, an Irish regiment with a history is accorded the honor. They will fight on the same ground and for the same object as their ancestors so many years ago. In the new division which will soon leave for France will be found the sons of men who fought against each other through the bloody engagements of the Civil War. Divided then, they are united now.

The world expects great things from the American troops. They will acquit themselves in Europe with the gallantry that distinguished them on their own battle fields at home, fighting as they did at Gettysburg, at Appomatox, at Fredericksburg and in Cuba. Everyone believes that in the present war they will fight with the same dash and spirit as their Canadian cousins and that being the case nothing more can be asked of them.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peace feelers, like world wide war, seem to be made in Germany.

* * *

Those who refuse to fight should stand back when the time comes to discuss peace.

* * *

And so Fighting Joe Martin is coming back to Canada. As if the West didn't have trouble enough already.

* * *

Unlike the local Liberals Gen. Haig does not wait for something to happen. He makes his own history.

* * *

Oliver Wendell Holmes was satisfied as the Autocrat of the breakfast table but Mr. Hanna assumes that role at all three daily meals.

* * *

There are two meatless days a week according to the edict of Food Controller Hanna. Now for only one graftless day in the same time.

* * *

Before those gallant charges it is a cinch the Canadian troops never wait to take a referendum as to whether Canada will carry on or not.

* * *

The man who gives up meat to gorge himself with fish may be a patriot but his is a brand of patriotism that calls for little personal sacrifice.

* * *

And the men who captured Hill 70, who withstand the assaults of the picked German troops, are the men Sir Wilfrid Laurier would leave in the lurch.

* * *

Although two of the local heavyweights in the Liberal party visited Ottawa recently, no marked difference has so far been noted in the political atmosphere.

* * *

When the offspring of the average Liberal editor asks him years hence what he did in the war he can evade the issue by gravely declaring that he handled a monkey wrench.

* * *

If the Dominion Government is as corrupt as some of our contemporaries represent it then it is no longer safe to leave the family wash out overnight or the chicken coop unlocked.

* * *

Even the George Street Evening Knocker has no right to assume that the arbitrators will find that the C. N. R. stock is worth anything. It is simply [illegible] into an uncalled for passion.

* * *

The men who captured Hill 70 are not grumbling. In the meantime the anti-conscriptionist at home complains of the price of food stuffs increased because so much is required to feed the fighting men.

* * *

Lubin, the bogus check artist, who reaped such a rich harvest in Lindsay, would not have found the pickings easier even if he had been connected with the Trent Canal in those days when graft ran riot.

ONLY TWENTY YEARS AGO

Peterboro was a town.
Ladies wore bustles.
Operations were rare.
Nobody swatted the fly.
Nobody had seen a silo.
Nobody had appendicitis.
Nobody wore white shoes.
Nobody sprayed orchards.
Cream was 5 cents a pint.
Most young men had "livery bills."
Cantaloupes were muskmelons.
You never heard of a "tin Lizzie."
Doctors wanted to see your tongue.
Milk shake was a favorite drink.
Advertisers did not tell the truth.
Nobody cared for the price of gasoline.
Farmers came to town for their mail.
The hired girl drew one-fifty a week.
The butcher "threw in" a chunk of liver.
Folks said pneumatic tires were a joke.
Nobody "listened in" on a telephone.
There were no electric meters.
Strawstacks were burned instead of baled.
Publishing a country newspaper was not a business but a pastime.
People thought English sparrows were "birds."
Jules Verne was the only convert to the submarine.
You stuck tubes in your ears to hear a phonograph, and it cost a dime.
Mayor Duffus was not then a star near tht political zenith.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Every woman has some aim in life, but what she hits is different.

After a man's friends really know him they often cease to know him.

Some men invest in hair tonic as soon as the y begin to come out on top.

Executive ability may be the faculty of getting some one to do your work.

The angels couldn't be better than men in assert they will be after marriage.

Some men are workers in the vine yard—and some others do their work upon the finished product.

Many a man has told a woman that she is the only one he ever loved merely from force of habit.

PAY FOR POSTMEN

Trades Council Endorses Their Claim For Higher Wages

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The civil servants of Toronto, including the postmen and Customs House staff, are continuing their fight for higher salaries to meet the increased cost of living, and last night the Trades and Labor Council unanimously endorsed their demands and instructed the secretary to forward a copy of the resolution to Sir Robert Borden, the Premier, and the Postmaster-General.

STRAY SHOTS FROM SOLOMON

Trombone Virtue

Take no chances on the fellow who proclaims his virtues in "sounding brass." Do business with him in "black and white." The man whose word is as good as his bond does not need a brass band to help his reputation. The reason some people are so anxious to impress people with their goodness, is that they know if they were rated at their true worth they would be hanged to the nearest lamp post. To hear one of those smooth fellows talk you would think a seraph had strayed earthwards; but give him a good square chance and he will walk off with a whole saw mill dam and all, and sing a hymn while he covers up his tracks. If accomplished scientific scoundrelism were confined to the gentlemen that the police periodically round up, society would be comparatively safe. It is the slick unctious children of the Devil that array themselves in the garb of virtue that play such havoc in business, and work such ruin in society. There are men sitting on church boards that if they were put where they belong would be doing the lock step.

How Much Owest Thou?

When the books of account are opened in the next world there will be some strange transpositions from debit to credit. A man died the other day in a Canadian city leaving assets of over a million dollars to his relatives, and a few paltry thousands to what people are pleased to call "charity." He made his colossal fortune largely in the city where he resided. Will any one dare to say that he did not owe a large share of this accumulation to the people who afforded him the opportunity and helped him to gather his harvest? Can a man make a million dollars or more out of a community, and not owe his fellow citizens a cent? Fortunately succession duties step in and enforce this idea to some extent, but not as effectually as it should be. The percentage is too low on large amounts. The grasping and greed of those who build up these fortunes at the expense of the community should be tapped to yield an adequate recognition of the principle that "no man liveth unto himself and no man dieth unto himself."

A Closer View

Another case illustratts the bearing of this question upon those most intimately associated with individual fortune building. The head of an establishment died recently leaving a comfortable estate and a prosperous business to pass to his heirs. It is a well-known fact that the success of the concern was due [illegible] to the staff of employees that have been with it some of them for over a generation, and who have given quite as much thought and effort to the building up of its connection as the proprietor. That such services should not be suitably recognized by a share in the proceeds or recognition in the reorganization of the establishment, is the flat denial of an obligation as reprehensible as the repudiation of a just debt. A man should be just to his fellows in these matters. Think you the books [illegible] allowed to stand in this way by the Judge of all flesh? The golden rule if not applied here will be the instrument of adjustment yonder. How much owest thou?

A Good Prayer

A man may offer the Pharisee's prayer, "God, I thank Thee that I am not as other men," with a spirit of devotion and gratitude pleasing to the Almighty. It is well for a man when he sees a human hog, to lift up his hands and thank heaven for what little of God he may have within him. There are some men whose days are spent on the lowest possible plane of being. There is a man not a hundred miles from Toronto, who has prospered in business to an extent that has placed him in rather comfortable circumstances. He was originally a "bog trotter," but that is no disgrace, and should be no hindrance to development. He has, however, remained and forever will remain a "bog trotter" with all his wealth. Ignorant, self-opinionated, selfish, arrogant, narrow, intolerant, jealous, spiteful, mean, art a few of the adjectives that might quite appropriately qualify his character. He is the same man as when he kept a little shop and made his own goods. Wealth, a fine house, association with men, and even an intelligent wife have failed to groom the pork out of him. To make money seems to be his passion, and all his money has done for him is to put him in a place where his total unfitness or human society is made so plain that those may read who run. A man with only a crust of bread and a cup of water and a soul the size of a mosquito is as far above this human grunter as the remotest fixed star is distant from our little planet. Be a man, if it means to throw away all that is keeping your nose in the dirt.

REPORT ON FARM CONDITIONS

Most of the fall wheat has been cut and housed, but some is yet in the shock. In yield per acre it will be about an average crop, although the returns per acre vary greatly even in the same localities. The total acreage, of course, as previously explained, is smaller than usual.

Spring wheat will be above its average in yield and in the length of straw, with probably an increased acreage as well.

Rye has a similar record to that of fall wheat.

Barley never showed to better advantage, taking quantity and quality of both grain and straw into consideration. A fair portion of the crop already has been harvested.

Oat fields, as a rule, have been a revelation of growth. Some of the yields reported run as high as 70 and 80 bushels to the acre, while 50 and 60 are common. The straw is of unusual length, but only a little rust is so far reported. The heads as a rule are well filled, but ocasional complaints of smut are made. The only fear expressed regarding oats is the possibility of rains "lodging" the crop before cutting, owing to the rather rank growth of straw. Cutting has begun in some quarters.

Peas are a most promising crop at present appearance.

Reports regarding beans run all the way from poor to promising.

Hay has turned out to be an excellent crop, being well above the average in yield, and most of the cut being good quality. Coils may yet be seen in some fields, the grain crops having overtaken the mower.

Apples, which did not set heavily, dropped considerably during the summer, and will be a poor yield generally. Pears and plums have done somewhat better. Peaches will be fair, relatively. Raspberry growers did well this year where pickers were available.

Live stock. All classes of live stock are reported to be in good health. Very few sales, generally speaking, are being made. Good draft horses are bringing from $175 to $200; general purpose from $125 to $180. In Grey County nine carloads of cattle, chiefly butcheres' animals, left a local station one day last week. At a sale in Halton County grade Holstein cows sold as high as $153. Milk production is decreasing owing to the grass failing, but the flow is yet well up to the average for the time of year.

Hogs keeping up in price, selling at 15½c to 17 3-4c a lb., according to point of purchase.

Labor. With harvseting about half through, a keen demand for farm laborers is still on. During the past week there has been an improved response from the towns and cities to calls from the farm. Fortunately good harvest weather has helped in the clearing off of the ripening crops. Farmers are exchanging work more largely than ever, and their wives and daughters are helping with the rush in the fields. More milking machines are being installed in the dairy districts, and larger field implements are being purchased. Regarding the use of improved machinery, one representative stated that he is "snowed under" by requests for the use of the tractor to get the land ready for the new fall wheat.

When the cats play the mice get away.

If a man attends solely to his own business he has a good steady job.

THE VETERANS' AIMS

What Returned Soldiers Hope To Do By Organization

Toronto, Aug. 18.—The Great War Veterans' Association to-day issued the following statement:

The citizens of Toronto are already acquainted with the purposes for which all returned men, irrespective of rank, are now banded together. They are in order:

(1) Winning the war as quickly as possible.

(2) Reinforcing our comrades in France immediately.

(3) Preparation for the return to civil life of those now on active service overseas.

(4) Efficiently dealing with their problems when they have returned.

A list of English actor slackers in the States is in the hands of the British Recreation Committee, and will probably be published in the Old Country press together with that of the United States. The public will be asked to boycott theatres at which these men are playing.

The arrest of four men, two of whom are Germans, in an automobile containing $12,000 worth of opium at San Antonio, Texas, has brought to light a plan whereby over $2,000,000 worth of the drug has been smuggled into the States from Mexico in the past two months.

EDITOR'S MAIL

JITNEY SERVICE WANTED.

Editor Review: I see that the residents of Ashburnham are to get a jitney service. Why not be fair and [illegible]?

The residents in the northwestern section of the city need a jitney service, too; as the street cars with their numerous stops and transfers are simply an aggravation as a means of transportation.

WEST ENDER.

OUR HIGH TAXES.

Editor Review: Some years ago the taxes on my house were $30 a year. Now they are $120 and my domicile is no better or more desirable as a residence than it was in the good old days. Why the increase?

Well, for one thing, in the early days we had two policemen and a volunteer fire brigade and all our city officials seemed intent on earning their money. They were not joy riding in autos or other fancy rigs.

In Three Seconds an Accurate Receipt is Printed For Your Customers

Every merchant realizes the value of a receipt given to a customer. The receipt printed automatically in three seconds by the National Cash Register benefits proprietor, customer, clerk and servants and children.

The proprietor gets all the money on every cash sale, because a correctly printed receipt must be given to every customer. At the same time a Duplicate record is made inside the cash register.

The receipt is printed proof that the customer paid for the goods.

It removes temptation from employees because it forces them to record the correct amount.

It prevents the return of goods bought at other stores, as customers must return the receipt with the goods.

It protects the clerk against being accused unjustly.

It enables servants and children sent to the store to prove that they spent the amount shown on the receipt.

Every time a receipt is issued, a record of it is made on the sales-strip.

Many other things there are which a National Cash Register will do for you. Have us Explain. Write us today.

SMALL-FRUIT CULTURE ADVICE FOR CANADA

Pruning For Various Varieties Is Described—Good General Directions—Strawberries Need Care

W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist of Ottawa, writes: The care the strawberry plantation receives during the growing season determines to a large extent the kind of crop there will be next season. The more runners that can be placed with hand and trowel, so that the plants will root quickly and be evenly spaced, the better. Very often there are too many plants in one place and not enough in another. Where plants are crowded and much less than six inches apart, the crowns do not develop well and the fruit is liable to be small. It is important to keep the plantation free of weeds and the ground cultivated as long as possible, as late growth, in the case of strawberries, will result in better plants.

Bush Fruits

Often there is far too much wood left on the bushes of raspberries, currants, and gooseberries for best results. Attention is drawn to this now, as pruning of these can be done, if desired, as soon as the fruiting season is over. Raspberry canes should not be left closer than six inches apart, the dead and weaker ones being removed and the strongest left. Where canes are not covered with soil in winter, the thinning out may be left until spring, when one can tell, before pruning, which canes, if any, have been injured by winter. Bending down the canes and covering the tips with soil, or, where there is little snow, covering the plant entirely, will ensure the canes wintering well.

Other Small Fruits

Gooseberries are difficult to pick at any time, but if the bushes are kept well pruned, picking will be much easier than if there are many branches. Branches older than three years should be cut out. The best fruit is borne on the two- and three-year-old wood, but there should be a few strong new shoots, well distributed, allowed to remain each year. About six fruiting branches with their side shoots will be sufficient. Red currants are pruned somewhat as gooseberries, but a few more fruiting canes may be left. Unlike the red currant, the fruit of black currants is born on the wood made this year, hence severe pruning of the older wood is desirable to ensure strong new wood each year.

SURVEYING N. B. FORESTS

The determination of the New Brunswick Government to have a definite survey of the timber resources of the province is given an interesting testimony in the 1915 returns of the quantity of lumber cut. In 1905 the total was 107,705,676 superficial feet. This increased gradually until it reached 149,510,471 feet in 1907. During 1909 it jumped to 205,761,583 feet, and in 1910 made a still greater gain, reaching 281,716,402 feet. During the following year, 1911, the high level was reached for the ten year period from 1905 to 1915, viz., 309,882,428 feet. During 1912-13-14 the amount declined, reaching 270,221,155 feet in 1913. Then in 1915, on account of the demand arising out of the war, it increased again and reached 290,130,823 feet. The latter figure is said to be a little in excess of the estimated annual growth on the Crown Lands of the province. P. Z. Caverhill, late of the British Columbia Forest Service, was placed in charge of the survey work.

KILLING TO PRESERVE

Bacteria Killing is Basis of all Preserving

Prof. Lee of Manitoba Agricultural college writes: Life itself preserves that which lives but the preservation of lifeless material requires in many cases all the science and skill that is available. The larvae of flies and other insects together with molds and microbes are the three chief agencies which cause all food material to go bad. It is comparatively easy to keep away the flies, and not difficult to kill the molds, although their spores or seeds are always floating invisible in the air and fall into food if left uncovered even for a minute or two, but the presence and persistence of microbes or bacteria is the cause of most of the loss of good food gone bad.

Hence the killing or control of bacteria is at the bottom of successful preserving of meat, vegetables, fruit or even eggs. For ages the use of sugar, salt and drying were the common methods employed to prevent the increase of bacteria, advantage being taken also of cold air or ice when such were available. In all these cases the germs are controlled but not killed. Bacteria will not increase below freezing point, but they will not be killed even by 75 degrees below zero. Likewise they will not grow if the moisture content is less than 30 per cent., but they will not die in the dry food. Of late years the complete sterilization of the food material has largely replaced the other methods, especially in the case of vegetables and fruit, and this has been carried on so extensively by preserving in tin cans that the term "canning" is taking the place of "preserving," even though glass jars are used instead of cans.

Choosing Fire-rangers

The Canadian Forestry Journal makes bold to say: The matter of securing a thoroughly competent personnel in the fire-ranging staff is of the utmost importance. It is hardly conceivable that any one should seriously question this. Yet, in no single government fire-ranging service in all of Canada, so far as is known, are the appointments of fire-rangers clearly and definitely based upon the one ideal of merit and fitness for the position. In every single one, Dominion as well as provincial, the patronage system holds the reins.

GARDEN SUGGESTIONS

Fertilize tomatoes in the hill. They prefer a rich soil, and if you reside in the country and keep a few hens you will find that a few cleanings from the yard prove excellent for securing luxuriant growth and perfecting of the fruit. If the soil is stirred frequently there is no need to worry much about dry weather. Furnish stakes for the tomatoes early. A wind storm may work havoc otherwise; besides, you do not want them lying on the ground, the fruit being more susceptible to rot.

POTATOES NEGLECTED

Good Care Means Far Better Crops of Tubers

The potato crop often is very much neglected in Canada. By the middle of summer the tops are badly eaten by bugs, and what foliage is left is hidden by weeds. Large crops will not be obtained under conditions like these. If the soil is kept as moist as possible by thorough cultivation, the tops kept in condition by spraying for the potato beetle and late blight, the grower will be well rewarded for his pains by the much larger crop he will get, unless the season is very unfavorable. The greatest development of tubers takes place when the ground is moist. If the plants can be brought through the month of August without being badly injured, the crop will increase rapidly in the cooler and moister month of September. It was shown in an experiment that there was an increase at the rate of 119 bushels marketable potatoes per acre during the month of September.

Why You See Two Sides

If you spin a quarter and watch it you will see both sides of the coin at the same time. This is explained by the fact that the senses of man retain impressions a little time. It is, indeed, the explanation of motion pictures. Your vision persists and your perception of objects is continued after the object itself has disappeared. This allows you to see two parts of a thing even such opposites as the front and back—simultaneously.

Western Rose Border

To give interest to the rose border in Alberta during the early part of the season, before the roses are in blossom, groups of tulips may be planted amongst the bushes with a border of Scilla sibirica along the front. Liliums and Galtonia candicans are also very effective used in the same way as the tulips, these flowering later in the season.

BEST BREEDING HOGS

Use Only Best For Next Generation, is Hog Raiser's Advice

William Gilbert of Alberta writes as follows: During times when hogs are high in price, there is generally the tendency to jump into the business too quickly and too heavily. The purchaser is too anxious to consider the future, than to consider the merits of the stock he is buying. One of the greatest detriments to the hog business affecting both the breeder and the purchaser is the buying of young immature brood sows as the majority of buyers are not sufficiently insistent in demanding size and age. I ship myself numerous young sows against my better judgment at the request of buyers for young cheap stock and I frankly admit that we breeders do not raise our champions from immature sows or boars.

It takes size, age, bone and constitution to raise the quality of stock which pays, and a very serious drawback is using the type of young boars which the majority of buyers are satisfied with. It is an injustice to the animal as well as to the breed to use him at five or six months old, his vitality is checked before it is properly developed, and the boar is speedily considered worthless. If buyers were more particular as to the size, age, etc., we would soon find more of the high quality quick-growing kind of hogs.

Another point in buying a hog is that the breeder as a rule quotes three or four prices. You might ask why is this? As a rule the average buyer will select the lowest price and expect the same quality of hog quoted at the higher price; while the buyer who demands a good quality hog at a good price, generally gets satisfaction as he demands the best and is willing to pay extra for it; and the breeder will very often go out of his way to cater to this kind of business. The quality is an important factor in fixing the price, it takes money and experience to improve quality in any stock, so if the standard of the farm hog is to be improved, we have got to mate for size, bone vitality, prolific breeding, easy feeding, and then there is money in the hog business at low prices.

SMALL WESTERN FARMS

Farmers Will Have To Get Dual-Purpose Cattle

With the rapid settlement of the Western prairies and the gradual occupation of our vacant lands, the western farmer is getting more and more confined to his own holding. Land values also have increased at a rapid rate and economies in management are now practised on the average farm that would have been superfluous years ago. The unprofitable cow "boarder" is being displaced and farmers are slowly, but surely being forced into a system of live stock husbandry that would have been considered much too complicated when our country was in the earlier stages of its development. The plain demand has to be made on our cows to give the farmer more than one source of revenue. This refers more particularly to farmers on limited areas of land, who, in the end, will constitute the majority in the West. Those who have ample free range or leased land available can afford to devote their energies strictly to beef production, but the other class must ultimately drift into dairying as well at least in Northern Alberta and the irrigated sections in the South. At the same time, they will never be able to ignore entirely the beef making qualities of their herd. It is this happy but exceedingly difficult demand that the movement in dual-purpose shorthorn breeding is endeavouring to supply.

A Good Supper Dish

One cupful of cooked rice, three cupfuls of canned tomatoes, one-half an onion (sliced), one slice of bacon cut in small pieces, salt and celery, salt to taste. Put the bacon in a frying pan and fry out the fat; then slice the onion into it, add the tomatoes and rice and cook until it is a good consistency; then add the seasonings. This takes the place of potatoes and is exceptionally good served with cooked meats.

Tips From the Gardener

Porch and window boxes often begin to look shabby, simply because the supply of plant food in the soil has been largely exhausted. An application of manure water should be made once or twice each week during the late summer, but the liquid must first be diluted until it is about the color of weak tea. A little pulverized sheep manure from the seed store will serve for making this simple but highly effective fertilizer. Some commercial humus spread over the top of the box will also help.

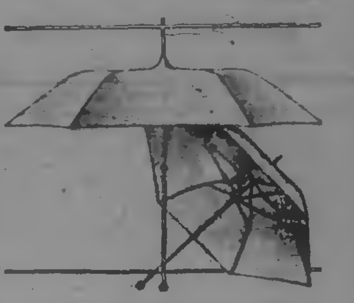
BRUISED STOCK WASTE

Bruised cattle in the vicinity of Toronto result in a waste of more than one million dollars each year. The waste in bruised hogs and cattle here would not be as great as that but it runs into a lot of money. Shippers should: 1. Use care in delivering your hogs to loading station. 2. Use care in loading at shipping point. 3. Report to us any trouble with loading pens or chutes. 4. Do not beat animals with sticks. 5. See that there are no nails or projections in cars. 6. Bear in mind that losses through bruised animals find their way back to the seller. 7. Be sure your car is well bedded.—P. Burns & Company, of Calgary.

Paper Umbrellas For Emergencies



A paper umbrella, for use in emergencies, which its makers claim is rain and wind proof has recently been put on the market. It is designed to be sold at news stands, elevated railroad stations, restaurants, cigar stores, etc. The article consists of a metal frame of special design to give it unusual flexibility, a wooden handle, and oiled paper covering. It is light and folds compactly, while with ordinary care it can be used several times.—From Popular Mechanics.

Woes of Mrs. Newlywed

"There goes another pair of silk hose!" exclaimed Mrs. Newlywed, in a discouraged tone, as she held up a pair of silk stockings she had just taken from her work basket.

"Before wearing silk stockings, rinse the toes and heels in cold water and let them dry. You will be surprised to find how much longer the stockings will last," comforted Mrs. Neighbor.

THE FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE

Pure blood is the body's first line of defence against disease. Strong, healthy blood neutralizes the poisons of invading germs, or destroys the germs themselves. That is why many people exposed to disease do not contract it. Those whose blood is weak and watery and therefore lacking in defensive power are most liable to infection. Everybody may observe that healthy, red-blooded people are less liable to colds and the grippe, than pale, bloodless people. It is the bloodless people who tire easily, who are short of breath at slight exertion, who have poor appetites and who wake up in the morning as tired as when they went to bed. While women and girls chiefly suffer from bloodlessness, the trouble also affects both boys and men. It simply affects girls and women to a greater extent because there is a greater demand upon their blood supply.

To renew and build up the blood there is no remedy can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, feed and strengthen starving nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks, give refreshing sleep and drive away that unnatural tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight and wholesome food will do the rest.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MANAGERS NOT SLEUTHS

Major League Baseball Players Live Under Fewer Rules

Fewer rules are made for the players by major baseball league managers these days than in the past. The majority of the team leaders nowadays tell the players that they want them in condition to play baseball at all times and they do not insist upon any rigid rules about when to go to bed, when to get up, what to eat, when to eat, and how much to indulge in cigarettes, liquor or card playing. It was only a few years since the managers were regular night owls. They sat up every night and watched their players go up in the elevators at the hotels, and every man not upstairs and in bed by a certain hour was fined. Nowadays the managers go to bed and let the players turn in whenever they desire to do so. In the morning the team leader is shrewd enough to tell whether or not a player has been keeping late hours.

LIFE'S LITTLE IRONIES

Drunken Automobile Driver Allowed But Engineer Never

"Why is it," we were asked by an Ordinary Citizen the other day, "that a railway engineer has to pass years of apprenticeship, take all kinds of physical and mental examinations, foreswear liquor, and keep himself in perfect health, before he is considered fit to run a train along a fixed steel track, while any crazy fool who can buy a 75 horse power automobile is allowed to plough through crowded streets at his own sweet will, with as many drinks under his belt as he can carry, providing he doesn't show it? The engineer doesn't even have to steer the train. All he has to do is to start it and stop it. Yet before he is even allowed to try that he has to have a certificate of character and experience. All the fellow in the automobile has to have is the price." And there's something to it when you stop to think it over. Isn't there?—Carleton Sentinel.

CUTTING FRENCH FORESTS.

Canadians Are Taking Sawmills to Europe.

There are at present 22 companies of the Canadian forestry corps operating in France. The first eight companies arrived between December last and the end of March, and five companies arrived in April, with approximately 60 per cent. of their transport. Eight more companies arrived in the third week of May. It is hoped to employ 56 companies in all by September.

The companies are equipped with Canadian-made sawmilling machinery and tools, and the greatest efficiency and keenness is displayed by all ranks. Operations extend over a large area. All species of lumber are manufactured, including sawn timber, sleepers, trench timber, pit props for roads and mining.

The establishment of the companies, including transport, is 190 all ranks. The average production varies according to the nature of the woods. In suitable woods between 1,000 and 1,500 tons of sawn lumber, together with sufficient round timber to bring the output up to 2,000 tons per month, may be expected. On round timber alone, however, a company produces from 4,000 to 6,000 tons per month.

Some of the operations of the corps are being carried out under shell fire, and one unit was recently heavily shelled, fortunately no casualties resulting.

Of the companies six are employed in the army areas, although their work is greatly handicapped by having to operate in small woods, as a rule devastated by shell fire. The daily output is most satisfactory, and wood is delivered direct to armies at very short notice.

Seven companies, including the Canadian construction company (colored) are employed in the Jura wood. The Canadian mills in operation in this area have aroused great interest amongst the French military and civil authorities, who have not hesitated to express their admiration of the mechanical efficiency evidenced in the design and construction of the mills.

Ten companies are now working on the lines of communication. Some fine forests have recently been acquired for exploitation in this area.

An advance party has already arrived in the Bordeaux district and is making necessary arrangements for opening up operations.

All companies except one are fully equipped in every detail with Canadian sawmill machinery and tools.

Escaped From Germany.

Two Canadian soldiers, at least, were in the right spirit to appreciate Dominion Day. These were Privates F. C. MacDonald, 106416, of Foxwarren, Manitoba, and J. O'Brien, 73194, of Moose Jaw, who had just arrived in London on July 1st after escaping from a German prison camp, where for the past year they were held. MacDonald, who enlisted in the First Mounted Rifles, Winnipeg, was captured in June of last year, after being wounded in the knee and eyes from shrapnel, but recovered from both injuries. O'Brien, belonging to the 28th Battalion, was buried for two hours in a crater, but was taken out unhurt, both men being sent to Dulmen Camp. Wretched treatment from the officers combined with bad food and unhealthy surroundings made them determined from the outset to get away if possible. MacDonald made four attempts and O'Brien made two. Each failure was punished by periods of bread and water in dark underground cells with bare boards. Finally they managed to slip away while engaged in a working party—just how cannot be explained. They still retained their identity discs on wrists, which proved their story to Dutch authorities, who showed them every kindness. General Turner assured both men that being theoretically prisoners they would not be sent to the front again. Both MacDonald and O'Brien are Canadian born.

Many Types of Mahogany.

An article just published on the subject of mahogany records, among other interesting facts, the bewildering ambiguity of the term "mahogany." True mahogany is produced only by two closely related species of tree, Swietenia mahogani Jacq. and Swietenia macrophylla King, both natives of tropical America. The name "mahogany," with or without some qualifying word such as "Indian," "Madeira," "African," "Philippine," etc., is however, applied to cabinet woods grown in a great many parts of the world. These so-called mahoganies belong to sixty-seven distinct species, of forty-one genera, and they are scattered through eighteen families of the vegetable kingdom. Of come of the West African species the botanical status is unknown. To add, to the confusion, true mahogany has many names and several more or less distinct varieties are recognized commercially.

GALWAY TO HALIFAX

A SCHEME TO CONNECT DOMINION WITH MOTHERLAND.

It Is Proposed That the Splendid Irish Harbor Should Be Used as Part of an Undertaking Which Will Strengthen the Empire and Also Please People of Ireland.

AT a dinner given, some time ago, by the Empire Press Union, in London, in honor of the delegates of the Imperial War Conference, a point brought out by several of the speakers was the great need of the Empire of improving its means of communication. Thus, Lord Burnham hoped for a united effort to establish an All-Red route of cable communications by land and sea; whilst Sir Robert Borden declared that Canada was prepared to do her utmost to improve transport and intercommunication; and Mr. Massey, speaking for New Zealand, desired to indorse all that had been said of the need for better communication between the Mother Country and the Dominions.

In these circumstances, the question of an All-Red route from London to Canada, by way of the port of Galway, on the west coast of Ireland, discussed in the interview with the famous railway builder, Mr. Robert Worthington, of Dublin, becomes a specially important one. Mr. Worthington has been advocating this scheme for several years past, and anyone who has acquaintance with the facts of the case cannot fail to be impressed with the great advantages of the scheme. It would shorten the journey between London and Halifax by between ten and twelve hours; whilst it would avoid the necessarily slow passage down the Irish Channel, if the voyage from Liverpool be considered in comparison. Galway Bay, which, as Mr. Worthington pointed out, was declared by a Royal Commission on Irish harbors, over thirty years ago, to be the "most suitable site for a great national harbor," has certainly many remarkable advantages. At the site where the harbor would be constructed, there is a sufficient depth of water, even at low tide, to allow of the entrance of the largest liners afloat. Vessels, instead of being obliged to slow down for hours before arrival, as in the case of a river approach, could steam full speed out of the Atlantic into Galway Bay; whilst the harbor itself would have the natural protection of the the Arran Islands.

The scheme has, as might be expected, influential support, support which comes from Galway itself, from twenty-seven municipal, county, and district councils in Ireland, from the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, the Port and Docks Board of the Dublin Corporation, and other public bodies. It has also the unanimous support of the Imperial Conference, and the earnest approval of statesmen and capitalists in Canada and Newfoundland. With such universal approval it can hardly fail to be a matter of surprise that there has been such delay in giving effect to the project. Mr. Worthington, however, provides the explanation. "Ireland," he says, "has many grievances, real and imaginary, but one of the former, which has existed for centuries, is the hostility of the English capitalists to any Irish development that, in any way, affects their intreests." It is, of courre, the same attitude which sought to safeguard English commerce by imposing drastic restrictions on Irish trade in the Eighteenth Century, restrictions which called forth the bitter denunciation of Henry Grattan and other Irish statesmen. Times have changed, and with them the character of this opposition. It is no longer possible to promote unjust legislation, but there are other means of thwarting enterprise. "Twice," Mr. Worthington declares, "I had arranged the capital, and twice the hidden hand upset my efforts. Their influence is powerful, and not less so when indirectly applied." It is, of course, needless to say that such opposition in no way represents the attitude of England towards Ireland to-day. The history of the past twenty years, where Ireland is concerned, is sufficient proof to the contrary. This, however, is all the more reason why the British authorities should give the whole question their urgent attention. It is, as Mr. Worthington well says, a project "vital to the Empire's interest," calling for Government assistance; and the blocking of such a scheme by any private body of financiers, however large or influential, is most clearly not to be tolerated.

Reaches Height of 380 Feet.

Douglas fir is the largest structural timber growing in Canada. Trees have been measured up to 380 feet high, with a maximum diameter of fifteen feet. The largest trees scale as high as 60,000 feet, board measure. The wood is one of the hardest, heaviest, stiffest, and strongest found in Canada. So far as structural timber is concerned, Douglas fir is by all means the most important, although there are several other species which produce very good structural timber. According to recent estimates of the Commission of Conservation, the total supply of merchantable Douglas fir is about 75 billion feet, board measure, and since the tree grows satisfactorily under reforestation there is little reason to believe the supply will be exhausted for many years.

Snider Suffered Most all His Life

Feels Better Since Tanlac Overcame Trouble Than He Has in Thirty-Five Years.

"I'm feeling better today than I have in thirty-five years and it's all due to the good work of Tanlac," said James A. Snider of 17 Jackson street west, Hamilton, recently. Mr. Snider has the distinction of being one of the fastest coopers in Canada but was forced by ill health to give up his trade. He has now returned to work, however, and is employed by the Paardeburg Chapter I.O.D.E. Mr. Snider is well known both in Hamilton and vicinity and although sixty-nine years of age he has the appearance of a man many years younger. Continuing his statement Mr. Snider said:

"A medicine that will make a person my age again in weight and relieve them of troubles thirty-five or forty years standing is certainly wonderful. I had no appetite and just had to force myself to eat. At times I felt like there was a thousand pound weight on my stomach, and I was almost doubled up with misery. Gas would form from what I ate and make my heart flutter, and I often had dreadful smothering spells. I have had the best treatment both in the United States and Canada, and have taken all kinds of medicines. I would feel a little better for a day or so and then feel as bad or worse than ever.

"I'm now prepared to say that Tanlac has done for me what others say it has done for them and I want to make this statement because I feel like it may help lots of people who are in the same fix I was. Why, before I took Tanlac I had rheumatism in my knees and the pain was so severe I couldn't straighten up, and now the rheumatism is nearly all gone and I can walk as straight as a dial. It has put my stomach in good condition, the gas has stopped forming and I don't have any more of those awful smothering spells. My food agrees with me and I know it is building me up because I have already gained several pounds and have just finished my second bottle of Tanlac. All my pain is gone now and I want to say again I feel better than I have in thirty-five years. I can't say enough in praise of Tanlac and I'm going to tell everybody I can about the good it has done me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by Warne Drug Co., Ltd.

Cheered for Canadian.

A well-known Canadian cigar importer was the first man to buy one of the $100 Liberty Loan bonds from Raymond Hitchcock a few days ago on the stage of the Cohan Theatre on 42nd street, New York city. Mr. Hitchcock had been selling the loan in fifty-dollar denominations. Then he called out:

"Who will buy the first one-hundred-dollar bond?"

"I will," responded the Canadian.

"Where do you come from?" continued the actor.

"Toronto," answered the purchaser, and thereupon deponent says the audience applauded for nearly two minutes, and demanded that the purchaser make a speech, which he did, directing the attention of the audience to the number of men Toronto had sent to the war, and to the fact that the entry of the United States into the conflict would tend to cement more closely the English-speaking people. It was not a long time ago, he pointed out, since a British flag would be hissed on a New York stage, but times had since decidedly changed. Mr. Hitchcock replied to the effect that the people of Canada had been fighting for three years for the freedom of mankind, and that they had won the admiration of the civilised world.

Want Design for Plaque.

Donald MacMaster, M.P., who is a member of the British Parliamentary Committee charged with completing arrangements for having a plaque prepared in memory of the men who have made the supreme sacrifice at the front, states that on his suggestion the competition for designs will be open to the overseas dominions. Mr. MacMaster is a Canadian himself.

Shown together in an automobile museum in London are a steam car built in 1869, a steam tricycle dating from 1881, and a gasoline car invented in 1895.

Vanquished.

"Old Braggart had a bad day yesterday."

"What happened?"

"He bumped into Booster, who could talk louder and longer about himself than he could."—Detroit Free Press.

The Rational Assumption.

"So your admirer is an aviator. I suppose he makes very short calls when he comes."

"Why do you think that?"

"Doesn't he make flying visits?"—Baltimore American.

Just the Thing.

"You should by all means have an Italian garden."

"All right," said Mr. Nuritch. "And we'll plant some spaghetti."—Kansas City Journal.

Armies Move Very Slowly.

It is the paradox of modern warfare that, with all the mechanical means of locomotion, the progress of an army is almost always much slower than it used to be. To-day there are no brilliant dashes, and every mile of advance, even across the desert, has had to be painfully gained and then—blessed word—"consolidated." The army which has thus, bit by bit, driven the Turk out of the desert that bounds Egypt on the east has advanced along the main track which passes near the coast line from Africa to Asia. It is a country not of mountains and ravines, but of rolling sand dunes and green oases—Hods, as the Arabs call them—where palms, peeping out of the surrounding bareness, give that wonderful variety of color that is characteristic of the desert. It may be likened to a sandy Switzerland in which the yellow ridges and crests take the place of snow fields and glaciers, and the clusters of date trees represent the lakes. From time immemorial it has been the domain of the Bedouin, the true gypsies, who have no home save their camels, but now it is populous with camps and bivouacs.—Manchester Guardian.

Another Fallacy Shattered.

Contact with young people is supposed to be rejuvenating! Indeed, this contact is the only good thing many see in that absorbing and in every other way desirable profession of teaching. Was ever so false an idea? How could so obvious a fallacy get the popular ear? Think how little aware of passing years we should be, were it not for the young! Their very presence proclaims our greater years. They themselves seem to have conspired together to help us to a suitable awareness. Every possible aid is offered, and offered in the kindest spirit of courtesy. One is helped into wraps, relieved of carrying loads or opening doors, guided up and down steps, deposited in easy chairs, and generally treated as fragile. It is all delightful; but the force of suggestion as exerted by so many vigorous young minds will sooner or later have its effect. We may resist for a time; ultimately, however, we shall take ourselves at the rating of the community in which we live. I have seen my friends capitulate one by one, accept the verdict of the majority, and settle down into the accepted properties of middle-age.—The Atlantic.

Cossacks ...

The aid given by the cossacks to the Russian Revolution is described in The New Republic in a diary written by an American who was present during the Revolution and to whom an eyewitness told the following.

"The Znamenskaya Place was full of people," he said; "orators everywhere, especially around the statue in the center of the square, and a company of cossacks riding around the crowd. I was on the outskirts, near the Newski, opposite the Goncharnaya. I looked up the Newski. Suddenly there was a shot behind me, close to me. I looked around and saw a man's arm and hand holding a smoking revolver straight up into the air, and then I saw a troop of mounted police issue from the Goncharnaya with naked sabres and charge at the crowd. Suddenly a shot came from the cossacks who were on my right, and the leader of the police fell from his horse. The cossacks yelled and charged the police, backing and swinging with their whips. The police broke and fled. Then," he said, "you should have seen the crowd. People kissed and hugged the cossacks, climbing up on the horses to reach them. Others kissed and embraced the horses, the cossacks' boots, stirrups, saddles. They were given cigarettes, money, cigar cases, gloves, anything, everything." His eys were full of tears. "Go home," he said, "quick; there'll be war in the city tonight."

"Willie" Redmond's Tongue.

Some delightful stories are being recalled of Major "Willie" Redmond, illustrating his extraordinary "genius for interjection," which made him so very much a foe to be reckoned with in the British House of Commons. As one writer has expressed it, his special efforts were not so much interruptions as interjections, "sliced in between two sentences, so precisely and exactly timed that they almost seemed to slip into the sequence of the speech." There was one memorable night in the House, towards the close of Mr. Balfour's ministry in 1905, when the member for East Clare achieved a notable success. It was a time when everybody was eagerly debating "Chinese labor" in the Transvaal, and discussion in the House was running high. Suddenly, there came a rich South of Ireland voice demanding "Order in the Compound." It was "Willie" Redmond, of course, and the pat allusion was greeted with roars of laughter.

QUAKER OATS COMPANY TO CHANGE THEIR TRACKS

Board of Works Gives the Required Authority at Last Night's Meeting---Other Matters Disposed of.

The Board of Works met last evening and cleared its file of a number of matters that required attention of the Engineering Department.

City Engineer Parsons reported that it would be much better to build the sidewalk on the south side of Sutherland ave. and a crossing to the north side than on the north side.

It was decided to accept the recommendation and the walk will be so built. The cost will be $258.75 and the city's share is $168.00. Mr. Parsons reported against a sidewalk on Smith St. from Reid to Downie street and no recommendation was made for this walk.

Will Extend.

Ald. Saunders asked that a short strip of sidewalk be built on the north side of Chamberlain street from Park street to Layfayette ave. and the committee recommended its being built.

Request Granted.

The Quaker Oats Co. in order to facilitate the building of their plant asked the city to allow them to raise the east track on Hunter street two feet and to lower the west track the same distance. In order to do this Hunter street will have to be graded from Sheridan street east and the concerte sidewalks will have to be torn up and replaced with a temporary board walk. The expense of doing this the company is quite willing to bear.

As the level will be only a temporary one and will have to be altered when the new bridge is being erected the request was granted providing the work is done under the supervision of the City Engineer.

Ald. Smith insisted that in building the walks that every consideration should be shown to the people of East City. They used this street the most and were already putting up with a lot of inconvenience.

City Engineer Parsons stated that the grade at the bridge would not be effected very much as the east track was 25 feet from the bridge and would be gradually sloped rather than a straight raise.

Wanted Oil.

Mrs. J. McMillan wanted the city to oil two or three blocks in front of 1001 Water street. It was pointed out that the street would have to be repaired before any oiling could be done and the applicant will be so advised.

Will Oil.

Ald. Saunders drew attention to the dusty condition of Park street from Romaine to the C.P.R. track and asked that it be watered. The City Engineer stated that it would be better to oil it and it was so ordered.

Time Extended.

The C.P.R. were granted a six months extension of the time to complete the new spur line into the Quaker Oats plant.

Sewers Recommended.

The Board of Health recommends that sewers be built on certain streets of the city and the same was passed on to the council with the suggestion that the work be proceeded with under the new frontage schedule.

Passed Along.

The residents of Dufferin street petitioned for a sewer from Concession to Ross streets but it was found that it was not properly signed. It was handed over to the Board of Health for recommendation.

Permission Granted.

Manson Comstock was granted permission to remove three Birch trees in front of his residence on Sherbrooke street provided he replaces them with maple trees.

James Lewis was granted permission to remove a tree in front of his residence on Stewart street if he plants another satisfactory to the City Engineer.

Short of Ties.

City Engineer Parsons reported to the committee that the fault for non-completion of the work on Monaghan Road from Charlotte street south was not due to the city but to the failure of the Hydro Electric Commission to get ties for their roadbed.

CENTRAL PARK SONG SERVICE

To-morrow night two new songs will be sung. One is "Something more than gold," the other to be announced. Also "I shall know Him," "Take the world," and "The gospel of Thy Grace." The audience will be asked to select two favorites.

Banana Pie

Beat the yolks of two eggs with half a cup of granulated sugar. Peel and mash two bananas, beat into the sugar and eggs mixture, add a pinch of salt, two cups of milk, and turn into a pie plate lined with rich pie crust.

Apple and Banana Salad

Slice bananas and roll in lemon juice and sugar; mix with an equal amount of sliced apples. Serve with boiled dressing or with mayonnnaise dressing.

When part of an onion has been used it is more profitable to throw the remaining part away, unless you wrap it in paper, as a cut onion is a natural disinfectant, absorbing all that can be drawn from its surroundings, thus making itself unfit for use

Cholera Infantum

Cholera Infantum is one of the fatal ailments of childhood. It is a trouble that comes on suddenly, especially during the summer months, and unless prompt action is taken, the little one may soon be beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets are an ideal medicine in warding off this trouble. They regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus prevent all the dreaded stomach complaints. Concerning them Mrs. Fred. Rose, South Bay, Ont., says: "I feel that Baby's Own Tablets saved the life of our baby when she had cholera infantum, and I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MRS. FLAGLER'S LARGE ESTATE CAUSES WONDER

THE VAST HOLDINGS OF FLORIDA HOTEL, LAND & RAILWAY PROPERTY.

Lexington, Ky., Aug. 18.—The will of Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, formerly Mrs. Henry M. Flagler, it is learned, covers a vast range of valuable property, including varied holdings from land to a railroad.

Chief among the properties is the famous Florida East Coast Railway, with various branches. This line includes the "oversea" railroad linking Key West with the mainland of Florida.

Second in importance is the chain of winter resort hotels, chief among which are the well known Ponce de Leon Hotel at St. Augustine and the Alcazar, the Royal Poinciana and the Breakers at Balm Beach, hostelries at Ormond, Miami, Atlantic Beach, near Nassau, Bahama Islands.

The estate also embraces enormous holdings of farm and timber lands located in the various counties of Florida along the Florida East Coast Railway and its branches. This land is being used largely for colonization purposes, and is administered by subsidiary companies. The will further disposes of 40,250 shares of Standard Oil stock and the Fifth avenue, New York city, residence.

Judge Swayze, at Trenton, N.J., has refused to quash the indictment for manslaughter returned against the Lehigh Valley Railroad, as a result of the munitions explosion at Black Tom, a year ago.

BEER WAS FLAT

It Had Been Waiting Two Years For The Soldier

New York, Aug. 18. — The Sun prints the following as a special cable:

London, Aug. 16.—An American soldier, one of the contingent that paraded here yesterday, went into a saloon to get a glass of beer. It was served warm, as is the custom here, and addressing the barmaid, he said:

"Isn't that beer a little stale?"

To which the barmaid replied:

"Why shouldn't it be; it's been waiting for you for two years."

Would be progressive people sometimes forget that a freight train makes more noise than a limited express.

MARKET PRICES

The ladies who went to the market this morning to make the weekly purchase of eggs and butter got an awful surprice at the sudden rise in the price. Eggs sold at 48 cents generally, although in a few instances 45, 46 and 47 was all that was asked.

Butter was in the same rising market, and not a few of the steady patrons of the market stated that they were going to buy creamery butter in preference to coming to the market. There was no reason for the great rise so far as the outside market was concerned.

The potato markit is getting plentifully supplied, and good ones can now be secured at 40 cents a peck and some at even lower than that.

The Peterboro Cheese Board will meet next Wednesday at ten o'clock.

Archduke Feared Death When Visiting Serajevo But Continued Journey

WHAT purport to be hitherto unpublish facts relating to the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria, showing that he had a strong premonition of approaching death, are contributed to the Berlin Tageblatt by its correspondent at the Austro-Italian front.

The correspondent's informants, according to this despatch are persons of high standing, some of whom were eye witnesses to the Serajevo tragedy which has been described as having supplied the match that set the world aflame.

Indications of the archduke's uneasiness, it is asserted, were apparent while he was driving along the quay at Trieste to board the steamship for Serajevo. He repeatedly glanced up at houses fronting on the water, as if suspecting a bomb plot. At Cumaja Bridge, in Serajevo, however, when Gabrinovitch hurled a bomb which landed on the collapsed top of the Austro-Hungarian heir's carriage, the Archduke showed remarkable presence of mind by sweeping the death-dealing missile away with his hand. Falling to the ground, the bomb exploded, damaging the third automobile in the line of the parade and wounding the adjutant, Lieutenant-Colonel Count Merizzi.

After the injured officer had been removed to a hospital, the archducal pair proceeded to the city hall. At the conclusion of the ceremonies there, a consultation was held as to the advisability of carrying out the program which had been announced for the royal visitors. Contrary to the accepted version of the episode, which described Ferdinand as insisting that the program be carried out despite the urgent advice of members of his party in opposition to the plan, the heir to the throne is now quoted as having asked:

"What shall we do now? Shall we continue to permit ourselves to be shot dead?"

General Potiorek is said to have proposed either that the city should be punished by the cancellation of the program or that the streets be cleared and the ceremonies carried out as arranged. To the latter proposal, the Archduke, after brief reflection, is said to have replied:

"To carry out the program after clearing the streets doesn't suit me. We had better drop the program entirely. I only wish to visit Merizzi."

In deference to the Archduke's wishes, the party was divided, the royal pair proceeding on their way to the hospital to visit the wounded adjutant. In the prevailing confusion, according to the latest version of the tragedy, the chauffeur assigned to the Archduke's car disregarded his instructions. Count Harrach, the officer who had been detailed to the Archduke's machine, appeared on the runing board of another car on the opposite side of the street. When the Archduke's chauffeur started off in the wrong direction, Count Harrach, it is said, called to him to halt, thus affording the assassin, Princip, an unexpected opportunity to fire the fatal shots at Ferdinand and his wife from a distance of only a few feet.

The Tageblatt's correspondent asserts that, after the bomb outrage in which the adjutant was injured, General Potiorek assured the Archduke there would be no further attempt to assassinate him, as plotters all had been arrested. Ferdinand, however, is described as having looked at him somewhat sceptically and saying:

"I don't believe it. We will get several bullets yet."

Student Officers.

In contrast with the German students, unindifferentiated competence is the characteristic of America youth in general. In no older country is it so difficult to predict the future career of a typical schoolboy. The college preserves, for a select group the condition of undifferentiation through the early years of manhood. But, now war is on, the colleges are doing their part. One of the conditions that the Germans counted on, when they decided to risk American intervention, was America's notorious lack of officers to make effective their otherwise unlimited man power. They reckoned without the colleges. Here Uncle Sam has tons of thousands of young men, physically fit and mentally alert, willing to work harder than any other class of men in equipping themselves with the essentials of the military officer's art. They are not men who fret over the loss of a year or two that might be applied to their training as accountants or physicians or philologists. They have given years to undifferentiated culture, and they are willing to give further years to the national service, not doubting that they will fit themselves satisfactorily into the scheme of practical affairs when the war is over. Therefore they have not hung back, waiting for the formal draft, but by thousands have applied themselves to the acquisition of military training with an energy to astonish and sadden their former teachers, in whose course a zeal for work had not been conspicuous.

QUAINT CHARACTER WAS OLD BOOKMAKER

Burton Didn't Watch Races, But Knew Horses Well—A Canadian Turfman's Stories

The famous Seagram trainer, John Evans, used to tell the following on [illegible] Burton, a noted character of the American turf: Burton, always a noted [illegible], eventually became prominent as a bookmaker. He was one of those "layers" who never could imagine that a poor horse had any chance to beat a good one, and he would lay long odds against the bad horses. One day at Jerome Park, New York, he laid 25 to 1 against Philosopher for $1,000 in a two-horse race. This was his idea of good bookmaking.

He would seldom look at any race, and while this one was being run he was concealed under the grand stand. Just at the finish he came out in the open and enquired, "Who won?" "Philosopher," replied an excited spectator, "by a nose." Immediately Burton felt a sickness creeping over him and he returned to his place of concealment. As a matter of fact, Longstreet, the favorite, won by the narrowest possible margin, the truth of which was only made known to Bur- [illegible] he had spent some moments of worry.

Versus Canadians

During the hey-day of Burton's career in the "layers'" ranks Chas. Boyle took to the Gravesend track at New York Lady Reel, a smart mare owned by the late Dr. Smith of Ottawa. Thinking her to be outclassed Burton laid 100 to 1 against Lady Reel, the top price in the ring, the first time out, and the Canadians got down hook, line, and sinker. It was a big field, and the Canadian entry ran a smashing race, finishing close up to the leaders, although not among the placed horses.

Almost Bit, Became Shy

Some days later Lady Reel was in again. The Canadian contingent surrounded Burton, expecting him to chalk up at least 100 and probably 200 to 1 against her. Burton put up the prices of all the other horses in the race, leaving the Lady to the last. After some delay 4 to 1 was posted against the Canadian mare, and as he did so Burton remarked: "I know something about her myself." The Canucks were dumbfounded. Burton evidently did "know something." Lady Reel won, but the drubbing planned for the Tennessee "penciller" failed to materialize.

OLDEN BOXERS FOUGHT

"Fitz" Bemoans Modern Pugilists—Too Few Knockouts

Robert Fitzsimmons declared the "cave men" of the ring are extinct, and the champions of to-day are children compared with the old school. "I had my first fight when I was 15 years of age," says the old gladiator. "I had three bare-knuckle fights with heavyweights when I was a kid and weighing less than 115 pounds. That was the school I learned in. To-day they get a purse that would about equal my entire ring earnings, and they have it handed to them for six or ten rounds on no-decision fighting." Bob declares that Jim Jeffries was the greatest fighter that ever lived, and he should know, for he fought him twice, and trained him for that fight with Corbett.

Old Robert did not approve of the change that has come over the game. "Here is the difference between the present-day fighters and the veterans: Every time I let one go I tried for a knockout. To-day they outpoint men. A knockout is a rare event to-day. In the old days they fought to a decision. I used to say to myself: 'Well, Bob, you just keep firing and you'll land.'"

It is the merry life that checks fighters, he declares. "They jump off a wagon or come up out of a mine and earn a fortune. Then they get careless, and the first thing they know they are trying to whip the best of them all, Nature, and down they go, and they seldom get up."

Fabulous Prices Paid by Major Ball League Managers

Ball players have brought fancy prices. Here are some of the big sales: Tris Speaker, Boston Americans, bought by Cleveland; price said to be more than $50,000. Eddie Collins, Philadelphia Athletics, bought by Chicago White Sox, 1915; $50,000. Frank Baker, Philadelphia Athletics, bought by New York Yankees, 1916; $35,000. Joe Tinker, Cincinnati Nationals, bought by Brooklyn, 1913; never reported; $25,000 Marty O'Toole, St. Paul American Association, bought by Pittsburg, 1912; $22,500. Larry Chappelle, Milwaukee American Association, bought by Chicago White Sox, 1913; $18,000. Lefty Russell, Baltimore International League, bought by Philadelphia Athletics, 1913; $12,000. Fritz Maisel, Baltimore International League, bought by New York Yankees, 1913; $12,000. Rube Marquard, Indianapolis American Association, bought by New York Giants, $11,000.

GOLF AS IT IS PLAYED

Awful tale of Thrilling Contest Between Beginners

The Denver Post tells a story of a "remarkable" golf match, to wit: "Doc Woodworth and Mike Scheissle played nine holes on the Park Ridge Club course. After a long struggle they returned, weary and worn to the clubhouse. "How did you come out?" was inquired.

"We halved every one of the nine holes," replied Mike.

"What?"

their balls the hole shall be halved. We each lost a ball on each hole. We were going to play it off, but Mike run out of balls."

"Yes, halved 'em all," assented Doc. "You see it was this way. The rules say that in case both players lose

THE SECRET OF YOUTH

Jack Shea, the sterling defence man of the Ottawa Club, tells a good lacrosse story. One notable feature of the lacrosse revival was the attendance at the Ottawa games of so many old timers. The love for the national pastime is evidently in the blood and they could not keep away. Well, one of Shea's acquaintances saw the Senators vanquish "Newsy" Lalonde and his celebrated champions. The following morning he stuck his head in Jack's office to express his appreciation of the play. "I was sixty-two yesterday," he exclaimed. "But I saw the game and it took ten years off my life. It was the greatest I ever witnessed. I feel fifty-two to-day."

Triple Play Unassisted

Bill R[illegible]rs, formerly with the Indians, achieved undying fame when he executed an unassisted triple play against Salt Lake, while playing second base for the Portland Club, in the Pacific Coast League. Salt Lake had Orr on first and Ryan on second in the last half of the second. Guignt, the next man up, drove a vicious liner at Rodgers. He speared it, touched out Orr, who was racing for second, and then leaped to the second bag before Ryan could get back, thus completing one of the rarest [illegible] in baseball.

Extreme exaggerations.

And Willie's father said that once

And prudent moderation.

And that is why his father, kind,
When others cry, "The Silly!"
Observes: "He has a cautious mind.
I have great hopes of Willie."

The Grave-Digger Beetle.

When an animal dies in a garden or in the woods and decomposition begins, carrion bugs come from far and near. A dead bird, a mouse, or a harmless snake wantonly killed by some wanderer provides a banquet for hundreds of insects. Among these the "grave-diggers" are found, embracing forty-three species, twelve of which are found in Europe, the rest in America.

You can identify these beetles, says The Popular Science Monthly, by the two jagged yellowish-red or reddish transverse bands upon their black wing-covers. Their scientific name (Necrophorus) means no more than "buriers of the dead." As undertakers, the insects have legs especially adapted for digging.

A grave-digger beetle has a most extraordinary sense of smell. He can detect the peculiar odor of decomposition a long distance away and flies to the dead thing as straight as an arrow. His remarkably keen nose is situated in his club-like feelers.

As a rule several grave-diggers are found near a dead body. They crawl under it and scratch the supporting earth away, so that the body soon lies in a hollow. Gradually the body is lowered, until it sinks below the surface. Then it is covered with earth. The female lays her eggs around the interred form, thus insuring for the newly hatched larvæ a plentiful food supply.

The Lost Tribes.

The "lost tribes"—or at least part of them—remain a mystery to this day. A portion of the Hebrew people—the tribes of Judah and Benjamin—returned from exile, and became the ancestors of the Jewish people. The story of their return is recorded in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah. Others, probably some of them belonging to the missing tribes of the Northern Kingdom (are believed to have returned from still remoter lands and mixed with the Jews of Palestine again (see Luke 2: 36), while a few at least probably mingled with the mixed population with which the king of Asyria colonized Samaria, and who became the ancestors of the Samaritans. Many, however, remained in the Asyrian empire and lived in colonies throughout the East. Various writers have claimed that traces of them had been found among the Tartars, the Nestorians, and in India and Africa; but these are rather speculative ideas than substantial evidence. Josephus, the Jewish historian, wrote that the habitable globe was so full of Jews that there was scarcely a corner of the great Roman world-empire where they might not be found.

The Cheapest Vehicle.

The national desire to practise economy should bring many more cyclists on our roads. There is no pastime quite so diversified, so healthy, and so inexpensive as cycling, for to the observant rider it is ever full of interest from the sense of its scenic character; it keeps one fit and supple even unto the late years of life, and it costs, even a constant enthusiast like myself, something under a farthing a mile.

Deliver Cream Often

Cream is a highly perishable product. Like other similar products, it is best when fresh, and should therefore be marketed as early as possible. Age will deteriorate cream under any condition. While proper care retards such deterioration, it cannot entirely prevent it; hence delivery should be made often, preferably three times per week in summer and twice per week in winter.

Vegetables in Autumn

As soon as the cutting season is over, the asparagus bed should receive a good top dressing of barnyard manure. Do not wait until autumn, as an application then will not benefit the next year's crop. Keep the celery plants well covered with bordeaux mixture to prevent the plants becoming diseased. Save as much of your own vegetable seed as possible. Good seed may be scarce sometime.

FORESTS IN SPRING

Danger Of Fire Is At Its Height In Canada

So far as Canadian forests are concerned, spring is one of the worst times. The dead leaves of last season and the dead twigs and branches on the ground are more brittle and dry in the first few days of spring just after the snow leaves than at any other time in the year. Those who go into the woods for any purpose are, therefore, cautioned to be careful with their camp fires and with matches. They should also see that any cigar or cigarette stubs are dead out before they throw them away. Observance of these precautions will do more for conservation than many meetings and conventions ten years from now and this duty is urged on all patriotic citizens
